THE JURY AT JACKSON HAS FAILED TO AGREE

So Reported and Were Discharged By Judge.

Case Will Be Transferred to Cynthiana, Ky.

Jackson, Ky., June 19.—At 8 o'clock the jury in the Jett-White trial filed into the court room, and Foreman Richard Millard said: "Your honor, we find there is no chance of coming to an agreement."

Judge Redwine said: "I will have to keep you gentlemen together until Saturday night unless you get a verdict sooner. There is no reason why a verdict should not be reached in this case."

Juror Millard said: "One man has as much right to his opinion as another, and he may stick to it."

It was believed from this that there was only one man between the verdict of guilty or not guilty, and it was conceded that only one juror was then for conviction, and it was said that the question of punishment had not been considered at all. Later the jury again reported it was unable to agree, and shortly after 9 o'clock it was discharged, so that there will be another trial. The dominant faction evidently expected acquittal this morning, but there was at least one juror who would not so report.

Judge Redwine has decided to transfer the Jett-White case to Cynthiana for trial.

The scene after the announcement was in nowise exciting. Some started to clap hands, but were stopped by the court. The guards took immediate possession of the prisoners and they were closely guarded back to jail. People gathered around the court house in knots discussing the case, but there were no disturbances nor outward sign of trouble. Jett and White are to be watched closely to prevent any sort of communication. It is feared there will be an attempt made to either rescue the prisoners or dispose of them, but this is practically impossible on account of the guards. Maj. Allen has the situation well in hand.

Attorney Byrd, after a consultation, at 10 o'clock made a motion for a change of venue. Judge Redwine refused to hear arguments, but of his own accord changed the venue to Cynthiana, Harrison county, at the next term of court. Cynthiana is not in Judge Redwine's district. He surprised the spectators by at once ordering the prisoners sent to Lexington under a detachment of soldiers and accompanied by Elisor Jones. They will leave Jackson at 2 o'clock and be placed in Lexington jail for safe keeping at 7 o'clock tonight.

It is stated from another semi-official source that the jury stood eleven for conviction and one for acquittal in the Jett case and seven for conviction and five for acquittal in the White case. Fitzpatrick, the man who finally stood out for the acquittal of Jett, says he did not base his opinion on the arguments of the attorneys, but on the evidence in the case. He said there is in his mind not only a reasonable doubt of Jett's guilt, but there is also reason to believe that he had nothing to do with the murder of Marcum.

Lexington, Ky., June 19.—State Inspector Hines went to Frankfort today, returning from his investigations of the conditions at Jackson. He will make his report to Governor Beckham today. He has the name of the man who went to Witness B. J. Ewen and offered him $5000 to testify before the trial court so that Curtis Jett would not be named as the murderer of J. B. Marcum. Ewen told Judge Hines also the names of the men who were secreted in a closet and heard the conversation. They were seen by Judge Hines and Corborated Ewen's statement.

Capt. Ewen, on hearing what the judge had done, said he intended to remain here till Monday night and address the meeting, then either go to parts unknown, or apply for board at the Lexington jail, where he can be safe. He said he was afraid he was in danger of being assassinated by Jackson men even here, and recalled the Hearst case here several years ago, under similar circumstances. He went to Col. Breckenridge for advice, and will act largely on his suggestions. As Ewen is the only eye witness against Jett and White who will testify it, it is feared that he will be disposed of before the new trials at Cynthiana, and he was warned from Jackson today.

Col. Roger Williams, in command of the state troops at Jackson, is of opinion that it will do no good to keep the troops longer at Jackson to protect lives or property. It has been demonstrated pretty well that the militia, no matter how vigilant, cannot prevent assassination or arson under existing conditions.

Tom Baker, while in camp with troops, was shot from the sheriff's house at Manchester, and the assassin escaped before the troops could surround the building.

"We could not protect him unless we kept him covered up. He stood out in front of his tent against our warning and was shot. We had watched Ewen's house at Jackson constantly, even while he was hiding up the Lexington and Eastern railroad. He thought it best to withdraw the guard and come to the camp, and then his house was burned. When the feudists desire to burn or kill in Jackson all the troops cannot prevent it. We, of course, could possibly deter it in a manner by taking away to a degree the protection afforded assassins and incendiaries."

Frankfort, Ky., June 19.—Governor Beckham was asked on the information of the news from Jackson what he would do, if anything in the matter of a trial He said:

"I cannot at this time say what I will do. I must refuse to make any statement at this time."

It was learned here that Judge Redwine had agreed now to try the cases at Cynthiana, but it is thought that the governor will insist on some other trial judge.

TRAINMEN KILLED

Four Lose Lives In Collision on Illinois Central.

Postal Clerk and Three Passengers Were Somewhat Injured.

Waterloo, Iowa, June 19.—A passenger train on the Illinois Central, which left Omaha at 7:50 last night, collided, head-on, with a freight train just west of Raymond, Iowa, at 2:40 this morning. Both engineers and firemen were killed, a mail agent seriously injured, and three passengers slightly hurt. It took four hours to clear the track of the wreckage.

The dead:

J. R. GRIFFIN, engineer.
F. H. STONEMAN, engineer.
J. B. MILLS, fireman.
D. J. BRANTZ, fireman.

Injured: —— Groom, postal clerk. Groom was taken to a hospital at Watterloo. The three passengers injured were able to continue their journey.

CLOQUET STORE BURGLARIZED

Joseph Loissel Hardware Establishment Robbed of Goods and Cash.

Cloquet, Minn., June 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Burglars entered the hardware store of Joseph Loissel last night under the very shadow of the police station, which is located immediately across the street, and removed a large amount of cutlery and shooting irons, etc. Part of their booty consisted of 135 pocket knives, six compasses, two Winchester rifles, one single-barreled shotgun and $10.40 in cash which was in the cash register. Entrance to the store was obtained from the rear by prying open a window. The burglary is supposed to have occurred at an early hour in the evening. One of the police officers heard a cash register ring about 9:30 o'clock in the evening, and it seemed to come from across the street, but he paid no attention to it. He did not think any unauthorized person could be in the store across the street, from the fact that the Odd Fellows, who have their hall over the store, were meeting at that time, and burglars would hardly dare to operate then or at such an early hour in the evening. There is no clue to the thieves.

THE BISBEE MINES.

Thirty Per Cent Ore at Calumet & Pittsburg.

Bisbee, Ariz., June 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Portage Lake & Bisbee mine has ore in the bottom and a heavy flow of water. The Calumet & Pittsburg has 20 per cent carbonate ore in the face of the drift, all statements to the contrary notwithstanding.

HORACE J. STEVENS.

TOOK NO CHANCES.

Cut Throat, Shot Himself and Jumped Into Lake.

Brainerd, Minn., June 19.—William Koernke, a well-known farmer living near Mission lake, north of the city, committed suicide yesterday.

He first slashed his throat with a razor and then shot off part of his head with a shotgun and afterward jumped into the lake.

He leaves a wife and several small children. Despondency over financial troubles is said to be the cause of his act.

DECLARED A DRAW

But Jackson Clearly Won Fight With Wolcott.

Portland, Ore., June 19.—Joe Wolcott, of Boston, and young Peter Jackson, of Baltimore, both colored, fought a 20-round draw at the Pastime club last night. When the referee declared the fight a draw at the end of the twentieth round, the crowd yelled for Jackson, as it was clearly his fight for the last five rounds.

In the last two rounds Walcott clinched repeatedly and hung on with his arms around Jackson's waist, and the referee pulled them apart.

THE ALBATROS SAIL.

Seattle, June 19.—The government steamer Albatross, with the special congressional commission appointed to investigate the fish and fisheries of Alaska aboard, sailed last night for Nanaimo, where the work of the commission will begin. The damage to the Albatross was not as serious as was thought.

FAVOR THE TREATY

Prominent Men of Colombia Approve the Panama Canal.

Treaty Would Make Colombia and United States Allies.

Panama, Colombia, June 19.—The Star and Herald has been publishing a series of article by the most prominent Isthmians on the canal question. Dr. Pablo Arosemena, an influential member of the Liberal party, wrote an article decidedly favoring the ratification of the Panama treaty showing that every prominent Conservative or Liberal in Panama favors it. Another writer says he sees great danger for the sovereignty of Colombia if the treaty is not ratified and declares that the United States can buy control of the French company as Great Britain did in the case of the Suez canal and then denounce the treaty of 1846, guaranteeing the sovereignty of Colombia. The writers say that if at the same time the European powers decide to push their claims against Colombia, the republic being unable to comply with them, a repetition of the naval demonstration against Venezuela is possible "which is more insulting to the national honor than approval of the treaty, which really makes Colombia and the United States allies."

"If," the article continues, "being free of her obligation to guarantee Colombian sovereignty, the United States decides to land forces and guarantee free transit to the world's commerce, Colombia could not prevent her so doing, which would be far more dangerous than the ratification of the treaty.

New York, June 19.—Advices from Barranquilla and Cartagena show a decidedly favorable turn in the controversy over the question of ratifying the Panama canal treaty, says a Herald dispatch from Panama. This change is due primarily to the isthmian public spirit and to the continued publications here by prominent men of both the Conservative and Liberal parties, elucidating the important points in the controversy.

The restoration of public order throughout the republic is also contributing to dispose opinion more favorably toward the canal treaty.

EXPLORATION COMPANY.

Albany, N. Y., June 19.—The Northwestern Exploration company, with its principal offices in Manhattan, has been incorporated here with $100,000 capital. J. Campbell Cory, of Helena, Mont., is one of the directors.

AMERICAN BORN AT GUAM.

New York, June 19.—Advices from Guam announce the birth there of the first American child on the island. The christening was marked by a big celebration, in which the entire community joined.

SERVIAN GOVERNMENT IS SHORT OF FUNDS

Lack of Legal Standing Prevents Raising Any.

Russia Has Resumed Her Diplomatic Relations.

Belgrade, Servia, June 19.—A deputation to meet King Peter started in this morning for Geneva. Three sisters of the late Queen Draga also departed from Belgrade for Vienna.

The provisional government has offered the diplomatic corps places at the railroad station on the occasion of the reception of King Peter, also expressing the deire that they appear in uniform. The diplomats have not replied, pending the receipt of instructions from their respective governments.

The provisional government is very short of funds and has been unable thus far to raise money in consequence of its status not being legalized.

The government found the treasury practically empty and has no means of obtaining money. The banks having refused to float even a small loan. An installment of the recent French loan was due June 15, but the French official who arrived with the cash refused to hand it over until the status of the government was properly defined. The expenses of the deputation which has gone to Geneva were met with difficulty and the army is owed long arrears of pay. As to transactions between the government and private individuals the ministry has informed the legations whose subjects are involved that the ministers will be personally responsible for their payment.

The following notification was gazetted today:

"The Russian minister here has informed the minister of foreign affairs that he will enter into relations with the Servian government today, as the czar had been pleased to recognize Prince Peter Karageorgevitch as king of Servia."

As foreign minister, Kallevics officially visited the Russian legation today the formal relations appear to have been already resumed.

The streets of Belgrade are beginning to wear a gay aspect. They are decorated with flags and venetian masts have been erected from the palace to the depot.

The posotion of the regicides under the new king is freely discussed and it is expected that they will be promoted and pensioned and then gradually removed. Any slight of them, however, would be hotly resented by the army, which is master of the situation.

The newspaper correspondents, who came here from Sofia have been recalled. They say there are indications of serious trouble in Bulgaria.

St. Petersburg, June 19.—The Russian court has gone into mourning for twenty-four days for the late King Alexander and Queen Draga.

SPLENDID WORK

Done By the Children at the St. Louis Saengerfest.

Vast Audience Highly Enthusiastic Over Well Trained Voices.

St. Louis, June 19.—As on the opening night, the full strength of the Saengerfest participated in the afternoon concert of the Thirty-first national musical festival today, and although the audience was for the most part composed of women, there was not a small quota of men who helped fill the liberal arts building. One of the features of this afternoon's program was the chorus of 4000 children from the public schools of St. Louis, who for months have been carefully trained for participation in the saengerfest.

The concert began at 2:30 o'clock under the supervision of Directors Alfred Ernest and William H. Pommer. Without any preliminaries the concert was opened with an overture by the grand orchestra of 200 pieces.

During the performance, the orchestra rendered two other numbers, rousing the audience to the highest pitch of enthusiasm with its tremendous sweeping harmony.

Max Lohfing, the basso soloist, rendered the opening vocal number and was followed by the chorus of children from the schools. At the conclusion of the chorus a wave of applause swept from the vast audience and the greatest appreciation of the splendid work of the trained young voices was demonstrated.

Solos were rendered by Mme. Fleischer-Edel, soprano; Mme. Louise Homer, contralto; Will Birrenkoven, tenor, and Max Lohfing, basso. Then the magnificent blending of their voices was shown in a quartette from the opera Faust, act 3.

The crowning rendition of the afternoon, was the quintet including James J. Rohan, baritone, in the rendition of a number from Wagner's "Der Meister Singer."

Its interpretation was a feat of mastery art, the familiar composition being revealed in new beauties by the perfectly balanced and harmonized voices, fascinating and entrancing the audience, which loudly acclaimed pleasure by handclapping.

The closing number of the afternoon, was rendered by the chorus of school children.

Tonight, the closing concert of the saengerfest will be held.

A RECORD BREAKING CROWD IS EXPECTED AT THE DERBY

Chicago, June 19.—The American Derby, which will be run at Washington park track, is now in the hands of the weather man. Whether the track is heavy or fast will matter little in the size of the field. But if rains fall there will be big shifts in the betting. Secretary Howard predicts a field of eighteen, but the official entries will not tell the full story as to the number of starters. In the Derby, owners have until forty-five minutes before the race to declare their intentions. The field may be swelled or reduced tomorrow afternoon.

John A. Drake, the owner of Savable, the favorite, hopes for a dry track. The son of Salvator is believed to be best on a course that is lightning fast. There has been a cessation in the betting because of the prediction of rain for tonight. Savable's price will go up if it rains.

Other owners are crying for rain. The two second choices for the Derby, Claude and Judge Himes, are mud horses. Both have won stake races this year on heavy tracks. If the Washington track is heavy, they will probably go to the post at 4 to 1, with Savable the favorite by only a slight margin. The weight of money already laid will probably make Savable favorite under any conditions.

Singularly enough, other strong candidates for the race are impartial as to the going, and this fact will save the field from much scratching. Gregor K., Au Revoir, Linguist, Fore and Aft and Early have indicated that they can run on either kind of a course. Flocartine is a good filly in the mud. The horses most affected by mud are Dick Welles and The Picket.

All attendance records will be broken if the weather is fair. The demand for boxes and seats is far beyond that of any previous year. In anticipation of a large crowd, the Washington Park club has rebuilt one end of its grand stand, enlarged the bleacher capacity and arranged for more ground space for spectators.

Lawrence A. Young, president of the Washington Park club, believes the attendance will be greater than at any horse race ever run in America, and thinks that this year will see the American Derby sent ahead of the English and French Derbies in the matter of a large crowd. His estimate is 75,000. The betting this morning showed no material change.

PROMINENT MINE PROMOTER SPENDS THE NIGHT IN JAIL

Theodore Gross Is Charged With Fraud In a Three Million Dollar Deal—Richard Polson of Chicago, an Alleged Victim, Being the Accuser.

Chicago, June 19.—Charged with fraud in a $3,500,000 mining deal, in which his commissions are declared to have been $200,000, Theodore Gross, a mine promoter, spent last night in the county jail. The immediate cause of his imprisonment was his failure to secure bonds of $25,000 under an exeat writ and his refusal to answer the questions of Master in Chancery John J. Healy.

Richard Polson, Chicago manager of Walter Baker & Co. (limited), is Gross' accuser. He declares Gross fradulently withheld $125,000 due him as commission in the sale of the Camp Bird Mining company stocks from Thomas F. Walsh, the Colorado millionaire, now of Washington, D. C., to the Venture company, of London. This transaction was made in May, 1902. Gross is declared to have received from the English investors 25,000 shares of the company's stock and a large sum from Mr. Walsh, Polson declares that his partner admitted having received $50,000 and that he has never accounted for the sum.

Gross was arrested at the Chicago Athletic club. eH arrived in Chicago Tuesday evening from London, where he has been since last November. Six weeks ago Mr. Polson, in a chance conversation, heard that Gross had received the $200,000 commission and also that Gross had been accused of fraudulent dealings in New York six years ago. Detectives were at once detailed to shadow Gross and when he reached Chicago Mr. Polson was notified. He secured the writ and with a deputy sheriff hurried to the club house, where the arrest followed.

Gross was taken before Judge Chytraus, who referred the hearing to Master in Chancery Healy. After being told the bond that would be required, Gross was allowed to go with a deputy to search for bondsmen. Later he declined to answer to questions of the master touching the mine transaction and partnership contract. Then he was sent to jail.

CLEVELAND HAS NO DESIRE TO RE-ENTER PUBLIC LIFE

The Former President Says the Matter of a Fourth Term Is as Far From His Thought as It Was In 1896.

New York, June 19.—The World today publishes a dispatch from Princeton, N. J., quoting former President Cleveland as saying:

"It is perfect absurd to suppose for an instant that I have any desire to re-enter public life. Nor have I remotely entertained the thought since I left Washington more than six years ago. The matter is as far from my thoughts as it was in 1896, when, all must admit, it was not within my hearing or sight. I have no higher desire than to pass my days in peace with my family around me and take no part in politics which any private citizen cannot take with the utmost propriety.

"I have never spoken to anybody on the subject of a fourth candidacy. I have never written to a single political friend one way or the other, nor have I been written to or spoken to by them. There is not a political leader of any prominence endeavoring to advance any movement to nominate me in any state, so far as I have been advised, nor do I anticipate that any such effort will be made by any leader, prominent or obscure, in any locality the country.

"I have on several occasions, within a year, undertaken to perform the labor which usually falls to the private in the ranks, but there has not lurked within me the hope of any reward, save the consciousness of having made an effort to assist in bringing about salutary conditions in the party."

A CROOKED SEPTUAGENARIAN IS LANDED IN JAIL AT LAST

Police Have Been Searching For the Old Reprobate For Twenty Years—He Worked Successfully In Many Localities But Was Caught at Monmouth, Ill.

Chicago, June 19.—"Professor" Arthur, a septuagenarian who has been sought by the police of a dozen cities for nearly a score of years, has been caught at Monmouth, Ill., by Chicago detectives.

Arthur has operated under many different names, and when he was arrested papers were found in his possession indicating that he was traveling as the vice president of a bank, a professor in an Eastern college, a tourist, a lecturer and a minister. In his satchel was found a full banking outfit, including 500 imitation drafts on the National Park bank of New York. The police of Chicago have been working on the case for more than a year, or ever since it was discovered that the drafts were printed in this city, where the "professor" apparently had headquarters. The alias "Professor Arthur" was the name under which he made his last appearance. "An eminent member of the faculty of Hamilton college," as he is reported to have represented himself. He was to have lectured last night on "Egypt and the Orient."

As "J. S. C. Bliss" he is said to have posed as the vice president of the People's National bank of McMinnsville, Tenn. A quantity of drafts and stationary, duplicates of that used in the Southern bank, were found in his possession. It was while working in this guise that the prisoner is alleged to have deceived many persons in the smaller cities and even some in Chicago.

As "S. C. Bliss" he was reported as a tourist just returned from the Orient and Egypt—a lecturer. Letters of indorsement, given by pastors, were found by the police.

As the "Rev. A. D. Postham" it is said the prisoner professed to be a Methodist preacher driven by his health to travel to the mountains of Colorado, and securing funds and entertainment by delivering lectures and "supplying" the public pulpits of many churches.

"Arthur's" latest alleged swindle, by which he is believed to have obtained $260,000, is thus described by the police: He would deliver a lecture, and when about to leave would produce a New York draft for sometimes $25 and sometimes $200 or more. The paper appeared regular in every way, and there seldom was difficulty in cashing it. "J. S. C. Bliss" is wanted in Kansas, Nebraska, Indiana and Illinois.

MURDERER SHOT; HIS PAL HANGED

Glasgow, Mont., June 19.—William Hardee, the condemned murderer, who, with three other prisoners, escaped from the city jail in this city two weeks ago after killing one guard and beating almost to death two others, was shot and killed late Monday afternoon in the Bad Lands, seventy-five miles from this city, after a desperate battle with the posse under Sheriff Cosner. Charles R. Hill, one of the posse, received wounds from which he died in a short time. Fred McKinney, Hardee's outlaw companion, succeeded in escaping after the battle, but his capture is believed to be certain.

When the news reached this city late last night a mob was quickly formed. The guard at the jail was overpowered and Jack Brone, one of Hardee's companions, who was recaptured, was taken from his cell and hanged from a window in the county court house.

ELECTRICAL EXPERT IS KILLED

Philadelphia, June 19.—Otto Thorner, an electrical expert from Germany, was instantly killed by touching a live wire while inspecting a new switchboard for the Germantown Electric Light company. Thorner had been in America only a few weeks. He was formerly assistant supervisor of the electric light system of Berlin, and was an authority on electrical construction. He was sent here as an agent of Siemens & Halskeat, of Berlin. Thorner was making the final adjustment of the switchboard when the accident occurred. Workmen in an adjoining room saw a flash, heard a heavy fall and later found Thorner lying twenty feet from the switchboard dead. It is supposed his hand came in contact with a switch, sending 2500 volts through his body.

ITALIANS ALLEGE A GREAT MIRACLE

New York, June 19.—Intense excitement prevails in Little Italy over an alleged miracle performed at the shrine of St. Calogero Di Sciacca. For hours after the report went out cripples of every description hurried to the Broome street corner, where the altar had been erected. Finally a parade was organized in which all the devotees in that quarter marched. It was the first time that the birthday of the staint had been celebrated in this country and the zeal of the worshippers was excessive. Men, women and children kneeled before the altar on the sidewalk or in the middle of the street, and many wre crushed in their effort to get close to the altar. On the altar is an image of the saint in porcelain in the act of healing a child. The story of the miracle here was that a child, lame since birth, had been cured while the parents were praying on the sidewalk. The report spread rapidly with the above result.

"GET RICH QUICK" ARNOLD APPEARS

St. Louis, June 19.—E. J. Arnold, proprietor of the Arnold Turf Investment company, chief of the exploded "get rich quick" concerns, appeared at the Four Courts, shortly after 11 o'clock today and surrendered himself. Arnold, who is charged in indictments with fraud, has been missing since his company went to pieces in February. Attorney Thomas J. Rowe, accompanied Arnold to the Four Courts. They entered court room No. 8 where Arnold stated that he was ready to give bond.

Arnold's manager, Lumpkin A. Gill, is also under indictment, and has been missing from the city.

AGED WOMAN SUBDUES A LUNATIC

New York, June 19.—Mrs. Nancy Rose, the oldest lighthouse keeper in the United States, is the heroine of a combat in the historic lighthouse at Stony Point, on the Hudson, in which she was pitted single-handed against a lunatic. Armed only with a poker, the woman, who is 75 years old, and has attended the light half a century, bravely stood her ground and drove back her assailant. The man who attacked her climber in the tower, and exclaiming that the light must be torn down, started to demolish things. Mrs. Rose seized a poker and belabored him over the head. He stood the rain of blows for a moment and then fled, locking the door as he went. The old lady sounded the fog bell and secured aid from the residents near by. The man was soon captured and locked up.

UPPER PENINSULA PHYSICIAN HURT

Houghton, Mich., June 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—While answering an urgent call, Dr. John H. Vincent, of Red Ridge, was thrown and dragged several hundred feet by his horse, sustaining a broken nose, a dislocation of the neck and a fractured skull. He may recover. The 2-year-old daughter of Alonzo Clifford, of Beacon Hill, threw her arms around a strange dog, which bit her in the face, breaking her jaw and possibly destroying her sight of one eye. The dog is thought to be rabid. Dr. Vincent was hurt while hastening to attend the child.

TRAINING ENDED

Five Young Women Are Graduated From St. Luke's Hospital.

Exercises at St. Paul's Church—Bishop Morrison Makes Address.

Five young women, gowned in the snowy white aprons and caps of their profession, received their diplomas from St. Luke's hospital last evening. The graduation exercises were held in St. Paul's Episcopal church. Bishop Morrison delivering the address to the class.

In his address Bishop Morrison gave a short sketch of the growth of the hospital from the fourth century, when it was first established up to the completely equipped building of modern times.

"We are apt to think lightly of the dangers which attach to the profession of a nurse," said Bishop Morrison. "We pass along the street and see a placard warning us of disease, but calmly and deliberately they go to face death upon the call of stricken humanity.

"Young ladies of the graduating class of St. Luke's hospital, because you have passed through the long and trying ordeal of your studies, and you have bravely devoted your lives to the work, coming day by day into contact with disease and pain, we are gathered here tonight to do you honor and to wish you a long, helpful and successful career."

He then presented the young ladies with their diplomas, saying as he gave them out: "I present you with your diploma of graduation by the authority vested in me by St. Luke's hospital."

The badges were then pinned on by the superintendent of the hospital and the bishop offered a short prayer that the graduates be given ability to do the work chosen by them and that good fortune and sucess might follow their footsteps.

The five young women then filed out into the vestry followed by the choir. The services were necessarily very brief, lasting in all but little over half an hour, as the graduates and other nurses present could not long remain off duty.

The names of the young women are as follows: Laura M. Moffatt, of Lindsay, Ont.; Margaret E. Dunlop, Kingston, Ont.; Gertrude E. Adams, of Duluth; Emma F. Boyd, of Eden, Ont., and Jane Callahan, of West Superior.

The church was crowded with the friends of the young women to witness the short and simple ceremonies of graduation. The graduates have now completed their labors in the training school and are considered competent to act as trained nurses.

The graduates and their friends were guests at a reception given last evening at the home of Bishop and Mrs. Morrison, on East Superior street.

CONVOCATION CONCLUDES

Committee Reports Heard —Woman's Auxiliary Chooses Its Officers.

The eight annual convocation of the Episcopal missionary district of Duluth concluded its labors yesterday afternoon, and adjourned after a very pleasant and profitable session. The afternoon business of the convocation included only some committee reports of a minor nature, the principal business having been concluded in the morning.

At the afternoon meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary officers were elected as follows:

President—Mrs. J. D. Morrison, Duluth.
Deanery of Duluth—First vice president, Mrs. T. H. M. Villiers Appleby, Duluth; second vice president, Mrs. G. V. Quilliard, Duluth; secretary-treasurer, Miss Carrie Redmond, Duluth; secretary of junior auxiliary, Mrs. F. C. Berry, Duluth; secretary of the Little Helpers, Mrs. Henry Taylor, Duluth; correspondent, Mrs. Augustus Viele, Duluth.
Deanery of the Mississippi Valley—First vice president, Mrs. Barnes, of Alexandria, Minn.; second vice president, Mrs. E. S. Murphy, Wadena, Minn.
Deanery of the Red River Valley—First vice president, Mrs. H. J. Webster, Moorhead, Minn.; second vice president, Mrs. A. R. Mitchell, Hallock, Minn.
Committees—Nominations, Mrs. J. E. Bowers, chairwoman, Mrs. G. V. Quilliard, Mrs. J. H. Brown, Mrs. F. B. Millard, Mrs. H. J. Webster; state auxiliary, the vice presidents; plans, Mrs. Henry Taylor, Mrs. R. J. Mooney, Mrs. E. C. Johnson, Mrs. E. S. Murphy; finance, Mrs. W. H. Stultz, printing, Mrs. F. H. Barnard.

Sister Allen gave an interesting talk on "Trained Workers," in which she emphasized the value of training in every walk of life. Thorough drilling in any sort of endeavor, with sufficient education to understand the principles of the work, is the only kind of preparation to properly fit for real usefulness, she said.

Mrs. Hammond spoke on "The Negro Work," told what is being done along mission lines among the colored people, showing that the peculiar temperament of the blacks made peculiar methods necessary.

After the graduation exercises of the trained nurses from the St. Luke's hospital school, Bishop and Mrs. J. D. Morrison entertained the visitors at their home on East Superior street. The visiting clergy and those who are entertaining them, the Woman's Auxiliary, the adult choir of St. Paul's church, and the nurses of the hospital and their friends, were among the guests. Miss Thornton and the graduating class received with the bishop and Mrs. Morrison.

The reception was very pleasant, and a notable feature was the presence of eight of the Indian clergy, full-blooded Chippewas, who sang in their native tongue "From Greenland's Icy Mountains." A short musical program by the choir and two recitations by Miss Mae Wylie were other charming features. The rooms were daintily decorated with lilacs, lilies of the valley and American beauty roses, and coffee and ices were served.

SEIZED ON STOCKS

Virginia Courts Practically Take Possession of Unlaunched Cruiser.

Government Will Ignore Proceedings and Launch the Galveston.

Richmond, Va., June 19.—Judge Grinnan, of the Richmond chancery court, yesterday granted an injunction restraining Lieuts. Theisis and Grosdeck, United States navy, from proceeding further towards the launching of the cruiser Galveston, under construction in the Trigg shipyards here. The action is a practical seizure of the vessel.

The injunction was granted on petition of S. H. Hawes & Co., of this city, supply creditors of the Trigg company, now in the hands of a receiver, and restrains the government officials and all other persons from in any way interfering with any of the property at the Trigg yards under control of Lilburn T. Myers, the receiver, and especially the cruiser Galveston and the dredge Denhard, under construction for the government. Lieuts. Theisis and Grosdeck were sent here by the navy department to superintend the launching of the Galveston, which it was the intention of the department to send to the Norfolk navy yard for completion. All preparations had been made for launching the vessel Monday next.

Washington, June 19.—It is stated here that proper respect will be shown the mandate of the courts so long as they keep within their jurisdiction, but that the navy department cannot submit to any interference with its rights. The cruiser Galveston, at Richmond, it is added, will be launched when ready. Secretary Moody is not at all disposed to act hastily in the matter of the Galveston, but, as indefinite delay in the construction of that vessel, in the event of an international emergency, might prove a grave matter, the department therefore feels bound to proceed with the work as rapidly as possible. It is hoped that the vessel will be in condition for launching next Monday afternoon.

Secretary Moody was informed tonight of the action of the Richmond court, restraining the government from further work on the Galveston, but declined to talk on the subject until after conferences to be held with the president and the attorney general.

Attorney General Knox was also unwilling to be quoted in the matter until his opinion rendered to the president as to the jurisdiction of the government over the Galveston has been made public. It can be stated, however, that the attorney general regards as eminently well taken the contention advanced by Rear Admiral Bowles, chief of the bureau of construction and repair, that no court has the right to interfere with work on a war vessel, and that the government would be warranted in calling federal troops to protect its agents engaged in such work.

Instructions have been sent to Lieut. Theisis and Naval Constructor Grosdeck, in charge of the work on the Galveston, to proceed with all possible dispatch in the effort to get the ship ready for launching on Monday. An invitation has been sent Miss Ella Sealey, of Galveston, Tex., selected as sponsor of the vessel, to be present on Monday to christen the Galveston with the traditional bottle of champagne.

The government has no objection to the supply creditors of the Trigg company proceedings in the courts to protect their rights, but it takes the ground that work on a warship is too important to the nation at large to be delayed while private firms are adjusting their financial difficulties with on another.

The plan of action decided upon is practically unique in the history of the naval department. It was decided on after the president, secretary of the navy and secretary of the treasury had given the subject their careful attention. It is considered that the people of Virginia will not regard the action of the navy department as in any degree reflecting upon the sovereign rights of that state. The department feels that it has shown unusual leniency toward the Trigg company, and regrets that financial embarrassment of the company should have necessitated seizure of the vessel.

When the Galveston shall be launched, a gunboat will probably be sent to accompany her to Norfolk. It is not expected that the department will have to resort to a show of naval or military force to execute its orders.

PRODUCE MARKET

California Fruits Beginning to Appear—Georgia Watermelons In.

Last Week For Large Lots of Strawberries —Poultry Declines.

The first shipment of California plums and California peaches for the present season were received in Duluth this week. They came as local shipments from Chicago, and the price is still very high. The plums are selling for $2 a crate and the peaches for $1.75 a box.

White and black cherries are being received from California and Oregon, and a few small local shipments of sour cherries from Iowa have been reported.

Watermelons are now coming from Georgia and the price is somewhat lower than last week. They are selling at 45 and 50 cents.

This will be the last week that strawberries will be received in large lots. They are at present being received from Wisconsin and Oregon. The season has now reached its height, and after this week the shipments will commence to drop off.

Local shipments of red raspberries have been received from Chicago. They come from the extreme South and the price is still very high. The blackcaps are also coming in and the price is somewhat lower than for the red berries.

Poultry prices have taken a decided drop during the past week. Hens are now selling at 14 cents, turkeys at 14 and 15 and ducks at 13. Large shipments have been received and the trade has been brisk. The first shipments of spring chickens have arrived. The fowls are still very small, having been retarded in growth by the wet season, but the crop shows every promise of being a large one.

"The demand for poultry in Duluth has fully doubled itself in the last five years," said E. J. Kolling, the Michigan street dealer, today. "The supply has with difficulty kept pace with the demand during that time. The crop this year, however, promises well."

Meat prices are at present higher than they have been for several months. The rise in the price is said to be due to the floods in the vicinity of Kansas City, which have cut off the shipments from the packing houses in that vicinity entirely.

"No shipments have been received from the Kansas City district for the past two or three weeks," said Manager Young of the Cudahy Packing company, "and it is not likely that any will arrive for at least two weeks longer.

"Kansas City is one of the largest centers of the packing industry in the country, and orders that were formerly sent there have to be filled from Chicago, Omaha and other points. These points originally had about all the orders they could handle, and the largely increased demand upon them has caused a scarcity of stock throughout the country and a consequent rise in price.

"Duluth has been more or less affected by the scarcity, and all of the local houses which have been securing any part of their supply from Kansas City are feeling the effect of the floods in a depleted stock room."

IS HEARD FROM

"Billy" Edwards, king pin of big mitt men, wanted badly in Duluth and worse in Minneapolis, has just completed a ten-day term in the county jail at Waseca for flim-flamming an unsuspecting citizen of that community. He kept his identity to himself during this short imprisonment, and has again disappeared, despite the efforts of the authorities to locate him.

A Minneapolis paper, speaking of the incident, says:

"'Billy' Edwards, king of the 'big mitt' gang, but for whose able assistance the evil-doers of the Ames administration would hardly have been brought to book, is still up and doing. From Waseca, Minn., comes the information that Billy has just done time in the county jail for working a 'con' game on an unsuspecting citizen of that community. He was sent up for ten days and immediately on his release was wise enough to jump town before the authorities discovered that he was the notorious head bookkeeper of the 'big mitt' ledger.

"If the Waseca authorities had only known this they would doubtless have detained him long enough for him to come within the clutches of the Duluth police, who want him for an offense similar to that for which his companion in crime, 'Cheerful Charlie' Howard, is now doing time in the penitentiary. Edwards is also under subpoena to the district court of Hennepin county, and will be greatly in demand if any of the municipal cases, still on the docket, ever come to trial.

"It was on the assumption of good faith on his part that Edwards, who is known from here to the coast, was allowed his freedom when there was every prospect that Hennepin county would make him pay for his misdeeds with a good long sentence. It is safe to say that no criminal in this city was ever allowed greater latitude than Edwards. He escaped punishment by turning state's evidence."

THE AERIAL BRIDGE

Engineer Patton Has Plans Ready For the Bridge Commission.

New plans for the Park Point aerial ferry will be presented the municipal bridge commission tomorrow morning.

These plans have been prepared by City Engineer Patton and it is expected that three or four bridge building concerns will compete for the aerial ferry contract under them.

The carrying capacity of the car, under the new plans, will be 125,000 pounds, exclusive of its own weight, which means that at one trip the ferry can safely transport an electric car, two teams drawing heavy loads and 400 people.

The enclosed cabins of the bridge, under the new plans and specifications, have a combined capacity of 200 people.

In drafting the new plans the city engineer took the probable future of Park Point into consideration, and on the span over the canal a place will be arranged for a twelve-inch water main and a ten-inch gas main, for electric cables and telephone wires. This removes the necessity of putting these under water, where they would be in constant danger of being ripped out by a dragging anchor of some vessel coming into port.

The span from which the traveling car is suspended will be 393 feet above the water, that being the same heighth as the Brooklyn bridge, and it is said that the highest masted vessels could pass under with plenty of space to spare.

The company building the bridge must agree to maintain and operate it for a period of three months before the city will accept it. The service must be at least every fifteen minutes during the day and every hour at night.

The ordinary speed of the car shall be about four miles an hour, but this may be increased up to ten miles an hour in case of emergency.

BRIEF CITY NEWS

In the action brought by Hugh Steele against George R. King for a dissolution of the partnership existing in the firm of King & Steele, and for an accounting of the firm's affairs, Judge Dibel has filed an order in district court, appointing William P. Lardner receiver for the firm, pending the trial. The court orders all of the property and effects of the firm turned over to the receiver.

W. A. Wagner, wholesale agent Anheuser Busch Brewing Association; Tony Faust in half barrels; Budweiser in pints and quarts. Special prices to retailers. Family trade also supplied.

The damage actions brought by Stanz Adamczski and Cyrill Archambeault against the city, the former to recover for injuries received by his minor child and the latter for those received by his horse, that came in contact with a live wire near the approach to the Missabe ore dock, has been dismissed. New cases have been instituted in which the city and one of the local telephone companies have been made co-defendants.

Parlor theater this evening, for fun.

W. W. Browne, of Biwabik, yesterday brought down a destitute family of eleven and sent them on their way to Sing Sing, N. Y. The family consists of Mrs. Charles Sampson and ten children. They were deserted by the husband and father, and the people of Biwabik raised by subscription enough money to send them home.

The Chicago Rate.

The Milwaukee road yesterday, contrary to all expectations, made a rate from St. Paul to Chicago of $8, and the railroad men all over this part of the country are expecting the drop to $4 by the Wisconsin Central to be announced by early next week.

The railroads out of Duluth were selling tickets to Chicago for $11.75, and to Milwaukee for $11.30 today, which is a cut of $1.80 from the regular rate. The announcement of the Central's rate to Chicago, via Ashland, is being anxiously awaited.

CASE IS SETTLED.

Action Against Merrill & Ring Company Adjusted.

The complaint, answer, stipulation for a settlement and a judgment on the stipulation, in the personal injury action of Sam Trombley against the Merrill & Ring Mill company, have been filed in district court. The action was brought by the plaintiff to recover damages in the amount of $2500 for injuries which his 16-year-old son Arthur is alleged to have received while working as a green hand at the company's lath machine, May 11, 1903.

It is claimed that the boy slipped on an iron plate and fell against the cradle of the lath machine, which had a defective lock, permitting the boy to swing around against the saw and resulted in the loss of his right hand and right arm. The stipulation for settlement and the judgment rendered by Judge Dibell was for $800. The plaintiff was represented by J. D. La Motte.

CORBIN AND CARTER WIN.

The Wolvin building league will make its third bow to the public tomorrow afternoon at the old Driving park.

At a late hour this afternoon it had not been decided whether there would be one or two games played, or if they should be played separately or simultaneously.

The game that is a certainty will be between the Missabes (reorganized) and the Iron Range teams.

W. J. Taylor, erstwhile manager of the ex-Missabe team, has resigned. He made a statement for publication this morning: "The baseball nine organized by me having fallen away through injuries or for some other reason, I hereby resign, as there is no team, and the only member is myself. This positively dissolves said team, and I hereby give notice that I will not be responsible for any debts contracted or any scores in games played by any team purporting to be the Missabe team.

"W. J. TAYLOR,
"Ex-Manager."

If the players can be rounded up it is possible the Pittsburgs and the Olivers will play a game tomorrow afternoon at the old Driving park, probably simultaneously with the other game.

Cardinals Finally Succeed In Defeating League Tail Enders.

Hits Numerous and About Equally Divided—Kennally Hits Hard.

The shades of night were falling fast
As over to Bugville-town there passed
A club which bore—oh, sad device—
This line—'twould turn your blood to ice
"We're from Superior!"
"Poor Old Superior!"

* * *

Spectacular and timely bumpers by Quillan and Kennally made the tail-enders look like chilled jays on the dead limb of a lightning-blasted oak.

It was one of those sadly pathetic performances that had to be. After Superior had obtained two games on Duluth's errors exclusively, the people in lonely Bugville began talking of winning the grand hunting and taking six out of every five from Winnipeg and Grand Forks for the remainder of the season.

It was more to keep those nine hundred and ninty-ninth degree fans from traveling down the correct side of Queer street that the Cardinals braced up and batted out a victory in the ninth.

Kennally, Quillan and Lambert loomed up largely at the bat. The big first baseman had four safe hits out of five times up and would have had five but a sensational catch by Foster, the clever little center fielder of the Longshoremen.

As it was Kennally batted in three of the four runs and scored one himself. Lambert breaking off two two-baggers and a single, and Quillan would easily have had a home run in the ninth but for the ground rule allowing but two bases over left field fence. When the bat and ball collided the bump sounded louder than any that has been made at Athletic Park this year. It certainly had a healthy tone, but Quillan was only allowed two bases on it and Kennally's fourth single scored him with the winning tally.

The fielding feature of the game was Lambert's catch of Casebone's drive in the fourth. It was about the greatest running catch that has been made here this season not excepting that of Jack Burns in the first game of the Crookston series. The catch looked so impossible that Blair on first ran clear to third before he knew the ball had been caught and he was out on a double play from center to first.

With not shoots in the third and fifth innings, Hall, the Superior twirler tried to iron the wrinkles out of Shepard's shirt in the vicinity of his ribs. "Shep" felt bad enough the first time, but when it happened the second time he let his hat fly toward the pitcher's plate and nearly hit Umpire Cusick.

Getting pitched his usual steady game not over-exerting his pitching arm in the chilly weather. The scores:

* * *

Foster's three-bagger was the first ever made in Athletic Park.

* * *

Girard caught a nice game yesterday indicating that he can easily take care of himself in Northern League company.

* * *

Olmstead and Kennally had a collision at first in the eighth in which the big first baseman was laid out for a while.

* * *

Cox, the old Duluth independent team pitcher, was in the grand stand yesterday. He may pitch this afternoon though ordinarily it is Mueller's turn in the box.

* * *

McConghey, the new pitcher secured from Kansas City, will probably report for duty tomorrow morning.

Manager Lycan of Crookston indulged in a little lang to head monologue with his team yesterday morning in which he put the players next to the fact that there would be a certain time each night when every player would have to be in bed and a certain time each morning when each man would have to report in uniform for practice.

He also suggested that as there were now eighteen men on his pay roll it would be necessary to do a little weeding in the near future and those to go would be selected according to their work. Continuing Mr. Lycan said:

"A team that can play and does not play should be made to. This thing of working for a record instead of going after chances will be discouraged."

Moral:

Pitchers—Martin and Sessions.

* * *

Winnipeg took advantage of Fargo again yesterday winning by timely hitting in the fourth and fifth innings. The score:

Winnipeg	0 0 0 0 2 2 0 0 1—5	8	1

Pitchers—Mehl and Bartos.

Cambridge, Mass., June 19.—In a game replete with brilliant play, Harvard won from Yale yesterday afternoon on Soldiers' field, 5 to 2, in the presence of 10,000 spectators. During the first inning Harvard batted out three runs, adding another in the second, batting Bowman, of Yale, out of the box. Patton was substituted for Bowman in the third inning and after that Harvard secured only one run. Clarkson kept Yale's hits few and scattered. He was also backed up in fine style by the Harvard fielders. Score:

	R.	H.	E.
Harvard	5	10	4
Yale	2	8	2

Batteries—Clarkson and R. Kernan, Bowman, Patton, Cote and Winslow.

WINONA SELECTED

For Next Convention of Pharmaceutical Association.

New Ulm, Minn., June 19.—Winona gets the next convention of the Minnesota State Parmaceutical association.

Forty-seven druggists in various parts of the state were elected to membership in the association and a special committee reported favorably upon forming a woman's auxiliary.

Officers were elected by the association as follows: Joseph W. Lauer, Winona, president; R. H. G. Netz, Owatonna, first vice president; Charles W. Kulling, Little Falls, second vice president; Mrs. R. G. Remey, Waconia, third vice president; T. F. Leib, Winona, secretary; A. A. Campbell, St. Paul, treasurer. Those named by the commercial travelers' auxiliary were: W. R. Ford, Minneapolis, president; L. H. Norwood, Minneapolis, first vice president; A. F. Dolworth, St. Paul, second vice president; N. E. Cannon, St. Paul, third vice president; J. E. King, Minneapolis, secretary and areasurer.

The names of ten druggists were submitted to the convention by the nominating committee. They were A. D. Thompson, Minneapolis; Henry Rauch, Minneapolis; Joseph Potez, St. Peter; A. C. LaRicheaux, Duluth; P. C. Cummings, Blue Earth; B. O. Kyseth, Sherburn; W. G. Alwin, New Ulm; George Doehne, Jr., Austin; S. B. Welser, St. James, and E. A. Leipper, Minneapolis. Five of these will be recommended to Governor Van Sant and he will appoint one to the next vacancy upon the state pharmacy board.

A resolution was adopted which indorses the action of the last legislature, by which the committe on legislation is instructed to draft a bill making it unlawful for a druggist to dispense cocaine in any of its forms except when prescribed by a licensed physician.

POLITICAL TALK

Senator Hawkins Suggested as Possible Candidate For Governor.

Offers No Encouragement to the Idea—Other Political Talk.

A report has been in circulation about the streets for a day or two that Duluth had a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor.

The gentleman toward whom the finger of rumor pointed in this connection was Senator E. B. Hawkins.

His friends were delighted with the report, and came to see him about it assure him of their hearty support.

To which the senator smilingly replied:

"You should read the constitution of the state."

"Why, what about the constitutiton? Are you mentioned in it?" was the surprised response.

"Yes," continued Senator Hawkins, "I am, indirectly. The constitution says that a member of the legislature may hold no other office except that of postmaster, and I do not want to be postmaster. I believe that settles it."

* * *

Political talk has never been so plentiful so far in advance of the proper time for it as it is today. The question of who the Republican state convention is going to nominate for governor next June is one of the live questions, and down in the Twin Cities, as well as in all over the state, it is being discussed actively.

Governor Van Sant has not announced himself, but he is busily attending all the church fairs, sewing bees, quilting bees, etc., that he can get hold of, and addressing the populace upon every possible ocasion, which would seem to indicate that he has not altogether lost the idea of seeking a third term.

* * *

The United States senatorship will come up at the next session of the legislature, and although that is nearly two years away, it is another matter that is being talked about a good deal. Senator Clapp's term expires and he will be a candidate for re-election. There will be several other candidates, Thomas Lowry and Thomas H. Shelvin, both of Minneapolis, are on the tongues of political gossipers, though both have somewhat faintly denied that they are candidates at all. Both of them have large sums of money at their disposal to make the fight lively, if they go in, which they are very likely to do. While Senator Clapp will have the best position, being the incumbent, he is not without opposition, and it may be that a systematic and vigorous fight will have to be waged to keep him in his seat.

* * *

There is some talk about who wants to be the next mayor of Duluth, and while Mayor Hugo has said nothing so far as can be ascertained, rumor has been getting busy again and announces that he is likely to be a third-term candidate for burgomaster.

* * *

The appointment of Henry F. Greene as a member of the board of civil service commissioners leaves another vacancy to be filled—that of referee in bankrupty, to which position he was appointed by Judge Morris' efforts when the bankruptcy law went into effect. No names for this place have been mentioned as yet.

TENNIS TOURNAMENT.

Three interesting events were pulled off yesterday in the tournament of the Endion Tennis club.

Graff was playing in fine form and succeeded in defeating MacKenzie two love sets 6-0, 6-0.

The contest between Hickman and Bunn was scarcely less one-sided, Bunn winning out in two straight sets 6-1, 6-0.

Palmer and Gail came together in a more warmly contested battle, Palmer finally winning out in two straight sets by the score of 6-2, 6-3.

This afternoon and tomorrow will be busy days at the courts, and it is expected that the remaining matches in the first round will be played before the end of the week. With the weeding-out process the matches will become more and more interesting as the finals approach, and next week will see some good tennis on the East End courts.

HOBOES FIRED UPON OFFICERS

One Shot Dead and Others Were Quickly Subdued.

Dillon, Mont., June 19.—Dan McCloskey, a miner of Butte, met his death at the hands of Chief of Police stone while resisting arrest and that officer singlehanded also captured five hoboes. McCloskey was shot through the heart, dying almost instantly. He was near the stock yards with a gang of tramps, who had all been drinking heavily and were cooking breakfast when the chief arrived.

Chief Stone told them to come to town with him, but they resented it and exchanged some words with him when, almost before he knew it, McCloskey, who was in a half kneeling position, whipped out a gun and fired at him. As Stone saw the motion he dodged, pulling his own gun as he did so.

The bullet from McCloskey's gun whistled so close to the officer's neck that he felt it sting. Almost as soon as he saw the motion Mr. Stone pulled his gun and fired twice without raising his gun from his hips and McCloskey fell back lifeless.

The rest of the hoboes then jumped upon the chief of police and he had a lively time subduing them. The men were loaded in an express wagon and brought to town where they were lodged in jail.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

SEVEN WONDERFUL SALES SATURDAY

For the benefit of our excursion visitors who are cordially invited to make the Big Glass Block Store their headquarters while in Duluth; and to refresh the memory of our own people, we repeat the story of these 7 wonderful sales, all of which are so full of money-saving interest to everyone. Our Mr. Panton was called East by telegraph about two weeks ago, to attend some forced sales by manufacturers and wholesalers. He succeeded in buying at his own price, seven great stocks of high class, seasonable, dependable goods, which are the biggest and most remarkable purchases ever made by one single store in Minnesota. Every one of the 7 great purchases was secured at a price so low the cost of material was not covered, and every one has been placed on sale at such low retail prices as have never before been possible on high quality, dependable merchandise.

The purchases have been placed on sale one at a time for the past week, and each has drawn the greatest crowds and caused the greatest enthusiasm ever known in the Big Store outside of holiday times. People have come and bought and have gone away to tell their friends of the wonderful bargains. This has resulted in bringing greater crowds from day to day, until we have been obliged to hire scores of extra salespeople to wait on the crowds.

Below we give the details of each of these seven remarkable purchases, and in inviting visitors and Duluthians to come in on Saturday for a share of these money-saving bargains, we assure you that notwithstanding the great selling of the past week the purchases were so immense that there's

PLENTY OF EVERYTHING FOR EVERYBODY ON SATURDAY!

Open Saturday night until 10 o'clock. Don't leave town without a thorough inspection of this great modern mercantile house.

County Board Approves Northern Pacific Request For Tax Abatement.

No More Baseball Playing Allowed on the Courthouse Lawn.

The board of county commissioners, yesterday afternoon, passed a resolution recommending to the state auditor the correction of assessments and the abatement of taxes on the application of a number of local property interests including the Northern Pacific Railway company.

The discussion preliminary to the passage of the resolution was chiefly in regard to the application by the railway company for the abatement of taxes on certain of its property in the city not actually used for railroad purposes, and which the company alleges has been assessed out of proportion with the surrounding property.

The report of the county board tax committee which recommended an abatement in certain instances, and which was referred to the city assessor at the meeting a month ago, was adopted by the board without any change.

City Assessor Thomas Olafson was present at the meeting and protested vigorously against the claims made by the railway company's representative that the company had not been treated fairly. Mr. Olafson offered to forfeit $10 if a single instance could be pointed out where the company had been treated unjustly. He recalled numerous instances where the assessed valuation of the company's vacant property had been put at a lower figure than lots belonging to private interests across the street and thoro adjoining.

The discussion developed the fact that there was quite a difference of opinion among the county officers and the city officers relative to the valuation of certain local property.

No more ball playing on the court yard lawn. The county commissioners passed a resolution making it wrong for any person to play on the lawn and the sheriff was instructed to arrest anybody that he caught trespassing on it hereafter. The commissioners argued that the lawn cost the county too much to be utilized as a playground.

Assistant County Attorney Crosby reported favorably as to the legality of the proposed division of the township of Kelsey into several new townships and a hearing in the matter was set for July 13.

A petition was presented the board from Charles Stanty and a number of the other settler sin Kelsey township asking for a road that will give them an outlet to a station. Commissioners Patterson, Kauppi, Kugler and Berg were appointed a committee to examine the proposed route, and a hearing on the same was set for June 29.

The board turned down the application of Register of Deeds Palmer for an increase in the salaries of the employes in his office. The resolution refusing the request stated that a comparison of the business of the office last May with that of the same month a year ago shows that the expense of the office has already increased while the receipts have diminished.

A letter was read from M. S. Hawkins, superintendent of the Oliver Mining company, protesting against the granting of a license to Frank Faber, to open a saloon near the Stephens mine. Mr. Hawkins intimated that Faber's previous reputation in the saloon business was not at all in his favor and that neither the mining company nor the men employed at the mine wanted him to open a saloon there. The communication was received and filed, and is not likely to come up for further action as Faber is said to have withdrawn his application for a license.

Commissioners Patterson, Kauppi, Connors and Melmis were appointed a committee to look after the expenditure of the county funds on the Miller trunk road. This road runs Grough several commissioner districts, and it was argued by Mr. Kugler that the commissioners should get together and agree upon a road foreman to look after the entire work, instead of having a foreman appointed in each commissioner district, thus increasing the possible expense.

The matter of road foremen is a touchy one with the commissioners, as was demonstrated at the meeting last month when Commissioner Berg's resolution that the county board should appoint the foremen instead of their selection being made by the commissioners individually, was turned down by a decisive vote. The road foreman proposition is a patronage the commissioners do not feel like relinquishing.

The board adjourned to July 2.

MARINE HOSPITAL SERVICE.

Contracts Are Announced For Duluth and Superior.

Washington, June 19—(Special to The Herald.)—The treasury department has announced abstracts of the contracts entered into by the marine hospital service for the care of such patients as may be entitled to the aid of this service during the coming fiscal year. At Duluth the medical attendance of such patients is to be furnished by an acting assistant surgeon of the marine hospital service. The St. Luke's Hospital association to furnish quarters, subsistence, nursing and medicines at 80 cents a day. Charles J. Stewart is to provide for the burial of deceased patients at $16 each.

At Superior, Wis., an acting assistant surgeon furnishes medical attendance. Belle Rosser is to furnish quarters, subsistence, nursing and medicines at 85 cents a day: St. Mary's hospital to care for contagious cases at $3 per day, and A. P. Le Sage is to provide for the burial of deceased patients at $19.50 each.

RACE HORSES KILLED.

St. Louis, Mo., June 19.—Shortly before midnight an east-bound Big Four passenger train ran into the rear end of an Illinois Central train, which was standing in the approach of the Illinois side of Eads bridge. J. L. Dodge, of Lanas, Texas, who was in charge of an express loaded with race horses, was instantly killed. The express car was attached to the rear of the Illinois Central train and the car was splintered. Thirteen of the trotters were so badly caimed that they will have to be killed. Rebina, with a record of 2:09, was killed outright.

When Is a Person Too Old to Commit Matrimony?

Story of a Couple Who Have Been Thrice Wedded.

Chicago, June 19.—When is a person too old to marry? That question seems to be as great a puzzle as ever in the light of recent happenings reported from various parts of the country.

At Kokomo, Ind., Ambrose Turner, aged 75 years, and Angelina Turner, aged 62 years, were remarried for the third time. Both had been married before they began the habit of marrying each other. Both are wealthy and it is hoped that the third time will be the charm in their case, and that their last marriage will endure.

Mrs. Jane Wilson of Twelfth street, Sterling, left her home last week for Detroit, where she is to marry a man she has never seen. This case has all the earmarks of a romance in spite of the fact that Mrs. Wilson is 72 years of age. Mrs. Wilson some time ago inserted in one of the Detroit papers an advertisement saying that she wished to marry a man who could give her a good home and that she was a splendid housekeeper and could make home bright and cheerful for the man she married.

She received several answers, and among them one from a man who lives in a small town near Detroit, who said he was wealthy, but, like Mrs. Wilson, was growing old and he wanted some one to brighten his home and relieve his loneliness.

An extended correspondence sprang up between the two and photographs were exchanged. Finally they decided that they were in love and agreed upon a marriage. The prospective bridegroom forwarded the necessary car fare, and Mrs. Wilson, accompanied by her daughter, packed up her household chattels and left for Detroit.

Thomas Likens of Kent, O., is ready to testify that 70 years is not too old an age at which to get married. He lives in what is called Muddy lane vicinity, near Kent. He went out to Urbana, Io., the other day, ostensibly to visit friends. When he returned he was accompanied by his bride, a blushing damsel of 68 summers. The two had been schoolmates and boy and girl sweethearts, but quarreled and had not seen each other for over forty years.

From Ohio comes another story of the same kind, but just a little different. Mrs. Sevilla Bower, a dressmaker 51 years old, married Ferdinand Schoeles, a machinist, only 24 years old. When the bird and groom-to-be entered the probate court to get a license there was considerable amusement, as the clerk, who is deaf, persisted in thinking that Mrs. Bower was the mother of the young man who was applying for the license.

People who affirm that three score years is too old an age at which to think of marriage will find an argument in the case of Evan Lyons of Washington, who was 61 years old. He was visiting at the home of Thomas E. Harrison, in Newark, N. J., where he was to be married to a daughter of Mr. Harrison. On the wedding day he was elated with joy and in a state of great excitement. He was all dressed and ready to go down stairs to be married. When the word finally came that all was ready and that he should descend to the parlor, he was in such a transport of estacy that he fell to the floor, and when he was picked up it was discovered that he was dead.

Another marriage of an elderly woman with young and impetuous youth is reported from Prescott, Mich. James R. McDonald, 22 years old, married Miss Mary Jane Flaherty, aged 59. Both are school teachers. The bride has taught in the district schools for 39 years and has saved a comfortable sum from her earnings. Beside this, she inherited a few years ago the tidy sum of $12,000, and, as she is going to continue teaching the bridegroom is not under any serious doubts as to how he shall provide for his bride.

In Watenga, O. T., the other day a prominent lawyer eloped with his wife. Cupid has performed many strange pranks, but the fact of a man eloping with his wife is one of the strangest. The man is J. Proctor Wishard, former county attorney of Blaine County, O. T.

In 1902 Mr. Wishard eloped with Miss Fleta Brown, a 17-year-old girl of Watonga. After the marriage the two settled down to married bliss, and would probably have gone well had not Mrs. Wishard's parents refused to accept their son-in-law. The son-in-law heartily reciprocated the feeling that his wife's parents held toward him.

Trouble arose between Mr. Wishard and his wife because she continued to visit her parents and lent an ear to a good deal they were saying about the young lawyer.

Finally Mrs. Wishard left her husband and returned to her parents, and they arranged to send her away to Mexico in order that she should learn to forget the man she had eloped with.

But Mrs. Wishard and his wife had to meet once more in order to settle their business affairs. They talked the matter over, and the result was a striking tableau, with numerous deeds and papers scattered on the floor and Mrs. Wishard in her husband's arms.

The two went home and packed their trunks and started on another wedding tour, leaving a message for Mrs. Wishard's parents that the reconciliation would be permanent.

A strange reason for elopement is that given by Thomas Coombs of Central City, Colo., who eloped with Pearl Richardson of the same town.

It was supposed by outsiders that the two had eloped because of parental objection, but it turned out that Miss Richardson's parents were fond of Coomb and quite willing to have him marry their daughter. It was finally developed that Miss Richardson's younger sister felt desperately in love with Coombs and begged him to marry her instead of her sister.

The situation became decidedly awkward, and to avoid embarrassing scenes Coombs and his sweetheart packed their belongings and eloped.

MODERN SLAVE HOLDERS

In the Southern States Must Be Punished.

Macon, Ga., June 19.—In the United States court yesterday, Judge Emory Speer, in his charge to the federal grand jury, called attention to the fact that it has been charged that a system of peonage existed in certain parts of the Southern district of Georgia. He quoted article, 1, paragraph 24, constitution of Georgia, which provides "there shall be no imprisonment for debt," and the XIII amendment to the constitution of the United States, which provides that "neither slavery nor involuntary servitude, except as a punishment for crime whereof the party shall have been duly convicted shall exist within the United States or any place subject to their jurisdiction."

He called the attention of the jury to a case presented to him where an employe left one employer and engaged with another and the first employer and others armed themselves, took the employe while at work, tied him, carried him back to his former employer's place, whipped him, forced him to work and now held him in servitude. He charged the jury to make vigilant inquiry and if it found the statement correct it was its duty to return an indictment against the guilty parties.

MAJ. POND LOSES A LEG.

New York, June 19.—Maj. James H. Pond, manager of lecturers and singers, has had to have his right leg amputated to save his life. The operation was performed at his home in Jersey City. The patient, who is 65 years old, stood the shock well, and the physicians believe the outcome will be favorable. Maj. Pond has been ill for a month. Two weeks ago a slight operation was found necessary for his foot. The wound failed to heal and amputation of the limb finally became necessary.

WAS CHASED BY A CETACEAN

An Indiana Tourist Nearly Met the Fate of Jonah.

Los Angeles, Cal., June 19.—L. G. Murphy, a wealthy tourist, of Carmen, Ind., had a thrilling experience four miles off the coast of Santa Catalina Islands. He came near meeting the fate of Jonah in an attack by a monster whale.

Murphy was fishing with E. E. Chapman, of Los Angeles, owner of the launch Rival, and skipper T. D. Clark. They found no tuna, but starting homeward came upon a horde of huge cetaceans churning the sea into foam. One was so near that they concluded to fish with it. The launch was steered into it broadside. The whale went down, but immediately reappeared, going straight for the boat. Consternation drove the men aboard to seize the life preservers and air cushions. The leviathan dived within a few feet of the craft, and the fishermen changed their course sharply. This proved their salvation, for the next instant the whale was on the surface again.

The whale charged again and again, and the launch was steered quickly to escape the rushes, which lasted for two miles. Sometimes the whale was so near that Chapman could easily have jabbed his gaff, which has a five-foot handle, into the whale's nose.

During the two miles' chase the whale never went completely out of sight, but plowed along on the surface or only a few feet beneath, and never spouted.

The fishermen estimate the whale's length at 60 feet. It was of a variety known as the "tin back." Its head was between four and five feet across and eight feet long.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

Two men said to be Bud Fair and Frank Ellis, robbed the Adams Express company at Webb City of $300, consigned to the Carterville bank. Both men were captured in the wood three miles from Joplin, after a chase and the money was recovered.

The Right Rev. Thomas J. Conaty was installed as bishop of the diocese of Monterey and Los Angeles Thursday. Pontifical high mass was celebrated and many noted Catholic clergymen assisted.

At Fitchburg, Mass., Herman Tliot shot Harold Brown, a lawyer, who recently came from Chicago, inflicting a slight wound. He then put a bullet through his own head, which probably will prove fatal. Thot, it is thought, was mentally deranged because of the recent loss of his job.

A dispatch from San Marcial, N. M., says that at 5 o'clock Tuesday morning the Rio Grande reached its highest stage causing a break in the protection levee. The water is now several feet deep in the lower portion of San Marcial. Several small houses have been badly damaged by the flood and most of the inhabitants of that section have deserted their homes. The loss to farmers thereabouts is large.

Capt. Sowen, of Jackson, Ky., has announced that on the advice of friends he would go to Frankfort, as soon as the Jackson jury returned a verdict and lay all the facts before Governor Beckham. Men close to him say his statement to the governor will reflect on men high in official life in Breathitt county and may form the basis of warrants for bribery.

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE SALE.—

Whereas, default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage given to secure the payment of the purchase money of the premises therein described with a power of sale therein contained, duly executed and delivered by Fred B. Patterson, mortgagor, to Elisha G. Gay, mortgagee, bearing date the 19th day of March, 1898, and duly recorded in the office of the register of deeds of St. Louis County, Minnesota, on the 26th day of March, 1898, at 9:30 a. m., in Book 164 of Mortgages, on page 26; and,

Whereas, said mortgage and the debt thereby secured were, by an instrument in writing, bearing date the 8th day of April, 1898, duly assigned by said Elisha G. Gay to C. Herman Philipp, which said assignment was duly recorded in the office of the register of Deeds of St. Louis County, Minnesota, on the 11th day of April, 1898, at 8:30 a. m., in Book 108 of Mortgages, on page 552; and,

Whereas, said mortgage and the debt thereby secured were, by an instrument in writing, bearing date the 19th day of December, 1902, duly assigned by the said C. Herman Philipp to said Elisha G. Gay, which said assignment was duly recorded in the office of the register of deeds of St. Louis County, Minnesota, on the 28th day of May, 1903, at 3:15 p. m., in Book 182 of Mortgages, on page 403; and,

Whereas, default has been made in the payment of said mortgage debt, and there is actually due on said mortgage, at the date of this notice, the sum of $515.00, principal and interest, $55.50 taxes paid by said mortgagee, and $25.00 attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure; and no action at law or otherwise has been instituted to recover said mortgage debt, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that by reason of said default and under and by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in said mortgage, to-wit: All that tract or parcel of land lying and being in the county of St. Louis and state of Minnesota, described as follows, to-wit: The easterly one-half (½) of lot numbered fifteen (15), in block numbered four (4), of Gay's Division of Duluth, according to the recorded plat thereof, which said premises with all the hereditaments and appurtenances thereunto belonging will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder for cash to pay said mortgage debt, taxes, attorney's fees and the costs and disbursements allowed by law; which said sale will be made by the sheriff of said St. Louis County, at the front door of the court house, in the city of Duluth, in said county, on the 11th day of July, 1903, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of said day, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as allowed by law.

Dated Duluth, Minnesota, May 29, 1903.

THE STAGE

The Northwestern Opera company scored another success in the production of "The Bohemian Girl," the Balfe opera, which has so many delightful airs. The four or five solos, tender plaintiveness or love theme of each, are most universally known, admired and sought, and the rendering of them last evening will in itself serve as an attraction to many.

Mr. Lyding sang "Fair Land of Poland" and "You'll Remember Me" in excellent form, receiving the lion's share of the applause of the evening. Miss Jenkins' principal solo was "I Dreamt I Dwelt in Marble Halls," of course, and she also was warmly received, while "Hearts Bowed Down," by Sylvain Langlois, gave the audience additional cause for expression through the medium of hand-clapping.

Miss Bertha Haydyn, who was not in the cast, sang a number with effect, which took the house by storm, and she had to repeat and respond to encores with verses of "My Lady Lu," until she repeated a verse of her first bit, "The Congo Love Song" of a week ago.

Last night was the opening night for Miss Harriet Packard, who had the character of the Queen of the Gypsies in the cast, and who made a very good impression with her singing and also her ability to act. She is tall and graceful and dark, and could have found a character she would have fitted. Her voice was in excellent form, and while her only real work was the song of the queen, that was rendered in a manner so satisfactory that the audience insisted on repetition.

The piece is staged handsomely, the costumes are new and pretty, and the ensemble and chorus numbers are well put together. The orchestra was noticeably under the most perfect control of Director Hoffman, and the singers were in a harmonious mood regarding the instrumental side.

Stanley Felch and Dan Young, as Devilshoof and Florenstein, were very good, and Mr. Felch repeated his comedy successs, though the opportunity was more limited in this opera than in the preceding ones.

"The Bohemian Girl" will be repeated this evening and twice tomorrow.

* * *

"The Chimes of Normandy," the ever-popular romantic opera, was presented last evening at the Metropolitan by the Wilbur company. The opera is tolve, the costumes are pretty, the solo work excellent and the chorus good. As Gaspard, the Miser, Henry C. Peakes' acting was remarkably good, and he was enthusiastically applauded. The character of Serpolette is well suited to Miss Richardson, the prima donna, and she appears to good advantage. Gus Vaughan is clever as Henry, the Marquis of Corneville, Miss Langdon makes a good marchioness, and others who do equally as well are Martin Pache as the Fisherman, Charles Vaughan as the Bailiff and Charles Von Dyne as the Notary. The three little Gardner children made another hit with their songs and dances, introducing several new features, and change swere also noted in the acts of Miss Katherine Goodrich and Reick and Lamar in their illustrated songs. Miss Hunt sang "Under the Bamboo Tree," accompanied by the chorus, in such good voice that she was compelled to respond to enthusiastic encores. "The Chimes of Normandy" will be the bill at the Metropolitan again this evening, tomorrow evening and at the Saturday matinee.

THE LYDICK HEARING

Inspector Nessler Taking Evidence on Section 16 Allotments.

Testimony In Favor of the Lydicks Claims Is Strong.

Cass Lake, Minn., June 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—C. F. Nesler, inspector of the Indian department, is busy taking evidence at the Indian agency to determine the right of Mrs. Nellie Lydick to their allotments on section 16. This case has been before the public and the interior department for about four years, and last fall the secretary of the interior decided in favor of Mrs. Lydick and her children. Some of the squatters were afraid Mrs. Lydick would turn them off the land and take the improvements which the decision gave her, but she agreed to permit her opponents to keep what they had and was willing to lease or sell them the land if the secretary of the interior would permit. The objectors then signed a document withdrawing all opposition and including Mrs. Lydick's promise in the presence of Messrs. Toole and Johnson, George Lydick and Rev. Brahner Smith, Judge Frank Ives and Dr. Christensen signing for the squatters' committee. However, for certain reasons, Senator Nelson asked for a rehearing though the squatters had wired him that they were now satisfied. At the opening of the case Attorney E. M. Stanton represented the claimants and Attorney Chas. H. Babbitt, of Washington, represented those who were fighting Lydicks.

Lydick had on hand a big band of Indians who have eaten an ox a day during their stay. These Indians testified to the birth of Mrs. Lydick on the White Oak Point reservation and her continued residence there until she was a pupil at the Philadelphia school. After her school days she returned and was married to George Lydick who was a cook on the reservation, and from that time she held no continuous residence, only on the reservation, until she took the allotments she now claimed at Cass Lake. The question of birth and place were positively sworn to by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Seelye of Grand Rapids. The Indian aunt of Mrs. Lydick and several squaws swore to the same thing. Every witness made Mrs. Lydick's case very strong.

Maj. Scott, acting Indian agent, testified that he had been compelled to allot a number of the Leech Lake Indians at places outside the Cass Lake and Winnibigoshish reservations because there was no land for them on the Leech Lake reservation. He testified that Mrs. Lydick and her two children had been always on the rolls and received annuities. He cited other cases like the present one in favor of Mrs. Lydick, and if these claims were not allowed a large number of claims already granted must be annulled. He believed in the secretary's decision and would not conflict with it and the secretary had granted this allotment. It was plainly understood that the major endorsed the action of Secretary Hitchcock in granting Mrs. Lydick the allotment and he saw no reason of the decision being reversed.

The opposition tried to prove that after she returned from school and was married to George Lydick she relinquished all right to her allotment as an Indian, but if this rule was enforced no Indians married to white men and living as civilized being could secure for themselves or offspring allotments, yet hundreds of cases have been settled in favor of the Indians. To lose all Indian rights by marrying a white man would be unfortunate.

A startling feature was the calling of Dr. Christensen to the stand by Inspector Nesler, and his mentioning Senator Nelson's name, then asking time to get his testimony ready when the notice has been out for weeks about the rehearing. Attorney Babbitt had claimed that he came from Washington to fight this case for the squatters' committee. Dr. Christensen was one of the committee acting as secretary and chairman. He signed the document withdrawing opposition and now testified that the committee had withdrawn opposition and did not employ Babbitt. Another sensation was when Mr. Ritchie said Mr. Babbitt did not represent him.

These disclaimers threw Babbitt into confusion. Mr. Byine then testified that he had employed Mr. Babbitt in his own interest, he owing two buildings valued at about $300. Lydick showed it was strange to bring Mr. Babbitt from Washington to represent a man with only $300 property. The value of the property on section 16 is about $20,000. There are also two school houses and about 500 residents.

O. A. Rind, of Cass Lake, a traveling representative, has been sick for a few days at Hotel Tower, Virginia, but has now recovered.

DEEPENING OF THE ST. LOUIS

All Persons Can Express Their Ideas to Engineers June 29.

If any person or persons have reasons why the St. Louis river waterway should or should not be deepened from the foot of the falls to New Duluth, they will be given ample opportunity to express an opinion when the examining board of United States engineers arrives in Duluth for a hearing in the local government engineer's office, June 29, at 11 o'clock in the morning.

At the same time the examining board of engineers will listen to arguments for and against the proposition of making a harbor at the mouth of the Split Rock river on the north shore. Already written arguments relative to both improvements have been forwarded to the chief engineers, but the law provides the examining board, which makes a personal visit to the proposed improvements and to listen to all suggestions or protests from interested parties. It is being urged to the attention of those who expect to appear at the public hearing that they reduce all their arguments to writing for the convenience of the examining board.

Information relative to the proposed visit of the board and the hearing was forwarded to Maj. Lansing H. Beach, who is in charge of the Lake Superior district, by W. V. Judson, of Washington, D. C., captain of the corps of engineers, member and executive officer.

Capt. Judson states that the examining board will visit the Soo June 27, and Marquette, Mich., June 28. He also asks that means of transportation be provided the engineers subsequent to the public hearing here, that they may visit the scene of the proposed improvements on the St. Louis river and at Split Rock. It is likely that the government launch Vidette will be used for this purpose.

GOOD BUSINESS POLICY.

At the present time there are more than seventy establishments in Cleveland that have undertaken to benefit their employes in some way or other. And it is all on account of a movement inaugurated a few years ago by the chamber of commerce of that city for the betterment of the working classes. A committee of seven was appointed to investigate the conditions in the factories and stores of that city, and a secretary was engaged who should devote his whole time to its work. It is, of course, no new thing for individual firms to adopt measures for improving the conditions of labor, but a "city movement" under the direction of a body representing all the chief commercial and industrial interests of a modern municipality is probably without a parallel in the country. In presenting the problems upon which they have been at work, the members of the industrial committee of the chamber of commerce say: "The proprietor who does not seriously study the relation of his men to his own success is shortsighted, to say nothing of the trusteeship for which he must be held to account. In other words, there is growing belief in the efficacy of such plans as take into consideration the value of the individual in the industrial development." They find that the results of putting into practice the theory that by providing wage earners with conveniences and comforts "which enable them to make the very best use of their abilities and opportunities" justify it as a business policy: "and it is quite certain that better citizenship follows from it."

The work of the Cleveland chamber of commerce is to be commended. Efforts of this kind under the auspices of a public-spirited body are far more effective than those of the mere philanthropists. Yet the committee in charge are too wise to believe that even a general adoption of the methods they support will prove a sovereign remedy for industrial ills; but they express the conviction that "a persistent application of the methods sugested will result in a higher standard of intelligence and efficiency and in a better relation between employer and employe." This is undoubtedly true and the more persistent the effort the better the results.

SLAVERY IN ALABAMA.

Human slavery, to all intents and purposes, has existed for some time and exists today in certain sections of Alabama and many people have full knowledge of the traffic. Negroes have been held in bondage under the forms of the law, and the practice was steadily increasing until the recent federal investigation, which has served to put a damper on the proceedings to a certain extent. Last Monday four more Tallapoosa county farmers were arrested by the federal authorities, charged with "peonage," and several more will be arrested shortly.

The methods employed to reduce negroes to slavery are already familiar. A negro would be arrested on some trivial charge and fined the limit of the law. Being unable to pay the fine, the prisoner would be "sold out" to cover his fine and costs. The purchaser of the negro or of his labor, not content with a long period of service for very small fines, would frequently detain the prisoner by force long after his fine had been worked out. Whipping and ill-treatment are said to have been the rule in the convict camps or stockades.

A case, said to be typical of many, is that of a young negro of Goodwater, Ala. He was first arrested in 1901, on a charge of breaking a contract with a cotton buyer. For this he was fined $9.50, including costs, and being unable to pay this amount was sold to a contractor for convict labor for one year! Having served more than a year, and being unable to secure his release, the negro attempted to escape in a skiff. He was captured, however, and received a further sentence of eighteen months, being forced to sign an agreement to work for his employer without wages until August, 1904.

This happened in Coosa county, the Coosa Democrat admitting the existence of the practice described, and adding that "it prevails in other places in the state." None of the papers, however, have attempted to thwart or belittle the government's effort to end the peonage tyranny. On the contrary, as the Montgomery Journal says: "Law-abiding people all over Alabama are looking to the federal court to do what the state courts tried for many years to do, and failed—failed because the witnesses were either bulldozed or were prevented from testifying before the grand juries for some other unknown reason. Certain it is, with full knowledge of the traffic that has been carried on in certain sections of Alabama in what is practically and to all intents and purposes human slavery, and the cruelties that were being practiced upon the poor unfortunates, the courts have been unable, after years of effort, to bring the culprits to justice."

The most stringent measures should be used to stop this awful practice and there is every reason to believe that satisfactory results wil be secured by the federal authorities.

An example of nice discrimination in the use of language—from the English point of view—is pointed out by the Singapore Free Press, which says: "The official list of the strength of the Manchester regiment, just landed at Singapore, reads: 'Twenty officers and two ladies, four warrant officers and two wives, 518 rank and file, and ten women and twelve children.'"

A centenarian attributes his longevity to the fact that he has never taken a bath, and the Atlanta Constitution says: "We confess we are utterly nonplussed and discouraged by this health rule business." But the Constitution should not give up its baths on that account.

UNWARRANTED INTERFERENCE.

An unique situation exists with reference to the cruiser Galveston, which is under construction at Richmond, Va., and is expected to be ready for launching on Monday next. The chancery court at Richmond, on petition of creditors of the shipbuilding company, has granted an injunction restraining the naval officers from proceeding further towards launching the cruiser. As this practically amounts to a seizure of the vessel by the Virginia courts, the question is at once raised as to the right of a court of law to interfere with work on war vessels under construction for the government at private yards.

Undoubtedly the navy department will take the position that no court has the right to stop work on a vessel of war and that the federal government may go to the extreme of calling out troops to prevent such interference. This is evident from the fact that instructions have been sent to the naval officers in charge of the work on the Galveston to proceed with the preparations for the launching. When the launching takes place, a gunboat will accompany the new cruiser to Norfolk, and if the civil authorities of Virginia attempt to interfere there may be serious trouble. It is hardly likely, however, that the Virginia courts will get into a conflict with the federal government over the matter. Courts cannot be permitted to interfere with the construction of war vessels at any time, otherwise the result might be serious at a time of emergency. In this case, the interference appears to be unwarranted.

RESTRICTING NATURALIZATION.

Several important changes have been made in the naturalization laws of the United States by which undesirable foreigners will be restricted from citizenship even though they may gain entrance to the country. The law regarding the period of residency has not been changed, but a provision has been added which is intended to bar from citizenship persons with anarchistic tendencies. But it is not the new addition to the law so much as the way it is to be enforced that is to cause a great and sweeping reform. There is no doubt in the minds of the authorities that for many years the naturalization laws have been treated as a farce. In cities all over the country aliens with the barest sort of notions about the republic, and only a few months landed, have been run through the naturalization mill with a reckless hand. Frauds of this kind have been particularly noticeable about election time in cities where a few votes count for a great deal. It has frequently happened that the promise of an illiterate foreigner to vote for a certain candidate has been sufficient to secure for him the official papers that endowed him with all the rights and privileges of a native-born American.

Ever since the bullet of an assassin killed President McKinley the administration at Washington has given more or less attention to the correction of evils that were exposed by that disaster. The adoption of the recently enacted immigration law did a great deal for the reform movement. Acting under instructions that have been sent out at the request of the department, the United States consuls at all foreign ports are on the lookout for persons holding naturalization papers that have been fraudulently issued. Within the past few months a dozen different instances have occurred where so-called naturalized citizens have had their papers taken from them. In each of these cases the judicial authorities attempted to prosecute those responsible for issuance of the fraudulent papers, but owing to lack of evidence no suit was brought. The obstacle in each case was the fact that the court records did not show the names of those who gave the false evidence on which the papers were issued.

The secret service men have been called upon by the department of justice to help carry out the campaign against the fraudulent issuance of naturalization papers. The men of this service are now at work running down unlawful cases of acquired citizenship in six or eight different cities. The frauds that they are investigating are of two kinds. In New York they consisted of the sale of imitation naturalization certificates to Italians and others at prices ranging from $5 to $50. These were sold chiefly to newly-arrived Italians who were seeking employment under the municipal authorities. In other cities the secret service men are after "professional" witnesses, whose business it was to swear to false statements on which certificates were issued.

This is a matter which needs close and immediate attention. The large number of undesirable people securing entrance to the country is bad enough, but when they are enabled to secure equal rights of citizenship with a native-born American, the thing has gone too far, and a halt must be called. Further restrictions should be added by congress and, once added, should be enforced.

With the subsidence of the flood at Topeka, Kan., Secretary Moody has opened a naval recruiting station there. But the young men of the Sunflower state may be satisfied with the life on the water they have already experienced.

The Princeton Union has discovered the cause of the cold spell. It says: "The weather has been cold ever since they commenced to talk about putting up that weather indicator on the hill back of Duluth where the suburbanites milk their cows in balloons."

In view of the report that coal stocks are still below the normal amount, many will hope that if the Yale professors have really found in "radio activity" in water a substitute for coal, they will complete their experiments before cold weather comes.

The Maine Woods says a trout has been caught by a guest at Mooselookmeguntic lake with a padlock in his stomach. Next week's issue will probably announce the capture of the trout that swallowed the key.

The Chicago Tribune's prescription for securing a noiseless Fourth is to establish a Fourthless July. But no one with patriotism in his soul would agree to that.

Governor Hunt of Porto Rico has a good job and knows it. Therefore he announces that there is no truth in the rumor that he intends to resign.

A Tennessee man was arrested in New York because he insisted that his bones were of solid gold. The police would never let such a rich graft pass.

Bible texts are now posted on advertising cards in New York's elevated cars. Gothamites are much attracted by their novelty.

A Pennsylvania man fasted forty days to cure an attack of paralysis. He died, but he had the satisfaction of not dying from paralysis.

Since Governor Bailey of Kansas has acquired a wife and two sons, it must be admitted that he has more than kept his promise.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

The members of the Norwegian Lutheran conference are not stopping at the hotels to any great extent.

As is usually the case at all gatherings of clergy of all denominations they are afforded better entertainment than hotels can give—they are taken to the homes of the faithful as honored guests.

Among the clergy from outside the state are men from remote portions of civilization. They are the pioneers in the great work and learned men, but there were two here who had not read up on electric lights.

These two reverend gentlemen were invited to remain at the home of the chief clerk at one of the principal hotels of the city, who happened to have a great deal of room in his flat. They came and were properly introduced to their new quarters, which were quite elegant, and among the other improvements, boasted of electric lighted chandeliers.

The visitors had come from some points in far off Dakota, and the newest part of those states, and were not at all familiar with incandescent lamps or the workings thereof.

There were two rooms, and in one was a large cluster of lights which were operated from a wall button, while in the sleeping room, the single lamp worked by the thumbscrew.

The wife of the clerk explained how to turn off the wall connection, but neglected to show what to do with the other.

Yesterday morning she inquired how her guests slept. The looked tired and jaded. They said they had rested well, excepting for one thing.

"And what was that?" asked the hostess.

"The light in the bottle we couldn't put out, and it burned all night."

As it hung just over the bed, it was little wonder.

Fred von Baumbach, collector of internal revenues for this district of Minnesota from St. Paul, registered with his wife at the St. Louis hotel last night, and left today for a trip up the North shore of Lake Superior. His trip is only for pleasure, and he does not expect to do any work while in the isolated part of the state, up where they don't have telephones and it takes two days to return by boat or four if you have to walk it.

J. F. Dayton, proprietor of a large shoe manufacturing house of Williamsport, Pa., is registered at the Spalding hotel and is in this part of the country for the first time, though his house has been doing business up here for years.

Mr. Dayton has just returned from a visit to the Pacific coast, where he saw about all there was to be seen.

"I had often heard, he said, "of a story that the orange trees blossomed and bore green and ripe fruit all at the same time, but I never saw it before. I ate oranges from trees where there were little green ones, orange blossoms, and the rich, ripe and luscious fruit.

"I had never realized before what the Pacific coast was, but I got a pretty good idea. It impressed me very much."

Among the visitors at the Lutheran conference is the Rev. Gustave Stearns, of Milwaukee, one of the youngest clergymen of that denomination, and who has some time ago instituted Sunday evening sermons in the English language. He has found this successful in that city and is telling of his success to the visiting clergymen here. He is at the St. Louis hotel while in the city.

HOME FOR TADPOLES.

Chicago University Makes Provisions For Their Comfort.

Chicago, June 19.—Right on the University of Chicago campus there is to be a lake inhabited by most of the strange things that crawl or swim. The lake—a small one, to be sure—will be in Hull court, the quadrangle surrounded by the biological laboratories.

It is to be the joint property of the departments of zoology and botany, and in it will flourish all kinds of fresh-water flora and fauna, including, according to M. H. Maclean, superintendent of the grounds, "tadpoles, worms, snakes and scum." The pond is to be connected with the tank of the botany building, so that on cool nights the tadpoles may go indoors out of the damp.

GORTON IN TROUBLE.

Charged With the Adandonment of His Wife.

Chicago, June 19.—When Ben G. Gorton, president of the joint executive board of the hotel and restaurant employes' unions, has finished his negotiations with the Employers' association looking toward a settlement of the strike that has tied up a score or more of the restaurants and hotels in the city within the last ten days, he will have to face Justice Quinn, of the Hyde Park police station, and answer to a charge of wife abandonment. The charge was preferred against him several days ago by his wife, and he was taken into custody by Detectives Breen and Kelley. He was immediately released on his own recognizance, and his case set for trial at a later time.

HE HAS PARANOIA.

New York Woman Wants Husband Declared Incompetent.

New York, June 19.—Grace, the wife of Henry Prentice, of the stock exchange, has asked the supreme court to declare him incompetent and appoint a commission to take charge of his person and property. She is supported by Doctors Allen MacLane Hamilton and A. L. Rook, who declare her husband to be suffering from paranola, induced by chronic alcoholism.

Prentice is 58 years old, and a member of several clubs. He inherited a fortune from his father. He married in 1876, and has sfour daughters. Mrs. Prentice says that when one of her children died he insisted on the body being buried in front of the porch of their country home, and had a mound of rose bushes erected over it. He never went to sleep without a bottle of whisky under the bed. Dressed in his nightshirt he received callers, and he delighted in sitting around the parlor in that condition when any young men called upon his eldest daughters.

He spoke of himself as the second coming of Christ, and as such demanded veneration. At Point Pleasant, he practically lived in a bathing suit, wearing an old hat, decorated with flowers. Mrs. Prentice says that her husband is worth fully $250,000, though he has squandered money without reason for many years.

WEST DULUTH MAKES RECORD

Does Best Work In the Inspection of Fire Department.

Honors in yesterday's annual inspection of the fire department, were carried off by the firemen of West Duluth.

Incidentally two-fifths of a second was knocked off the department record for a night hitch.

The fire fighters manning the hook and ladder and the hose wagon at the West Duluth hall, got out of bed, dressed themselves, slid down the poles, hitched the horses, and had the apparatus moving 3 3-5 seconds after the alarm was turned in.

This is pretty fast work and it is doubtful if it can be beaten under similar conditions by any fire department in the country.

But that was not all. The men of the West Duluth hose company ran out one hundred and fifty feet of hose, coupled it to a hydrant and had water spurting through the nozzle in 11 1-5 seconds.

The inspection was greatly enjoyed by a large number of city officers and citizens. After the tour to the various houses Chief Black tendered the city officers, representatives of the Commercial Club, Board of Trade and Underwriters association a banquet at the St. Louis hotel. It was a splendid spread. There were informal toasts complimenting the firemen and department, proposed by Mayor Hugo, B. W. How, E. C. Little, Chief of Police Troyer, City Attorney Mitchell and Aldermen Mannheim and Krumsieg.

Secretary Nesbitt, of the board of fire commissioners, has given out the official time for the various performances at the several halls as follows:

ATKINSON GOLD

Dr. A. F. Elmquist Tells of Gold Mining From There.

Land Values Go Up and Great Excitement Prevails.

Dr. A. F. Elmquist, pastor of Bethany Lutheran church of the West End, and Rev. Carl Solomonson, pastor of the First Swedish Lutheran church, of this city, returned last evening from Moose Lake, Atkinson, Mahtawa, and other points in the Lake Superior mission district of the Swedish Lutheran church, where they have been attending local conferences this week.

Dr. Elmquist says that the greatest excitement prevails among the farmers about Atkinson over the discovery of gold in that vicinity. Land values have boomed in price and the owners will not look at $35 or $50 per acre. The Sauntry-Cain Lumber company is conducting exploration work between Atkinson and Mahtawa and some of the assays already made of surface rock runs as high as $5 and $7 to the ton.

Several hand drills are being operated and the prospect is said to be very encouraging.

Dr. Elmquist says that a Colorado mining expert who has been investigating the gold find has passed opinion that gold will be struck in large paying quantities at a depth of about 100 feet.

The surface soil, which is rich and adaptable for agricultural purposes, is underlaid by granite containing small veins of gold and by hard rock.

Dr. Elmquist says that the conferences have had the largest attendance since they were instituted in the district, and that during the past few years the country has been rapidly filling up with farmers and all is now well settled.

EVACUATION OF VALLEY FORGE

One Hundred and Twenty-Fifth Anniversary Is Celebrated.

Philadelphia, June 19.—The one hundred and twenty-fifth anniversary of the evacuation of Valley Forge by the Continental army was commemorated today by a patriotic celebration, in which hundreds of citizens participated, under the auspices of the Valley Forge Anniversary association.

The formal portion of the exercises began at 10 o'clock, with Archbishop Ryan of Philadelphia presiding. Bishop Cyrus D. Foss, of the Methodist church, offered the invocation, and the Rev. J. W. Sayres conducted a responsive reading. Two choruses, "Before Jehovah's Awful Throne" and "Gloria Patri" were sung by 500 young people. An address on "Patriotism," by Rabbi Joseph Krauski, concluded the morning proceedings.

Apart from the general celebration was the laying of the corner stone of a memorial chapel on the road from Valley Forge to Port Kennedy. The Valley Forge Anniversary association was organized last December.

SCIENTIFIC METHODS

Should Be Applied to Labor Troubles, Says Remser.

Chicago, June 18.—Laboratory methods, which consist in studying facts and drawing conclusions from them, can be applied to the question of labor organizations, said President Ira Remser of Armour Scientific academy last night. His address was on "The Laboratory in Education," and was a strong plea for the application of scientific methods to current problems.

"The present method of studying the labor problem is not scientific," he continued, "for the student starts out with a bias, whereas he should be on the jury. I find that heat in these discussions is always inversely proportionate to the knowledge of the disputants. It seems that there is too great a willingness on the part of the people to express an opinion on any subject, regardless of what they know about it. This is a mark of deficient education. What we need today is more knowledge, and the only way to get it is by investigation of the facts as they exist."

FIRE AT 'FRISCO.

San Francisco, June 19.—Fire in the building at 321 Sansome street did $125,000 damage last night. It started in the warehouse of Cunningham, Curtis & Welch. The principal sufferers are the Louis Roesch company and the Union Lithrographic company.

SHOWING GOOD

Duluth Militia Companies Making Good Record at Camp Lakeview.

News Items From Third Regiment Camp at Lakeview.

Flattering reports come from Camp Lakeview upon the work of the two Duluth companies of the Third Infantry and the regimental band.

The event of the encampment so far was the annual inspection by Capt. Dwyer, Twenty-first United States Infantry, yesterday. In putting Companies A and C through this inspection the regular army officer paid little attention to fancy drill, but paid especial attention to extended order and field service formations, using the companies as battalions acting on the offensive and defensive. The lieutenants commanded their respective battalions and were closely questioned as to their duties, as were also the non-commissioned officers. It was a thorough inspection in every respect.

There has been a general shifting in battalion formation. Companies B, I and H are in the first battalion, under the command of Maj. E. S. Pierson.

Maj. Frederick E. Resche, of this city, is in command of the second battalion, which is composed of Companies A, C and G. Owing to the absence of Maj. H. V. Eva from camp, the command of the third battalion has fallen to Capt. H. L. Tourtelotte, of St. Paul. The companies in this battalion are E, F and D.

* * *

A letter from one of the Company A men says that the mess is the best ever and not a complaint has been made thus far.

* * *

Sergt. A. B. King's little son is with Company A and has been elected mascot. So far he has helped win several orderlies for the company, and with him as mascot the men say they will make a good showing on the rifle range.

* * *

Krag-Jorgensen rifles have been issued the field officers of the regiment.

* * *

Governor Van Sant and staff will visit the encampment tomorrow and will be tendered a review in the evening.

* * *

The Duluth boys are especially interested in the work of Maj. C. W. Fisher, assistant inspector general, who is supervising the making out of pay rolls. Each man gets increased service pay this encampment.

* * *

Sergt. Bird of Company B, Anoka, holds the record for high scores on the rifle range so far. On Wednesday he made 141 out of a possible 150.

* * *

Private Harbison of Company A has been made regimental clerk.

* * *

BREAKS UP THE GAME

Courthouse Ball Players Are Sore at County Board.

Disorganization seriously threatens the ball teams in the various departments of the court house today as a result of the resolution passed by the board of county commissioners yesterday afternoon, making it an act of trespass for anybody to play ball on the court yard lawn.

An air of gloom was painfully apparent about the several captains of the promising ball tossers, and from every quarter came the plaint that the ball teams must be disbanded because of the county commissioners' act.

Capt. S. L. Pierce, of the sheriff's office Colts, furtively drew his handkerchief across his eyes as he announced there would be no more games for his team without practice, then he put a heavy black border about the list of players' names and hung it on a nail under the desk.

The edict shuts off all practice games by the court house employes and professional pride will prevent any of the teams meeting without that practice.

One of the old players claims that the commissioners are inconsistent, that not more than a month ago when the residents of Solway, Midway and Hermantown were before the board in heated argument for and against school district division, Commissioner Patterson told them to go out on the court yard lawn and settle all differences. It is alleged that the commissioners show partiality toward the out-of-town residents by giving them permission to tear up the lawn, but will not permit the court house employes to have a harmless game of ball thereon.

There was some talk of appointing Commissioner Kauppi official umpire for the court house ball teams, but as it was his resolution that stops ball playing on the lawn, all negotiations are off.

STARTLING EVIDENCE.

Fresh testimony in great quantity is constantly coming in, declaring Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption, coughs and colds to be unequaled. A recent expression from T. J. McFarland, Retorville, Va., serves as example. He writes: "I had bronchitis for three years and doctored all the times without being benefited. Then I began taking Dr. King's New Discovery, and a few bottles wholly cured me." Equally effective in curing all lung and throat troubles, consumption, pneumonia and grip. Guaranteed by all druggists. Trial bottles free, regular sizes 50c, and $1.00.

LARGEST IN HISTORY

Of the United States Is This Year's Foreign Commerce.

Imports Will, For First Time, Exceed a Billion Dollars.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, June 19—(Special to The Herald.)—Eleven months' figures of the treasury bureau of statistics, now completed, show that the foreign commerce of the United States will be, in the year about to end, the largest in the history of the country. Imports will, for the first time, exceed a billion dollars, and exports will be larger than in any preceding year except 1901. The eleven months' figures which justify this assertion show that the imports of the eleven months ending with May were $843,597,194, and the exports $1,324,493,295. For the twelve months ending with May the imports are $1,516,712,248, and the exports, $1,415,783,576. As the largest imports in any earlier fiscal year were $903,320,948, in 1902, it is quite apparent that the total imports of the present fiscal year will exceed those of any preceding year, and that they will exceed a billion dollars, since they have not fallen below $73,000,000 in any month of the past year, and are in the eleven months within $57,000,0000 of the billion dollar line. As the largest exports of any preceding year, except 1901, were $1,394,483,012, in 1900, and those of the eleven months ending with May were $1,324,488,298, and the smallest exports of any month in the year were $88,000,000, it is apparent that when the month of June is added, the export total for the year will exceed that of 1900, and will pass the $1,400,000,000 line. The largest total commerce (by which is meant the imports and exports combined) of any earlier year was of 1901, $2,310,937,156. As the total imports and exports for the eleven months ending with May were $2,268,090,487, and the combined imports of the lightest month of the present year were $162,000,000, it is apparent that the commerce of the twelfth month added to the total already shown by the eleven months, will make a grand total exceeding that of 1901, which showed the largest total of imports and exports combined.

It was only in the year 1872 that the total commerce first touched the one billion dollar line, and in 1900 it first touched the two-billion dollar line. Running back through the century, it may be said that the total imports and exports of 1800 amounted to $165,000,000; in 1850, $141,000,000; in 1850, $318,000,000; in 1860, $687,000,000; in 1870, $828,000,000. In 1872 the total commerce for the first time crossed the billion dollar line, being for that year $1,070,772,053. In 1880 it was $1,508,000,000, and in 1890, $1,647,000,000. In 1900 it first crossed the two billion dollar line, being in that year $2,244,000,000; in 1901, $2,311,000,000; in 1902, $2,285,000,000, and in 1903 seems likely to exceed $2,400,000,000.

Of the more than one billion dollars' worth of imports for the full year, manufacturers' materials will form nearly $500,000,000 value. In the ten months whose figures are completed by the treasury bureau of statistics, manufacturers' materials formed 47½ per cent of the total imports, and in the latest month available, April, they formed 49.77 per cent. The percentage which these materials for use of the manufacturers form of the grand total is larger in that part of the fiscal year whose figures have completed than of any preceding year. In 1902 manufacturers' materials formed 46.1 per cent of the total imports; in 1900, 45.7 per cent; in 1898, 42.0 per cent; in 1895, 37.1 per cent; in 1890, 34.5 per cent; in 1885, 33.1 per cent; in 1870, 28.2 per cent; in 1860, 26.4 per cent, and in 1840, 21.2 per cent of the total imports.

A blessing alike to young and old. Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry; nature's specific for dysentery, diarrhoea and summer complaint.

PSYCHOLOGY AS BAR TO DIVORCE

Ruskin University Has New Course of Study For Women.

Chicago, June 19.—While the divorce mills are grinding, a movement has been set on foot to decrease the number of marital disagreements and by inducing women to study psychology to prevent them from making mistaken marriages.

"Learn to know your husband or the man whom you intend to make your husband," is the motto which the persons who have inaugurated the new movement wish the women of the country to adopt. They declare that by studying psychology young women who are about to wed will be able to hold their spouse's affection and that as a result divorces will become fewer. The new anti-divorce movement has been inaugurated by the faculty of Ruskin university at Glen Ellyn, Ill.

The woman's department of the university is a newly established one and the course to be taught there is intended to provide especially for turning out a new kind of "new woman." This new woman is to be a wife and a mother. The university wants to decrease the number of business women as well as the number of divorces, and to turn out women who will be model wives instead of intellectual giants.

With this object in view, special courses are to be taught, which will be entirely different from those advertised by other institutions. Mathematics and foreign and dead languages will not be encouraged. Instead, the young women are to be given a thorough training in English grammar and literature. Then will begin the work of making wives of them.

A course in house wifery similar in many respects to the one taught in French schools has been provided for. Domestic arts, the study of the properties of various foods and their scientific value, domestic bookkeeping and cooking are to be taught. There will be no inducement for the study of stenography or any other subject that will enable the young women to engage in business life.

SHE WILL NOT LEAVE STAGE

Daughter of Harvard Professor Refuses to Quit Comic Opera.

Cambridge, Mass., June 19.—Because his pretty daughter Dorothy sticks to her resolve to remain on the stage, Professor Silas Marcus McVane, professor of ancient and modern history at Harvard university, is distracted with anger and grief. Miss McVane still remains under the paternal roof at No. 24 Kirkland street, but the family relations are strained.

Professor McVane has threatened to disown his daughter, but today she declared that nothing could change her determination.

Miss McVane is 19 years old, a really handsome girl of the Gibson type. She has a mezzo-soprano voice, and under the name of Lillie Gray took the part of one of the yachting editors in the comic opera "The Defender," which has just wound up its season here.

She is going to Bar Harbor to rest. In the fall she will join the "Lieutenant Commander" company, and later, will be seen in one of Clyde Fitch's productions.

"I have always wished to go on the stage," she said. "I joined the chorus because I think it well to begin at the bottom of the ladder.

"How do I like the stage? Oh, ever and ever so much. It isn't anything like what I expected it would be. It's been delightful.

"Ambitious? Of course I am. I wanted to go with Mr. Mansfield when he was here, but now I am glad I didn't. like this better. Some time I hope to have serious roles, but that's in the future.

"I am going to stay on the stage anyway for a while. I am going to try my best to make a success of it. I know my family disapproves, but while I am sorry I feel sure that they will be glad to have me succeed."

HAPPENINGS IN DAKOTAS

Lisbon Entertains the Grand Army Most Royally.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Lisbon—Since Monday, the streets of this city have been gay with flags and bunting in honor of the North Dakota state encampment of the G. A. R. On Monday evening the W. R. C. observed flag day with appropriate exercises.

On Tuesday morning the delegates were received and assigned places. In the afternoon the G. A. R. business meeting was held in the Opera house and that of the W. R. C. in Odd Fellows' hall, after which a general reception took place. In the evening a public camp fire was conducted in the Opera house. This was made enjoyable by speeches, music and various exercises.

On Wednesday, the morning was occupied with business and immediately after dinner a parade, consisting of the First regiment band, Battery A, the G. A. R. and W. R. C. marched through the streets with martial music and banners flying. The day was closed by another enjoyable camp fire.

Provision has been made by the members of the G. A. R. and W. R. C. to furnish meals in Armory for all delegates. There are 135 registered as delegates to the G. A. R., eighty-one delegates and twelve department officers of the W. R. C. meeting. They have with them also the national president of the W. R. C., Mrs. Lodusky Taylor, of Minnesota.

Fargo—A tea concern from Michigan and another of Minneapolis are in correspondence with local people regarding the establishment of branch houses. They regard the location as a good one for a distributing point and are investigating the conditions.

William Eggert, an old-time resident of Fargo and Davenport, is dead. He survived his wife only two weeks.

Grand Forks—The graduating exercises of the class of 1903, of the state university, were held Thursday morning in the Metropolitan Opera house. The class is the largest in the history of the university, numbering fifty-one. The reception at the new residence at President Merrifield, this evening, will close the program for commencement week.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Canton—Rev. M. A. Martin, pastor of the Episcopal church, has been ordered by Bishop Haire to close the Canton church and go to Springfield.

Mrs. Martha Judd, mother of the late Charles E. Judd, died in St. Louis, where she had recently gone to the bedside of a sick sister who went there for medical treatment. The cause of her death was paralysis.

Rapid City—Black Hills towns are keeping a strict lookout for Marla Sweeney Hicks Anderson, of window-breaking fame. She was in this city last week, having recently married a man named Anderson. From this place she went to Sturgis, where she expected to find her husband, who has been missing for some time.

Tyndall—The recent shipment of fat cattle to Chicago markets was very heavy, consisting of sixteen carloads. C. N. McCollum was one of the heavy shippers, his cattle representing $11,000. Tyndall is keeping up its record of being one of the best local shipping stations in the Northwest.

Deadwood—Thomas Grace is in jail on a charge of attempted murder of Walter Barker over disputed ground in the Yellow Creek district. Both men are well known. Grace is said to have hit Barker with an ax on the back of the head.

No one would ever be bothered with constipation if everyone knew how naturally and quickly Burdock Blood Bitters regulates the stomach and bowels.

DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

Cooperage Company Shuts Down Because Men Joined Union.

Gladstone—The Northwestern Cooperage and Lumber company shut down its works Wednesday night because the employes joined the union. The company had warned the men, but to no purpose. This puts out of employment about 100 men, most of them with families.

Sault Ste. Marie—At noon Thursday, Judge Steere took the case of the Munising Railway company against the Lac la Belle company from the jury and awarded nominal damages to the plaintiff of 6 cents. The suit was for $500,000 damages and came here on a change of venue from Alger county. It had been on trial nine days, and a strong array of legal talent from Cleveland, Detroit and the Upper Peninsula was engaged. The suit was brought for alleged breach of contract in the transportation of forest products from 100,000 acres of land in Alger, Luce and Delta counties. The case will go to the supreme court.

Jacob Duel, an employe of the Symons Lumber company at Corinn, was run over by an east-bound Soo line passenger train yesterday afternoon seven miles from here, and died this morning. He was sleeping on the track. His home is unknown.

Chase S. Osborn, while in Lapland recently, procured several curios which have been presented to the Soo high school museum. Among them is a cradle, purchased from a "Lap" chief, whose wife was then using it for her baby daughter. The frame is made of wood, covered with tanned reindeer skin, and the inside is lined with Iceland moss. The cradle is so constructed that it can be carried or drawn as a sled.

Ebenezer Cook says he is the champion fisherman of the Northern Peninsula. He went down the river the other day and in five hours caught 432 bass, perch and other fish that are to be found in the waters around Sugar Island. This is an average of about a fish a minute. He fished with two lines.

Ironwood—The Northwestern Oval Dish company, of Traverse City, which owns about 25,000 acres of land north of Ironwood, has land lookers engaged in making an estimate of the timber on the tract preliminary to the establishment of a woodenware factory in the vicinity.

Munising—F. H. Hoard, who made a twenty-six mile trip in a gasoline launch down the Sage and Tahquenonen rivers the other night, reports that in that distance he saw and counted fifty-three deer. The country covered is the wildest in the Upper Peninsula.

Escanaba—An amusing but embarrassing incident occurred at a wedding here. The bride and bridegroom had proceeded to the altar and everything, apparently, was ready for the happy event, when suddenly there was a pause. Ten cents a hurried whispered consultation and the assembled guests were amazed to see the bridal party leave the church without the ceremony being performed. The reason was soon forthcoming. The bridegroom had forgotten to procure his marriage license.

Houghton—Capt. John Massman, mater of Hawley Bros.' fishing tug Tramp, has had his papers taken away from him for fifty days by the government inspectors. Capts. Gooding and York, of Marquette, for permitting other persons than the crew to ride on the craft, a practice said to be followed by tug captains generally. The action of the inspectors was a result of the recent drowning of Capt. Will Corgan.

PERRY HEATH IN BAD LIGHT

General Washington Opinion Is That He Cannot Explain.

Washington, June 19.—Former Assistant Postmaster General Heath is being generally and harshly criticised here as a result of the disclosures made in the report of Assistant Postmaster General Bristow and the inspectors who investigated the conditions existing during his incumbency in office. There is no room for doubting his responsibility for "irregularities," a word used as a mild expression for the violations of law, which were ordered by him, and they are so numerous and glaring that Heath cannot explain them.

One of the direct results of the publication of the confidential reports will, it is freely predicted, be the retirement of Mr. Heath as secretary of the national Republican committee. It is said the party cannot afford to retain, in such an important position a man who has so grossly violated the law and used his office to take care of favorites, some of whom drew three salaries and performed no work.

There is considerable discussion as to whether these disclosures will have any effect on the party in the next campaign. Of course, President Roosevelt is in no way responsible for the frauds and irregularities, and he has ordered the removal of all officials who are in any way connected with them, and directed the prosecution of all guilty ones. So far as the president himself is concerned the Republican members of congress in the city assert his attitude has greatly strengthened him with the people.

Long before the campaign begins it is predicted the scandal, will be fully exposed, prosecutions will be well under way, and some guilty ones lodged in the penitentiary. If the question is discussed in the campaign the party will be able to go before the country and show that it has not only weeded out all corrupt officials but has put the postal service in a healthy condition.

The discovery of the attempt of a man of Metcalf's standing to force upon the government supplies at an exorbitant price leads to the belief that before the end is reached there will be discovered extravagance of such magnitude that the postal system will be put on a self-sustaining basis and the people be given 1 cent letter postage when the extravagance practices are eliminated.

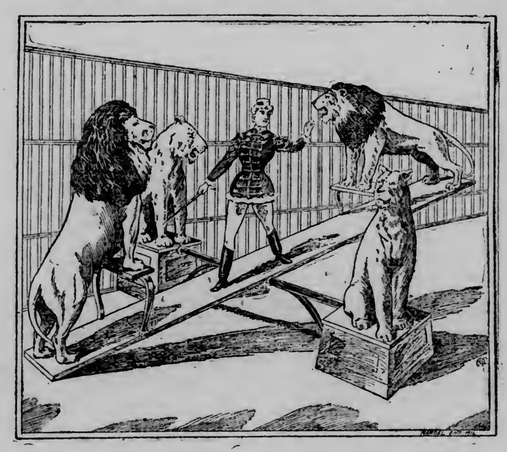
FERARI GREAT TRAINED ANIMAL SHOW.



An act of daring which always thrills an audience is to be witnessed in the great trained wild animal show of the Ferari Bros.'s Carnival company, which is to be the amusement feature of the Duluth July Fair and Carnival. It is presented by Princess Deleware, a daring little French lady, who appears in an act known as the modern Noah's Ark.

In a den containing a lion, tiger, leopard, wolf, hyena, puma, cougar, Russian bear and several wild cats and smaller animals of extremely savage nature, this daring little lady presents a wonderful exhibition of wild beast subjugation and education. Ferocious beasts, which are naturally the deadly enemies of each other, are here seen in the most friendly of conditions, all working together just as though they were all of one family and species. It took the daring woman over two years to get these animals to merely live together in peace and harmony, so that some idea of the difficulty of training them can be gained.

It often requires months of steady, untiring work to get two of these different animals to stand side by side of each other, and some awful fights, in which their fair trainer was many times cruelly torn before she got them under her control and made them obedient to her word of command. The sight presented by her act is one which can be seen nowhere else in the world, and to miss it is to miss one of the greatest sights of the twentieth century. It will be seen in the great, world-famous trained animal show, which is coming to the Duluth July Fair and Carnival, July 6 to 11 inclusive.

TO PROTECT BRIDES.

Rice Throwing Prohibited By New York Railroad.

New York, June 19.—Superintendent William H. Davidson, of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, has decided to put an end to the rice throwing nuisance in the station at Hartford, which is directly under his supervision. Yesterday afternoon he happened to be in the Union station at Hartford when a bride and groom were being pelted. Passengers had to keep off the station platform till the couple were within the car, and then in the hurry to get aboard several slipped on the rice.

Mr. Davidson promptly issued an order to the station master to call upon the police to arrest all persons who committed the nuisance of rice throwing. Half an hour later the station master enforced the order and caused the arrest of a young man, but on the ground that the order had not become well known, the youth was released. Beginning to morrow all offenders will be prosecuted.

AGREEMENT MADE.

New York, June 19.—A modus vivendi has been agreed upon with Bolivia under which the time for reaching a definite arrangement of the Acre disagreement is extended to Oct. 1, says a Herald dispatch from Rio Janeiro. Congress has proclaimed Alfonso Pena, vice president.

COLLEGE OF HUMORISTS.

New Department For University of Wisconsin.

Madison, Wis., June 19.—The establishment of a college of humorists, joke makers and cartoonists was suggested by D. W. Smith, of Milwaukee, 1880, responding to a toast at the annual dinner of the Wisconsin Alumni association. The idea was highly approved and the speaker promised something from Milwaukee toward the accomplishment of the end he suggested.

Mr. Smith offered to establish a department of the university, with professors and instructors to equip students in the art of story telling, cracking good jokes, drawing marketable cartoons and turning the sunny side of life to profitable ends.

He would, he said, turn out Twains, Depews, Pecks and McCutcheons. Such a university department is now in existence and Mr. Smith believes it would prove itself practicable and valuable.

United Church Receives a Liberal Donation.

Harold Thorson Presents Property Worth $8000.

The most agreeable subject discussed by the annual meeting of the United church up to this moment was a letter from Harold Thorson, a banker at Elbow Lake, Minn., announcing that he would donate a property worth $8000 to the United church.

The morning devotions were conducted by Rev. D. Larson, Elgin, Ill., who read John 4:20, and led in prayer. A new feature of these exercises was a number by an octet of ministers.

Churches located at Halstad, Minn., and Pembina, Cavalier county, N. D., were admitted into the United church.

Rev. L. Lund, of Elroy, Wis., read his report as treasurer of the missions. The receipts for the home missions were $18,027.32, the expenditures $20,-585.25, showing a deficit of $2557.93. The receipts of the Madagascar missions were $18,289.75, the expenditures $27,-178.18, and the deficit $7888.43.

Rev. Lund also has charge of a number of other mission funds, and the grand total of all the moneys handled by him during the year was $45,-166.17.

Rev. H. C. Holm, superintendent of the home missions, painted a rather gloomy picture of the religious conditions of many Norwegians in this country, the great cities being the darkest spots. But even on the frontiers there is a sad lack of religious workers. Rev. Holm spoke in glowing terms about those poor ministers who are laboring in the home missions.

Professor H. T. Ytterboe, treasurer of St. Olaf college, Northfield, reported that there was a deficit of $2227.39 in the treasury on account of unexpected expenses. The Brakken endowment fund amounts to $4988.39, and the net assets of the college are $118,283.14.

Professor O. Liokensgaor reported from the normal school at Madison, Minn., that the enrollment had been 175, the largest in the history of the school. The demand of the congregations for teachers from this school prove that they begin to appreciate its work as an educator of teachers. The thirteen graduates of the past year supplied only a part of the demand.

Professor E. K. Johnsen reported from the publishing house that this business is in need of larger quarters, and he also suggested some changes in the publications of the United church.

A resolution was passed to the effect that the question of dividing the United church into conferences be discussed this afternoon.

Formand Dahl was requested to arrange for the publication of a souvenir volume in memory of Rev. P. A. Rasmusson, of Lisbon, Ill., one of the pioneers of the Norwegian Lutheran church in America.

The following committees were elected:

Ordination committee — Formand Dahl and the Revs. Johan Olsen, O. H. Lee, O. C. Forseth, L. M. Biorn.

Board of trustees—Julius Hallum, Minneapolis; alternate, Chr. Lund, Thor., Ga.; Rev. S. O. Braaten, alternate, M. Hegge, Hatton, N. D.; Erik Holland, Newark, Ill.; alternate, O. K. Olson, Des Moines, Ia.

Board of school directors—Formand Dahl, Rev. Th. Eggen, Rev. M. Saterli, Dr. J. E. Granrud, Minneapolis; M. O. Tonseth, Zumbrota, Minn.

Rev. T. Tjornhom announced that no steamer can be had for the proposed cursion tomorrow afternoon, but a steamer may be had next Tuesday.

Formand Dahl read a letter from Harold Thorson, a banker at Elbow Lake, Minn., saying that this gentleman will donate to the United church a property at Elbow Lake, which is worth $8000, on condition that a home for aged people, or a school be kept there by the United church.

Thor. Gauderson, manager of the Orphans' home at Beloit, Ia., spoke a few words about the home, which cares for 115 children.

Rev. N. Lunde stated that the Orphans' home at Lake Park, Minn., accommodates seventy-three children.

There will be a sacred concert tonight in Rev. N. B. Thvedt's church. The program is as follows:

AFTERNOON SESSION.

Important Action on Prof. Schmidt Controversy Taken.

Rev. O. Glesne, Aberdeen, S. D., conducted the devotionals at the opening of the afternoon session yesterday.

PROF. M. O. BOCKMAN,
President United Church Seminary at St. Anthony Park, Minn.

Rev. N. H. Hohn failed to serve on a committee to equalize the traveling expenses of the ministers, and Formand Dahl appointed Rev. A. O. Fonkalsrud, Devils Lake, N. D., to serve in his place.

C. Rougland reported from the committee on credentials and a number of new delegates were seated, making the whole number of lay members about 400 up to that time.

Something akin to a sensation was created by Rev. N. E. Boe, of Silver Lake, Iowa, who read a motion, signed by himself, and the Revs. Th. Eggen, Madison, Wis., Rev. C. I. M. Gronlid, Eton, Iowa, and Rev. S. A. Braaten, Thompson, N. D. This motion had a direct bearing on the proposition made by the Norwegian Lutheran synod that Professor F. A. Schmidt be replaced by another man as a negotiator for the United church in the joint council, whose aim it is to pave the way for a union between the United church and the Norwegian synod. The motion was, in brief, that the following message be wired by the secretary of the United church to the secretary of the Norwegian synod, which is holding a general meeting and is celebrating its semi-centennial jubilee at Decorah, Iowa, this week:

"You are respectfully requested, at your earliest opportunity, to place before the convention of your body, now assembled, this question:

"'Does the synod recognize the pamphlet issued under the name of its church council, against Dr. F. A. Schmidt, is its own official expression?' Our action in the whole matter will depend on your immediate and official answer."

The telegram was also wired to the three greatest Norwegian newspapers in America.

The pamphlet referred to above was published and distributed free of charge by the church council of the Norwegian synod last winter, and its obvious aim was to convince the public that Professor Schmidt had been grossly inconsistent and even insincere in his teachings, and to force him out of his position as a negotiator.

After a few minutes had been spent in explaining and discussing the motion, it was adopted by a majority of something like seven-eighths. The officials of the United church did not know exactly how to deal with this pamphlet on account of its origin, but now the synod will have a chance to throw light on that matter. The resolution is looked upon as a bright idea by the annual meeting of the United church.

The following officers were unanimously re-elected:

Vice president, N. J. Ellestad, of Kenyon, Minn.

Secretary, Jens C. Roseland, of Austin, Minn.

Treasurer, Hon. Lars Swenson, of Minneapolis.

Congregations located at the following places were admitted into the United church:

Ottesen, Iowa; Bethania, Story county, Iowa; South St. Petri, Story county, Iowa; Bethel, Grand Forks, N. D.; Canawa, Iowa; Sauk valley, Todd county, Minn.; Black Duck, Beltrami county, Minn.; Bemidji, Minn.; Little Zion, Pope county, Minn., and Leroy, Minn.

Rev. Th. Eggen reported from the committee on nominations, and the following committees were elected:

Committee on Formand Dahl's report: Professor M. O. Bockman, Rev. O. Wilhelmsen, Rev. N. G. Peterson, O. Norbold, Goodhue county, Minn.; H. P. Rud, Fergus Falls, Minn.

Committee on Secretary Roseland's report: Rev. J. Thoraldsen, Rev. M. Finstad, Rev. Lars Boe, Ole Tendal, John T. Hole.

Committee on the reports of the treasurer and the board of trustees: Rev. J. M. O. Ness, Rev. Helge Hoverstad, Rev. J. A. Aasgaard, Anton Olson, John Johnson, Chicago.

Committee on the report from the schools: Rev. O. G. U. Siljan, Rev. G. T. Rygh.

Committee on the reports from the missions: Rev. J. Runsvold, P. H. Grotheim, M. O. Tonseth, Rev. Jacob Tanner, Rev. O. Guldseth, Rev. C. E. Tiller, Jacob Groth, Erik Holland.

Bishop Chr. Bang, of Christiania, Norway, is on his way to this country, and he was invited by a unanimous vote to be the guest of the United church at this meeting.

A club made out of wood from different quarters of the globe was presented to the United church by Edward Olsen and Anton Rud, of St. Paul, and a vote of thanks was extended to the givers. A letter from them stated that the sun had never set on the materials out of which the club had been made. The letter will be preserved in the archives of the United church.

Professor M. O. Bockman, the president of the theological seminary, reported that the attendance was 48 last year, and that the number of graduates was 15. He proposed that the United church encourage and aid some gifted young men in their efforts to acquire so much knowledge that they may occupy chairs of theology where needed.

Professor J. N. Kildahl, president of St. Olaf college, Northfield, Minn., read a very interesting report. Professor Kildahl has very definite ideas as to what sort of higher education a Norwegian-American ought to have. He is a being sui generis, he said. He is neither a Norwegian nor a Yankee; he is rather a mixture of both, all efforts to the contrary notwithstanding. If he tries to be a simon-pure Norwegian he becomes a ridiculous reactionary; if he tries to become a Yankee on short notice, he makes an ape out of himself. This fact should be understood by those who assume leadership among them. A worthy Norwegian-American leader of his kinsmen ought to be versed in the languages, literature and history of the old as well as of the new country. St. Olaf's college has sixteen instructors, and the enrollment last year was 345. This college has been placed on an equal footing with the state university as to the rights of the graduates to receive first-grade teachers' certificates. It was also mentioned that Norwegians now occupy the same positions as German, French and Spanish at the state university.

Rev. O. A. Berge, of Ironwood, Iowa, read a report from Augustana college, Canton, S. D. The enrollment was 181. A new building will be ready for use next fall. The cost of this will be almost $40,000. The receipts of the school were $6307.32, and the debt is not worth mentioning.

Rev. G. H. Larsen reported from the home missions and the Institute for the deaf and dumb and the blind in Faribault, Minn. He requested an appropriation of $25,000 for the home missions, and characterized this branch of the work as highly successful.

Rev. L. Lund read a report from the missions in Madagascar, which was not encouraging, chiefly because only three out of seven missionaries are engaged in active work, and the ablest woman in that field has resigned. There is a debt of $10,000 on the heathen missions.

RUMORS OF A REVOLT

Come From Constantinople But Cannot Be Verified.

New York, June 19.—An news agency reported today that there had been a revolt at Constantinople and that the sultan had abdicated.

Washington, June 19.—The state department has received no confirmation of the reported revolt at Constantinople.

London, June 19.—The foreign office here has heard nothing of any trouble at Constantinople.

Numerous telegrams have been received in London today from Constantinople, but none of them makes mention of any unusual occurrence in the Turkish capital. One dispatch, which was filed at Constantinople at 4:05 o'clock this afternoon, not only does not mention any trouble there, but announces the departure of H. B. Smith, president of the council of the administration of Ottaman bondholders.

Belgrade, June 19.—Leaflets are being sold on the streets today, containing reports hinting in mysterious language at a political crisis at Constantinople and the abdication of the sultan. The source of the reports is not given and well-informed circles discredit them, but they have created much excitement in Belgrade.

ATTEMPTED MURDER.

St. Louis Woman, Son and Daughter Unconscious.

St. Louis, June 19.—Lying unconscious and with gaping wounds in their heads, Mrs. Sam Bailey and her son Gus and daughter Eliza, were found early today along the tracks of the Big Four railroad near East Alton, Ill. Apparently an attempt to murder them had been made, and it is believed they cannot recover. Neither the assailant nor reason for the probable murder is known. The victims are in very humble circumstances, having been driven from their home in the river bottoms near East Alton by the flood.

POSTOFFICE ROBBED.

Bloomington, Ill., June 19.—The gang of postoffice safe-blowers which has been operating so extensively in Central Illinois blew open the safe in the office at Calfax last night, securing $200 in cash and $200 in stamps. Bloodhounds are on the trail.

EARTHQUAKE IN WALES.

London, June 19.—The storm off Carnarvon, Wales, today, was accompanied by two strong earth shocks. The inhabitants were alarmed by the rocking of their houses, but no damage was reported. The earth shocks were so severe at Bangor, North Wales, that the patients were carried out of the hospitals into the grounds, and the congregation, badly frightened, evacuated the cathedral.

MURDERED AND ROBBED

In a Dive Was a New York Printer.

New York, June 19.—William L. Loughlin, according to his brother, John F., senior member of the firm of Loughlin Bros., printers, No. 225 Pearl street, was murdered April 16 in an East Side dive and his body thrown into the East River, where it was found May 11. District Attorney Jerome was asked to investigate the matter and he has started an investigation of the facts as presented by the brother of the dead man.

Several of Loughlin's friends arranged a practical joke on him early in April and wrote him a letter purporting to be from a girl asking him to meet her on the afternoon of April 16 in Grand street.

At that time Loughlin had a roll of bills in his pocket. He did not return to his home and a few days later his disappearance was reported to the police.

His body was found May 11, near Sullivan street, Brooklyn. It had been stripped of clothes.

TERROR SEIZED

The Poor Woman and She Dropped Dead.

Tell City, Ind., June 19.—Coroner Tebhart is investigating the death of Mrs. Joseph Stevens, aged 50. She was the mother of sixteen children, the oldest being twenty-two and the youngest 22 months.

August Develliz, of Anderson township, who lives a mile from the home of Mrs. Stevens, states that she came to his house Thursday night, declaring that her husband had beaten and threatened to kill her. She stated that her boys had interfered and that she had fled.

Tuesday the children of Stevens left home, is being alleged that their father had come home drunk and driven them away.

Wednesday Stevens called at the home of Howard Cronin, where his oldest son had gone, and asked him to return home and also inquired where his wife was, and immediately went to the home of August Develliz, where he met his wife.

As soon as Mrs. Stevens saw her husband she begged Mr. Develliz not to let him touch her. Mr. Develliz took hold of Stevens, and in the meantime Mrs. Stevens ran out of the house and dropped dead about twenty yards from the house.

CZAR THANKS AUTHOR

For a Copy of His Book, The Bessarabia.

St. Petersburg, June 19.—The czar, the Novoe Vremya announces, has accepted a copy of a book on "Bessarabia," written by M. Kroushaven, the editor of the Anti-Semite organ in Kishnieff, the Bessaravets (the articles in which are held to have been largely responsible for the massacre of Jews at Kishnieff) and, it is added, has commanded that the author be thanked in the name of his majesty.

It was announced from St. Petersburg, June 17, that M. Kroushaven was attacked by a party of Jews in a street at St. Petersburg that day and was stabbed in the neck by a former student of the polytechnic school at Kieff. The dispatch added that the wound was not believed to be mortal.

BODY OF DU CHAILLU ARRIVES.

HAGGARD'S HERO

Still Hearty After a Hundred Close Calls From Death.

Began His Reckless Career When But a Boy at School.

London, June 19.—After playing hide and seek with death for nearly half a century, F. C. Selous, the greatest big game hunter in Africa and the Alan Quartermain of Haggard's novels, is still a hearty and healthy man, ready at a moment's notice to go out and face new dangers.

It would be understating it to say that he has faced death 100 times, as his estimates of danger and the estimates of ordinary persons vary so widely.

Selous has had a thirst for danger and adventure ever since he was a boy at Rugby. Even in those early days he was never so happy as when he was licking his neck or doing some feat of exceptional daring; and he had so thoroughly made up his mind to be a huntsman of renown that he used to sleep next the dormitory window, which he opened wide on the coldest nights, as the nearest approach he could get to "sleeping in the open."

They still tell at Rugby how Selous robbed a jackdaw's nest one dark night under the window and nose of Dr. Temple, then head master, and how he swam across to the heronry at Coombe abbey, removed his wet clothes, climbed a lofty tree and swam back again with a couple of coveted heron's eggs in his hand.

This was the boy who, a few years later—he was only 19 then—bearded Lobengula, gun in hand, and asked his permission to hunt elephants in Matabeleland. "Hunt elephants?" the dusky king said, with a laugh, "why, you are only a boy; you had better hunt antelopes." little knowing that the slim, fair stripling would prove to be the doughtiest huntsman who had ever set a foot in Africa.

This was years ago, and practically ever since that day Mr. Selous has made his home in the wilds of South Africa, waging war against the fiercest and most dangerous animals that he could find, rubbing shoulders with death a hundred times, and surviving hardships and adventures such as probably no other man living has faced.

Hunting has been to Mr. Selous no idle pastime, but a serious business. For all the capital he had in the world was $2000, and for twenty years he had to live on the spoil of his busy gun. How busy it was may be seen from the fact that of elephants alone he has killed seventy-eight, and of lions more than a score—three of them falling to four successive shots.

Within four years from Jan. 1, 1887, to Dec. 31, 1890, his bag reached the unrivalled total of 548 heads of big game, including twenty elephants, 100 buffaloes, 304 antelopes, thirteen lions, a dozen rhinoceroses, eighteen giraffes and forty-eight zebras, and in six months in 1874 he accounted for ninety-three head, including twenty-four elephants, nineteen buffaloes, nine rhinoceroses and a lion.

It is eloquent of the daring of the man that of his seventy-eight elephants all but one were shot on foot, and that one nearly brought the hunter's career to a tragic conclusion. He and his companion had slaughtered twenty-two elephants out of a herd of sixty, when an enormous bull charged him furiously, and, striking his horse with terrible force, dashed both horse and rider violently to the ground. When Mr. Selous recovered his senses he found the leviathan kneeling over, but luckily not on him, and he was able to crawl from the dangerous position and escape into the bush.

On another occasion, when he was pursuing a wounded elephant on foot, he found himself hotly chased by an infuriated bull, which was literally whirling its trunk over the huntsman's head and screaming with rage. "How I got away," he says, "I scarcely know. Urged on by the short, piercing screams, I bounded over and through thorn bushes which in cold blood I should have deemed impossible. I emerged from the bush without a shred of clothing on me."

Still undaunted he turned round on his pursuer and, raising his gun, fired at him at short range. The gun, however, had been loaded twice and the recoil dashed him to the ground, inflicting a serious wound on his face, of which he bears the mark today.

But many of Mr. Selous' most dangerous adventures have been with buffaloes, of which he has shot considerably over 200.

At one fierce bull he pulled the trigger twice, and twice the gun missed fire. As he was about to aim for the third time, the bull charged fiercely, plunging his horns deeply into the horse's body and sending his rider sprawling on the ground. In a moment the buffalo was charging at Mr. Selous' prostrate body, but, although he was struck heavily by the animal's horns, the points failed to touch him.

Of such narrow escapes from death Mr. Selous could tell scores, if his unconquerable modesty would permit him to talk of his adventures. Several times his life has been attempted by treacherous and unfriendly natives, and in one midnight raid on his camp his escape was nothing less than providential. When he found himself in safety, he was clad in a shirt, a light coat and a pair of shoes, and for fourteen terrible days he wandered alone in the jungle before deliverance came.

On another occasion he spent ninety hours without food or water; at one time or another he has broken almost every bone in his body; he has been at death's door with fever and ague; he has defied for a score of years every law of health and safety, and yet at 51 he remains the picture of health and strength, and boasts a constitution that has few rivals in the world.

RECORD MADE BY EXPERTS

Who Are Taking Inventory of Uncle Sam's Wealth.

Washington, June 19.—The twenty-one expert young women who are counting all of Uncle Sam's money are setting up some new records. One day this week they counted $47,500,000 in $20, $50 and $100 new bank notes in five and one-half hours.

The counters are now working on the reserve fund, which, on June 1, when the count was commenced, amounted to $402,926,500, according to the books. They are now nearly at the $300,000,000 mark, but they have been working on the bills of large denomination. That count of the smaller bills will not run into imposing figures so fast, but they will finish the count of the reserve fund before the end of the month.

The reserve fund consists of new notes that are kept on hand to take the place of worn-out currency. It is unsually heavy now on account of the new notes that have been printed for the autmun business. Nearly $40,000,000 has been prepared for the crop movements, and this is all in bills of small denomination.

The bills are done up in packages of 1000 notes without regard to their denomination. After being counted and initialed by the counter, and inspected by the committee, they are sealed up again and returned to the vaults.

The young women begin counting at 9 o'clock and quit at 3:20, with an hour for lunch. Ten packages, or 10,000 notes, constitute an average day's work, though some of the most expert count 12 and 12.

That long experience in handling money counts for less than natural quickness and adeptness is shown by the counters now at work.

Miss Frye, one of those who counted 13 packages on the day for which figures are given, has been counting money for twenty-four years, and Miss Wheat, who counted 12 bundles, has been in the department twenty-nine years. Miss Williams has been in the treasury only three years and Miss Hoffman only since April, 1902, yet they were right up with the leaders.

When the count of the reserve fund is finished the contents of all of the other vaults, with the exception of those in which 160,000,000 silver dollars are stored, will be gone over in the same way.

It took from thirty to forty counters five months to count the 152,000,000,000 silver dollars that were in the vaults when Ellis H. Roberts became United States treasurer, six years ago, and Mr. Roberts does not consider it necessary to repeat the long and tiresome operation now. If any pilfering has been going on he is confident that it has not affected the silver vaults and their cumbersome contents.

The completion of the count will determine whether or not there has been any stealing since Mr. Roberts took office, on July 1, 1897. He believes the vaults will be found to tally with the books to a cent, but he wants to be sure.

That is why he ordered the count. If there has been any crookedness the government accounts are so well kept that it will be easy to fix the responsibility.

The dishonest removal of money from any vault in the treasury would require the collusion of at least four men. No person is allowed inside any of the vaults alone, even for a second. Even Mr. Roberts himself never enters one of them without at least one witness.

All ladies and children who cannot stand the shocking strain of laxative syrups, cathartics, etc., are invited to try the famous Little Early Risers. They are different from all other pills. They do not purge the system. Even a double dose will not gripe, weaken or sicken; many people call them the easy pills. Sold by all druggists.

OPERATION DARING

In Which Blood Was Cut Off From the Heart.

All of the Burden Put on the Right Side.

Philadelphia, June 19.—One of the rarest and most difficult of operations which surgeons dare attempt was performed at the Samaritan hospital upon Frank McIlhatton, an engineer, who lives at 3107 North Bancroft street. The operation was for aneurism of the transverse arch, and involved the tying up of the great aorta and subclavian arteries, which carry the blood directly to and from the heart. These arteries were ligated upon each side of the aneurism, stopping the blood circulation on the left side of the man's body and putting all of the burden on the right side.

Professor Edmund Holmes of the Temple college, regarded as one of the greatest anatomists in the country, performed the operation. His great knowledge of anatomy was requisite, because one single slip of the knife or mistake in ligating would have affected the heart and caused instant death.

It is said there have not been more than a dozen similar operations in this country, and of the patients more than half died. With McIlhatton it was the choice of a slim chance of recovery or the certainty of sudden death. The aneurism, which came from some neglected bruise, was located on the left side of his neck. The walls of the great aorta had become so thin that it was feared they would break and the sufferer bleed to death. McIlhatton was told of the risks of the operation, but voluntarily submitted.

Cutting rapidly but carefully, Dr. Holmes laid open the arch of the aorta just over the heart, and exposed the arteries. The slightest cut in the vessel would have caused the man to bleed to death. Then the ligates were applied to the common carotid and the third portion of the subclavian. Even greater danger lurked in this portion of the operation. Directly back of the artery lies the pneumogastric nerve, and had this been tied by the surgeon death would have resulted instantly.

The aorta was then opened on the left-hand side. By throwing the circulation on the right side the left side of the patient's body has been temporarily paralyzed, and it is partly because of this that McIlhatton is still in grave danger. His left arm is without circulation, and there is danger of gangrene developing.

The purpose of the operation is to cut off the blood supply from the aneurism and allow a clot to form, in the hope that it will form tissue and build up the strength of the artery. Should any of the clot pass into the brain, however, death will follow.

In the course of a few days, if the man survives, the capillaries, or small veins, will expand and take up the function of circulation to the needed degree.

Because of the great rarity of the operation many surgeons were present, among whom were Drs. Samuel Wolf, Wayne Babcock, T. H. Davies and Simeon R. Addis.

During the day, after the operation, McIlhatton had several sinking spells, from which he rallied. He is a strong man, and Dr. Dietrick, who is in charge of the case, hopes for his entire recovery.

SUPT. METCALF ASKS HEARING

Objects to His Summary Dismissal By Postmaster General.

Washington, June 19.—Postmaster General Payne has received the following letter from Mr. Metcalf, asking for a suspension of the order of dismissal until his complete defense may be heard:

Hon. H. C. Payne: Dear Sir: I cannot but feel that under ordinary circumstances such summary action as has been taken in my case would not have occurred without giving me a chance to be heard in my defense.

It must be due to the heated, excited and congested condition of affairs in the postoffice department that the posmaster general has consented to this summary dismissal of a man who, for the best part of his life since attaining manhood, has devoted his whole thought and being to the honest discharge of his duties to the government and the best interests of the postal service, in which no stain of suspicion has ever heretofore attached.

Justice to myself, my family and my friends ask me to appeal to the postmaster general to arrest the order of summary dismissal and accord me an opportunity to show that in this matter, as well as others, I was consulting only the best interest of the postoffice money order system in whatever I did concerning the Herman bid, and not my own self interests, and with no thought of myself or my family, as made to appear in the charge against me.

"The common sense of justice and the right of defense, which my score of years of faithful public service entities me to, must compel the postmaster general to give me this opportunity of demonstrating to him that his action has been hasty and unjust to a faithful public servant, who has devoted his life to the best interests of his government.

"The suspension of your order is respectfully asked until such time as you may hear from me."

SKIN-TORTURED BABIES

YOUNG GIRL ELOPED

With Farm Hand Who Has Been Arrested.

Moultrie, Ga., June 19.—Quite a sensation has been created in the Monk district of this county by the elopement of Miss Mary Ammons, 13 years old, and a member of one of the most prominent families of the county.

She ran away from school to marry L. N. Langdale, an employe on her stepfather's farm. They escaped into Worth county, where they married, but were soon followed by the officers of this county, who carried a warrant charging the young benedict with kidnaping.

The couple were brought to Moultrie and with them came a large nnumber of indignant relatives of the bride.

She was by no means coerced by the presence of relatives, including her mother, but remained loyal to her young husband, declaring that she would live with him or die.

Young Langdale gave bond, and the girl was taken back home by the mother.

CRUSHES OUT THE LIFE

The most loathsome and repulsive of all living things is the serpent, and the vilest and most degrading of all human diseases is Contagious Blood Poison. The serpent sinks its fangs into the flesh and almost instantly the poison passes through the entire body. Contagious Blood Poison, beginning with a little ulcer, soon contaminates every drop of blood and spreads throughout the whole system. Painful swellings appear in the groins, a red rash and copper colored splotches break out on the body, the mouth and throat become ulcerated, and the hair and eye brows fall out; but these symptoms are mild compared to the wretchedness and suffering that come in the latter stages of the disease when it attacks the bones and more vital parts of the body. It is then that Contagious Blood Poison is seen in all its hideousness. The deep eating abscesses and sickening ulcers and tumors show the whole system is corrupted and poisoned, and unless relief comes soon this serpent disease tightens its coils and crushes out the life. The only antidote for the awful virus is S. S. S. It is nature's remedy, composed entirely of vegetable ingredients. S. S. S. destroys every vestige of the poison, purifies the blood and removes all danger of transmitting the awful taint to others. Nothing else will do this. Strong mineral remedies, like mercury and potash, dry up the sores and drive in the disease, but do not cure permanently.

STUDIES IN ACTS

PAUL'S CHARGE TO TIMOTHY

International Sunday School Lesson For June 21, 1903.

2 Timothy 3:14—4:8—"But abide thou in the things which thou hast learned and hast been assured of, knowing of whom thou hast learned them; and that from a babe thou hast known the sacred writings which are able to make thee wise unto salvation through faith which is in Christ Jesus. Every scripture inspired of God is also profitable for teaching, for reproof, for correction, for instruction which is in righteousness; that the man of God may be complete, furnished completely unto every good work.

"I charge thee in the sight of God, and of Christ Jesus, who shall judge the quick and the dead, and by his appearance and his kingdom; preach the word; be instant in season, out of season; reprove rebuke, exhort, with all long suffering and teaching. For the time will come when they will not endure the sound doctrine; but, having itching ears, will heap to themselves teachers after their own lusts; and will turn away their ears from the truth, and unto fables. But be thou sober in all things, suffer hardship, do work of an evangelist, fulfill thy ministry. For I am already being offered, and the time of my departure is come. I have fought the good fight, I have finished the course, I have kept the faith; henceforth there is laid up for me the crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous judge, shall give me at that day; and not only to me, but also to all them that have loved his appearing."

Golden text: "There is laid up for me a crown of righteousness." 2 Timothy 4:8.

STRANDED AT MALTA.

What strange scene it was that morning in St. Paul's Bay on the island of Malta! One by one the ship's crew breasted the turbulent waves and set foot rejoicingly on solid ground. It was an unknown shore; but the natives were hospitable and kindled a fire for the comfort of the shipwrecked, and in other ways showed them the warmest cordiality they could. All hands seem to have set about gathering wood or furze for the fire, Paul among the rest. He brought a bundle of stuff and laid it on the fire. A viper, half numbed by the cold of the storm, lay hidden in the pile. It was quickly heated in the flames and, roused to anger by the discomfort thereof, it sprang upon the nearest bystander, who happened to be Paul.

The people of the island, looking on, and knowing that Paul was a prisoner, said that he must be some murderer who had been fortunate enough to escape the violence of the storm, but was pursued by the spirit of justice and visited with the serpent's poison on the land. Their judgment is but one instance of the hasty and unjust judgment which people are so apt to give on the ground of mere appearances, without waiting to hear the evidence that may lead to fair and equitable judgment in the person's favor. Paul once as much as said that he had been in danger of judging Christ according to the standards of the flesh, which would have been ruinous to his owin spiritual welfare, but he was thankful that he had learned to judge Christ according to the standards of the spirit. So ought all to learn to estimate Christ by true standards and likewise to value their fellow men in terms of high spiritual worth. The Maltans were compelled quickly to change their opinion of Paul but their superstition caused them to swing to the other extreme of folly and declare him to be a God merely because the poison of the viper had not caused him to drop dead in his tracks. The opinions we form of others depend upon our own characters and notions as well as upon the conduct of the ones we judge. Every element that enters into the formation of our opinions of others is of such a nature that judgment against another person ought never be spoken without the fullest information and the most mature consideration possible.

The hospitality extended the strangers was not limited to the people who lived on the beach where the wreck was stranded; but the principal man of the island, who lived not far from the place where they had landed, received them all into his own private house. There was nothing left for the party to do but to spend the rest of the winter on the island, which they probably did at Valetta, the seaport of that part of the island. Paul busied himself in the service of all who were in need of what he could do for them. The father of the chief man of the island was healed of his malady in answer to Paul's prayer and the laying on of Paul's hands. The record of this cure in answer to prayer was kept by the physician Luke, who also tells us that the report of the cure spread all through the island and the sick were brought from every hand and were healed in answer to the prayers of the apostle. The beneficiaries of these cures sought to do everything possible for the comfort of Paul and his party, even supplying them with such things as they needed for their voyage when they set out to sail toward home.

The figureheads of the old-time ships were often the image of the deities to which the superstitious sailors made appeal for protection for their craft. When Paul sailed from Malta he took passage in a vessel which bore the figures of Castor and Pollux for a figurehead. These were the sons born to Jupiter by Leda. According to mythology, when they were translated to the sky they became a constellation especially favorable to sailors. In this pagan ship the greatest herald of the cross started once more toward the imperial city of the Caesars to preach the gospel which was the chief joy of his life. With what detail the historian has recorded the stages of the journey! Three days were spent in Syracuse, and from thence, the winds being somewhat unfavorable, it was necessary to stand far out to sea in order to make the entrance to the straits of Messina at Rhegium. The straits of Messina were a constant dread to every mariner in the olden time, because to pass it required one to go between the renowned rocks of Scylla and Charybdis. To the steam crafts of the present day the passage of Messina is not so difficult as the passage of Hell Gate; but Messina still has its terrors for the sailing vessel that must try to make its passage. Happily for Paul's party, they got a steady south wind from Rhegium and reached Puteoli quickly and without incident. There they landed, for it was one of the seaports of Rome. Christians were there, and they welcomed Paul and prevailed on him to stay with them long enough to spend a Lord's day in their fellowship. It speaks much for the rapid spread of the gospel that Paul the prisoner found this community of Christians ready and receptive, and that his progress from Puteoli to Rome was more like a triumphal welcome than like the weary march of a fettered prisoner to his cell and trial.

ANXIETY FOR THE GOSPEL.

The book of Acts opens with the glory of Christ's ascension, but closes with the humiliation of Paul's imprisonment at Rome. What a contrast! And yet Paul's imprisonment, like the humiliation of our Lord, was a step toward the emancipation of the gospel and the salvation of the world. The gospel was not much longer to remain a provincial religion, but was destined to break forth as the bright morning light of the new spiritual birth of the world. Paul was a prisoner, chained to a Roman soldier! True! But he was also the freest spirit in Rome! Only his body was chained. Christ had set him free in mind and spirit, and though a prisoner in bonds, his influence flew to the four winds and drew about him an audience that was moulded and inspired by his courageous mind and heart.

The chief anxiety of Paul's mind on his arrival at Rome was not for his own life, but for the progress of the gospel among his own countrymen. He did not wish the Jews of Rome to hold a false impression of him or his gospel. So he lost no time in calling their leaders to him that he might state his case to them. He told them squarely that he had been arrested for no cause whatever; that he had been tried in a Roman court, where he would have been acquitted had it not been for the opposition of the Jews to him. The Jews had desired to have him put to death, but the court found him guilty of no offense whatsoever against Roman law. His appeal to Caesar had been made with no intention of trying to make out a cause against the Jews, but only that he might have a fair chance for life. The Jews of Rome still had an unpleasant memory of the persecution they had suffered under Claudius, and they did not wish to have any trouble stirred up among themselves that might serve to draw upon their heads the malevolence of the emperor. So Paul hastened to gain their favor by assuring them in advance that he did not propose to make any charges against his countrymen.

Paul's statement to the Jews involved the question that was so near to his heart. He could not refrain from telling them that his bondage was due to the fact that he cherished the true hope of Israel and believed that it had been fulfilled in the person of Jesus of Nazareth. This had been his defense before the Jews wherever he had been arraigned. It would be the burden of his thought and effort so long as God should give his life and strength. He wrote, "Christ liveth in me," and he had no breath or action that was not instinct with the spirit of Christ.

The Jewish leaders were slow to express approval of Paul or of what he said. They replied that they had received no letter from Judea about him, and that none of the Jews had come from thence to prefer charges against him. It was customary when an appeal was taken to Rome from one of the provinces for some witness or witnesses to accompany the appellant to Rome to state the charge against him. Since no such method had yet been followed in Paul's case, the Jews who had met him in his rooms declared that they would like to hear him give a fuller statement of the "way" which he represented; they had heard of the sect that followed the teachings ofthe Nazarene, but their chief item of knowledge about it was that it was much spoken against. After agreeing upon a day to meet and hear Paul's exposition of his faith, the gathering broke up and the Jewish leaders went out to think upon Paul's earnest words and to select others for the day's conference that was destined to mean so much to all those who came—the beginning of a truer faith or the rejection of the light their God had sent them in the person of the immaculate Redeemer.

On the appointed day Paul welcomed a large gathering of Jews to his quarters. He was a prisoner in charge of soldiers, but enjoying an unusual degree of freedom, which he used to great advantage in preaching to the people in the city, which he had for so long a time planned and longed to enter as an evangelist. He at last had his opportunity, and he did not let it slip away from him; but began at the law of Moses, and argued with his hearers from all their scriptures that Jesus of Nazareth had fulfilled the demands of law and prophecy, and was the true Messiah, which the nation had been hoping and praying for, lo! these many years. In the morning the conference began, and it did not close until the sun had descended toward the horizon in the west; but Paul did not tire for an instant. He poured all his knowledge and enthusiasm into what he said, with great expectations for the outcome of the effort. And God blessed him and crowned his efforts with a degree of success, for some believed his message. Of course, there were some who did not believe; but that was to be expected. A fair beginning was made in Rome. There had been many Christians in the city before Paul's arrival, but Paul's efforts lent new life to them. The Jews outside the pale of the Christian community were aroused to discuss the doctrines of Christ, and Christianity invites thought and intelligent discussion of its merits. The unbelieving attitude of some of the Jews led Paul to quote that passage from Isaiah, which Jesus had used of those who heard the gospel and were not receptive, with the concluding remark that "this salvation of God is sent unto the Gentiles."

This conference was but the beginning of a two-years' ministry of the gospel in his own hired house. Paul had to battle against many discouragements; but he felt all the while that he could do all things through Christ, which strengthened him. He craved human sympathy, as we see from his request to the Ephesians to pray on his behalf, that utterance might be given him in opening his mouth, to make known with boldness the mystery of the gospel, for which he was an ambassador in chains; that he might speak boldly, as he knew he ought to speak. He must have rejoiced in the companionship of Luke and Aristarchus and Tychicus and Timothy and Epaphroditus and Epaphras and other Christian brethren, who helped to cheer the tedium of his waiting for his trial.

During the two years he was unceasing in his efforts. Acts tells us this much and then draws the curtain upon its record. From the epistles written during this time we learn of the zeal and success of his efforts. He won some members of his guard to his faith, was able to send greetings to the Philippians from the saints of Caesar's household, and seems to have gotten some hold on the upper as well as lower classes of Roman society. During this imprisonment Paul gave to the world some of his best literary work. Like John Bunyan, his mind was not fettered by his imprisonment and bodily fetters. The Epistles to the Colossians, to Philemon, to the Ephesians and to the Philippians are not the work of a man whose usefulness has been killed by any petty troubles that have fallen upon him. The Epistle to the Ephesians alone was a production worthy to win its writer undying fame. It represents the climax of Paul's thought. It accounts for the rise of Christianity in the sovereignty of God, which express the fullness of Christ in the church. Paul was striving to exalt this Christ in all his glory, and to establish the church on the unshakable foundation.

JUSTICE IS JUST

James Shipley and Wife Get Back Their Farm.

They Were Induced to Trade It For Oregon Land.

Macon, Mo., June 19.—Sheriff I. W. Gilstrap went up into Walnut township and served a writ of ouster on F. Marion Williams and Joseph Rice, following a decree of the circuit judge vesting the land in James Shipley and wife. The farm contains 200 acres of the best land in Missouri, and is worth $10,000, with the houses and barns.

Shipley is 70 years old. During the three years the case has been in the courts he has labored with pick and shovel on a railroad in Miller county, Mo. He got $1.25 a day and managed to support his aged wife. His homestead in Macon county was producing $1200 a year for the men who claimed to own it.

Shipley was a farmer, and a good one. He and his wife were contented until Joseph Rice visited them in the spring of 1899 and talked about the Pacific ocean, mountain scenery and fertile valleys that produced three crops annually. He said that he and Williams had two farms of 160 acres on the coast of Oregon, where the ocean breezes made the winters mild and the summers cool. He told Shipley that he could sit on the vineclad veranda and see the ships of all nations float majestically by.

The light of a new hope came into the eyes of the Missouri patriarch. The fisherman's yawls and dugouts that plied up and down the muddy Charleston river after catfish were contemptible in comparison. And then the scenery in the mountains. The enthusiastic Oregonian dwelt long on that. There was nothing like it in Missouri. He had photographs of the mountains and valleys, so old man Shipley didn't have to take his word altogether.

While he was hesitating, Rice told him a man could see further in Oregon than he could in Missouri. Then the old man and his wife signed the contract and deeds, the latter protesting somewhat. She thought her husband ought to go out and see what they were getting before they traded. So the papers were deposited with a merchant at Elmer, and Shipley and his wife took a train for the West.

Rice and Williams immediately went into possession of the Missouri farm. Shipley found the mountains there all right and the scenery likewise. But when he went out on the porch of the little frame house he found he couldn't see the galleons sail by unless he dug a channel through the mountains and had a very powerful glass, for the high seas were fourteen miles away. The great orchard and fertile valleys dwindled to a few acres. Wild cats and mountain lions were the most likely crop he could possibly raise.

The next train to Missouri had the Shipleys on board. Williams and Rice told them they had gotten homesick too quick; they should have stayed until they got acclimated; they would like it then; the scenery—

"Scenery, the devil!" exclaimed the old man. "'Spect a man to live by looking at rocks and 'cannons;' ever hear of anybody out there eating scenery or buying it?"

He was mad, but Rice and Williams were calm. They told him the deal had been closed and that they intended to hold on. Shipley was penniless. He didn't have the money to hire a lawyer, but when he told his story to an advocate the latter offered to see the litigation through at his own expense if he failed. The defendants had good counsel, and they managed to stand off the day of reckoning for a long time. At last they were forced into court, and after a long and fierce legal battle the judge found for the aged plaintiffs on every point.

Pending the result, the old man, who had faithfully rounded out his three-score-and-ten, and had amassed much more than the average farmer, was compelled to begin at the foot of the ladder again. They wanted men on the section in Miller county. He could shovel dirt and handle rock, and he thought it was the only chance. The world isn't often generous to a man who has lost his property, but the old farmer wasn't asking charity. He just wanted justice and he got it—after three weary years.

He has resigned his railroad job and is now with his faithful old helpmeet, journeying overland to the Macon homestead in a "private schooner" loaded with their household effects.

"KICKING DAN."

Death of Mule That Gained National Reputation.

Indianapolis, Ind., June 19.—The officials of the United Mine Workers at the national headquarters here were more genuinely interested in an announcement from Linton, Ind., of the death of a mule, "Kicking Dan," than they were in the private advices from the convention of the anthracite miners at Scranton, Pa.

The mule literally kicked himself into national prominence. The Black Creek Coal company bought him for $35, and thought it had a bargain, but he cost the company over $5000 and the miners' organization an equal amount. "Kicking Dan" fell to the lot of Henry Darrough, a young driver, and he was so stubborn and mean that Darrough almost beat him to death with a club.

The company discharged Darrough for cruelty to animals, whereupon his associates in the union refused to go back to work until he was reinstated. The strike lasted 23 days, President Mitchell finally being called in as peacemaker.

"Kicking Dan," in the meantime, was put in the barns to await his recovery. The company fully intended to give him another trial, but he broke out yesterday and strayed too near the railroad yards, and a switch engine ended his career. Witnesses of the tragedy declare that the mule died kicking hard.

NORTHCOTT ROBBED.

Indianapolis, June 19.—Lieutenant Governor W. A. Northcott, of Illinois, reported that he had been robbed by a hotel thief of his watch, chain and charm, valued at $300 and $35 in money. He said that some money and jewels belong to his daughter was also taken. The watch charm was of Masonic design and was presented to him by the general assembly of Illinois.

NEW TERMINAL COMPANY.

Madison, Wis., June 19.—The Duluth, Superior & Western Terminal company, organized under the laws of West Virginia, to conduct and operate wharves, docks, warehouses and railways in Wisconsin and Duluth, and in Canada, filed articles of incorporation here yesterday. The capital is $2,000,000. The incorporators are Cortland Betts, Frank H. Church, Cornelius A. Loughlin, Arthur Starke and Benjamin Whitely.

LOST IT'S GAIN

Wheat Has Sharp Bulge and Then Settles Back Again.

Enormous Trading In Flax and Market Breaks Severely.

Duluth Board of Trade, June 19.—The wheat market had a bulge of a cent or more in the early part of the session today and then lost it all before the close. St. Louis was largely responsible for the upturn and was buying on the strength of rain in the Southwest. Spencer, who has been the leading bull in that market was so anxiously bullish that he started in to kill the Northwestern crop sending out that he had just received from Fargo, N. D., the following telegram:

"Drove forty miles along Red River in Minnesota and North Dakota today. Rain badly needed, ground baked and cracked. Found many fields turning yellow. Small growth. Old settlers' meeting yesterday at Abercrombia from nearly sections of state and all claimed must have soaking rains or crop will be badly damaged. I think conditions are 15 per cent lower today than on June 1."

This excited only jeers in this market, though it might have had some influence where conditions were not so well known. Not a discouraging report has been received here from the Northwestern fields and no report of the ground of the Red River valley to be baked and broken after a season of rain and snow such as was experienced this spring is the height of absurd fiction.

After the first buying spurt had worn off the market fell back steadily. There was some wheat worked for eastern shipment from this market, probably 30,000 bushels.

Stocks of wheat at Duluth are estimated to decrease 50,000 bushels this week. Receipts have been fairly large for this time of year and shipments will average about the same as for the past few weeks.

Bradstreet reported exports for the week of 2,917,000 bus., against 4,191,000 bus. last week, and 3,869,000 bus. last year.

Argentine shipments for the week were 1,776,000 bus., last week 2,068,000 bus., and last year 704,000 bus.

Primary receipts of wheat were 352,000 bus., last year 329,000 bus. Shipments 83,000 bus., last year 875,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour were 286,864 bus.

The Liverpool market closed ½d higher. Paris unchanged to ¼c higher and Antwerp unchanged.

Receipts of wheat at Duluth and Minneapolis 238 cars, and at Chicago 34, a total of 272 cars, against 301 last week and 318 last year.

Corn in the Liverpool market was ½d lower. Chicago the large bullish interests were reported to have liquidated and there was a sharp slump, the price closing 1¼c off. July oats closed in shade higher. Primary receipts of corn were 648,000 bus, last year 322,000 bus. Shipments 299,000 bus, last year 132,000 bus. Clearances were 117,000 bus. Argentine shipments of corn were 1,240,000 bus, last year. Bradstreet reported exports of corn for the week of 1,080,000 ous against 824,-000 bus last week and 110,000 bus last year.

Trading in oats was light on the Duluth board and the market strong. September opened unchanged at 74¾c, sold at 74⅝c at 9:55 and 75⅝c at 11:30. That was the high point and from there it steadily slumped off and closed unchanged at 74⅜c. July also closed unchanged, and its extreme rise was 5c. In Chicago July was 4c lower and September unchanged and in Minneapolis July was ⅜-1c higher and September 1-4@1c higher. In St. Louis July was up ¾c and September 1½c. New York July was 3c off and September 3c up.

Cash sales of wheat were 25,000 bus and prices were unchanged at July price for No. 1 northern and 1½c under for No. 2.

Flax trading was the heaviest since the slump began. July fell 4¼c to $1.01¼ within the first hour, rallied to $1.10 and closed at $1.02¾. This was a decline of 28@3c. September fell 28c. October 24c and November 23c. Argentine shipments of flax this week were 224,000 bus, against 488,000 bus last week, and none last year. Duluth shippers sold four loads of flax for export today.

Following are the closing prices:

Wheat—To arrive, No. 1 hard, 83¾c; No. 1 northern, 81¾c; No. 2 northern, 80¾c; July, 81¾c; September, 77¾c; December, 71¾c. THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Opened Irregular But Later Became Firmer.

Chicago, June 19.—Wheat opened irregular, with July unchanged to ⅜c higher at 76⅝c to 77c and Sept unchanged to ⅛@¼c lower at 74⅜c to 74⅝@74⅞c. Rather disappointing cables and continued favorable weather had a depressing influence at the start, but later on a good general demand the market became firmer, July advancing to 77¼c and Sept. to 75¼c. Minneapolis and Duluth reported receipts of 248 cars, which with local receipts of 34 cars, none of contract grade, made a total for the three points of 279 cars, against 301 last week and 318 a year ago.

Weakness developed about the noon hour largely in sympathy with the break in corn, there being a general selling movement. The close was at the low point, with July ⅜c lower at 76¾c and September unchanged at 74⅝@74⅞c.

There was a steady feeling in July corn the opening being ⅛c lower to ⅛c higher at 56⅝ to 57c, while Sept. was a trifle easier at ⅛ to ⅜c lower at 50c to 50¼c. Good buying on the cash situation soon caused a firmer tone and prices advanced, July selling up to 51⅝ and Sept. to 50½. Local receipts were 567 cars, with 28 of contract grade.

A severe break occurred about the middle of the session, brought about by active selling of July by a prominent provision interest, which resulted in a weak market for the remainder of the day, July closing ¼c lower at 48¾c, the low point of the day. The weakness in July affected other months, and September closed unchanged at 48⅜@¼c.

Oats sympatized with wheat and corn and opened easier with July unchanged to ⅛c higher and Sept. ⅛c lower at 33⅜c to 33⅝ and 33¾c respectively, but later when other grains began to advance this market also shared in the upturn, July selling up to 40c and Sept. to 34½c. Local receipts were 149 cars.

Liberal receipts of hogs and lower prices at the yards caused an easier tone in provisions at the start, and with barely any trading, the market showed little fluctuations Sept. pork opened 2½ lower at $15.22½; Sept. lard was also off 2½ at 8.35 and ribs unchanged at $8.20.

Close: Wheat, July, 76¾c; old, 76⅞c; September, 74⅜@74⅝c; old, 75c; December, 74⅝@74⅞c; old, 75c. Corn, June, 48⅝c; July 48¾@49c; September, 49¼@49⅜c; December, 49@49c; May, 47½@48c. GRAIN GOSSIP.

Chicago Record-Herald: The corn market this season is a rich man's affair. It was in April, when the big bulls were long the May, and it is still so now, with the leading holders long either the July or the September. Armour, Cudahy, Ellwood, Reed are all owners of corn and have been for months. There was a hitch when these rich men were all holding the May together, and there was such a struggling lot of liquidation at that time that Armour seemed to get all the money and everybody else all the corn. But now the corn stock is so centrall the crop situation so strong, and the bull side so generally popular it does not seem to matter much who liquidates the July or who stays in. The whole market moves up together irrespective of any "changing" or liquidation that takes place. In fact, there has been selling of September and July for several days by Bartlett-Frazier, who are supposed to have the corn bought for the rich New York bulls. But the market has taken all this selling and has moved up as it was not going on. The theory is Armour has gotten his line over into September, but to still have enough July left to control the cash corn if he pleases. The Ellwood party is supposed to have struck to the July. The Cudahys are supposed to be over in September, but the remarkable feature has been that, with all this bull company, the market has been acting as if one interest were running the whole campaign. Corn prices are over 50c, the high level o tthe season With less than 1,000,000 bus. contract corn here, with the receipts small, with the countrymen still offering very little, it apparently would be as easy to put corn higher now as when the price was lower. No one can remember a speculative situation just like the present. One of the big elevator concerns, bidding as high as its competitors, got only 2000 bus. yesterday in the country.

Ryeroft, of Chicago: With pleasant weather we are inclined to think that we shall have larger receipts of corn next week. This corn will come in on sales made some time ago. The country is not selling much, but at the same time large receipts are liable to have some effect on the market and we think longs should take their profits.

* * *

Modern Miller: The wheat harvest outside of the flood districts is progressing steadily Northward under favorable weather conditions. Reports of disappointing yields are coming from some precincts, but these so far are principally confined to Southeastern Missouri and Southern Illinois, Indiana, where crop conditions have been poorest. The improving conditions that have recently been noted in the Southwest have brought forth a much better yield for prospects than were indicated some time ago.

* * *

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—The market here was active and irregular. The early strength was lost later in the day mainly in sympathy with weakness in corn. There is quite a general speculative interest, and operations are on a liberal scale General commission houses reports fairly good conditions on winter wheat. The prospects for the yield are poor in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Kentucky, Tennessee, Missouri and the whole Pacific coast. They are by no means favorable from Nebraska. It looks to us as though the government report on the tenth would again show a material reduction in its estimate. There are only scattering showers in the Northwest to relieve the dry spell and complaints from that section have an increasing tendency. Cash markets maintain their premium. With these conditions we thing any material decline is unlikely and a very material advance not at all improbable. Foreign markets do not yet follow but they are always slow to credit any impairment to crop conditions. Estimated cars 15.

CONSULAR APPOINTMENTS.

Washington, June 19.—Announcement was made at the state department today of the consular appointments:

John W. Foster, Vermont, consul general at Ottawa; Robert Woods Bliss, consul general at Vienna; James Verner Long, Pennsylvania, consul at Patras, and Edward Higgins, Massachusetts, consul at Berne.

ADVANCE IN STOCKS

On Good Buying After Ruling Dull But Steady.

Atchison and Steels Led the Rise—Closing Firm.

New York, June 19.—Large selling orders in United States Steel stocks at the opening depressed the common ¾ and the preferred a point both touching low record prices on the movement. Prices were lower throughout the declines reached large fractions in the Pacifics and in Sugar. St. Louis & San Francisco second preferred fell 1⅝ and Minneapolis, St. Paul & Soo preferred a point. Hocking Valley rose 2.

The selling of stocks was not pursued and the market lapsed into dullness, but there was an improving tendency. The losses in railroad stocks were more than recovered and that in United States Steel preferred was also pretty well made up. A rise of about a point occurred in Delaware & Hudson, Reading, Pennsylvania and Wabash preferred and there were steadily rising prices for other coalers and some of the transcontinental stocks. American Car and Cotton Oil lost a point each. Consolidated Gas gained 1 and Colorado Fuel 2. The market was easier again at 11 o'clock.

Buying of stocks continued in a desultory way. Evidence of inside support for the United States Steel stocks and their price recover had an encouraging effect. The coalers led the rise in the railroads, Reading rising 1¾ and Delaware & Hudson 1⅞. Some of the coalers, Wabash, Louisville and Tennessee Coal gained a point and other railroad stocks large fractions. Peoria & Eastern rose 4 and Hocking Valley preferred 2⅝. The market fell into intense dullness, United States Steel bonds sold down to 83 and Toledo, St. Louis & Western 4s rose 3. The bond market generally was slightly irregular at noon.

Blocks of 1000 to 5000 shares of Reading were bought, lifting it to 49¾ and strengthening othe rstocks considerably. Atchison, Union Pacific, Baltimore & Ohio and Illinois Central advanced a point before the demand ceased. The United States Steel stocks sold fractionally above yesterday's close on the announcement that this year's schedule of prices would prevail for 1904. Business lapsed to a standstill by 1 o'clock and the market ruled a shade below the best. Pacific Coast advanced 2 and Wheeling & Lake Erie 2½, while Ice preferred lost 1¼. Offerings of stocks were scanty and bids had to be raised to fill orders, causing an advance of 1 to 1¼ in St. Paul, Erie, Chesapeake & Ohio, Canadian Pacific and Metropolitan Street Railway. Delaware & Hudson increased its rise to 3 points.

United States Steel rose to more than a point over last night. Atchison extended its gain to 1⅝. Texas Pacific, Brooklyn Transit and Copper gained a point. Locomotive 1st, United States Realty preferred 2¼ and some other stocks hardened a fraction. The trading was nearly stagnant. Hocking Valley reacted 3 on a point under last night. Profit-taking caused fractional recessions and the close was very dull and heavy.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Waldorf to Coe Commission Co.: A market such as this, which is the subject of daily apologies, usually declines. At the same time there is a strong belief that the present market will prove an exception to the rule, apologies and excuses for its weakness to the contrary notwithstanding. In fact, there is general concurrence in view that the railroad list has held up weel considering the severe test of that has been put into it by the drop of Colorado Fuel and Iron, and United States Steel. Conservative opinion is that money will be made by buying the railroads around the current prices and argument is made that professional traders are selling these short after a twenty-point decline at prices which discount the conditions.

* * *

Town Topics: An unsettled condition is likely today because of expected developments in connection with the trust company of the Republic, and the market is likely to assume a waiting attitude. We would not hesitate to buy good stocks on slumps should they occur in the event of adverse news. There will be no reduction in steel prices according to an officer of the Steel corporation, but we believe that the real reason for the pressure is to cause an objectionable interest from the corporation and when it is removed there will be a recovery. We recommend the purchase of Erie second preferred. We are bullish on Wabash preferred. Buy Baltimore & Ohio on all drives.

* * *

Ridgley to W. H. Laidley & Co.: The market is dull as I thought it would be. With activity will come advancing prices. We will have a strong market with rapidly advancing prices around July 1. Meanwhile buy on moderate recessions. Prices while buy on moderate recessions. Prices are pounding along the bottom. What stocks to buy, well, it does not make much difference. Any of the active leaders. It is said that Atchison common will pass the dividend. The story may be true, but we always hear such tips when a stock is at the bottom. Personally I would rather buy than sell it, though there are many better stocks.

* * *

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market was firm and higher. While it is not an active market, there is pretty fair investment buying of good stocks. There is no pressure from liquidation at any time and when the market sells off it is pretty generally due to the efforts of the bears. We still feel that good stocks are worth the money. A favorable bank statement is expected tomorrow. We would buy good stocks on the break for moderate profits.

* * *

Walker Brothers to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market today was quite dull but steady. Later there was some good buying and it advanced. Atchison and Steels led the advance and it extended to most of the active stocks. There was no news of importance. The bank statement should be quite good. The close was steady and with sentiment rather inclined to be bullish.

COPPER GOSSIP.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: There was a decided better tone to the copper market today. Comparatively limited buying caused good gains in Osceola, Copper Range, Centennial and Amalgamated. The metal was off fractionally in London, but there were apparently authentic reports from New York of sales of large amounts of electrolytic at around 14¾c. The market as a whole seems to go up more easily than it goes down. On the reactions good stocks should be buy, but we would sell on all sharp rallies.

Bar silver, 62⅞c. Mexican dollars, 48c. Government bonds, steady; railroad bonds, irregular.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, June 19.—The cotton market opened lower, influenced in that direction by bad cables and good weather. The first call indicated a decline of 6@8 points but selling was upon a cautious scale, the market already having sustained an average loss of about half of the recent appearance of something like renewed support the market rallied and soon returned to about yesterday's close, the shorts assisting the rise by covering.

INTERNAL SCRAP

Among Union Men Causes a Strike at Chicago.

Chicago, June 19.—All work on the new postoffice and the first National bank building has been stopped by a strike of the building laborers. Only the carpenters remain at work.

The hod carriers and building laborers called the strike because the carpenters insisted in lowering centers and building and removing false work built for the use of the brick layers and other skilled crafts. This close of work the building trades organizations have given to the building laborers.

GRAND JURY BEGINS

An Investigation Into Sale of Cash Registers.

New York, June 19.—Te federal grand jury in Brooklyn today, commenced an inquiry into the sale of cash registers to the United States government for use in postoffices. Those subpoenaed to testify include Postoffice Inspectors James F. Oldfield and Frank E. Little, Winfield Scott Strawn, a former agent for the Brandt cash register concern, Edward J. Brandt and Robert Dent, of the Brandt company. Whether Former Congressman Edmund H. Driggs would be called later in the day could not be learned.

CRICKET AT NOTTINGHAM.

Nottingham, England, June 19.—The Nottingham cricketers were all out today, in the first innings of their match with the visiting Philadelphians, for 154 runs, 5 less than the Americans scored yesterday in their first innings.

At lunch time the Philadelphians in their second innings had scored 98 runs for one wicket down.

IN MARINE CIRCLES

Steamer Maggie Duncan Has Hard Run of Luck.

After Long Delay, Broken Piston Head Causes More.

The Maggie Duncan which left the harbor early this morning for Ashland, was disabled by the breaking of her piston head about nine miles from the harbor mouth and was compelled to put back.

Her signals for a tug were heard by the steamer Mohawk and word of the accident was brought into the harbor. The tug Superior of the Great Lakes fleet was dispatched to her aid and succeeded in bringing her into the harbor this morning. The damage was found to be slight although the repairs will delay the vessel about a week.

The Duncan has been a victim of poor dispatch throughout her trip. She has now consumed twenty-five days since clearing from Tonawanda, or considerably longer than is generally needed for the entire round trip, and it will probably be at least two weeks longer before she reaches her starting point again. She was delayed at Duluth nearly two weeks in securing a load of lumber and her repairs will take several days longer.

The steamer Parker of the Gilchrist line secured a dock yesterday afternoon after waiting exactly a week. The marine men had dubbed her the "Gilchrist lightship," such a fixture had she become off the Seventh avenue slip.

The large Constitution with a load of coal from Lake Erie has had a similar experience. She arrived in the harbor Monday and has been lying at anchor since that time waiting for a dock.

Shippers, however, are said to be diverting coal to the Lake Michigan ports and there is a prospect that the congested condition here will be relieved within the next week.

BEESON'S DIRECTORY.

New Edition of This Valuable Work Out.

Beeson's sixteenth annual directory of the lakes for the year 1903 has just come from the press. It is considered one of the authorities on lake shipping and is much prized by vessel men.

This year's edition contains 260 pages, printed for the first time on Mr. Beeson's own presses, and the illustrations and printing are even better than in former years. It sells at $5. It contains a complete list of all the American and Canadian sailing and steam vessels on the lakes, a summary of the more important admiralty decisions during the past year, a list of the ore carriers, lumber carriers, steamship owners, a record of engines and boilers, numerous illustrations, cuts of vessels and harbor views, and other important information of valuable assistance to marine men.

In his summary of the lake situation for the present year Mr. Beeson says in part:

"As to the lake business, the season which is fairly under way holds no glittering primises of big money to be made later on in high freights, but it is reasonable to expect to see rates well maintained when as is the case there is more ore, lumber, grain and coal to move than ever before."

FREIGHTS ARE DULL.

Chicago, June 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Grain freights were exceedingly dull, with markets out of line for shipment. Several vessels will be sent for iron ore cargoes.

THE RINGLEADER DISABLED.

Oswego, N. Y., June 19.—Special to The Herald.—The tug Mary P. Hall, with barges in tow from Charlotte to Ogdensburg, picked up the steamer Ringleader, two miles off Galloo Island, with a broken shaft. The disabled boat had coal for Alexandria bay. She is owned by Capt. Frank W. Wood.

RELICS FROM BANNOCKBURN.

Kingston, Ont., June 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—An oar and a life preserver from the steamer Bannockburn, which was lost on Lake Superior last fall, have been found near Caribou island. This is the first sign of the missing steamer which disappeared on Lake Superior.

AT WEST DULUTH

The matter of holding a Fourth of July celebration will come up before the West Duluth Comercial club at the meeting this evening and it is expected that a committee will be appointed to take charge of the ceremonies.

Last year the celebration was held in West Duluth and attracted a large crowd from the city. It was the plan of the citizens of this end of the city to allow the city proper to hold the celebration this year, but as no steps have yet been taken, it has been decided to take the matter up and arrange for the parade and fireworks to be held in West Duluth again. A celebration on an even grander scale than last year is promised.

NARROW ESCAPE.

A prominent West Duluth lady living on the hillside in West Duluth, had a narrow escape from being run over by a Duluth, Missabe & Northern ore train yesterday afternoon.

She was crossing the tracks and did not hear the approaching train, which was coming down the hill. It is claimed by many residents of the hillside that the trains ocusionally come down the hill without ringing the bells or blowing the whistles and as all steam is shut off on the down grade the approach of the train is almost noiseless, especially when the wind is from the northwest.

There are a number of children living in the neighborhood of the Missabe tracks and a repetition of the accident whereby a young West Duluth lad, Charles Pollock, had his left foot horribly mangled and narrowly escaped fatally injuries, is feared.

PAVEMENT WEARING OUT.

Residents of Fifty-ninth avenue are complaining of the condition of the pavement on that thoroughfare. They claim that it is being allowed to go to ruin for lack of a few repairs.

"Fifty dollars spent on repair work," said one of the property owners of that avenue today, "would place the road in a good state of repair. There are a number of small holes in the pavement which require mending and which, if allowed to go for any length of time, will soon place the street in such a condition that it will require repaving. The pavement cost in the neighborhood of $300 a lot in the first place and it seems folly to allow that amount to go to waste for the sake of a few dollars spent in repairs."

WOODMEN DELIGHTED.

The West Duluth Woodmen are jubilant over the victory of their team at the Indianapolis convention. The team succeeded in carrying off one of the prizes in the junior class against a number of competitors. Joliet came first with a percentage of 94, Des Moines came second with a percentage of 93.2 and West Duluth a close third with a percentage of 92.4.

Other teams that won prizes were Kansas City, Lincoln and Minneapolis.

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

Finest ice cream and fresh churned butter at Murray Bros. & Co., corner of Grand and Central, West Duluth.

Joseph Schmauss will return this evening from a trip to Winona. Mrs. Schmauss who, until recently was a charming Winona young lady, will accompany him.

West Duluth is to have a new bowling alley, situated on Central avenue, and the old-time bowlers are getting their arms into shape. There are a number of good players in West Duluth and a team will be organized to meet Duluth teams.

Rev. S. A. Jamieson has returned from Los Angeles, Cal., where he attended the Presbyterian general assembly as a delegate.

Herbert Jamieson has returned to West Duluth after about two years' absence in New York. He intends to remain in West Duluth.

William Mertz, Martin Ripslinger and Dr. Charles L. Grube, of Saginaw, left yesterday for Minneapolis after a short visit with James and John McDonald, in West Duluth.

Miss Mary Jamieson has returned home from Albert Lea, where she has been attending college during the winter months.

Eugene O'Mara, of Fourth avenue east, died last evening at the Red Cross hospital. The deceased was 53 years of age and is survived by several grown sons and daughters. He was a member of a West Duluth lodge of Woodmen.

The West Duluth barbers will take an active part in the game between the Duluth and Superior knights of the razor, which is scheduled for Sunday in Superior. Larson will pitch for the Duluth team, and Charles O'Brien will fill the left garden.

Do not fail to see our men's and boys' suit sale. We shall continue this sale until every suit is sold. Hendricks Dry Goods Company.

Margaret Daff, the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James R. Daff, of 728 South Sixty-fifth avenue, died this morning. The funeral will be held Saturday at 2 p. m. from the residence, and interment will be made in the Oneota cemetery.

J. H. Wirtz, of Appleton, Wis., is in West Duluth today on a business trip. He intends to purchase the Acme saloon and remain in West Duluth.

The West Duluth Commercial club will hold its regular meeting this evening.

Ernest and Charles Larson spent yesterday up the river on a fishing trip. They claim that the reports of good pike fishing have been greatly exaggerated. A lonely sucker was landed.

Ernest Pratt, of Brockville, Ont., has arrived in West Duluth and intends to make this city his home. He has taken a position at the blast furnace.

F. E. Bradley and family went to Fond du Lac this morning on a fishing excursion.

We open special sale on all summer dress goods, at special prices, to be continued all next week. Hendricks Dry Goods Company.

WORST OF EXPERIENCES.

Can anything be worse than to feel that every minute will be your last? Such was the experience of Mrs. S. E. Newson, Decatur, Ala. "For three years" she writes, "I endured insufferable pain from indigestion, stomach and bowel trouble. Death seemed inevitable when doctors and all remedies failed. At length I was induced to try Electric Bitters and the result was miraculous. I improved at once and now I'm completely recovered." For liver, kidney, stomach and bowel troubles Electric Bitters is the only medicine. Only 50c. It's guaranteed by all druggists.

Big Bargain Sale.

The Duluth Consignment company, tomorrow morning, places on sale the entire stock of Heller & Jacobs, of Chippewa Falls, which they purchased at 22½c on the dollar. The sales of this firm are always attended with great interest and the present one promises to eclipse all former bargain offerings. The announcement appears on another page of this issue.

EXCURSIONISTS IN DULUTH.

Via Omaha from Nebraska	1000
Via Omaha from Dakota	800
Via Northern Pacific from Morris, etc.	1800
By boat	200
On regular trains from West	200
COMING TOMORROW.
Via Great Northern from Benson	600
Total	4600

Duluth is in the hands of a big crowd from the Southwest.

The deluge of excursionists into Duluth began shortly before 1 o'clock this afternoon, when something more than 1000 people from the recent flooded country of the Missouri valley arrived on a special Omaha train. Previous to that time 400 had arrived by regular train and boat.

There were nine coaches in the first section, and fifteen minutes later a train of eight sleepers, the second section, pulled into the Omaha station.

From the sweltering temperature of the banks of the swollen Missouri to the raw lake breezes at the head of the lakes was a contrast that made a good many shiver. They came from the Missouri valley, between Blair, Neb., and Bigelow, Ia.

But they piled off the trains and came pelmell up Fifth avenue and into Superior street, looking for eating houses. They were the advance guard for a deluge of excursionists that has probably never been equalled in numbers at the head of the lakes.

There were many who brought large bundles of belongings and satchels, and it is likely that out of the crowds that will get in before tomorrow night many will stay.

At a little before 3 o'clock a Northern Pacific train from Wahpeton and Morris pulled into the Union station with about 900 people on board, and a few minutes later another section pulled along with as many more, and before 4 o'clock there were in the neighborhood of 2800 people at the head of the lakes due for two days' stay.

Besides the trains there were a couple of hundred people on the morning boats, and the Tionesta arrived on her first trip of the regular season with a crowd of passengers from the East.

Tonight, at 9 o'clock, a second train on the Omaha will arrive and about 800 people are expected to be on that. The train will come solid through from Mitchell, S. D.

Tomorrow morning the Great Northern pulls in an excursion from Benson, Litchfield and intermediate points, which will aggregate in numbers about 600 or 700.

The aggregate number of excursionists to be here at the opening proper of the summer excursion business will be in the neighborhood of 4500. Many of these people will stop at Superior, but Duluth will have enough to crowd all her hotels and eating houses.

From the arrival of the first train, which came in charge of George Lee, traveling passenger agent of the Omaha road, the restaurants did a rushing business The crowd was hungry and though many carried lunch baskets, they were pretty well cleaned out by the time they arrived here.

The Commercial club opened a bureau of information at 214 West Superior street and C. D. Barrett is in charge. It is expected that through this medium the visitors will be placed in possession of information that will permit them all to secure sleeping quarters while they are here, which will be till Sunday evening.

Duluth business men are elated over the success of the first excursion. The railroad men also feel happy and they advance some statistics right from the jump. They claim that the average expenditure of the excursionists will be $5 apiece. Figured on that basis, it means a matter of over $22,000. Some, however, are skeptical about the amount and reduce the minimum expenditure to 25 cents.

The crowd that came in this afternoon was a typical excursion crowd. There were a great majority of men alone, though many had brought wives and small children, as well as satchels and lunch baskets. The majority of the visitors are from the rural districts.

But bronzed and "husky" in appearance, they had lots of fun as soon as they alighted. Many went to the board of trade and watched operations this morning. Most of these came on the early trains that run regularly from the West. They went up to see how their wheat was sold, and had a joyful time watching the activity of the pit.

The throng on Superior street this afternoon was such that it was healty hard to crowd through in places. The street cars, the buildings and the teams that drove over the pavement were all sources of great and wonderful interest to the Western pilgrims. Some got down by the canal and watched the ships come in, while a large crowd gathered at the ferry landing at the foot of Fifth avenue, which they saw when they got off the train, and spent a greater part of the afternoon drinking in the sights of the bay.

Those attending to the care of the visitors see a problem in properly accommodating all who have come. The railroad companies will open their cars to them, and the lucky ones who came in sleepers will be permitted to sleep there tonight and tomorrow night.

All the local agents are doing everything they can to make things pleasant for the crowds.

By 10 o'clock tonight the flood will be at its height.

PATHETIC CASE

Old Man Whose Memory Is Gone Lands In Duluth.

Cannot Remember How He Got Here or Any Friends.

One of the most pathetic cases that ever came to the notice of the poor board is now in charge of A. P. Cook, superintendent of poor.

Jonathan E. Pettit, of Fabius, N. Y., a bright old man of 86, was picked up on the street yesterday by the police and turned over to the poor department.

The old man remembers his name and where he was born and lived all his life, but that is all he does remember. How he got to Duluth he has not the slightest notion, except that he imagines he must have walked most of the way, as he has been without money for some time. How long he has been on the road is another mystery that he cannot help to fathom.

He appears to be hale and hearty in every respect except mentally, and all that is the matter with his mind is this peculiar loss of memory. He knows that his home was in Fabius, Onondago county, New York, that he was born there and lived there all his life, that some time ago he started on a trip to Western Pennsylvania, and that he got there.

When he left home his pocketbook was full of money, and this he lost one night during his sleep, when he believes he was robbed. There is nothing in his wallet now except a few old papers and newspaper clippings that do not throw much light on his case.

He is unable to remember the name of anybody in Fabius, but he remembers that he has a rother-in-law in Syracuse, Dr. Lorenzo Heffron, who is older than he is. He knows there is one lawyer in Fabius, but he cannot remember his name. The papers in his wallet show that he has owned land in Wilkin county, Minn., there being several tax receipts and a letter from a firm of land dealers who offer to dispose of it for him. This letter is dated in 1902.

There is also an age-yellowed slip of paper, part of which is torn off, showing part of a name and address. The part that is left is "Dorr Pettit, 853 School St., Englewood, Ill." The number is close to the place where the paper is torn, and it may not be complete. The old man said this morning that his oldest son's name was George Dorr Pettit, but he had left home so long ago that he barely has a recollection of him. He thinks he is dead, but does not know how or where he died.

Mr. Pettit thinks he has been in Minnesota before at some time, but he does not remember how long ago it was or what he was doing here. Asked about the property his tax receipts evidence, he said he did not think he owned any property in this state. He used to own a dairy with eighty cows at Fabius, but he sold that.

His story is so vague that little can be gained from it. He has no idea of how long ago it was he left Fabius, how long ago it was that he was in Western Pennsylvania, or of much of anything else. Yet he discusses the situation calmly and clearly and intelligently, using good language. He is fairly well dressed and appears to be a fine old man.

There are several names on slips of paper in his wallet, but he does not remember any of them. Franklin Allyn is one of the names, without any address accompanying it. Several of the newspaper clippings, all of which are yellowed with age, are regarding pension grants, but he says he does not draw a pension.

The old man does not even know that he is out of New York, as he asked this morning how far it was to the Erie canal.

He will be taken to the poor farm and kept there until word can be received from his relatives, if they can be located. Mr. Cook has written to Dr. Heffron, to George Dorr Pettit, and to an attorney in Fabius, and expects to hear from one or more of the letters within a short time.

MASONIC REUNION.

Masons of Third District Hold Annual Meeting.

The annual reunion of the Masonic bodies of the Third district is being held a tthe Masonic Temple this afternoon and evening. This afternoon there was a lodge of instruction conducted by R. W. Brother W. B. Patton. Tonight the third degree will be worked by the officers of Palestine and Ionic lodges, and this will be followed by a banquet with short speeches. A number of the grand officers of the state will be in attendance. The district includes all of the lodges in St. Louis, Lake, Carlton and Itasca counties, and all of them will be represented. It is expected that there will be several hundred at tonight's meeting. A program of music will be rendered.

WATER ON RACE COURSE.

London, June 19.—The race meeting, which was to have occurred at Windsor tomorrow, has been abandoned on account of rain. There are three feet of water on the course, over which the Eton boys are rowing. Six inches of rain has fallen in London since June 8, while the exposed thermometers fell to within three degrees of freezing during the night.

A SHOCK

Must Be Avoided If Possible.

Shock to the mind brings some most disastrous conditions to body and nerves. Then it is that food, powerful food, can best show its power. As an illustration, a woman of Covington, Ohio, says: "One day my husband, while about the house, dropped dead without moan or groan or warning of any kind, and coming into the room I found him lifeless. The shock and the terrible anguish that followed were so great that in a week's time I had lost apparently all my flesh and the skin became shriveled; I was so weak that I reeled and staggered about, with no strength or will power to do anything.

"As time wore on I recovered just a little, but not enough to make life worth the living. One day I read about a poor, skinny little baby being restored to flesh and health on the food Grape-Nuts, so I resolved to try it. I gained from the first box of Grape-Nuts and still more from the second, and after using the third package I had strength and energy enough to go to house cleaning, something I had never expected to be able to do again.

"The improvement continued steadily and I am still gaining flesh and strength." Name given by Postum company, Battle Creek, Mich.

A lady famous for her dainty desserts explains that she learned them from the little recipe book she found in the package of Grape-Nuts.

LIST OF LANDS.

For Timber Reserve Has Been Completed.

Washington, June 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The land office today completed its list of lands in the White Earth reservation which are to be set apart for the agricultural department as a timber reserve. The tract embraces something near 75,000 acres, and is heavily timbered. It fact, so heavily wooded is it that it has been decided to sell 95 per cent of the pine standing upon it and reserve 5 per cent. The land so selected has not yet been approved by the secretary of the interior, and until he approves, the exact bounds of the tract will be kept secret. It is expected the secretary will approve the selections of the land office very soon.

PAYNE HAS ROBB'S REPLY

Concerning Christiancy's Decision On the Ryan Turf Scheme.

Washington, June 19.—Postmaster General Payne has received a report from Assistant Attorney General Robb in reply to the former's request for a statement whether the decision of the postoffice department in the Ryan Turf Investment company, signed by former Acting Assistant Attorney General Christiancy, is in accordance with law and the facts. Mr. Payne is not yet ready to make the report public. Mr. Christiancy is still under suspension. Postal officials are in touch with him, and it is believed that final disposition of his case is delayed with a view to securing further information from him concern ng the administration of his office. Mr. Payne has not announced his final action on the appeal of former Superintendent Metcalfe of the money order system for a suspension of the order of dismissal, but the disposition of the appeal is foreshadowed by a suggestion from Mr. Payne that Mr. Metcalfe was convicted on his own statement at a full hearing.

BREATHITT COUNTY WILL BE PURGED OF ITS LAWLESSNESS

Prominent Men Will Be Brought to Trial.

Ewen Is Warned of Danger Even at Lexington.

Jackson, Ky., June 20.—Since a removal of Jett and White to Lexington and the prospect of another trial is certain in another county beyond the scene of the feud influence, there is considerable talk here of prosecutions for perjury and bribery. It is claimed that witnesses away from the influence of the Jackson feud leaders will talk freely, and that when they do, many prosecutions will follow. Most of the men determined to rid Breathitt county of its reign of lawlessness and brave enough to undertake it are now exiles, and therefore are not afraid to proceed. It is said that a move is on foot to swear out warrants at once for the arrest of men in high places for bribery, perjury and "as accessory to the Marcum murder before the fact." One of these warrants is expected to be served tonight. The statement by Judge Redwine that he will call a special term of court when he finishes his work in Irvine and Lee counties is taken as a conclusive step in this direction, and especially since Judge Hargis refused to speak to Redwine before the former left with his attorney for Cincinnati. The situation is still one of apprehension. The foreman of the grand jury that indicted Jett and White has been threatened, but soldiers were stationed around his house last night as well as around that of Haddix, who testified to seeing Crawford and Thrap, teamsters for Hargis Bros., coming from the Ewen hotel just before the fire was discovered. Anxiety is felt for other witnesses and jurors, and the provost marshal will continue holding Jackson under martial law.

Lexington, Ky., June 20.—Notwithstanding Judge Hargis' request that Jett and White be allowed "extras" at his expense, both men ate the jail breakfast. This was visiting day, but visitors were not allowed to see the Breathitt county prisoners.

Jailer Robert Wallace says he intends to be present at every meeting in the jail of any person who calls on Jett or White, and will take absolutely no chances either on poison or collusion with outsiders. He watches all food that goes to them. Judge Hargis is still here.

B. J. Ewen, the exile witness from Jackson, is at the home of M. W. Martin here. He will not leave the house today, saying, saying that he had been warned that there is danger from men who reached Lexington on the same train that brought the prisoners here yesterday. Ewen said the proposed lecture on the troubles of Breathitt county would not now be given. Ewen's family will join him here tonight.

HELP WANTED!

LAST OF ESCAPED CONVICTS IS KILLED

James McKinney Shot to Death By Ranchman.

Five Deaths Result From Escape of Outlaws.

Glasgow, Mont., June 20.—News has reached here that James McKinney, the last of the Glasgow fugitives who broke jail June 6, was shot to death Tuesday night, after he had made an ineffectual attempt to kill Miss Darnell, who had discovered the outlaw huding in her father's ice house. Following the battle in the Bad Lands, Monday evening, between Sheriff Cosner's posse and the outlaws, Hardee and McKinney, the posse continued the pursuit of McKinney and tracked him to the Darnell ranch, eight miles from Glasgow. Tuesday evening one of Darnell's daughteres went to the ice house and, noticing that things were not exactly right, called for her father. McKinney saw them coming and attempted to use his rifle. The mechanism of the gun stuck, and before it could get in working order, Darnell grabbed another rifle and shot the outlaw, who died three hours later. McKinney is the third one of the four prisoners who participated in a general break from the Glasgow jail on June 6 to meet death.

Five men are dead as the result of a quarrel originating among horse thieves, and the end is not yet. This quarrel, which had such sanguinary results, found its origin in a dispute over 25 cents loaned by William E. Hardee to his alleged partner in crime, Henry Snearly.

In September, 1901, near the little town of Culberston, Valley county, Hardee called upon Snearly and peremptorily demanded the return of the money. After a wordy war, Hardee left the scene and returning shortly afterward, fired upon Snearly, killing him instantly.

After a long chase Hardee was caught, convicted of murder in the first degree and sentenced to be hanged. He appealed to the supreme court for a new trial, which, however, the court denied to grant. On the day the court declined to grant him a new trial, Hardee effected his escape from the Glasgow jail, and only after a long chase was he recaptured. His recapture was due to the fact that he had become exhausted for lack of morphine, of which he is an inveterate user.

He was resentenced to be hanged June 6, and John Brown, an intimate friend of Hardee, was convicted of assisting Hardee to escape from jail and sentenced for six months.

On June 6, Hardee, Brown and two other inmates of the jail named McKinney and Hill perpetrated a daring jail delivery, during which Jack Pierce, the death watch over Hardee, was killed and the particulars of which are still fresh in the public mind.

Hardee was shot and killed by a posse that had been on his trail for ten days. The officers had trailed Hardee and McKinney up the Missouri river for a distance of sixty-five miles and there found that the fugitives had crossed the river in a boat. The posse followed, caught the trail and went on for twelve miles.

Just at sundown Monday evening, they were in the brush trying to locate the men when a shot rang out and Charles R. Hill, one of the sheriff's posse, fell dead. The bullet struck him in the right eye.

Hardee and McKinney were concealed in the brush nearby and a fusilade from the officers forced one man to dash out for better covering. The posse again opened fire but nothing could be seen of the men. Loomis, who had been to camp for lunch, heard the shooting and was hurrying up to join his comrades, when McKinney, who had been hidden behind a hill, fired at him and barely missed him.

The officers got under cover and prepared to attack, but as the country is covered with heavy brush, offering exceptional advantages to hunted men, and as it was dark, the posse decided to take no further steps until daylight.

The officers were not aware that Hardee had been killed until Thursday morning, whn his body was found. He had been shot through the lungs and from the nature of his wound must have died almost instantly. There are several bullet holes in his hat and clothing.

The escape of these criminals has cost five lives—Jack Williams and Charles Hill, officers, and William Hardee, James McKinney and Jack Brown, the latter being lynched in this city on Thursday night.

GREAT BRITAIN AND HOLLAND CALL MINISTERS FROM SERVIA

Diplomatic Relations Practically Broken For the Present—Punishment of Murderers Will Be a Peculiar Problem For King Peter.

Belgrade, June 20.—Great Britain has practically broken off diplomatic relations with Servia. The British minister, Sir G. F. Bonham, will leave here Monday for England. The consul of Great Britain, W. Theguer, will take charge of British interests.

The new Servian constitution was gazetted today, together with a decree abolishing the constitution of April 6, 1901, and all ordinances contraverting the new constitution.

Unless King Peter is prepared to altogether ignore the foreign demands for the punishment of the assassins of King Alexander and Queen Draga, his only means of satifying any requirements appear to be to persuade the criminals to absent themselves until quiet is restored, when they will be permitted to resume their places in the army. The provisional government holds office solely at the will of the army, and should King Peter promise to punish the officers implicated, it is as likely as not that the army will force the withdrawal of the invitation to occupy the throne. It is suggested in official quarters that Russia may possibly advise the officers concerned to so absent themselves.

The Hague, June 20.—The Dutch representative at Belgrade has been instructed to assume the same attitude as Great Britain toward the provisional government of Servia.

FREIGHT TRAIN ON WISCONSIN CENTRAL PLUNGES INTO RIVER

Accident Occurred at New Richmond, Wis., and Was Followed By Two Explosions of Naphtha.

St. Paul, June 20.—A New Richmond, Wis., special to the Dispatch says: Traffic will be tied up on this end of the Wisconsin Central for several days by the most serious freight wreck in the history of this division. A westbound extra freight last night was running at high speed around a curve two miles east of here when twelve cars left the track, breaking through an iron bridge and plunging into Willow river. While Lineman Thomas Carroll and his assistants were at work trying to straighten out the tangled mess of telegraph wires, his lantern slipped from his hands and fell into the water below. Instantly there was a tremendous explosion, the wreck and even the surface of the water was a mass of flames. The contents of a tank of naphtha in the wreck had ignited. Louis Anderson, who was in a boat with Carroll, was terribly burned.

Several others were burned, but all will recover.

About half an hour after the first explosion another car of naphtha exploded, sending the flames hundreds of feet into the air. The report was heard for miles. The twelve cars that went through the bridge and their contents, lumber, farm implements, binding twine, railroad supplies, etc., were destroyed by the fire. The bridge is a total wreck and will have to be rebuilt. Traffic is going over the main line of the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha temporarily.

Wisconsin Central officials were here promptly and brought big crews of workmen from both directions, and the work of making repairs and building a temporary bridge is being done with all possible speed.

DESPERATE LOVER FATALLY SHOOTS CONCERT HALL SINGER

Lovesick Swain Fires a Couple of Shots at Girl as She Sat In the Crowded Balcony of a Music Hall at Coney Island.

New York, June 20.—Made desperate by the repeated refusals of Olive Foster, a concert hall singer, to marry him, Edward Teets, 21 years old, of this city, has shot and probably fatally wounded the girl as she sat in the crowded balcony of a music hall in Coney Island. Teets fired two shots at the girl and then turned the weapon upon himself, but it missed fire and he was disarmed before he could pull the trigger again.

A performance was going on at the time the tragedy took place, and the panic-stricken crowd stampeded, making a rush for the doors and fighting madly to get out of range of the bullets. When Teets approached the girl as she sat in the balcony, he drew, with his left hand, a box of candy. When the girl reached toward it he shot her. She screamed and sank to the floor. Teets fired a second shot but missed. The uproar which arose instantly seemed to terrify him and he placed the pistol against his own head. It missed fire and a policeman seized him. He was identified by the victim at the hospital, but refused to make any statement regarding the affair. The bullet lodged near the girl's heart, and the doctors say undoubtedly will cause death.

NELSONS FOUND GUILTY OF MURDER

St. Paul, June 20.—An Owatonna, Minn., special to the Dispatch says: The jury in the Krier murder case, after being out all night, returned a verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree. Charles and Henry Nelson were on trial for killing Harry H. Krier, on April 13. William A. Sutton, their accomplice, turned state's evidence. The murder was committed for the sake of robbery, and the boys were arrested later in Minneapolis. Sentence will be pronounced next Wednesday.

CATTLEMEN FIGHT A FATAL DUEL

Holbrook, Ariz., June 20.—News has reached here of a desperate battle between cattlemen on the Apache Indian reservation, ten miles south of Holbrook, in which Henry Barrett was killed and Prime Coleman was probably fatally wounded. Both are prominent cattlemen and have lived in Apache county for many years. Only meager reports are obtainable, but it appears that the men became involved in a dispute over their respective grazing permits on the reservation, which are only issued at certain times in the year and are of considerable value, only a limited number of cattle being allowed on the reservation. A duel with six-shooters followed, in which Barrett received three wounds in the abdomen, from which he died within a few minutes after the shooting. Coleman was shot through both thighs and was also badly bruised about the head by blows from Barrett's six-shooter. Coleman was still alive at last report, but there is very little hope for his recovery.

THE PACIFIC CABLE NEARLY LAID

San Francisco, June 20.—Within a week the last link of the commercial Pacific cable will be laid between San Francisco and Manila, and the United States will have direct communication with its Philippine possessions. The cable ship Colonia reached Midway island yesterday, completing the link between Guam and Midway, and immediately on its arrival the Anglia departed for Honolulu to close the last gap in the trans-Pacific cable, a distances of 1160 miles. Superintendent Harrington of the Commercial Pacific Cable company stated today that he believed the Anglia would accomplish the voyage in six days, paying out the wire rope en route.

LEOPARD NEARLY KILLS TRAINER

New York, June 20.—Madame Morello, trainer of wild animals, was nearly killed by a 6-year-old leopard which she was training in one of the cages of an animal show at Coney Island. The animal leaped on her back from above and before it could be driven off had torn and scratched the woman almost fatally. Madame Morello was finally rescued by men, who fought the beast off with a pitchfork.

A POLICEMAN KILLED.

New York, June 20.—While trying to arrest a mysterious man in the fashionable Rochelle park residence section of New Rochelle today, Policeman Maurice O'Hern was shot and killed. With knife and pistol the man attacked O'Hern, stabbing him several times during a desperate struggle and shooting him twice. The murderer escaped.

A BRANCH AT 'FRISCO.

St. Petersburg, June 20.—According to the Novoe Vremya, the Russo-Chinese bank has been authorized to open a branch at San Francisco.

STARTLING DISCLOSURES

Before Canadian Committee Regarding Sale of Public Lands.

Winnipeg, Man., June 20.—An Ottawa dispatch says: J. G. Turriff, Dominion land commissioner, was before the committee on agriculture yesterday and was examined by Lariviere, M. P., and Boyd, M. P. He denied that he had ever had any connection with the Saskatchewan Valley Land company, but made the extraordinary admission that last year the company had secured from the Dominion government 250,000 acres of land at $1 per acre, when land is selling today throughout the territories at $6 or $7 per acre.

Turriff's statement of concessions made to the favored company created profound astonishment in the minds of members of the committee. In answer to Lariviere, Turriff admitted that his brother-in-law, Adamson, of Rosthern, N. W. T., was one of the original founders of the Saskatchewan company. Five or six individuals, including Adamson, had originally secured the concession of land from the government, and they had afterwards disposed of it to the Saskatchewan Valley Land company, with which they were still connected.

He denied that he was in any way directly or indirectly, connected with the original promotion of the company, or with the company itself. He could give no particular reason why the government should make such a radical departure from its policy as to sell land at $1 an acre.

JUDGE MORRIS

At Washington on His Way to Virginia.

Washington, June 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Judge Page Morris arrived last night and is a guest at the New Willard. Judge Morris is en route to Lexington, Va., where he will attend the unveiling on June 23 of a monument erected at the Virginia Military Institute in honor of the cadets of that school who participated in the battle of Newmarket on May 15, 1864. Judge Morris is a member of the cadet class of 1872. He will return to Duluth on Monday, June 20, and will go to St. Paul on Tuesday, June 30, to be sworn in as United States Judge.

KILLED IN EXPLOSION.

Cincinnati, June 20.—By a terrific explosion today the building of the Central Manufacturing company, at Court and Russell streets, was wrecked. Fred Pape, the principal owner, was killed, and his partner, Joseph Kitchkowski, was fatally injured. Several girls employed at the plant were injured, none seriously.

THE CASS LAKE LAND OFFICE DISPUTE HAS BEEN SETTLED

Cass Lake Definitely Settled Upon For Land Office —Minnesotans Call on the President to Return Thanks For Henry F. Greene's Appointment.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, June 20.—(Special to The Herald.) — Representative Buckman arrived in Washington late yesterday afternoon. Mr. Buckman comes to Washington on matters regarding the Cass Lake land office. Representative Steenerson, Tams Bixby and others have made an argument in favor of removing the land office from Cass Lake to Bemidji, and Representative Buckman called today upon Secretary Hitchcock to combat their arguments and insist upon the office remaining at Cass Lake. Through courtesy to Representative Steenerson, the appointments for register and receiver at Cass Lake have been held up, awaiting the arrival of Commissioner Richards, who is due at his desk on Monday morning. Upon the arrival of Commissioner Richards, it is believed all pending questions relating to the controversy which has arisen regarding the Cass Lake office, will be settled, and that, too, in favor of the retention of the prospective office at Cass Lake, and the appointments of register and receiver will be officially announced.

Representatives Stevens and Buckman, Judge Page Morris, ex-Representative Eddy, James E. Stryker, of St. Paul, and "Tim" Byrnes, of Minneapolis, today called upon President Roosevelt to pay their respects and incidentally to thank Mr. Roosevelt for his recognition of the state in the appointment of Henry F. Greene, of Duluth, to be civil service commissioner.

Later—It was officially announced this afternoon that J. D. Jones, of Long Prairie, is appointed register, and Egbert A. Oakley receiver of the new land office at Cass Lake. This action was secured by Representatives Bede and Buckman during their visit to the White House this forenoon. The president had signed the commissions of these men some days ago, but for some inscrutable reason Secretary Hitchcock held up the formal announcement until today, when Bede and Buckman secured a note to Hitchcock from Mr. Roosevelt instructing him to formally make the appointments public. This action practically settles all talk of a change of the land office from Cass Lake to Bemidji. The reappointment of Myron D. Taylor to be register and Alvah Eastman to be receiver at St. Cloud was also announced.

AN AMERICAN SUICIDES AT PARIS

Paris, June 20.—The prefect of police has notified Consul General Gowdy that Samuel Jameson, an American, committed suicide June 16 and was buried in Potters field. An investigation showed that Jameson was born at Lebanon, Ohio, and that later he lived in St. Louis. He resided here for a number of years with his wife, receiving a regular income through a firm of attorneys of New York.

Deceased was 66 years old and his wife is 64. Recently Mrs. Jameson became deranged and failed to recognize her husband. This preyed on Jameson's mind and he cut his throat. Mrs. Jameson's mental condition is considered to be hopeless. She is confined in the police infirmary.

CANADIANS DO NOT LIKE THE IDEA

Oswego, N. Y., June 20.—The recent visit of Secretary of War Root to this city and the subsequent announcement of plans for the rebuilding of historic Fort Ontario, and its conversion into a battalion post have been the subject of unfavorable comment by the Canadian press. "The American government has decided to spend $250,000 on the preliminary construction of a fort at Oswego," says an Ottawa paper. "That fort can only have one object—the protection of the harbor in case of war with Canada, and the providing of a stronghold from which vessels of war can issue to prey upon Canadian lake commerce and cities."

A NEW HIGH WATER MARK IN BALTIMORE & OHIO EARNINGS

May Statement Shows the Largest Gross and Net Monthly Earnings In Road's History—Fiscal Year Will Break All Previous Records.

Baltimore, June 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The May statement of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad's earnings was issued today, and the company has established a new high-water mark, the gross receipts aggregating $5,720,693, the largest previous monthly earnings being those of August, 1902, when $5,549,757 were earned. The May, 1903, earnings exceeded those of May, 1902, by $607,237. The net earnings for the month also broke all previous records, being $2,237,014, an increase of $427,386. for the eleven months of the present fiscal year the Baltimore & Ohio's gross earnings were $57,613,773, an increase of $4,812,458. The net earnings for the same period were $21,488,725, an increase of $2,486,803.

TO CROSS CONTINENT ON AN AUTO

San Francisco, June 20.—E. T. Fetch, of Jefferson, Ohio, and M. C. Krarup, of New York, left this city today in a 12-horse power single-cylinder gasoline motor car of American make, with the intention of traveling through to New York. The trip is undertaken to demonstrate what an automobile of moderate power can do over mountain and desert roads of the worst description. A camping outfit and some material for repairs are carried over the rear portion of the vehicle and in the front hood, so as to meet all emergencies, serious difficulties being expected, especially in crossing the sand plains of Nevada, where an expedition organized for a similar purpose was last year compelled to abandon the attempt. The motorists arrived in this city from the East last week and are unfamiliar with the Western country and roads.

Their machine is identical in construction with ordinary gasoline motor cars, except that it is geared lower and carries an extra gasoline tank. It also has a provision for overcoming the effect of high altitudes on the gasoline.

Cured After Ten Years' Suffering from Rheumatism and Neuralgia.

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND

Enables W. B. Carpenter to Work After Two Years of Helplessness.

Take courage, ye disheartened and despondent rheumatic and neuralgic sufferers. Your repeated failures with doctors and the common medicines of the day should not sink you in utter despair. There is hope! There is rescue! There is certain cure for the most helpless victims in Paine's Celery Compound. This famous and wonderful medical prescription has absolute proofs of complete cures in 97 per cent of the cases in which it has been used. Mr. W. B. Carpenter, Buena Vista, Ark., says:

"I am glad to say that I am a well man today, although I have suffered with rheumatism and neuralgia for ten years. I tried several physicians, but with only temporary results. I have taken seven bottles of Paine's Celery compound and I am now well. I had not been able to work for two years, but now I can work all right. Paine's Celery Compound is the best medicine on earth."

INSTRUCTED TO WITHDRAW

British Minister Called Away From Belgrade For a Time.

London, June 19.—In the house of lords today Foreign Minister Lansdowne announced that the British minister to Servia had been instructed to withdraw from Belgrade for some time on the arrival there of King Peter, and in the meanwhile to do nothing which could be construed as a recognition of the new government. Lord Lansdowne expressed indignation at the crimes at Belgrade, and said he thought it was not desirable that Sir George Bonham, the British minister, should be in that city when the new regime was inaugurated.

The foreign minister added that no proposal had been received for concerted action towards Servia by the powers, but the British government had no intention of maintaining ordinary relations with the persons concerned in the massacres.

The government yielded to none in the abhorrence of events which had lately disgraced the capital of Servia, and that abhorrence had not been diminished by later intelligence which had reached the foreign office. It would be no exaggeration to say that it would be hard to find a parallel for the outrages even in the annals of states which made no pretense to be included among the civilized communities.

Lord Camperdown in the house of lords today drew the attention of the house to the recent revelation of Foreign Minister Lansdowne to the effect that Germany has intimated that if other British colonies follow the example of Canada in giving preference to British imports, Great Britain would probably not be allowed to continue in receipt of the most favored nation terms. Lord Camperdown asked that the papers on the subject be laid on the table. Lord Lansdowne replied that he desired to deprecate the assumption that the conduct of Germany was actuated by deliberate hostility to Great Britain.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

A cloudburst occurred at New Mangrove, Neb., Friday afternoon, accompanied by hail and a terrific wind. Much damage was done to fruit, grain and trees. The wind blew a string of eight cars off a siding upon the main track, although the brakes were set. Two of the cars were loaded with stock. C. W. Lyon's barn was unroofed and moved from its foundations.

Elias William, a negro employed by Alonzo White, a well-to-do farmer, near Swarthmore, Pa., Friday night shot and killed Percy White, aged 23 years, son of the farmer. The two young men had quarreled. Williams escaped.

The announcement of a gift of $150,000 from J. Ogden Armour was made at the convocation exercises of the Armour Institute of Technology Friday night. Leslie M. Shaw, secretary of the treasury, made an address, his subject being "A Plain Talk to Young Men."

Judge Oliver P. Shiras of the United States court for the Northern district of Iowa, announced that he will retire from the bench Nov. 1 next. He will be 70 years of age in October.

Postoffice Inspector Beatty has discovered that the majority of the United States land commissioners in Montana have been violating the postal laws by the use of franked envelopes, which they had had printed in their own names and used for official mails. The commissioners understood they were entitled to do this, but it develops that they are subject to a fine of $300 for every letter thus sent.

The Washington Power building, adjoining the Lyceum theater at Buffalo, was destroyed by fire Friday night. The building was tenanted by a number of small manufacturing concerns. The loss is $150,000. Smoke filled the theater, and it became necessary to bring the play to an abrupt ending. There was a crush at the doors, but no one was injured.

Twenty chorus girls of a company playing at a Cleveland theater were seized with cramps during the performance Friday night and were compelled to call for medical service. Eight of the number were quite ill for two hours and had to be sent home in carriages. The physicians attribute the illness of the girls to food poisoning, the entire number living at one place.

The bridemakers' strike at Cleveland, which has been on for nine weeks, was settled Friday night, the men returning to work at the terms offered by the employers. The strikers say non-support by craftsmen in other lines is the cause of their failure. Hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of building has been tied up, and thousands of all kinds of workmen were idle in consequence.

Chauncey Dewey and his cowboys will remain in the county jail at Goodland, Kan., and the governor will withdraw the troops now stationed there. The governor believes the sheriff is making a mistake by keeping the prisoners in Northwest Kansas, but as the sheriff's authority in this matter is supreme, he alone will be responsible should any trouble occur.

Supreme Lodge Frames New Schedule of Rates.

St. Paul, June 20.—The supreme lodge, A. O. U. W., framed a new schedule of rates, and after it has been passed upon by the committee on laws, it will come up before the supreme lodge for action. Between the ages of 18 and 24 years the present rates hold in force, with a proportionate increase up to 55, but after that period the change will be more radical.

A special committee of three on ritual was appointed, one literary man, a religious man and another one familiar with the practical work of the lodge, who were authorized to obtain the services of a playwright.

It was voted to give the committee $500, and should the proffered ritual be satisfactory an additonal $500 will be paid.

Since the supreme master workman receives no stipulated compensation for his services, it was moved that a salary of $1000 be given him.

There was a strong attempt to make the supreme lodge hold a biennial gathering, the four delegates from Missouri, Kansas, Illinois and West Virginia being the strong agitators for the change. The motion was lost by a vote of 430 to 139.

POSTMASTER IMPROVES.

Baltimore, June 20.—Former Postmaster Louis T. De Rousse, of Camden, N. J., left here for Philadelphia yesterday afternoon in company with Dr. W. Izzard, of Camden, who arrived here early in the day to attend to Mr. De Rousse. The patient was much improved mentally today and talked rationally with his friends about his troubles. His friends here are of the opinion that insomnia caused his temporary mental trouble and feel confident that he will be able to make good any shortage in his accounts. Dr. Izzard thought it was perfectly safe to remove his patient to his home in Camden.

WHEN CONTEMPLATING TREATMENT

DR. HOAG.

The most reliable specialist in America, 6382 Minerva Avenue, Chicago, Ill., will be in West Superior, Wis., at Hotel West Superior, Tuesday, June 30, 1903. Office hours, 10:30 a. m. to 9 p. m., and in Ashland at the Athearn hotel, July 1st.

You should consider thoroughly the factors of skill, experience, reliability, etc., of a doctor before entrusting him your health, the perfect and lasting recovery of which means so much to your future life and happiness.

DON'T NEGLECT TREATMENT.

If you have become debilitated from overwork, or if your nervous system has been shattered, as a result of the violation of the laws of health, or if you are suffering from blood poisoning, physical debility or lingering diseases which sap your strength and undermine your system and constitution, come and see me at my next visit to West Superior, Wis., at Hotel West Superior, Tuesday, June 30.

BE NOT DECEIVED.

No long standing or lingering disease can be cured in from 3 to 5 days. It takes time for the medicines to counteract the germs of disease which have been in the system for months or for years. Years of experience in treating these cases enables me to guarantee a safe and positive cure in every case in as short a time as the nature and extent of the disease will permit without injurious after effects.

Diseases!

SKIN DISEASES, SORES, SPOTS, PIMPLES, SCROFULA.

NERVOUS DEBILITY and all reflex and associate diseases and afflictions, causing weak, aching backs, worry, nervousness, palpitation of the heart, shortness of breath, feeling as though there was little comfort to be had in continuing to exist. Peterson, of Lisbon, Ill., Rev. John P. Bursett, of Fort Dodge, Iowa, and Rev. E. C. Tiller, of Chicago, Ill., will also take part in the service. Rev. I. G. Aschim, pastor.

SECULAR SHOTS AT PULPIT.

Washington Post: A Brooklyn bishop has decided to establish a fire insurance company for the benefit of his church. We had always supposed that fire insurance was a part of the church creed, anyway.

Pittsburg Dispatch: That Western church which has advised its members to eschew the use of the telephone probably found a basis for its action in the provocation of profanity which some kinds of service furnish.

Baltimore American: At a church synod lately the bride's promise to obey was stricken out of the marriage service. Synods need not worry themselves about the matter. The brides have long ago attended to the matter with a thoroughness and energy which leaves nothing to be desirde.

Boston Globe: The Presbyterian minister at Oswego, N. Y., who has made a contract with a billposter to bill the city advertising his sermons has shocked the conservative element of the place, but he may get an audience. Later on, also, he may learn that the best place to advertise is in the newspapers.

Chicago Post: There is wisdom in the suggestion of the Brooklyn divine who declares that the churches should form a "combine" along the line of the Steel trust. Fortunately, moreover, there are enough pious and prominent citizens connected with both the churches and the trusts to supervise the job and bring it to completion.

Outlook: Commercialism in politics, with its characteristic venality, and the decadent civic spirit which at once satirizes it and tolerates it both in municipal and state administration, have long been a matter of notorious infamy, in the eyes of civilized nations our national shame and reproach. The details of this political profligacy that have been published during the last six months have at length burned into the conscience of the churches a conviction of the moral danger threatening the national life, and of their own duty to sound the alarm and urge the remedy. Encouraging notes of the awakening conscience demandign a moral revival and reformation have been sounded recently in various branches of the church, and it is none too soon.

THE RACE WAS CLOSE

Constitution Would Have Beaten Reliance With Time Allowance.

New York, June 20.—If the Constitution did not defeat the Reliance on time allowance in the 25-mile race over the course of the Indian Harbor Yacht club in Long Island sound yesterday, she gave the admirers of the new boat a bad scare.

In more than four hours of sailing the Reliance outsailed the Constitution by one minute and fifty seconds, elapsed time.

It is estimated that the new boat will have to allow the Constitution two to three minutes in a 30-mile race, which, if true, would give yesterday's race to the older boat and might give her one of the earlier races as well, when Reliance beat her by two minutes and a fraction.

The Columbia was again outclassed from the start. Her gain of about twelve minutes on the second leg of the race was time wasted by the other boats in a luffing match between the leaders.

The race was hotly contested, first one and then the other getting the better of it by sudden shifts of wind, which, when it began to blow steadily, left the Reliance about one minute ahead.

The Constitution's fast sailing was all the more remarkable, and makes her all the more formidable, from the fact that the race was sailed in light winds and smooth water, under which conditions the Reliance has often beaten her.

The course was a triangle, ten miles across the sound, five miles over to the Connecticut shore and ten miles along that shore to the finish line.

Once across the starting line, the Constitution was fairly blanketed by the Reliance, and forced to keep off, while the Reliance quickly worked a few hundred yards to windward of her. The Columbia split tacks with the others, and was never in company with them afterward.

After half an hour, during which they had worked off into the middle of the sound, the Reliance, having the right-of-way, essayed to cross the Constitution's bow, but failed. An hour after the start she accomplished it, but a few minutes later the wind backed to northeast and gave the Constitution the lead. She had held it not more than half an hour. Both boats were approaching the first turn, when the Reliance caught a smart puff from the south and sailed half a circle around the Constitution before the latter began to feel the new breeze.

They turned the first mark almost side by side, and with the wind hauling to the southwest, started to reach five miles to the next turn. A hot luffing match for the windward ensued.

Capt. Barr had no sooner luffed the Reliance from under the Constitution's lee than the wind shifted and he had to do it all over again. They fought it out for half an hour and it carried them far off their course; but the Reliance finally shook off her rival and they filed away with the turn with the new boat leading by a full hundred yards and more than a minute and a half at the turn.

There had been just enough rain to thwart Mr. Islen's effort to keep the Reliance's sails dry.

A steady six-knot breeze sent them reeling off the ten miles of the last leg at a stiff clip. It was a procession interesting chiefly for the splendid marine picture when the sun broke through the clouds and hung a rainbow across the sound, under the arc of which the yachts, with their tall spires of canvas, reached away for the finish line.

NORWEGIAN LUTHERANS

Synod Heard From on Schmidt Controversy

Many Appointments Made ---Fifteen Ordinations.

The controversy with the Norwegian synod over the Professor Schmidt matter continues to be the most talked of matter before the United church, now in session here. Yesterday afternoon a telegram was received from the Norwegian synod in response to the one sent from the convention here with reference to the controversy. It read as follows:

"In reply to your telegram of the 18th, we beg to state that Dr. J. A. Schmidt has requested of our church council proof of certain accusations made against him. My council has complied with his request. If the council has spoken evil, bear witnesss of evil. John xviii, 23.

"J. NORBY,
"Secretary Norwegian Synod."

This telegram is understood to the effect that the Norwegian synod has officially endorsed the much discussed and, what is regarded by the United church, as quasi defamatory pamphlet published by the church council of the synod against Professor F. A. Schmidt, D.D.

Another telegram received stated that Rev. E. J. Homme, manager of the Orphans' asylum at Wittenberg, Wis., was still conscious, but that he was very low, and that he wished the members of the meeting to remember him in their prayers.

Accordingly, the whole audience rose, and Formand Dahl offered a fervent prayer for the brother who was passing through the valley of the shadow of death.

Philip Amundsen, of Northwood, N. D., conducted the religious exercises at the opening of the afternoon session.

The Wortburg congregation at the United Church Theological seminary, St. Anthony Park, Minn., and the Edmore congregation, Ramsey county, N. D., were admitted into the United church.

Rev. H. Roalkvam read drafts for a new constitution and new by-laws, to be adopted in use in the United church, is to be divided into districts or conferences. Only about a dozen congregations have voted in favor of division, and there was no enthusiasm for the new plan at the meeting, because it would lead the United church into a maze of legal complications. It was notable that some of the most experienced members of the meeting were even afraid of the plan.

THE MORNING SESSION.

The morning devotionals were conducted by Rev. A. W. Holstendal, who read parts of John xiii, and led in prayer. Rev. Hoistendal is assistant editor of Reform, Eau Claire, Wis., the greatest Norwegian temperance and prohibition paper in the world, and he is known as a strong advocate of total abstinence.

A motion suggesting that the parochial school teachers be paid more liberally in the future than in the past elicited an animated debate. It was mentioned that rich congregations occasionally advertise for parochial school teachers on a salary of $20 to $25 a month and board at private houses. One speaker declared that if the wages are not arised, the healthy growth of the church will be imperilled. The motion was finally adopted by a rousing majority.

The following officers were elected: Superintendent of missions for three years, Rev. C. Holm.

Committee on publications, Professor E. K. Johnsen, Rev. N. 2. Boe and Rev. O. G. U. Siljan.

Managers of the orphans' home at Beloit, Iowa, Rev. G. Skartvedt, Rev. C. H. Solberg.

Inspectors of the orphans' home at Lake Park, Minn., Rev. A. Ofstedal and Rev. L. M. Sknnes.

Inspectors of home for orphans and aged people at Wittenberg, Wis., Rev. O. Gulbrandsen and E. T. Rogne.

Inspectors of the Chicago deaconess home, Rev. T. Aarrestad and Rev. J. H. Stenberg.

Inspectors of the Beloit orphans' home, Rev. J. D. Swalestuen and Rev. A. H. Gjevre.

President of the normal school at Madison, Minn., Professor O. Lokensgaard.

Inspector of academy at St. Ansgar, Iowa, Professor P. J. Eikeland.

Inspector of academy at Scandinavia Wis., Rev. H. Roalkvan.

Inspector of the academy at Ottawa, Ill., Rev. G. T. Rygh.

Inspector of Augustana college, S. D., Rev. L. P. Thorkveen.

Inspector of Concordia college, Moorhead, Minn., Rev. J. H. Jahren.

Committeee to raise money for the support of aged ministers and ministers' widows, Revs. P. Tangjerd, M. Gulbrandsen and Wilhelm Rasmussen.

Committee to locate next annual meeting, Formand Dahl, Professor J. N. Kildahl and Lars Swenson.

Board of auditors, Jollef Sanderson, Olaf Olson; alternates, S. H. Holstad, A. K. Ferove.

Rev. M. Finstad, of Todd county, Minn., read a series of resoltions formulated by the committee on the secretary's official report, and the resolutions adopted provide among other measures: That the ministers and others sending reports to the secretary make their statistics as correct as possible; that the meeting regretted that so many ministers were absent and so many churches failed send delegates; that the meeting is highly pleased with the growing interest in the work of the parochial schools; that the parochial school teachers ought to be more liberally paid; and that a committee of three be elected to collect historical documents and other information throwing light on the church work among the Norwegians in America.

Adolf Larson reported from the Chicago deaconess home that the number of sisters is 23 and that the net assets of the institution are $34,500.

Knut Thompson, of Decorah, Iowa, read a report from the board of trustees.

A friendly greeting was received from

OLEY NELSON OF SALTER, IA.

Oley Nelson was born in Rock county, Wis., Aug. 11, 1845, and was a soldier in the Fortieth Wisconsin Infantry in the war. He was a member of the twenty-first and twenty-second Iowa assemblies. Mr. Nelson was a member of the conference board of trustees up to 1893 and was elected a member of the board of trustees of the United Lutheran church of America in 1891 and has continued in office ever since. He is president of the Farmer Savings bank of Slater, Ia., and was originator and organizer of the National Norwegian Pioneer association of America.

Rev. E. Norellus, D.D., of Vosa, Goodhue county, Minn., the president of the Swedish Lutheran Augustana synod, which closed its annual meeting June 17, at Poxton, Ill. Formand Dahl was instructed to return greetings

Calumet Baking Powder

A wonderful powder of rare merit and unrivaled strength.

THOUSANDS OF FAIR WOMEN HERALD PRAISES FOR PE-RU-NA.

[Catarrhal Dyspepsia and Nervous Prostration Makes Invalids of More Women Than All Other Diseases Combined.]

Systematic catarrh causes nervousness, poor appetite, tired feelings. Peruna cures catarrh wherever located.

LETTERS FROM WOMEN.

Miss Anna Prescott's Letter.

Miss Anna Prescott, in a letter from 216 South Seventh street, Minneapolis, Minn., writes:

"I was completely used up last fall, my appetite had failed and I felt weak and tired all the time. My druggist advised me to try Peruna and the relief I experienced after taking one bottle was truly wonderful.

"I continued its use for five weeks, and am glad to say that my complete restoration to health was a happy surprise to myself as well as to my friends."—Anna Prescott.

Pe-ru-na a True Friend to Women.

Miss Florence Allan, a beautiful Chicago girl, writes the following from 75 Walton Place:

"As a tonic for a worn-out system, Peruna stands at the head in my estimation. Its effects are truly wonderful in rejuvenating the entire system. I keep it on hand all the time, and never have that 'tired feeling,' as a few doses always makes me feel like a different woman."—Florence Allan.

Peruna will be found to effect an immediate and lasting cure in all cases of systematic catarrh. It acts quickly and beneficially on the diseased mucous membranes, and with healty mucous membranes the catarrh can no longer exist.

Peruna Makes You Feel Like a New Person.

Miss Marie Coats, a popular young woman of Appleton, Wis., and President of the Appleton Young Ladies' Club, writes:

"When that languid, tired feeling comes over you, and your food no longer tastes good, and small annoyances irritate you, Peruna will make you feel like another person inside of a week.

"I have now used it for three seasons, and I find it very valuable and efficacious."—Miss Marie Coats.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

Lincoln Park Improved.

Extensive improvements have recently been made in the Lincoln park pavilion. The building has been repainted and refitted and is now one of the finest dancing pavillions in the city. It promises to become a popular resort for dancing parties during the summer months.

Its proximity to the cars, making it very easy of access from all parts of the city, will make this park one of the most popular resorts in the city during the warm summer days and in the cool evenings the pavillion, with its polished floor and excellent music, will prove a great drawing card to the young people of the city

CABINET IS FIRM

Will Pursue Plan Outlined In Regard to Galveston.

Not Believed There Will Be a Serious Clash.

Washington, June 19.—The time of the cabinet meeting today was consumed in large part by the consideration of the legal questions involved in the decision of the United States government to disregard the decision of the court of Virginia and seize the incomplete gunboat Galveston at the Trigg shipyards in Richmond.

Attorney General Knox presented a carefully prepared opinion on the subject, strongly affirming the right of the government to disregard the injunction granted yesterday in the Virginia court, which forbids the resumption of work on the Galveston pending a settlement of the claim of the sub-contractors, who have not been paid for material furnished.

In concluding his opinion, the attorney general says: "One further point remains to be considered. The letter of the secretary of the navy requests that he be authorized to employ, if necessary, the military forces of the government at his disposal for the execution of his orders in the premises. I am loath to believe that occasion for such exertion of the federal power will arise, being confident that any claims to interfere with the national rights under the judicial authority of the state of Virginia will be promptly disposed of and denied by the chancery court. For this reason I shall defer answering that question."

The cabinet after considering this opinion unanimously decided that the government's case was sound and the line outlined yesterday by Mr. Moody, should be pursued. An effort will be made, therefore, to launch the boat next Monday, if circumstances permit. It is intimated that information will be conveyed to the Virginia justice, who granted the injunction in this case, that he has exceeded his proper functions and it is expected that he will withdraw from what the attorney general and the president regard as an untenable position, thus avoiding any clash at Richmond.

By the president and the members of the cabinet, the action taken at the meeting is regarded as of the highest importance. The question raised is new and almost unique. Both the president and his advisers gave it the most powerful consideration. It is understood that the opinion of the attorney general, as submitted originally to the president and cabinet, was modified slightly before it was made public. It was stated yesterday on excellent authority that the attorney general, in his opinion, upheld the right of the secretary of the navy to use force, if necessary, to carry into effect his orders.

It was regarded by the cabinet, it is said, to be inexpedient to precipitate that question at this time, as it was believed to be entirely likely that a way would be found amicably to adjust the apparent differences between the Virginia court of chancery and the authorities of the government.

Practically the entire time of the cabinet today was devoted to the consideration of the question relating to Galveston.

The postmaster general also consumed a portion of the time of the meeting, but it is stated without reference to the pending prosecutions and investigations in his department, his presentation being confined to matters connected with the civil service rule and appointments.

Washington, June 19.—Secretary Moody today received a dispatch from Elizabethport, N. J., announcing the seizure by the sheriff, of the cruiser Chattanooga now building at the yard of the New York Shipbuilding company, one of the company's of the United States Shipbuilding company. The secretary took the telegram to the cabinet meeting where the matter will be discussed.

New York, June 19.—Lewis Nixon, president of the United States Shipbuilding company, said today: "There was no necessity to sue out a farrant of seizure against the Chattanooga. Two-thirds of the money due on the boilers had been paid and the balance will be paid within the time specified."

RATE WAR WILL SPREAD.

Railroad Battle Will Extend Beyond Missouri River.

Chicago, June 20.—What is taken as an indication that the Western passenger war will spread to territory beyond the Missouri river, was the announcement yesterday that a proposal had been submitted to the lines in the Western Passenger association providing that tickets be sold at the rate of 2 cents per mile, instead of 2½, between Illinois and Missouri points and Kansas City.

This move is regarded as ominous, for it is almost certain that when 2 cent fare is voted down, the road proposing it will put in the rate under the individual clause of the Western association claims.

Another cheap rate, which in the unsettled condition of tariffs is of importance, has been announced from Chicago and Illinois territory to Minneapolis on account of the Swedish singers meeting in July. The rate is one fare for the round trip for individual passengers. The same rate for parties of 100 or more was announced by one of the Chicago-St. Paul lines some time ago, and the application to single passengers followed on the part of the competing lines.

CALLER—Dear old Jack, I just read in the paper about your being sunstruck, and rushed right over. I'm awfully glad you're as well as you are. You're lucky. Now, old man, I don't want to work the old "I told you so" gag on you, but the way to prevent sunstroke is to keep the bowels clean and cool, and the blood from being over-heated, by taking a CASCARET Candy Cathartic at bed-[illegible] while you sleep, and keep you safe and comfortable all day.

THE LABOR WORLD

Attention Being Directed to the Labor Day Celebration.

Talk of Union Labor Candidate For the School Board.

Members of organized labor are turning their attention to the approaching celebration of Labor day.

Duluth is usually delinquent in getting down to work for the important event and this year it is proposed to start preparations earlier than usual in order not to have a rush at the last moment.

Local labor unions have enjoyed unprecendented prosperity in the past year and there is every indication that next Labor day will far surpass any that has ever been held here.

The assembly and building trades' council will probably get their general Labor day committee organized in the very near future.

* * *

Before Judge Lochren, of the United States court, in St. Paul, Monday morning, arguments will be made for and against what is practically a permanent injunction against the local Freight Handlers' union, restraining members from in any way interfering with the loading and unloading of freight on the docks of Duluth.

The union will be represented by the law firm of Miller & Adams and a number of its members will go to St. Paul to hear the arguments.

* * *

This has been an off week in labor circles, there being very little news of general interest.

* * *

William Lounsberry leaves tomorrow on a two months' whale-hunting expedition in the vicinity of Isle Royale. He holds all fish-catching records of the typographical union.

* * *

Miss Mabel McDonald, of the Cooks and Waiters' union, has been formally endorsed as the union labor candidate for queen of the July carnival. She has many friends out quietly working up votes for her.

* * *

Charles Carlson, of the typographical union, is reported considerably improved in health at Mount Clemens.

* * *

A report that the machinists' strike at the Clyde Iron works would soon be a thing of the past, is without the slightest foundation. The strike is on and is being fought with considerable vigor, despite the fact that all the machinists originally employed there have secured work in other shops and other cities.

* * *

There is a great deal of talk of a union labor candidate for member of the board of education at the school election to be held next month. Charles Merritt, of the typographical union, has been suggested.

* * *

Organizer George R. French, of the Cigarmakers' International union, was in Duluth during the week.

* * *

Edward Parrott, of the plasterers' union, has gone to Fargo for the summer.

* * *

Henry Perrault is a two times president. He was elected president of the cigarmakers' union Wednesday evening. The other officers are: S. Segal, vice president; Joseph Pratts, secretary; Matt Eilinger, financial secretary; John Oakes, treasurer, and Henry Perrault, Joseph Pratts and Edward Schubisky, delegates to the Federated Trades' assembly.

* * *

Julius Moersch, state factory inspector, was in the city during the week conferring with Inspector Joseph Allen, with a view to an inspection of the St. Louis county iron mines in the near future.

LABOR NOTES.

Cleveland will have a labor carnival next week.

More than 4,500,000 persons are engaged in mines and quarries the world over.

The Western Federation of Miners will wage a campaign for the 8-hour day.

Wine manufacturers in Greece, it is said, purpose using barrels made of paper for their wine.

The supreme court of Indiana has declared the compulsory weekly payday law of that state to be unconstitutional.

A raise in the pensions of the French miners, one of the demands of last year's colliers' strike in France, has been resolved upon by the French senate.

One good result of the Philadelphia textile strike has been that the general violation of the law regarding the employment of children under 13 years of age has been brought forcibly to the public attention, and it is to be stopped.

Farm laborers in Illinois have formed a union and will demand a minimum wage of $35 a month and board. Eligible to the union are thrashers, corn huskers, plowmen binders, stock laborers, and in fact all men employed about farms.

Cleveland union waiters, cooks, bartenders and kitchen help, members of the Hotel and Restaurant Employes International union, to the number of between 1200 and 1500, will present a new wage scale to their employers July 1, to take effect July 15.

Clerks in the pawnshops in Chicago are forming a union for the betterment of their condition. They complain that at present they are required to work excessively long hours and do not receive compensation commensurate to the usual 10 per cent a month charged "customers."

The demand of the New York Bricklayers' unions for an increased wage scale of 70 cents an hour has been refused by the Master Builders and Masons' association. The present wage scale calls for 65 cents an hour. A demand that the foremen should be members of the unions was abandoned.

The latest in the way of boycotts comes from San Francisco, where the central labor council of that city has declared a boycott against a cemetery. The cab drivers have refused to drive a corpse to the cemetery and the undertakers have refused to prepare any body for burial in the proscribed burial grounds.

The New York Building Trades Employers' association has proposed an elaborate plan for joint arbitration in each trade and other regulations for dealing with the unions and bringing about stable conditions in the building industry. The unions are recognized, but the business agent is not to be an arbitrator in any case.

At the recent convention of the International Association of Machinists a resolution was adopted, claiming jurisdiction over all helpers and others around a machine shop. This conflicts with both the Allied Metal Mechanics' association and the United Metal Workers' union, and will likely result in an internal war.

The Canadian Locomotive company, of Kingston, Ont., has entered suit against the Toronto, Ont., Mail and Empire and the Globe, two Canadian dailies, to test the right of a newspaper to publish advertisements warning workers to avoid a locality where a strike is in progress. The company asks an injunction restraining the defendants from publishing and advertisement, notice, command or threat, in these words: "Machinists, keep away from Kingston; strike still on," or any similar advertisement.

The San Francisco Labor council adopted the report of its law and legislative committee, Walter Macarthur chairman, urging that a communication eb sent to each central labor organization throughout the United States and Canada, asking that delegates to the next convention of the American Federation of Labor, to be held at Boston, Mass., Nov. 9, 1903, be instructed to vote for an amendment to the constitution which will make it compulsory upon locals to affiliate with the central body in their respective localities.

Thomas I. Kidd, general secretary of the Amalgamated Woodworkers' International union, who has returned from a trip to the Pacific coast, reports a peculiar situation in San Francisco. The members of the Woodworkers' union in that city had established what was virtually a boycott against the product of their fellow-members in other parts of the country. Through an agreement with their employers, the woodworkers in San Francisco refused to handle material manufactured in any other city, regardless of the fact that it was union-made. This arrange barred the Brunswick-Balke-Collender company of this city from sending billiard tables and saloon fixtures into San Francisco, and as it is a union concern in every department, it complained against the embargo on its goods. Mr. Kill succeeded in convincing the men in San Francisco that their position was untenable and that union-made material should be handled, no matter where it was manufactured so long as it carried the union label.

TUNNEL CAVES IN.

Fatal Accident at the East Boston Conduit.

Boston, June 20.—A section of the East Boston tunnel, near the foot of State street, weakened by the action of the compressed air used in connection with the excavation, caved in during the night and one man, a Polish laborer, was killed and another injured. A third workman was reported missing after the accident and it was feared that he was buried in the tunnel. A force of diggers was put to work immediately, but at 3 o'clock had not found any trace of the missing man. The cave-in was about twenty-five feet long by six feet wide and will not seriously impede work on the tunnel.

CHAMBERLAIN OPTIMISTIC.

Believes That His Colonial Program Will Succeed.

London, June 20.—Colonial Secretary Chamberlain delivered a speech last night at a banquet given by the Corona club, in which, while throwing no fresh light on the government's intentions, he left no doubt regarding his own conviction of the ultimate triumph of his colonial and impartial program.

Mr. Chamberlain dealt in a jesting spirit with the now frequently printed and spoken prophesies of his being crushed into oblivion beneath the Zollverein millstone, and said that threatened men lived long. Whatever might be his personal fate, he would look back with pride and satisfaction on the great imperial policy with which he had been permitted to be associated in some degree, in common with many members of the club.

He said that he was sorry that he had not been able to visit all the colonies while in office, but he hoped that his successor would be able to complete the whole round, as he could not take a more educative journey.

Why Pay as Much

for an inferior beer?

Schlitz beer costs twice what common beer costs in the brewing. One-half pays for the product; the other half for its purity.

One-half is spent in cleanliness, in filtering even the air that touches it, in filtering the beer, in sterilizing every bottle. And it pays the cost of aging the beer for months before we deliver it.

If you ask for Schlitz you get purity and age, you pay no more than beer costs without them.

Up, and Save Yourself? Get Honest Treatment and Be Cured!

Consultation Free

On account of its frightful hideousness contagious blood poison is commonly called the king of vencreal diseases. It may be either hereditary or contracted. Once the system is tainted with it, the disease may manifest itself in the form of scrofula, eczema, rheumatism pains, stiff or swollen joints, eruption or copper-colored spots on face or body, little ulcers in the mouth or on the tongue, sore throat, swollen tonsils, falling out of the hair or eyebrows, and finally a leprous-like decay of the flesh and bone. If you have any of these or similar symptoms you are cordially invited to consult us immediately. If we find your fears are unfounded we will tell you so frankly and relieve your mind. But if your constitution is infected with virus we will tell you so frankly and tell you how to get rid of it. Our special treatment for contagious blood poison is practically the result of our life work, and is indorsed by the best physicians of America and Europe. It contains no dangerous drugs or injurious medicines of any kind. It goes to the very bottom of the disease and forces out every particle of impurity. Soon every sign and symptom of blood poison disappears completely and forever. The blood, the tissues, the flesh, the bones and the whole system are cleansed, purified and restored to perfect health and the patient prepared anew for the duties and pleasures of life.

DUN'S WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW

Low Temperatures Have Retarded the Distribution of Merchandise.

New York, June 20.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says: Unseasonably low temperatures, together with excessive precipitaion at many points, have retarded the distribution of merchandise. Taking the country as a whole, however, the net result has been satisfactory. Better crop prospects accelerate forward business and enlarging order limits of manufacturers. Railway earnings thus far reported for June exceed last year's by 5.8 per cent and those of 1901 by 14.8 per cent.

Conditions in the iron and steel industry are sufficiently confusing not to present any definite tendencies, although factors calculated to produce weakness appear to preponderate. Special sales of imported pig iron have been made at concessions, but this is attributed to delay in transportation and a forced sale by owners. Yet a few months ago similar concessions were impossible, and it is apparent that the combination of unprecedented home production and conservative buying has taken control of the situation away from sellers. Three depressing factors have existed—the labor situation, condition of crops and the decline in prices of stocks, although all have improved and may soon cease to exercise any baleful effect. Meanwhile uncertainty as to the future course of prices of iron and steel products has become generally acknowledged, and even experts in the industry hesitate to express a decided opinion. Latest reports of imports show a large decrease, except as to ore, while the export trade in finished steel tends to expand.

At the cotton mills there is fair current activity, although spinners, whose stocks of raw material are low, have not only ceased to seek business for future delivery, but refuse to consider propositions, or else place their figures at a prohibitive position. Demands are chiefly limited to immediate consumption. Lower grades of light weight woolens for next spring have been opened at advances of 2½ to 5 cents a yard. Reports regarding the footwear industry are satisfactory. Foreign trade is remarkably well maintained, considering the numerous factors that operate.

Failures this week were 213 in the United States against 194 last year and 24 in Canada.

San Francisco, Los Angeles and San Digo $57.90.

July 1 to 10 the Northern Pacific railway will sell tickets to above points and return for $57.20, good returning until Aug. 31. For full information and tickets call at city office, 332 West Superior street, or Union depot.

NEWS BUDGET FROM JAPAN

Marquis Ito Gains a Victory In Naval Expansion Bill.

Tokio, June 4, via San Francisco, June 20.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)—The term of three weeks of the present session of the diet expired on June 1, but in view of many important bills untouched, the session was extended to June 4, by an imperial ordinance.

The naval expansion bill was approved, untouched by both houses. Marquis Ito thus gains a victory, but his compromise with the cabinet has cost his party some twenty-five members who have seceeded.

Only four cases of plague have occurred at Yokohama in five weeks, and there are no signs of the disease spreading, in face of the drastic preventative measures taken by the authorities. There were 117 cases of plague last week and 99 deaths in Hong Kong. The number of cases to date is 678.

The Uraga Dock company on the 24th ult. suspended the construction of the remaining coastguard boats of the United States government, and will, it is said, carry out a wholesale dismissal of employes at the Uraga yards in a few days.

The event is due to the fact that the first two vessels sent to Manila have been found defective by the civil government. Mr. Tsukahara, president of the Uraga Dock company, who went to Manila the other day to apologize, was told that the authorities would not take the boats unless the Uraga company should reduce the cost of the vessels by 20,000 yen apiece.

A dispatch from Hong Kong says: The Chinese who were arrested here for the murder of Yeung Kue Wan, one of the leaders of the reform party, in January, 1901, have been convicted and sentenced to death. The evidence revealed that the Chinese government sent emissaries to Hong Kong with the order to either kill or kidnap the reformers. Yeung Kue Wan was then deliberately killed while teaching in a school near the Metropolis station. The murderers were afterwards created mandarins, received monetary rewards and were given official positions in Canton.

The birthday of the empress of Japan was duly celebrated on May 28.

BIG RATE WAR SEEMS LIKELY

Western Passenger Association on the Verge of Collapse.

Chicago, June 18.—The Evening Post today says: The general opinion among western railroad men is that the Western Passenger association, with all its bureaus, is on the verge of collapse. Its downfall is likely to be accompanied by a widespread rate war. Indications have pointed in this direction for sometime, but the result of yesterday's meeting of the executive committee of the association and of the Chicago-St. Paul lines, has brought the expected end considerably nearer and has made dissolution almost inevitable. No hope is entertained that the resolution of the executive to substitute a 2000-mile book, good on all trains for the credential form of interchangeable mileage now in use will be adopted.

Dr. Mitchell's

Parlors Crowded All Last Week—People Are Beginning to Find Out Where They Can Get Well.

The Sick, Blind, Helpless, Now See, Walk, Hear and Work.

Great excitement over the marvelous cures being performed by Healer Mitchell, so marvelous as to be almost beyond belief. The local papers have for the past five years given columns to the discussion of cases that might be compared with the miracles of old, for there are people who were blind, deaf, dumb, crippled and suffering from disease that promised to end their lives, who are cured in a short time. So widespread becomes the fame of this great healer that a newspaper representative the past week has made a thorough investigation of many cases. Every scrap of evidence was sifted and the most searching inquiry served only to establish the truth of his many cures, that although miraculous, are unquestionable. A reporter sent to investigate the cases and verify the facts finds Healer Mitchell, the past six months, has restored the sight of six who were blind or going blind, ten who were deaf, and one that was deaf and dumb, and made a number walk who had not walked for years, and cured many cases of rheumatism, stomach, kidney and heart troubles, and removed many tumors and goitres. A lady had a goitre removed from her neck. Her neck measured 22 inches, and after the goitre was removed it measured 12 inches, its natural size. Many cases of sexual weakness have been cured after they have given up all hope and taken barrels of medicine and humbugged by traveling fakirs. If after examining you he finds that you are not curable he will tell you so, for he does not care to handle incurable cases. If you cannot call, write. All correspondence strictly confidential.

REUNION A SUCCESS

Masons of the Third District Have a Big Meeting.

Four Hundred of Them Attend Lodge and Banquet.

The second annual reunion of the Masonic lodges of the Third Minnesota district was a complete success. Fully 400 Masons, including many from out of town, gathered at the Masonic Temple during the afternoon and evening, and a very enjoyable time was spent.

In the afternoon a lodge for instruction was held, conducted by R. W. Brother W. B. Patton, one of the conservators of the work in this state.

In the evening the third degree was conferred on Robert R. Forward, of this city, the work being divided between the officers of Palestine and Ionic lodges. The officers of Palestine lodge conducted the first part and the officers of Ionic the second. The officers that participated were as follows:

Palestine lodge—Harry G. Gearhart, W. M.; Dr. S. H. Holden, S. W.; Guy A. Eaton, J. W.; Charles A. Bronson, S. D.; S. O. Sterrett, J. D.

Ionic lodge—Harry A. Hall, W. M.; Hugh R. Burgo, S. W.; W. D. Underhill, J. W.; A. S. Wakeman, S. D.; S. T. Welch, J. D.

At the conclusion of the work there was a spread in the banquet hall, over which Mayor Hugo presided as toastmaster. With a dash of wit and anecdote, the speeches were mostly on Masonic subjects. Grand Master Henry R. Adams, of Minneapolis, was the principal speaker, giving an eloquent and interesting address on the history and development of Masonry. Rev. F. C. Coolbaugh, of Cloquet, gave the invocation.

The other speakers were as follows: W. A. McClonagle, of Duluth, deputy grand master; H. M. Tessier, of St. Paul, senior grand warden; S. L. Fraser, of Duluth, district deputy grand master; C. L. Sawyer, of Minneapolis, grand marshal, and Clarence B. Miller, of Duluth.

The visiting brethren included members of the Two Harbors, Tower, Hibbing, Eveleth, Grand Rapids and Cloquet lodges, as well as a number from outside the district. The Cloquet lodge came down on a special train, forty-three strong. The West Duluth lodge assisted the Duluth lodges in entertaining, and was strongly represented.

FLEET AT NYBORG.

Berlin, June 20.—The United States European fleet arrived at Nyborg, island of Funen, Denmark, today and will remain there until Tuesday. The warships will anchor off Kiel Tuesday afternoon.

OLD MAN LOCATED.

Pettit Turns Out to Be a Minnesotan.

One of the excursionists in the city last evening read the story in last evening's Herald of the pathetic case of Jonathan E. Pettit, the old man of 86 whose memory had left him and who had been taken in charge by the poor department.

He recognized the old man as a former resident of Breckenridge, Wilkin county, Minn., where he lived for many years. He was a man of some property, and held a number of minor public offices. He was somewhat eccentric at all times.

The excursionist who gave this information to The Herald did not leave his name, but stated that he did not now live at Breckenridge. Within a short time he had read in one of the papers that Pettit had been taken to the insane asylum at Fergus Falls from Breckenridge.

If this is the case it is something of a mystery how the old man got away unless he was discharged as a harmless and incurable case, which seems likely.

All trace of his Minnesota residence, which seems to have taken up years, has disappeared from the old man's mind, and all he remembers is that he came from Fabius, Onondaga county, N. Y., which story he told in a manner to give the idea that he had lately come from there. In his insanity his mind has bridged the years covering his residence in Breckenridge.

In Breckenridge Pettit was a justice for a long time, and as the custom is in many small communities, this gave him the title of "Squire" Pettit.

A. P. Cook, county superintendent of poor, when informed of these facts, immediately communicated with the authorities at Fergus Falls, and he will hear from them in a day or two.

A FLYING VISIT

Major-General S. B. M. Young, U. S. A., Dodged In and Out.

Came Up on Steamer Gates and Visited the Ranges.

Maj. Gen. S. B. M. Young, United States army, of Washington, paid a flying visit to Duluth and the Mesaba range yesterday. Gen. Young came up the lakes on the big freighter John W. Gates, of the Pittsburg Steamship company, arriving in Duluth early yesterday morning. In his party were Capt. Cloman, Mr. McLanahan and Miss McLanahan, of Washington, and Mrs. Townshend, of New York city.

The party left early in the day on a special car, provided by the officials of the Steel corporation here, for Mountain Iron, where they visited the mines, returning early in the afternoon. They returned on board the Gates, which left last evening for the lower lakes with ore.

The visit of the noted army officer to the city was entirely unheralded and but few outside of the officers and crew of the Gates and the officials of the steel trust knew that he was in the city.

"The visit to Duluth is simply a pleasure trip and a little summer outing," said Capt. Cloman, of the general's staff. "The members of the party were desirous of taking a trip up the lakes and of seeing Duluth and the noted iron district of Northern Minnesota. We wished to return on the Gates and could not, therefore spend a longer time in Duluth."

Capt. Cloman is not a regular member of the staff of Gen. Young, but accompanied him on this trip.

ACHIEVE A FINE SUCCESS

Brilliant Production of "The Charity Ball" at the Lyceum.

Seldom has the Lyceum held a finer audience than that which filled it yesterday afternoon at the production of "The Charity Ball," given by local people as a testimonial to Gus A. Forbes, who during his stay here with the Ferries Comedians, came into much popularity with Duluth theater-goers. The boxes were all filled, and the large auditorium as well.

The production reflected much credit upon all who participated. Mr. Forbes appeared in the role of John Van Buren, rector of St. Mildred's church, and it was easily one of the very best things he has done in his career of many successes in Duluth. He was warmly welcomed. Miss Edith Harcourt-Lees, who assisted the local talent, playing the beautiful part of Mrs. Van Buren, was excellent.

Miss Laura Frankenfield was a fine Anne Cruger, gentle, womanly and sympathetic, and showing a keen appreciation of the niceties of the role. Miss Elizabeth Frazer was a breezy and dashing Mrs. de Peyster, and looked and acted the part with more than ordinary ability. A pretty and sympathetic Phyllis Lee was Miss Mae Wylie, and the rather difficult part was given an excellent and pathetic interpretation by her. Miss Amy Hunter

MASTER HARRY HAYDEN.

Evans was a delightful Bess Van Buren, the young lady just budding from the doll period into young womanhood.

The men in the cast all deserve to share in the general praise. Leslie Hubbell as Judge Knox deepened the already excellent reputation he has attained through his appearances at other times. W. S. McCormick as Dick Van Buren, the Wall street broker, was fine, and Bruno Eyferth was excellent as Franklin Cruger, and displayed his versatility by taking another role, that of Mr. Betts, the organist, which he played quite as well. James H. Morrison as Alexander Robinson, who has Wall street ambitions and loves Bess, was a favorite, and played the character very pleasingly. Richard Close as Creighton, the junior partner, was also very good.

Master Harry Hayden scored a distinct success as young Cain, the little street Arab whom Anne befriends.

The stage settings were perfect and the rectory scene was one of the handsomest ever seen on a Duluth stage. The furniture and dressings were furnished by the Silberstein & Bondy company.

The production was repeated last evening at the Grand Opera house in Superior and a large number of Duluth people attended.

PARMALEE BROS. FAIL.

Cleveland, June 20.—P. W. and F. A. Parmalee, of Burton, O., comprising the firm of Parmalee Bros., have filed individual and partnership petitions in voluntary bankruptcy in the United States district court here. Assets are placed at $55,000 and the liabilities $55,124. The failure of the concern is directly due to the downfall of the Boughton, Ford & Co. bank at Burton several months ago.

AT WEST DULUTH

West Duluth is to have another shingle mill.

The small planing mill, known as Newton's mill, located at the foot of Forty-sixth avenue west, is being renovated. The machinery is to be shipped to Oregon, where Mr. Newton, the owner, intends to operate it.

Shingle mill machinery is being installed in its place by the new owners of the building, S. W. Blanchette, John O'Donnell and Russel Richardson. The work of overhauling the property has been progressing for the past two or three weeks and the mill is expected to be ready for operation during the early part of next week. The output of the mill will be in the neighborhood of 75,000 shingles a day of ten hours. From twenty to thirty men are to be employed and the equipment of the mill will be thoroughly modern and up-to-date.

There are at present two shingle mills in West Duluth operated in connection with the regular sawmills. One is owned by the St. Louis Lumber company and the other by the Alger & Smith Co.

The owners of the new mill are well known in the lumber business in the city and in West Duluth.

NON-SUPPORT CLAIMED.

Harry La France, a West Duluth painter, has been reported to Hunnnane Officer Withrow as a wife deserter.

It is claimed that La France left his wife and eight children some time ago and went to Tower to secure employment. He obtained work and it is said that at first his remittances were regular, but they became more and more infrequent, and finally ceased.

The mother made a brave struggle to support herself and the children, but became finally reduced to the most abject poverty and was compelled to apply to Mr. Withrow for assistance.

La France has been communicated with by Mr. Withrow, who set before him in very clear language the law in regard to wife deserters, which inflicts a severe punishment, and La France will probably consider it incumbent on him to provide for his wife and children.

THE COMMERCIAL CLUB.

The regular weekly meeting of the West Duluth Commercial club, which was to have been held last evening, was postponed on account of the gathering of Masons at the Masonic Temple. A social session only was held and the matter of the Fourth of July celebration was allowed to remain over until some future date. It is likely that the meeting of those interested in the project will be called during the early part of next week to complete the plans and appoint a committee to take charge of the matter.

ALL PLACES FILLED.

West Duluth felt the effect of the influx of the excursionists last evening in crowded hotels and boarding houses. Every vacant bed in the hotels and boarding houses of this end of the city were occupied by 9 o'clock in the evening and repeated telephone calls were received from that time until midnight. Scores of people were unable to find a room and were unable to find a room and were compelled to spend the night as best they could and wherever they could find shelter.

The improvements at Fairmount park have been completed and that popular resort is now in a better condition than it ever has been. A pavilion has been built and a driveway into the park constructed at a total cost of about $800.

John Leidinger and J. Gilson claim the pike record of the season for West Duluth. During the early part of the week they went up the river and brought back about seventy-five pounds of wall-eyed pike. Thursday they went out again and brought back a second string fully as large as the first in spite of unfavorable weather.

There will be an ice cream and cake festival at the Norweglan Lutheran church, corner of Fifty-eighth avenue west and Wadena street, Monday evening. There will be a program of songs and speeches, including an address by B. B. Haugan on "The Boy," and an oration in English by Rev. J. C. Rosland. Rev. Ecklund will render a vocal solo and a quartet will furnish several selections.

BEDE AND RECIPROCITY.

Congressman J. Adam Bede has again stated his position on the question of Canadian reciprocity in language that cannot be misunderstood. He is thoroughly in line with public sentiment in Duluth and with sentiment throughout the greater portion of the Northwest, which demands that every effort be made to establish reciprocal trade relations with the Dominion, and that one of the features of this reciprocity shall be the removal of the tariff on wheat, which would result in a great amount of the surplus wheat of the Canadian Northwest finding its way to the Liverpool market through the port of Duluth.

This was one of the planks in the platform upon which Mr. Bede was elected, and therefore he is not taking a new position on this question. The fact that he has at this time taken the opportunity to reaffirm his views on the subject shows that he intends to carry out his pledges to the people of the Sixth district and will be a zealous worker in the next congress for securing reciprocity with Canada. He recognizes in common with all those who have studied the question, that the American farmer is not benefited by the tariff on wheat, and that its removal would not injure him in the slightest degree, while it would divert the Canadian grain trade over American railroads and through the port of Duluth.

GENERAL STAFF PLUMS.

A Washington dispatch to The Herald yesterday reported that the secretary of war has finally announced the appointment of the two general officers of the army who are to go on the general staff. The appointment of Gen. S. B. M. Young as chief of the staff has been understood as settled for some time past, and there is no surprise on that score. But the filling of the other places is a startling surprise. It was regarded as practically certain that Gen. Tasker Bliss would get one of the positions, and either Gen. Corbin or Gen. W. P. Carter the other. By the deal which has been fixed up, all three are taken care of, both Gen. Corbin and Gen. Carter being made general staff officers, while Gen. Bliss is appointed president of the war college.

This arrangement shows that Corbin has lost none of the influence and political cunning that have kept him in a place of power in the war department. Corbin and Carter have not been on the best of terms personally for some time past, and the fight between them for the staff appointment has been bitter. Corbin's friends claimed that Carter had not been loyal to Corbin, but for whom, they said, he would still be a plain colonel. For many years Carter has been on duty in the adjutant general's office, and Corbin put him in the way to win a brigadier general's star. Then it was declared that Carter was responsible for many of the anti-Corbin stories that got in print at the height of the fight between Miles and Corbin. Be that as it may, Carter appears to have put up a fight for the general staff plum that nearly knocked out Corbin, and the latter only saved himself by fixing up the deal whereby Bliss was shunted from the general staff to the presidency of the war college.

THE TEACHING PROFESSION.

Women are gradually obtaining a monopoly of the teaching profession throughout the country. The point disclosed by the statistics covering the state of Nebraska will probably apply to the other states. In Nebraska since 1900 the number of women teachers has increased from 7491 to 7767, while the number of male pedagogues has been reduced from 2062 to 1862. In 1870, 52 per cent of the teachers in Nebraska were of the male persuasion. Now the men compose a poor 19 per cent of the total number. Throughout the country as a whole the proportion is 70 and 30.

The tendency is not altogether pleasing. Of course, there cannot be too many women in the schools—women, that is, of the right sort. But there can be too few men and the decline in their number is not reported from Nebraska only. The vocation should be second to none in dignity and should command the highest social consideration. Not until the community recognizes the importance of the teaching profession will men resort to it in all its grades as opportunity for ambition.

The Boston Transcript tells of a young man who offered to take his prospective mother-in-law along on the honeymoon and the girl declined to marry him on the ground that he must be either a villain or a fool. But perhaps he intended to lose the mother-in-law on the trip.

In line with its sound policy of making complete reports, the United States Steel corporation is the first of the large industrial concerns to file a report with the new department of commerce.

Persons who feel sympathy for the flood sufferers of Kansas may be sure their contributions will be used to good advantage if sent to Governor Bailey at Topeka. There is need of much money to relieve the suffering.

THAT YE BE NOT JUDGED.

It is barely possible that the tongue of scandal has been too busy with the fair name of Kentucky. This seems to many prejudiced individuals a preposterous statement, no doubt, for just now it appears to be quite the thing to make sarcastic remarks about the state and its manners and customs, and to assume that it is a dark, uncivilized, and rude commonwealth, inhabited by a set of treacherous cutthroats whose principal business in life it is to lie in ambush until an opportunity arises to commit bloody depredations.

It is not safe to judge of a people from afar without a knowledge of their conditions and surroundings, or to judge of an entire population by the deeds of a class or a single community. It is true that bloodshed is too plentiful in many parts of Kentucky, and that in many places human life is held in but light esteem. It is true that such things are not in accord with the modern spirit, and that blood-shedding as a means of gratifying spite or as a means of wreaking revenge are not to be countenanced.

But it should be remembered that Kentucky is a sister state of the Union, that however desperate some of her citizens may be, the vast majority of them are noble, law-abiding and chivalrous men and women. The spirit of Kentucky, no matter how much it may have been violated by the scoundrels who have come to public notice of late, is far above the level of the cowardly assassin that kills from ambush without warning. It is unjust to judge of a people by the acts of a few. It is no more proper to judge of Kentucky by a Jett or a White than it is to judge of Minnesota by a Harry Hayward or any other law-breaker. That there is a larger class of men who kill in Kentucky than in some other states is due to the history and environment of this state, the "dark and bloody ground," whose soil from long before the birth of American history has been drenched with human blood because it happened to be the battle-ground of opposing factions.

Before the state was peopled with white men, opposing Indian races made it a common battle-ground. When the Scotch-Irish immigrants poured over the mountains and settled in the territory that became Kentucky and Tennessee, they had to carve out homes in the midst of struggles that made them familiar with the use of firearms almost from the cradle. That is not so long ago that the strain of wildness thus engendered has had time to wear itself out, as it will soon.

The stock that settled Kentucky is of the best that made this nation. The strong, vigorous, hardy, clear-headed and brave-hearted Scotch-Irish race that passed on from the thin strip of settlements along the coast to wrest a new home from savages against whom it had to fight for years, is one of the noblest strains in the American people. Some of its best specimens are to be found in Kentucky.

Therefore criticism should be directed against the murderers and assassins themselves, not against the state as a whole or its people as a race. There is much that is admirable and loveable in Kentucky; there is much that is damnable and deplorable in any state. "Judge not that ye be not judged."

A FINE SHOWING.

The great increase in the earnings of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad is attracting the attention of the whole country. The May statement, which has just been issued, shows that a new high-water mark has been established by the company, and it is also worthy of special note that the earnings for the eleven months of the present fiscal year show a large increase over the corresponding period of last year, and the indications are that the close of the year will furnish a showing unequalled in the history of this old and popular road—a striking evidence of the remarkable growth of traffic and of the splendid management of the company.

The gross receipts n May were $5,720,693, an increase of $607,237 over May, 1902, and the greatest monthly earnings in the history of the road. All records were also broken by the net earnings for the month, aggregating $2,237,014, an increase of $427,586. During the past eleven months the gross earnings have reached a total of $57,613,773, an increase of $4,812,458, while the net earnings for the same period were $21,488,725, an increase of $2,486,803. The management of the Baltimore & Ohio has good reason to feel proud of this excellent showing. It tells a story of great prosperity.

THE JETT-WHITE CASE.

The disagreement of the jury that tried Jett and White at Jackson, Ky., for the murder of Attorney Marcum, was expected, but nevertheless it adds to the stain that has besmirched the fair name of Kentucky for many years. When efforts were made to hunt down and punish the conspirators who murdered Marcum in cold blood, it was not expected that they would succeed, and when the arrest of White and Jett was made, it was generally predicted that instead of their conviction, Breathitt county would be plunged into a turmoil of war and bloodshed by their partisans in an attempt to free them. But the governor in this instance was determined to do his duty and uphold the authority of the law, and he ordered the National Guard of the state of Jackson to preserve order and make possible the fair and impartial trial of the accused assassins.

The evidence against these men was so strong that their conviction seemed assured, and what was believed to be a complete case against them was made by the testimony of Capt. B. J. Ewen, the proprietor of a hotel at Jackson, who, after refusing a bribe of $5000 to perjure himself, took the stand and swore that he saw Curtiss Jett fire the shot which killed Marcum. The boldness of Capt. Ewen momentarily nonplussed even Jackson, for it was realized from that moment that his life was not worth a grain of salt if he ever got within range of one of the murderous Winchesters that were in wait for him. He was given military protection and lived in the camp of the soldiers who guarded the town, and later was sent away to Lexington where he now is. But while he was safe in the camp of the militia, his hotel was burned by the feudists, and although there was sufficient evidence to convict two men who were seen coming away from the building, they were freed. Ewen lost his all, as insurance companies would afford him no protection on account of the feud, but he seems to be thankful to have escaped thus far with his life. Jett and White will be tried again in another county, and it is hoped that they will be promptly convicted.

Some Kentuckians have a peculiar idea of "honor," and they carry it much too far. According to their code, if a man is killed some relative must avenge his death, and hundreds of lives have been sacrificed within the state's borders. Local government is set at naught in many places and a reign of terror prevails. Kentucky is a noble state, and should rid herself of this lawless element.

TORNADOES AND FLOODS.

A peculiarity of the disasters and attendant loss of life by tornadoes and floods this year is the wide distribution of the calamities. Reports received at the weather bureau show that from May 24 to 27 fifty persons were killed and sixty injured by tornadoes in the states of Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska and Missouri and the territory of Oklahoma. For the week ending May 27, the loss of lives in these states and in other states of the Middle West aggregated 100. If to this total the tornado at Gainesville, Ga., is added the total of lives lost through tornadoes for the year aggregates about 250. The ten-day period of tornadoes ran into the period of flood losses. Accurate reports of the loss of life by the floods have not been received, but the total is known to be approximately four times that of the loss through tornadoes. This brings the total of loss of life in the United States through tornado and flood to approximately 1250. There has been greater losses than this in several years through both tornado and flood, but in no year have there been for a coresponding period so many tornadoes reported or flood losses so widely distributed. The tidal wave which destroyed Galveston and swept the gulf of Mexico cities was attended by a far greater loss of life than the Oregon, Kansas and Missouri floods, but throughout the West the general weather conditions have been such that the weather reports show no year which compares with 1903 in the wide distribution of the loss of life and property by flood and tornado.

If there is any significance to these conditions it is hard to understand. Naturally floods are bound to follow the big rivers and even cloudbursts are usually effective in valleys with small streams running through them. But it is not safe to predict the localities where tornadoes or cyclones may strike. The next one may come in a most unexpected place.

PORTO RICO'S PUBLIC LANDS.

The principal reason for the visit of Governor Hunt of Porto Rico to Washington at the present time is to try to settle with President Roosevelt the long-disputed question as to the public lands of Porto Rico, a decision by July 1 being necessary. There are about 100,000 acres of public lands in Porto Rico, which passed, for the most part, to the United States under the terms of the treaty of Paris. Some of these are valuable for agricultural and timber purposes, while others are close to cities and towns, and will be available for the extension of the growth of the larger cities. It has been claimed since the institution of civil government that Spain recognized an ownership in the province of Porto Rico as contradistinguished from the ownership of the crown of Spain, and that therefore there was a separate ownership of certain tracts of these lands in the islands as separate from the United States. This contention was never admitted by those representing federal authority exclusively.

The matter was brought before the last congress and effort was made to secure legislation which would authorize a distribution of the lands in the island between the federal and insular governments without resort to the courts and without unnecessary delay. Congress took the matter up, and by an act approved July 1, 1902, entitled "An act authorizing the president to reserve public lands and buildings in the island of Porto Rico for public uses, and granting other public lands and buildings to the government of Porto Rico, and for other purposes," the president is authorized, within one year after July 1, 1902, to make such reservations of lands in the island for military, naval, lighthouse, marine hospital, postoffice, custom house, United States court, and other public purposes, as he may deem necessary, and all lands not so reserved are granted, by the terms of the act, to the government of Porto Rico, to be held and disposed of for the use and benefit of the people of the island.

The needs of the war and navy department are well known, and have been put before the president, and there seems to be no need of delay in settling the whole matter and letting the lands which belong to the local government of Porto Rico be placed in a position where they will benefit the people of that territory.

The report of the interstate commerce commission covering the loss of life and injury due to railroads for the past year, reduced to statistical form, shows that one out of every 401 employes was killed; one out of every 24 employes was injured; one out of every 1,883,706 passengers carried was killed, and one out of every 97,244 passengers was injured. In all 2969 railroad employes were killed and 50,524 were injured. The total number of passengers killed was 345. The remainder of the victims were presumably persons slain at grade crossings and in like accidents. Such a record of slaughter can be avoided. For one thing more, safety appliances are needed; secondly, the prompt punishment of negligent men would serve as a warning to others and make them more careful in the performance of their duties; thirdly, the railroads should limit the working hours of men in positions on the performance of whose duties depends the safety of trains.

The Minneapolis W. C. T. U. woman who referred to Carrie Nation as "the sweetest Christian character I ever knew" must have a queer idea of what Christian character is.

The suggestion that the war department should establish an army camp in the feud district of Kentucky is worthy of consideration. It might have a pacifying effect.

A church at Milltville, N. J., has adopted a whistling choir. This is certainly a novelty in devotional exercises.

The opium-smoking habit has reached the Filipinos. Thus does civilization make progress.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

Very tall and very large features, the Rev. William Jonas, of St. Paul, walked into the St. Louis hotel this week with the tiniest, cutest, little satchel in his large, enveloping hand. The grip was hardly eight inches long or five in height.

The reverend gentleman, hurrying back to his charge, rushed in the St. Louis and up to the desk, where he requested his grip.

A search failed to reveal the whereabouts of the diminutive satchel.

There is some more connected with the preliminary of this yarn, and that is that a traveling man who came in the same day with the minister, had an unusually large grip. It was a suit case with one side made so that it would extend out after the fashion of an accordeon.

Its owner was a rather small person, the kind in size that the boys on the bleachers would yell "shorty" at if he happened to be out on the ball field, obstructed somebody's view.

While the minister was talking at the desk and wishing he had his property, a wire came in, signed by the traveling man, who is in St. Paul.

"Hold big extension suit case," the message said. "I have wrong grip. Belongs to Rev. William Jones.

The question as to where the grip went was solved.

"How on earth," was the question in unison. "How on earth could a man mistake that pewee grip for the mammoth suit case the man owned?"

The small satchel will be sent to the minister when he gets home, and the suit case will be forwarded the traveling man when he sends the grip.

"That is the fullishest thing I did ever hear of," said the head porter.

H. B. Van Bergen, head clerk at the Spalding, is rejoicing over the possession of a fine piece of tapestry from the Orient, which he secured for a song.

Several friends who were present when he bought it say that he was cheated and the rug isn't worth 20 cents.

It happened in a kind of foolish way, but probably turned out all right.

Mr. Van Bergen and some friends were standing at a cigar counter down the street, when a Syrian or a Turk, or some foreign individual with a red Fez came in and said he was broke; that he just came into town; that he had some rugs he would sell at a loss because he needed the money; that he would sell them cheap, and how much was he offered? Hu?

"Five cents," said Pete, the cigar boy.

"Ten cents," said another.

"Fifteen cents," said Van.

The bidding was a joke. The Turk stood around with a smile on his face, as the price went up nickle by nickle.

"One-forty," was called.

It was getting serious.

"One forty-five," said another.

"One-fifty," said Van.

Everybody quit. It ran up so easily.

"It's yours," said the man, and in the laughter that followed, the sale was made.

Van took it home, told his wife it cost $10 and unless she reads this it will probably go. At any rate he knows he has a bargain.

The hundreds of strangers in town yesterday made life miserable for the hotel men. The prices were too high, when it cost a matter of $1 for a night's lodging and breakfast, and there was kicking. But all who had the price, the hotel men say, were accommodated last night, though the lobbies held people all night long, who would not go to bed, but who would bother the clerks with requests for discounts on account of the time that passed. The clerks were not able to show them that the price remained until morning the same.

A party of four people went into the Hotel McKay shortly after noon yesterday and asked for a room. They wanted to stay till Sunday afternoon, and the clerk gave them a low rate. It was too much; they were going somewhere else.

"All right," said the clerk," that is the best we can do."

They came in about 4 o'clock and again about 8. Then they rested. Each appearance they asked for a reduction more slight, and their independence lessened from the start.

At last after five long and tedious conferences with the clerk they took the rooms at the original price, and lost half a day's use of it and a meal thereby.

One hotel clerk found a ticket to Blain, Neb., on the desk, after a party of disappointed people left the hotel. He has the ticket ready to give the owner when he or she calls for it.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: Woman knew how how to swell man's self-importance when she was only a rib.

A bore gets mighty interesting all of a sudden when he begins to talk to you about yourself.

A woman can despise a man for his weaknesses, and yet love him for the suffering they bring him.

Generally a woman is interested in a man when she pretends, if he is sound, to be interested in some other man.

The man who talks about his yacht when he owns a sailboat is in the same family where his wife calls the chore boy the coachman.

Pass It Up.

Cincinnati Enquirer: "The cosmic lessons of nature should be the decalogue of national living and doing." This from Senator Beveridge of Indiana. What does a man who can "sling English" like that want with a little thing like the vice presidency?"

THE WEATHER.

United States Agricultural Department Weather Bureau, Duluth. Synopsis of weather conditions for the twenty-four hours ending at 7 a. m., (central time), June 20.—The depression central Friday morning over Iowa has moved to the Ohio Valley, causing local showers in the lower Missouri, upper Mississippi, Red River, and Ohio Valleys, and southern lake region. Another "low" is developing in the extreme Southwest. The barometer is high north of Montana. The 24-hourly temperature changes were generally unimportant. In the lake region the winds are mostly fresh northerly.

WHITTLED TO A POINT.

Washington Star: "Some men," said Uncle Eben, "says dat honesty is de best policy, an' den seems pufficky willin' to give deir neighbor a monopoly of its advantages."

Chicago Post: "It's an eight-hour day for about everybody now, isn't it?" "Oh, no; not for the employers." "And why not for them?" "Because, if they had been content with an 8-hour day, they wouldn't have succeeded in becoming employers."

Pittsburg Press: Tess—Gracious! You're as cross as two sticks this morning.

Jess—No wonder. That's what I had calling on me last night.

Tess—What's that?

Jess—Two sticks.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: The thrum of a patient piano filled the air with tremulous distress. "Your neighbor next door seems to have a delicate ear for music," said the visitor. "I don't know anything about her delicate ear," said the afflicted householder. "What bothers me is her powerful hands."

Chicago Tribune: "You are from Boomtown, are you?" said the passenger in the skull cap. "Well, your town is to be congratulated. There doesn't seem to have been any distress caused there by the floods."

"Doesn't, her?" resorted the passenger in the sweater. "Our baseball ground has been under water for more'n a week, b'gosh!"

Washington Star: "I shouldn't be surprised if Josh was goin' to be a great inventor or somethin'," said Farmer Corntossel.

"What signs has he shown?" inquired his wife.

Philadelphia Press: "What's up, old man? I never saw you look so haggard." "The Steenth bank is up; that's what's up. And my deposit's gone up with it." "Oh! I wouldn't let a thing like that upset me." "I'm not upset; merely lost my balance."

Chicago Post: "How about the golden rule?" he asked. "I wouldn't advance you a cent on it," answered Isaacs, the pawnbroker."

THOUGHTS BY PEASE.

Anoka Union: Better lose the whole board of control than President Northrup.

Bob Dunn is back in Princeton, leaving his gubernatorial boom to take care of itself.

Let Minneapolis get her water supply somewhere else than the Mississippi river. This water was never fit for use.

Evidently Joel P. Heatwole has nearly the whole deck of cards up his sleeve, but he is mighty slow about playing them.

Two homely candidates—Dunn and Eddy—for governor and one handsome one—Heatwole. Pity the ladies couldn't vote and the matter would be settled pretty mighty quick.

Most all the prominent candidates for governor have been office-holders for many years, and it would seem that they are hard to satisfy. The people might push them all aside with material benefit to themselves.

The amount of premiums received by the fire insurance companies in the state during the year 1902 from cities, towns and villages having fire protection was $4,267,397.25. The amount of losses paid in these places during the year was $1,852,489.17. The insurance companies thus received, exclusive of losses paid during the year, $2,414,818.10. And yet in the face of these figures these insurance companies have raised the rates 25 per cent all over the state. How the people are mulcted.

THE OLD KENTUCKY HOME.

The sun shines bright on the bayonets and guns,
On the cannon in the common and the square;
There is music in the bugle and the rolling of the drums,
And there's music of the rifles in the air;
The militiamen are mounting guard before the old jail door,
The mountaineers are massing for the fray,
And it's getting mighty lively in a dozen ways or more,
In the old Kentucky home so far away.

The orchads are in blossom and the perfumed air is sweet,
Oh! the face of nature never was more fair;
But the Colonels are a-shooting at each other in the street,
And the mountaineers are out upon a tear—
For it's Summer in Kentucky and without a fuel or two,
Without a chance to stab and shoot and slay,
Life would not be worth the living where the meadow grass is blue,
In the old Kentucky home so far away.
—Rochester Post-Express.

Working the Panama Graft.

Philadelphia Ledger: A curious situation is reported from the Isthmus of Panama. The states of Panama and Cauca are said to be opposed to the ratification of the treaty with the United States, but if the treaty be not ratified they threaten to secede. The explanation of this apparent contradiction is that since the treaty commits the United States to maintain the sovereignty of Colombia over the Isthmus, its ratification would make the secession of the Isthmian states impossible. They are not prepared to secede now, but they wish to retain the right of secession, of which the treaty would deprive them. It is not certain how the affair will come out, but the United States is having a great deal of trouble in giving these quarrelsome people the financial opportunity of their lives.

A COMMENDABLE REFORM.

Sioux Falls Argus-Leader: We imagine that most parents who are sending their children to the high school, will commend the announced intention of Superintendent Frank McClelland and Principal A. A. McDonald, of the high school, to so amend the present course as to give a thorough review, in the high school, of the common branches, and to give it in the early years of the course. Those who do not commend this decision, would do well to make a few tests to ascertain how complete is the mastery of the common branches of the pupils who go into the high school from the grades.

It is not the purpose of the Argus-Leader to reflect in any way upon the work done in the grades. It is a physical impossibility for the teacher in the seventh and eighth grades to cover the work laid out for those courses, and to do it with thoroughness and completion. There are too many branches which are to be considered, too many pupils in the class and too many in the room to allow the grade teachers to send into the high school pupils who have secured a well grounded common school education—namely, of pupils who can spell, read, write and "figger." Nothing remains but for the high school to take up the work where the grade teacher left it, and to give the incoming pupils a thorough and complete review, in the first year, of the common branches.

Statistics show that scarcely fifty per cent of the pupils who go into the high school remain to finish the course. It means, then, that with the review in the common branches reserved for the senior year, nearly, if not quite, half of the pupils will never get it, and they will go out after perhaps ten years in the public school without what would pass for a common school education. This is unfair both to parents and to pupils. Both the superintendent and the high school principal have been much interested in this the last year. Tests have been made which show the need of devoting more attention in the high school to the three R's and kindred branches. This is to be done in the first year of the high school course, which will put the finishing touches to the pupil's common school education which cannot be completed in the grades.

Need Not Wait For Wings.

New York Sun: She was a soprano singer, proud of her voice and of the trills which she could introduce. She was trying for a position in a church choir in a small city up the state. Though the fair applicant did not know it, one of the elders on the selection committee was a rather sour old Scotchman, old fashioned, and with little use or regard for what he called "new-fangled notions of singing." He had listened with a deal more pain than pleasure to what the soprano considered her best efforts.

Oh, that I had the wings of a dove,
I would fly away and be at rest.

Her voice rose higher and higher. The good elder listened in pain. Finally his patience gave way. He rose in his pew.

"I wouldna wait for the wings of a dove, lassie. I would flee richt now."

Which the justly irritated soprano did.

Happy Rain.

It isn't raining rain to me,
It's raining daffodils;
In every dimpled drop I see
Wild flowers on the hills;
The clouds of gray engulf the day,
And overwhelm the town;
It isn't raining rain to me,
It's raining roses down.

It isn't raining rain to me,
But fields of clover bloom,
Where every bucconeering bee
May find a bed and room;
A health unto the happy!
A fig for him who frets;—
It isn't raining rain to me,
It's raining violets.
—ROBERT LOVEMAN.

Heated Remarks of the Barons.

Philadelphia Record: Mr. Oliphant's statement that it is "devilish" of the miners that makes coal expensive shows a disposition to enter into competition with Mr. Parry of the National Association of Manufacturers, in the employment of reckless language. It was shown last year that the increase in the price of coal was greater than the increase in the wages of the men, and it has not yet been shown that there is a wage increase sufficient to justify the announced addition of 50 cents to the price of coal.

Weak Spots In Brave Men.

Kansas City Journal: It is related of a Missouri engineer at Atchison that he does not hesitate to drive his machine at full speed through the blackest storm at night with washouts all around him, but that he is afraid to go home alone in the dark. If someone is not at the roundhouse to go with him he sits there till daylight. It is the old story of every man having his own peculiar fears. There is in Topeka a doctor who will cut a man to pieces and smile the while. He is an old soldier and often faced the cannon's mouth. But he will betray the most abject terror if one of the harmless little elm worms happen to drop on his person.

No Enemies to Forgive.

Chicago Chronicle: Servian methods of dealing with political opponents recall the anecdote of the historic character who, on his deathbed, was exhorted by his confessor to forgive his enemies. "I have none," was the comfortable reply; "they are all dead."

Vindication of Nerve.

Brooklyn Eagle: A man who can come from California to be operated upon for appendicitis in New York and who appoints the hour for operation and the date for his departure on a pleasure trip to Europe, in one order, must either have a strong constitution or considerable courage. E. H. Harriman did exactly that, and the fact may indicate or vindicate his nerve in railroad undertakings.

Trolley Lines in Rural Districts

New York Independent: The expansion of the trolley is working along the line of reducing manual labor on the farm. It seems not improbable that the whole help problem will be solved. In some cases already this power is running farm machinery and doing a good deal of housework. It is suggested that the water power of New York state be so far collected as to run an electric road from the lakes to tidewater, and that power be all along the way sold to farms and towns. The plan is entirely feasible and we believe that something of this sort will be worked out. Whether the outlook be as hopeful as we think, it is certain that the easy access to all parts of the country and the removal of isolation, as well as the sense of remoteness from vital centers, will bring back to agricultural life a large share of that more intelligent help which has been moving cityward. It will tend largely to dissovle the rapidly forming masses and distribute them where work is always abundant.

Fond du Lac and New Duluth.

Mueller's fine twirling and the good old-fashioned ash furniture of the crippled Cardinals shattered the last hope the Bugvilles had of looking good to themselves in this strenuous baseball burg.

The Duluth team was so badly crippled that it was even money they couldn't beat the Day Nursery Crawlers before the game. Kennally was out of the game with an injured back. Lyons was in bed with a sprained ankle. McCoy was so sick that he could scarcely stand up. Shepard could only move about with the greatest pain on account of being hit in the ribs with swift inshoots the day before. Murphy had a sore hand. Glendon was feeling badly about Kennally and to top it off, five minutes before the game Duluth didn't have a catcher.

Wagman, a clerk in the Northern Pacific freight depot, and a member of the Freimuth indoor baseball team, was finally secured to do the catching. Cox, a familiar pitcher to all Duluth fans, went to first and otherwise the team was unchanged.

Wagman caught a nice game and showed that he was every inch a ball player—about sixty-four inches all told. Cox at first played a sensational game and both new men hit nicely.

Mueller pitched a superb game without half letting himself out. With three men on bases in the fourth, the big pitcher turned on that $1000-automobile speed and struck three men out. He is simply showing the form predicted in this column from the start and it will not be long before Mr. Lycan, of Crookston, will be trying to trade his entire aggregation, with third place to boot, for Mueller.

Features of the game were Shepard's fast game at short, Lambert's dust-raising steal of second in the fifth and Quillan's steal of the same base in the first. The score:

Harris was knocked out of the box for Grand Forks and McCarthy finished the game. Schwarmweber, the Grand Forks' short stop, drove out a home run in the eighth with three men on base. The score:

0 0 0 0 0 1 0 4 0—5	6	3
Crookston	0 3 1 2 0 0 0 2 x—8	11	2

Pitchers—Harris and McCarthy, Beebe and Martin.

* * *

It was the same pathetic story at Fargo. Wild pitching by Gordon and Swalm gave the Champions an easy victory. The score:

Winnipeg	R.	H.	E.
1 2 3 0 5 0 0 0 0	11	5	2
Fargo	0 0 0 0 0 0 1 0 0	1	4	4

Pitchers—Gordon, Swalm, Treiger; Corbett.

Crookston has released Catcher Howard, Pitcher Howell and First Baseman Cameron.

* * *

Pitcher McCarthy of the Grand Forks team is an outlaw from the Three I league. His right name is McCafferty, and President Laxdal has ordered him to report immediately to Bloomington, where he was under contract when he jumped to Grand Forks.

* * *

"Red" Hanley is pitching for the independent team of Cando, N. D., and in a recent game with Bottineau he struck out fourteen men, allowing but four safe hits. Old "Dad" Clark did the pitching for Bottineau, and the former National league star was no match for the pink-topped lad from West Superior.

The Duluth and Superior Elks will furnish the baseball excitement for the head of the lakes during the next two weeks while the league teams are away. The local Best People on Earth say they will make the Superior Elks inferior Elks before they are through with them. The Duluth team: Bob Pierce and Bob Cox, catchers; Capt. Joe Medley and E. Lyle, pitchers; Dr. Frededick Patton, first base; Len Culbertson, second; Henry Leidel, third; G. E. Dickson, short stop; Fred Reynolds, right field; C. M. Mausseau, center field; C. Mallison, left field; John Fuller, F. A. Teall, John Doran, Guy A. Eaton, B. G. Segog, Dr. McNulty, substitutes.

DULUTH IS BEHIND

Fourth In Batting and Fifth In Fielding In League.

Kennally Leads Duluth Team In Batting—Ninth In League.

League averages figured in games played up to last Saturday show that Kennally, the Cardinal first baseman, leads the Duluth team in batting and ninth in the league.

Brown, the Fargo second basemun, leads the league in stick work with O'Dea of Winnipeg second. Hanley, who played two games with the Duluth team at Winnipeg but is now playing with an independent team out in North Dakota is third, but his name will not figure in the list of final batting averages.

Kennally has the best fielding record of any first baseman and Mueller is tie for leading the league in fielding. The batting and fielding averages are:

In team work Winnipeg leads both as to batting and fielding. The team batting record is:

Winnipeg			.973
Fargo			.944
Grand Forks			.933
Duluth			.931
Crookston			.931
Superior			.171

As a team Duluth shows up very poorly in fielding. The league record is as follows:

Winnipeg	.959
Grand Forks	.927
Crookston	.923
Superior	.893
Duluth	.865
Fargo	.861

JOBBERS' LEAGUE

Two Games and Rival Hardware Nines Will Meet.

Neither Defeated as Yet—Policemen Have Contest on Hand.

Marshall-Wells Hardware Co.	Won.	Lost.
	1	0	1000
Kelley - How - Thomson Co.	1	0	1000
F. A. Patrick Co.	2	2	500
Stone-Ordean-Wells Co.	1	1	500
Gowan-Peyton-Twohy	1	1	500
Leithhead Drug Co.	0	2	000

The above is the standing of the Wholesalers' league at present. Two interesting games are scheduled for today. The Gowan-Peyton-Twohy nine will meet the druggists and the two wholesale hardware nines will fight it out for the leadership.

The latter game promises to be a fast and closely-contested battle. Both teams have played one game and won it, and there is a keen rivalry between them for the leadership in the race.

On paper the Fifth avenue men seem to have the better chance, having given the former leaders in the race, the dry goods men, a terrific drubbing, while the Marshall-Wells team defeated the druggists by but three runs. The Lake avenue men also went down to defeat last Saturday before the Millers by a big margin. The result, however, may prove to be a big surprise to the knowing ones.

The Gowan-Peyton-Twohy nine, flushed with its victory over the rival grocers, will line-up against the hitherto unsuccessful druggists. The Leithhead men have been unfortunate this season, losing two gamely-contested battles by small scores. They are not out of the race yet, however, and may prove to be a tough proposition for the grocers today.

The Marshall-Wells and Patrick teams will take a day off today, no league games being scheduled for them.

* * *

Duluth Heights and the Eagles play tomorrow afternoon on the grounds on the hilltop. The Eagles will line-up for the game as follows: Catcher, Schaffer; pitcher, Stockman or Gebeau; first base, Larson; second base, Harris; third base, McDonald; short stop, Schuler; right field, Shean; center field, Bennett; left field, O'Brien. The game will be called at 3 o'clock.

* * *

The fast aggregation picked from Duluth's guardians of the peace will make its debut before an admiring public Saturday afternoon, and will give the Lakeside team an exhibition of how the great national game should be played. The officers are said to be James Dandies with the club, although their base running abilities are doubtful quantities.

* * *

The Big Duluth nine will journey to Lake Nebagamon for a game with the team from the little Wisconsin city. The latter are putting up a good article of ball this year and the game will be a fast one.

GRANT NON-COMMITTAL

As to Candidacy For Vice Presidential Nomination.

San Diego, Cal., June 20.—U. S. Grant, when asked whether it is to be considered that he is a candidate for the vice presidency on a ticket with Mr. Roosevelt, said: "I have not announced myself as a candidate for the vice presidential nomination, but I have known that some of my friends have entertained the feeling that the position ought to come to this coast and that I was probably as available a candidate for it as any other citizen of the section. Mr. Roosevelt can carry the great West without the assistance of a Western name, and I think he will favor some Eastern man."

Fourth of July Rates.

For the Fourth of July the Minneapolis and St. Louis Railroad will sell round trip excursion tickets on July 3 and 4 at one and one-third fare to all points within a radius of 200 miles; return limit July 6. See ticket agents for particulars.

TENNIS IS ACTIVE

The Tournament Is Now On In Full Play Daily.

Next Week Weeding Out Process Will Narrow Circle.

The past week has been one of activity among the tennis enthusiasts. The tournament opened on Wednesday with a full list of entries and the first round is expected to be completed before this evening.

Up to the present time the events have been somewhat one-sided in the majority of cases, and the cold weather combined with this fact has prevented the players from showing their best form. Next week, however, when the second round commences and the "weeding-out" process begins, the better players will come together and some fine tennis may be expected.

Interest is running high in the tournament. The entry list comprises practically all of the members of the club, and the games will give an excellent opportunity of judging the abilities of the different men. In this way the best possible team can be secured for the match with Superior.

A handsome racquet, which will go to the winner, is stimulating the interest of the players.

The following is the complete entry list, with the results of the games which already have been played:

Hubbell vs. Hopkins—Hopkins, 6-3, 6-0.

Bagley vs. Agatin—Agatin 6-5 (unfinished).

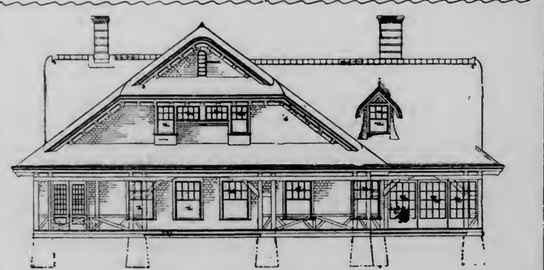
Greseau vs. Stone—Stone, 8-6, 5-0, (unfinished).

Peck vs. O'Brien—Peck, 7-5, 6-4.
Palmer vs. Gall—Palmer, 6-2, 6-3.
Bunn vs. Hickman—Bunn, 6-1, 6-0.
Grady vs. Close, to play.
Trott vs. Marin, to play.
Ingalls vs. Drake, to play.
Dash vs. Smith, to play.
Graff vs. MacKenzie—Graff, 6-0, 6-0.
Wright vs. White—Wright, 6-4, 6-3.
Ames vs. Henry, to play.
Kitchll vs. McBean—Kitchli, 6-0, 8-6.
Sheldon vs. Strong, to play.
Aitkins vs. Gridley—Aitkins, 6-2, 6-3.

In the second round Graff defeated Wright, 6-1, 6-0.

The committee in charge of the tournament consists of Messrs. W. H. Kitchli, R. T. Close and H. C. Dash. Rev. Harry White is the official referee.

The game between Graff and Wright was in the second round of the tornament, and Graff now enters upon the third round with a record of two very decisive victories.



NORTH LAND GOLF CLUB'S NEW COUNTRY CLUBHOUSE.

One of the most unique and handsome club houses of the Northwest will be the new structure which the Country club, of this city, will erect this summer on its ground adjoining the North land Golf club grounds on the west, at Lakeside. The Country club owns a site comprising about two acres on an elevation overlooking the golf grounds and Lake Superior. The new club house will cost in the neighborhood of $15,000 and the plans, which were made by Hill & Bray, of this city, are now in the hands of the contractors for bids.

The club house will be a wood and shingle structure 76 by 121 feet and practically two stories high, although the second story will be in the roof. Exterior features of the club house will be the rounding cornices, the deep verandas on three sides and country club style, somewhat out of the ordinary run of such buildings. The interior finish will be of Georgia pine.

The first floor will contain a sitting room and a dining room, with a dining porch, kitchen and other convenient rooms, including lounging rooms and locker rooms for the men.

The second floor will contain the billiard room, ladies' locker rooms and the servants' quarters, in the rear. All the floors will be of hardwood.

The shingle fence, extending to the line on the west, will contain the ornamental carriage gateway, while the fence on the east side will contain a smaller gateway for foot passengers.

The grounds will be graded and improved in keeping with the handsome club house, which is to be completed before the coming fall.

The accompanying cut shows the front elevation of the club house.

NEW MEN COMING

Lacrosse Team Gets Three Fast Ones From Port Arthur.

The Team Has an Active Season Outlined For Itself.

Three new players are to be added to the Duluth lacrosse team. The new men are members of the fast Port Arthur twelve. They have secured situations in Duluth and have declared their intention of turning out with the Duluth men. The management refuses to disclose the names of the new men, as they have not yet arrived, but they will doubtless prove a notable addition to the team.

Some prominent business men of Duluth are taking a great interest in the game here and are providing the necessary funds for the men to purchase uniforms and supplies and to enable the club to arrange for games with outside teams.

The arrangements for the game with Fort William on July 4 have been completed and the fast Canadian twelve will come down from the north shore with a goodly bunch of rooters. A return game with the same team will be arranged for later in the season.

Two games with Houghton, one here and one in the Michigan city, are being arranged for. The Houghton athletes are taking no less interest in lacrosse than they did in hockey, and they have succeeded in putting an exceedingly fast twelve in the field.

Duluth's only opponent, St. Paul, will be met in two or more contests before the season closes, one game to be played here and one in the Saintly City. The St. Paul team recently played a tie game with the Chicago twelve for the championship of the Northwest, and is putting up an exceedingly fast article of lacrosse. The Duluth men are eager for another game with the St. Paul men and hope to reverse the result of the last two contests. The men are putting in some hard practice at the present time in anticipation of the game with Fort William on the Fourth. They are in fine fettle and are confident of a victory over the Canadians on the holiday. As the games with Houghton will also precede the St. Paul games, the men will be seasoned veterans by the time the Saintly City men arrive, and will give them the battle of their lives.

The new men from Port Arthur will be in Duluth in time for the game with Fort William, unless some unforeseen accident occurs, and will be able to give the home team some valuable pointers concerning the work of the Fort William twelve.

CRIPPLE CREEK DISTRICT.

Big Profits of Lease of a Small Tract.

Colorado Springs, Colo., June 20.—A mining company owns one small claim of five and two-tenths acres on Beacon hill, in the Cripple Creek district. Since January, 1903, a single leaser has made a profit of $264,400 from a portion of this ground, while the treasury of the company has received royalties to the extent of $66,108, making a total profit of $330,500 from this fraction of a single claim, and with the production rapidly increasing. The officers of the company state that the rate of production, which is being maintained, indicates that the profits of this leaser will be at least $500,000 at the close of the present year. Such cases are cited merely to show what leasers can do in Cripple Creek on small blocks of ground, and that much of the output of the camp is due to the persistency and enterprise of these limited capitalists. These instances also show that very high grade of ore which characterizes Cripple Creek.

Womack hill, overlooking Cripple Creek, and once the scene of big excitement and some production, has again come to notice through the revelation of lessees on the Crescent claim. From $150 to $200 per ton is the estimate placed on the quality of the ore body which has just been opened at grass roots. Its area has not been determined. A trial shipment has been made.

Cripple Creek, has just opened ore of a very high grade on his lease on the Anaconda property, and the indications are that he will be a wealthy man before his lease expires. Johnson has been very successful in finding ore on all of his leases.

Another shipment has been made from the Old Gold property on Beacon hill, and while the figures contained in the returns have not been made public, it is understood that the quality compared favorably with that of the last lot, which sold for about $105 in gold to the ton. Explorations continue.

The ore bins of the War Eagle, on Bull hill, are congested with ore, and at least 200 tons additonal are broken ready to hoist.

Klondike Gold Decreasing.

Although thousands of prospectors have been exploring the Klondike region for over a year, no new mines have been discovered, and the government expert reports that this year's production will be $10,000,000 less than last year. In this respect the Klondike resembles the majority of new medicines that spring up from time to time. They seem to flourish for a season, but because of lack of merit soon play out. Not so, however, with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which has been before the public continuously for fifty years, and is today more in demand than ever. Its wonderful success is attributed to the fact that it positively cures indigestion, dyspepsia, flatulency, headache, constipation, billousness and malaria, fever and ague. Try a bottle and see for yourself.

Diseases Cured!

PAY NO MONEY IN ADVANCE.

Many sick people have suffered so much from unskilled and unscrupulous specialists that they have lost all faith in doctors. Many have paid large fees and have taken medicine for years to no benefit. They want to get well and are willing to pay a good price to be cured, but they very justly object to paying a large fee in advance. They want a trial treatment. To all such I make this—

REMARKABLE OFFER:

Simply write me, giving your name and address and stating as clearly as possible your trouble. When I have made a careful examination and diagnosis of your case and entered it in my case book, I will send you one package of medicine on trial, which you can take at my risk. If it gives any relief the cost will be $5. If it fails to help you it costs you nothing, and you shall be the judge.

ALL THE RISK IS MINE.

Can anything be fairer than this? I am making an offer which no other physician will make. They can't afford to. I refer to any bank in Duluth as to my financial standing and responsibility. This offer proves that I have great faith in my remedies. I KNOW they will cure, otherwise I wouldn't dare make this offer. It would ruin me, as I ship a hundred packages every day. I have tested this system for twenty years and I know that nine people out of ten are willing to pay where they get any benefit.

NO CURE, NO PAY.

is my motto. I do this to convince you who hesitate—who doubt all men's claims. I carry a line of specific medicines which cannot be had anywhere else in the state. Their power to cure disease is simply marvelous.

Syphilis, Gonorrhoea, Gleet, Stricture, Skin Affections, Disease of the Kidneys, Stomach, Liver and Bowels, Nervous Troubles, Sexual Weakness, Varicocele and Throat and Lung Troubles cured as if by magic.

Call or write. Office private; no exposure. Consultation free. Hours, 9 a. m. to 8 p. m. Address,

DR. T. J. PIERCE

HAPPINESS OR MISERY

Which?
It depends upon the nerves.
If they be sound and strong, you are healthy and vigorous. Your mind is clear, and you are happy.
But if they be weak, you are nervous and miserable. Your mind is uneasy, and you suffer all the tortures of a doomed, nerve-starved man.

LET UP ON WORK

Pickards, Mather & Co. Slowing Up on Mining Work.

Because of Congestion of Ore at Lake Erie Docks.

On account of the congestion of ore at the Lake Erie docks and other reasons which will not be made public, Pickands & Mather are letting up on their work on the Missabe and Vermilion ranges.

It is said that the mining operations in Michigan are continuing at the same old pace, while up here the mines are not being worked as hard as last year.

H. S. Haselton, of Cleveland, representing Pickands, Mather & Co., is in the city at present. He confirmed the report last night that the mines on the Minnesota ranges were not being worked as hard as they had been. He said the Michigan mines were working as usual.

"I do not wish to be disobliging," he said, when asked for the specific reasons behind this condition, "but I do not feel at liberty to talk about it now. I will say, however, that we are taking out all the ore from the Minnesota ranges we can handle at the Lake Erie docks.

"The docks are filled. We are moving all the ore we ship there. We are sending boats to get all the ore we take out of the mines at this end. I don't know how other companies are doing.

"There are some grades of ore at this end of the lakes which we do not use as much as others. We are not shipping more of these grades than we use continuously.

"As to whether the supply and demand in steel has anything to do with the condition I cannot state, nor can I tell you what is the reason for the continued operations in Michigan and the curtailing in Minnesota."

It is said, however, that the distances have some effect on the determination of that company, and others also, even the Steel corporation.

"We are now operating, and heavily, too, new mines on the Minnesota ranges," he continued. "The Utica mine is a new shipper this year, and is sending out lots of ore. The Albany mine will start to ship Tuesday morning. We have been delayed through lack of tracks and equipment from working it sooner.

"The Troy mine will not ship before July 1. It is being put in shape and the tracks will be down and machinery in by that time."

AGGREGATION OF NATIONS

To Be Seen at the Coming Duluth Carnival.

A myriad of marvels, in most attractive form, is to be magnificently displayed at the Duluth July fair and carnival by the Ferari Bros.' Carnival company.

Foremost among these superlative features of educational amusements is its cosmopolitan congress of the people of the earth, gathered together from the remote lands of the globe in one grand picture of international representation.

There on the street, in the most picturesque freedom of action, mingle the turk, from the land of the sultan; the tall and swarthy Arab in the garb of the desert; the dark-skinned Egyptian, with face as solid as the sphinx of his own land; the piratical Malay, direct from the Chinese seas; the easy-going Mongolian, from the flowery kingdom; the dignified and cultured Japanese from the mikado's empire; the sturdy Briton and his former enemy the Boer, both of which were fighting each other on the burning sands of the Transvaal and Lascar, with his queer wares from India; the Kaffir and the Zulu, in all their savage glory, from South Africa; the South sea and Fiji Islanders, who, until brought to America, devoted their time exclusively to war and cannibalism; the Teuton, with his long pipe of his fatherland; the Highlander, with his bagpipe and kilts; Paddy, shilelah and all, off for the Donnebrooke fair; the Russian Cossack from the army of the czar; the Mexican, with his velvet clothes, gaudy sash and sombrero, the Brazilian, swarthy and sunburned, in the garb of the South American prairie; the fair-haired Norwegian and the Swede; the Laplander and the Esquimaux, from the ice-bound regions of the Arctic circle; the American Indian, the last of a shattered race; the Spaniard, with his inevitable cigarette and profound politeness; the Cuban and the Porto Rican, the Hawaiian, the Chilian, the Peruvian, the Argentinean; in fact, representatives of the people of the world brought together in a mighty aggregation to delight and instruct the multitudes.

They will be seen here at the Duluth July fair and carnival, July 8 to 11 inclusive.

IMPRESSED STRANGER.

Called to Make Fourteenth at Dinner Party.

A supper was given last evening by Gus A. Forbes, whose benefit play, "The Charity Ball," took place yesterday afternoon and evening at the "den" beneath the Spalding cafe.

There were but thirteen members present, one of the players having stayed at Superior, and for nearly an hour the company refused to be seated. Several scouts were sent out to find a number fourteen, but they were unsuccessful for a long time.

Finally a strange traveling man who had been captured while going through the lobby of the hotel to his room was brought downstairs to make out the number. It was 12:45 o'clock and few were about. The last guest was unknown to everyone at the supper, but he enjoyed the thing very much, and his demands, which were numerous and exacting, had to be fulfilled, for he had the key.

The evening was spent in singing and speeches.

F. O. E.

All members of Duluth Aerie No. 79, F. O. E., are requested to meet at Hunter hall at 9:30 o'clock tonight to accompany the remains of our late brother, Dr. A. E. Levinson, to the train.

A SETTLEMENT WORKER

Will Marcellus Hartley Dodge, a Millionaire, Soon Become.

New York, June 20.—Marcellus Hartley Dodge, who inherited the immense estate of his grandfather, and has just been graduated from Columbia, will, it is stated, become a settlement worker. The report that he was settling his business affairs to take up a permanent residence at the Hartley house settlement on West Forty-fifth street, has created much excitement among the workers in that line. The young millionaire makes no secret of his enthusiasm in the work of the Hartley settlement house. In order to satisfy himself of the value of the theories he studied at college, it is said that he will personally follow out the line of work directed there.

PRINTING PRESSMEN

Adjourn Convention to Meet Next at St. Louis.

Cincinnati, June 20.—The convention of the International Union of Printing Pressmen today adjourned to meet next year in St. Louis, after adopting many resolutions on office rules and pending appeals. Among the resolutions almost unanimously adopted was one for a propagating committee of twenty-five to communicate with all other labor unions "that the masses shall have a proper champion in the next presidential campaign." The vote on this resolution was claimed as a victory for the Socialists.

A CHINESE ORPHAN

Little Yute-Ho-Ji Adopted By Mrs. W. S. Albertson of Duluth.

Her Story Told In Christian Herald—Now In San Francisco.

Born in far off China, purchased by an old woman for $10 to be later sold as a slave, brought to this country and then for a while not being allowed to leave it or enter it, admitted to a mission home and at last adopted by a Duluth family, is the remarkable story of a wee Chinese maiden, scarcely more than 4 years old.

Yute-Ho-Ji is the name of the little girl and her story as told in the Christian Herald of last year by one who knows her well is as follows:

"She is one of the most fascinating children I have ever known. Whether her charm consists in her utter unconsciousness that she is being observed, or because she is unusually gifted nofie can tell. Playing with the children around her Yutl-Ho-Ji little dreams what she has escaped, unless somewhere in her childish brain is lodged the memory of cruelty.

"She was purchased in Kong Kong for the fabulous sum of $10, when only a year old, and brought to this country by a woman purporting to be her grandmother, who knew in a few years she could sell the child for ten times that sum. There was trouble about the landing papers, and the woman and child were sent to the Presbyterian mission home. There was no other place except the jail or the mission homes, as they were wards of the government until it could be proved that they had or had not a right to land.

"They had only been in the Home a short time when it became apparent to all that the woman was not the grandmother of the child. The little one seemed terrified and it was soon discovered that the woman was cruelly beating her for whatever she did, good or bad. The case was reported, the collector of the port adjusted matters, the 'grandmother' left and the child remained.

"Free from the tyrannical power of one she feared, the little one, like some flower brought into the sunlight, bloomed into great attractiveness. Her case interested many outsiders. The grand jury could not believe that such little ones were brought from China to be kept here and sold for slaves. They ordered Yute-Hi-Ji to appear before them. She went, accompanied by Miss Cameron, superintendent of the home. So completely did she win all hearts, that the magistrate and jury visited the Mission home to see the others, who like this little one, were rescued from slavery.

"That was a year and a half ago. Yute-Ho-Ji is now 4 years old, and sings hymns alone and in perfect English, and repeats Bible verses. It touches every heart, when with imploring voice she looks into a stranger's face and says 'Feed my lambs.'

Such is the story of little Yute-Ho-Ji when Mrs. W. S. Albertson of this city became interested in the little Chinese through an article from a California paper, and after inquiry adopted the unfortunate little maid. She will remain at the home in California to be educated, and when her education is complete, will do mission work among her own people. At the school the maidens are educated in Chinese and English and make remarkable progress. Yute-Ho-Ji is 4 years old and sings many hymns in English and still more remarkably repeats the books of the Bible, a thing that few children raised in a family of Christians for generations can do.

Mr. and Mrs. Albertson keep in touch with the little girl by gifts and letters and have visited her at the home, and gratitude is implanted in her heart. A short time ago Dr. and Mrs. T. H. Cleland of this city, visited at the home at San Francisco, and when this little maid heard they were from Duluth where her new father and mother lived she followed the visitors about the house clinging to Mrs. Cleland's skirts in an affectionate manner. The English name given Yute-Ho-Ji is Augusta Trowbridge Chamberlain and her birthday is set for May 22.

TO TRY MT. WILSON.

Los Angeles, June 20.—Professor W. J. Hussey of the Lick observatory, who has been experimenting to determine the suitability of several high altitudes in Southern California for a permanent astronomical situation, is said to have decided in favor of Mt. Wilson, situated just east of Mt. Lowe. Professor Hussey will mount a 9-inch telescope on Mt. Wilson at once for further experiments. The atmospheric conditions there are said to be almost perfect in astronomical observation.

APPROVAL GIVEN

Bridge Commission Satisfied With Plans For Aerial Bridge.

Will Now Advertise For Bids—Question as to Piers.

At a short session of the municipal bridge commission this morning the new plans and specifications for the Park Point aerial ferry were approved, and the advertising for proposals to build the structure authorized.

It is the general impression that a bridge built after the new plans and specifications presented by the city engineer will be much more satisfactory than the ferry as proposed under the contract of the Duluth Canal Bridge company would have been. The new plans take more than the present needs into consideration, making provision for the future settling of Minnesota Point.

In failing to execute its contract and build the aerial bridge, it is claimed that the Duluth Canal Bridge company forfeits all right to the cement piers bases now in position.

However, this claim meets with opposition, and the question presented is so puzzling that it may likely go to the courts for settlement. The bridge commission, in view of this tangle, has decided to call for bids, using either all or a part of the foundations now in, and also for bids without using the old Duluth Canal Bridge company foundations.

A member of the commission today said: "We are expecting proposals from at least four reliable bridge building concerns, two of which are in the West.

"The unique character of the bridge gives it wide advertising in leading engineering journals, it being the first proposed for this continent.

"The engineering company that successfully builds it will get free advertising that should be worth many thousands of dollars to its business, as well as establish a reputation for a style of bridge building that is entirely new outside of Europe."

FOUR KILLED

In Head-On Collision Near Whitehall, N. Y.

Plattsburg, N. Y., June 20.—By a head-on collision of a light engine and a freight train early today on the D. & H. railroad near Whitehall, four trainmen, including Henry Collins, engineer of the light engine, a fireman named Moore, a brakeman named Ryan and another fireman, are reported killed.

YACHT RACE POSTPONED.

London, June 20.—Owing to the fact that a gale is sweeping over the channel, the start in the annual yacht race from Dover to Heligoland for Emperor William's cup, arranged for today, has been postponed until Monday.

LIBERTY BELL RETURNING.

New York, June 20.—The Liberty Bell, on its way back to Philadelphia from Boston, was warmly welcomed in this city today. The car bearing the bell was halted in the New Haven railroad freight yards at Harlem river. Whistles, bands and cannon saluted the historic bell, and school children sang the national anthem. Speeches were made by the reception committee.

A "MALICIOUS INVENTION."

Vienna, June 20.—The Turkish embassy here, through the semi-official Fremdenblatt, declares that the rumor of the sultan's intention to abdicate is a "malicious invention."

A HEALTHY COUPLE.

An Old Soldier of 90 Had Some Coffee Experience.

An old soldier's wife described her coffee experience as follows: "My husband and I have been accustomed to the use om tea and coffee for a very great many years and we were very fond of the coffee.

"Some time ago we received from a dear friend in St. Louis a Christmas box that included a package of Postum. I prepared some without reading directions and my husband said: 'O, nonsense, this tastes just like the crust water that was one of the luxuries they allowed to invalids eighty years ago.' Then I looked up the directions, made the Postum as it should be made and we both found it delicious.

"My husband is a broken-down soldier and was a dyspeptic and suffered from severe headaches, but from the time we commenced to drink Postum we have not taken a cup of tea or coffee. During the hot weather we have eaten no meat, depending for food upon Grape-Nuts. My dear husband's headaches have disappeared since we left off the coffee and began Postum, and I find myself mentally stronger and much better able to concentrate my thoughts than for several years past. Husband has a good appetite now and nothing disturbs his stomach.

"I believe that when mothers come to pay more attention to their childrens' diet there will be more health and happiness in the world and in domestic life generally. Little by little this change must come.

"Yours very sincerely for all that pertains to health and happiness. Use our names if you wish." Names furnished by Postum company, Battle Creek, Mich.

This letter is in the handwriting of the old lady herself and there are many people half her years who cannot write half so good a letter. The case is one of remarkable vitality and, apparently the only ills of their old age were those due the coffee drinking. These disappeared when Postum was used in place of coffee.

DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS

Duluth men and women say so—men and women who have been cured—you can't doubt their testimony—
There could not be stronger proof than the word of your own neighbors—

DULUTH PROOF:

Mr. Fred Hicks, of 412 Fourth street east, engaged in the shoe business, says: "I have had trouble all my life with my kidneys, the result of a nervous difficulty from which I suffer. Often severe, heavy aching pain existed across the small of my back, and it was accompanied with irregularity and unnatural condition of the kidney secretions. I tried everything in my power to check the trouble, but was unsuccessful until I procured Doan's Kidney Pills at the Duluth Drug company. I tried that remedy like I had tried a score in the past, with little expectation of receiving any benefit. I was surprised at the results, and although I do not expect to become absolutely clear of kidney trouble, I have at least found a preparation upon which I can depend to bring relief when I appeal to it."

Doan's Kidney Pills are for sale at all drug stores—50c a box.

HAPPENINGS IN DAKOTAS

Counterfeiter Locke Sentenced to Six Years In Prison.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Fargo—William J. Locke, who was arrested at Mandan on the charge of keeping a counterfeiting outfit, was convicted here and sentenced to six years in the South Dakota penitentiary by Judge Amidon, of the United States court.

Robert Gram was arrested and is said to be one of the smoothest grafters in the country. He speaks seven languages fluently and has several good makeups. Jamestown people are said to have been victimized by him while he was impersonating a German character.

D. Skulily is the name given by a stranger who appeared at the police station with a gash in his throat and wanted Joe Micher arrested. He was fixed up and seemed to be so glad he was alive that he afterwards decided not to prosecute.

Some of the plumbers of Fargo are out and the strike may extend. A member of the union employed by a local firm was fined for working on a holiday. He refused to pay the fine and the other union employes demanded that he be discharged by the firm. This was refused and they went out. The firm insists the union men adjust their own affairs to suit themselves and refuses to mix up in the affair. There is a big rush of work here in all the firms, and if the members of the union in all ties hops go out, it may tie up some of the new buildings.

Some sensations developed in the hearing of Randall, Miller and Gildre, insurance men, charged with using the mails to defraud. An attempt was made to show that the insurance company had given a bribe of $500 to former Insurance Commissioner Harrison. It is said that the check was issued to Frank Russell, one of Harrison's deputy examiners. Russell was put on the stand and acknowledged his endorsement on the check, but stated he had received none of the money. No furthr questions were asked. It is also stated that another $500 check was issued directly to Harrison for the purpose of influencing Minnesota officials, that it was not a success and that Harrison afterwards refused to return the money. It is asserted that correspondence to this effect is now on file.

Ellendale—From $800 to $1000 worth of cream is being shipped each week from this station to the creameries at Aberdeen and Frederick. Hand separators are now found in almost every home in the county, and each farmer is milking from ten to twenty cows each.

Artesian well digging to be a business in this county. Over forty wells have already been bored and about a dozen machines are kept busy all the time. Water can be secured at from 1000 to 1200 feet in almost all parts of the county and can be obtained at from $450 to $600 each. The wells are a great boon to cattle raisers.

Jamestown—The body of Byron Bush was brought here from Portal, N. D. He was 26 years old and had a ranch thirty-five miles southwest of Portal. While hauling poles from White Earth creek his team ran away. He was thrown from the wagon and his neck was broken.

Steele—A short time ago E. S. Elliott, a rancher, in boring a well, brought up some yellow particles in a lot of sand, and was curious enough to have the find examined. He sent the stuff to an assayer in Chicago, who returned it with the assertion that it was gold. Meantime, Elliott's brother sank two holes at different places and found the same colors. He was satisfied there was enough to pay for working and went to Bismarck to make a mining entry.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Sioux Falls—The hearing in an interesting case has just been finished by Referee in Bankruptcy Muller. The case is that of Lucy C. Koch, of emery, whose creditors instituted an involuntary bankrupt. Notes given by the defendant to an Emery banker figured in the adjudication of the case. A bill for an aggregate of $3590 was presented by the banker to Referee Muller, but this was afterwards reduced to $4794. The referee cut this claim, allowing it at $2,282.85, the balance due on the principal of loans made Mrs. Koch. The claims of the other creditors, among them a number of wholesale firms, were allowed in full.

At the request of Judge Frank B. Smith, of the fourth circuit, Judge Jones has consented to go to Osceola next Monday and try several cases for the former. Court convened at Osceola last week, with a calendar which contained about thirty-five criminal and five civil cases. Nine of the criminal cases were carried over from the last term, and it is understood that it is these which Judge Jones will try.

Deadwood—Secretary Mahon of the American Mining company has received word from Colonel Ewing of Los Angeles that his city will be a competitor for the congress in 1904. Los Angeles thus far stands in the lead among several western cities for the next meeting. The Black Hills mining men are making elaborate preparations for the coming event in September, when nearly 3000 to 4000 persons from all parts of the world will assemble in Lead and Deadwood.

The Columbus-Consolidated Gold Mining company has paid the final $300,000 on its property which adjoins the Homestake on the north, consisting of 640 acres. The company has planned to build a 1000 ton plant on Whitewood creek below this city. H. J. Mayham of Denver, secretary of the company, was here and paid over the money.

Lead—At Mayo, a small place, six miles southwest of Custer, the annual Sunday school convention of the Black Hills will be held next week. About 200 people from all parts of the hills will assemble there and camp in tents.

Taken to Stillwater.

Louis Carlson, the Finlander who pleaded guilty to the charge of assault in the second degree at the present term of district court, was taken to Stillwater yesterday to begin serving his term of three years and nine months in the state penitentiary. Carlson is the man who entered a Lake avenue saloon at an early morning hour, while crazed with drink, and carved the faces of two men who were sitting at a table and who were strangers to Carlson.

David Frankfort, who was convicted of swindling a woodsman out of his watch, will probably receive sentence next week. Frankfort has been out on bail.

PAPER MILL BURNED.

Syracuse, N. Y., June 20.—The factory of Kenyon Paper company, at Baldwinsville, was burned last night. The loss is $140,000.

BOSTON IS SINKING.

Boston, June 20.—According to a former member of the Metropolitan water board, Boston and the surrounding territory are slowly sinking down to the sea level. The present plan used as a base by Boston engineers has sunk to 79 feet below mean low water and throws out all survey calculations for the state. Various landmarks along Massachusetts bay have sunk from one to two feet in ninety days.

TRUST MEN COMING

Four Representatives of Steel Trust Due Sunday Morning.

The four representatives of the Steel corporation from the East will arrive in Duluth tomorrow morning about 9 o'clock.

The trip from the Menominee range will be made over the South Shore road and immediately upon the arrival of the special car, which will carry the visitors, it will be hooked on to an engine of the Iron Range road and the party will go up on the Vermilion range.

President T. F. Cole, of the Minnesota and Oliver companies went to Iron Mountain yesterday evening to meet the party and will be with the members of it today and tonight.

The representatives of the Steel corporation on the trip are James Gayley, second vice president and manager of transportation; D. M. Clemson, president of the Pittsburg Steamship company; C. D. Frazier and D. G. Kerr.

The officials of the subsidiary companies of the Steel corporation at Duluth and perhaps some of them from the Michigan country, will take the trip over the range, which will last two or three days.

Three or four special cars will be added to the special which goes on the range, at this place, which will be filled with local dignitaries, in a great measure.

The doings of the officials from the East on their private car have not been communicated to the local offices of the Steel corporation until this afternoon, when Mr. Cole wired something regarding the general movements of the party. Up to the time Mr. Cole received word as to where he could meet the Easterners, the local offices were somewhat in the dark as to the whereabouts and plans of the visitors.

Mr. Cole only sent a short message stating that the party would arrive here tomorrow morning, and nothing has reached the local offices yet upon which to base any plans for the range trip.

Charles Schwab, now at the head of the corporation, will not be one of the party.

STILL THEY COME

Two more trainloads of excursionists, these from Willmar and intermediate points, arrived in Duluth this afternoon over the Great Northern road. There were two trains of ten coaches each, packed to the doors, and they carried about 1600 people.

The coming of another thousand people on top of the 3500 who came yesterday afternoon and last night will swamp the town with strangers.

Last night there were many who did not, or could not, secure sleeping accommodations, and they walked the streets or sat down and went to sleep in some quiet corner or in the hotel lobbies.

The hotels were all crowded, and the information bureau of the Commercial club gave out a large number of addresses to the visitors where they could get rooms for the night.

The condition tonight will be more complicated with another thousand people, though the bureau of information is confident it can supply them if they will come and ask. The restaurants and eating houses from the west end of the Bowery to the Masonic Temple have been doing a rushing business and are nearly swamped at noon time.

The visitors that came in sleepers could not use them, as the Pullman company locked them up, and some of those excursionists failed to find accommodations, as they did not arrive until 10 o'clock at night.

BARBERS TO PLAY BALL

Tomorrow afternoon the barbers of Superior and Duluth will perform seething stunts on the baseball diamond.

The Wisconsin barbers will massage the atmosphere and have a close shave from a shut out, according to local fans, while with Duluth it will be "next gent" and "you're next," until somewhere in the neighborhood of 51 runs cross the plate.

Striped of all verbal disguise the Duluth barbers are "slingers" and threaten to bat the whiskers off the ball if the Superior twirler don't put too much lather on it. The game will be at West Superior and the line-up as follows:

Duluth—		Superior—
E. Larson	pitcher	Roy
G. Lowney	catcher	Crawford
G. Fifer	first	Shinners
J. Brotherton	second	Swanson
O'Brien	third	McDonough
W. Brotherton	short	Douman

THE RELIANCE WINS AGAIN

New York, June 20.—The Reliance, Columbia and Constitution started today in a race over a triangular course of eleven and three-fourth miles to be sailed twice around, in Long Island sound off Center Island. The prize was a silver tankard offered by the Seawanhaka-Corinthian Yacht club. The heavy fog and rain which threatened to prevent the race cleared away by 11 o'clock when a breeze came up from the northeast, which soon attained a strength of six to seven knot. The yachts were timed unofficially across the starting line as follows: Columbia, 12:30:36. Reliance, 12:30:54. Constitution, 12:30:56.

Reliance won the race, beating Constitution 4 minutes 23 seconds, and Columbia, 7 minutes 39 seconds, unofficial elapsed time.

AN OLD SOLDIER

WHO FOUGHT FOR THIRTY YEARS AFTER THE WAR WAS OVER.

A Veteran of the Forty-eighth Ohio Volunteers, Recently Relieved, Tells How He Won His Last Battle.

Mr. Charles Van Horn, a veteran of Company E, Forty-eighth Ohio volunteers, now living at Goshen, Ind., tells many a story of his experience in the civil war, but none more interesting than his account of how, after thirty years, he relieved himself of the misfortune which overtook him while in camp during the early years of the war.

"When I enlisted," he said, "I was in perfect health, but the food and hardship while the regiment was in camp brought on a bad diarrhoea which troubled me for thirty years until I was finally cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. I became weak and emaciated and often was unable to get around at all. Rheumatism set in and all the doctors who treated me failed to help me. My head ached, I had a pain across the small of the back, and kept growing weaker constantly. In the fall of 1892 I read about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and determined to try them. I found that they helped me, and a few boxes cured me entirely. Now I have none of the old trouble and feel entirely well and strong."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People cure cases like this because they go to the root of the disease. Other remedies act on the symptoms—these marvelous vegetable pills remove the cause of the trouble. Not only have they cured hundreds of cases similar to Mr. Van Horn's, but they have proven themselves to be an unfailing specific for all diseases arising from impure or impoverished blood and weakened nerves—two fruitful causes of nearly all the ills to which human-kind is heir. They have cured locomotor ataxia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous headache, after effects of the grip, palpitation of the heart, pale and sallow complexions and all forms of weakness either in male or female. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are sold in boxes at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, and may be had of all druggists, or direct by mail from Dr. Williams Medicine company, Schenectady, N. Y.

Patrick Long, a son of Richard Long, of this city, was seriously injured in the yards at Proctorknott yesterday, being run over by a car and suffering injuries to his leg that necessitated its amputation at the knee. He is at St. Mary's hospital and is doing nicely.

Prof. W. F. Phelps, former president of the Winona oNrmal school, superintendent of the public schools and secretary of the Winona board of trade and more latterly resident director of the Duluth normal school, has just undergone a severe operation at St. Luk's hospital in St. Paul. The operation was deemed to be necessary in order to save his life. In spite of his advanced age, eighty-four years, the doctors think he will recover. They consider the vitality he has shown at his age to be something wonderful.

George Dumas, employed in the Plummer and Ash sawmill at Virginia, is at St. Luke's hospital suffering from serious injuries received yesterday. He will lose a leg and his life is not beyond danger. His clothing was caught in the machinery of the mill and he was whirled around a shaft several times before he was released. He was unconscious when picked up.

Parlor theater this evening, for fun.

BREAK THE TRUST

Co-Operative Plumbing Concern Is About to Be Launched.

Will Go After the Alleged Plumbers' Combine Warmly.

Backed by a number of the prominent real estate men of this city, a co-operative plumbing concern is quietly laying its plans to open a place of business with the purpose of breaking up the alleged plumbers' combine, and to stimulate a competition in the plumbing business which does not now exist.

The plans of the people interested are not yet in condition to be made public. In fact those interested in the project deprecate any publicity at this time, but the steps being taken toward an organization of a co-operative company have so far progressed that rumors of it were current on the streets yesterday afternoon.

One of the local men who is interested in the organization of the company has been spending considerable time of late in thoroughly investigating the proposition, and he claims he has the figures to show that the margin of profit in the plumbing business, as it is conducted in this city, is a very attractive one to the plumbers. He has put his case in so strong a light before other real estate owners here that they are satisfied the project is practicable, and can be carried through, and there is no lack of funds to finance it.

One of the members of the co-operative company said yesterday that the proposed concern should not be confounded with a combine; that it was not really a combine, but a plan whereby the real estate men have come together to protect their own interests; that matters have come to such a pass that realty men must do something to protect themselves from exorbitant prices and restrictions, or else go out of the business.

It is claimed that the new departure will in no way conflict with the unions.

Another real estate man who has been approached with the project, says that it certainly looks feasible. He says the interests of it will be at a disadvantage in a way from the fact that they do not know anything about the plumbing business and will have to employ a competent man to manage the business, but that those who are pushing the project have put the matter in a favorable light and claim to have the figures to show where this can be done in the business operated at figures lower than those of the local plumbing concerns.

"Do you know why out of town clients won't build on their vacant property here?" asked a real estate broker yesterday.

"It is simply because they will not be held up and prefer to make investments in other cities, where the conditions are more favorable.

"Here is an instance: I asked a prominent local realty owner the other day who has done a deal of building in past years on his property, why he was not building this season. He told me that last year he could get the stone foundations for a house put in for $10 a cord where he must pay $18 this year, that last year he paid 40 cents an hour for plumbing where he must this year pay 70 cents per hour. This man told me that it was impossible to get a day's work out of any class of labor now engaged in a building project and that he has been simply forced out of the building business.

"We have some clients who have improved their property in Duluth and stand ready to spend several hundred thousand dollars in building investments here now, were the conditions as favorable for building as they are in other cities. It is impossible to get them interested in building when they learn of the propositions they will go up against in the way of costs.

"A great deal of talk is heard nowadays about high rent, but that condition will not always exist. Rents advance and decline on small provocation, and present rental conditions cannot be regarded as permanent enough to offer an inducement to the man with money to invest."

Along the line of the proposed new co-operative plumbing concern it has been rumored that the same people have been figuring on a second proposition of starting a co-operative meat market to make a fight against the butchers' combine, but this rumor is not confirmed. While there may have been some talk of such a project, it is the plumbing co-operative company that is receiving the principal attention.

THE CLOCK IS REMOVED

At the order of the board of public works, city employes this morning tore up the big illuminated clock sign in front of the jewelry store of F. D. Day & Co.

The firm protested against the removal of the clock on the ground that it contained no advertising matter and was, in a way a public utility, for the reason that it was very convenient for people on the streets who were inquiring the time of day.

The clock was erected by the firm several years ago at a cost of $800 and has become a familiar landmark on Spperior street to many citizens who expressed tnemselves in rather heated terms this morning over the action of the city in removing the big timepnece.

LOSES ONE OF ITS CLERKS

The Duluth land office will lose one clerk from its force by the change in the boundaries of the district and the establishment of the new land office at Cass Lake or Bemidji.

Roy Hilton, who for the past two or three years has been engaged at the local office has been transferred to the new office and will leave when the transfer is made July 1.

Preparations for the transfer are nearing completion at the local office and the books and records are being audited and put in shape to be handed over to the new office.

"We have received no notice of any change in the location of the new office," said Register Culkin. "All that we know of the claims of Bemidji to the office is what we have heard from newspaper dispatches from Washington. The last official notice we received was the one transferring the office to Cass Lake. It makes no material difference to us which town receives the office." The records are being prepared for the change and when the time comes will be handed over to the authorities of the new office whether it be situated at Cass Lake or Bemidji."

TAKES OFF A SLEEPER

The Pullman campany has taken off the additional sleeper on the Omaha between Duluth and Chicago, owing to the contention that business will not warrant it.

The single sleeper for the past two days has been entirely sold out, both upper and lower, early in the day of its trip, and a great deal of complaint has resulted. In many cases the local office is compelled to wire to St. Paul for berths in the sleeper that goes out of that city.

Railroad Notes.

William J. Power has been appointed traveling freight agent for the Great Northern to succeed George Ryan, recently transferred. Mr. Power has been contracting freight agent for some months. Festus Bannon, an attorney from Brainerd, will succeed Mr. Power.

The new freight rate schedule for the range roads, reduced from the present schedule by 5 to 20 per cent by order of the state railroad commission, will go into effect June 30.

Assistant General Freight Agent H. A. Kimball, of the Great Northern road, arrived in the city today and is looking over business affairs here.

President W. P. Fitch, of the South Shore, who has been quite ill, is reported to be able to move around his house at Marquette again.

WANTS IT STOPPED.

Petition has been made in district court by the Midway company for an order restraining the city from paving the Lake avenue viaduct. The hearing was to have come up at the special term of court this morning, but was postponed until Monday afternoon.

The Midway company owns some of the property on both sides of the approach to the viaduct and contends that the approach part of the viaduct and the Northern Pacific company is responsible for the maintenance of the viaduct under an old contract between the city and the St. Paul & Duluth Railway company.

FOR TIMBER TRESPASS.

The Pine Tree Lumber company, incorporated under the laws of the state of Iowa, has entered suit against Fred W Bonness and M. M. Howe, doing business under the firm name of Bonness & Company, in the United States circuit court to recover the sum of $4483.49 with interest.

In the bill of complaint the plaintiffs claim that the defendants did wrongfully and unlawfully remove from the plaintiff's property in the state of Minnesota, timber to the value of $4483.49. There are thirty-two different causes of action the plaintiffs claiming that timber was removed from thirty-two different sections. The damage in the different cases vary from $10 to $1200, according to the value of the timber taken. The land from which the plaintiffs claim the pine was removed is in several different parts of the state, the majority of it being in the neighborhood of Cass Lake.

The case will come up for trial at the next term of the United States circuit court.

THOSE WHO HAVE DIED

London, June 20.—The Very Rev. Herbert Vaughan, cardinal and archbishop of Westminster, died at midnight.

Cardinal Vaughan was born April 15, 1832. He became archbishop of Westminster in 1892. He had been ill more than three months. Late in March it was thought he could not survive more than a few days.

The cardinal who had been sinking for some weeks from heart disease and dropsy, died peacefully. His death was not expected so soon. Yesterday he was wheeled in a bath chair about the corridors of St. Joseph's college, which he founded with money which he collected in America and elsewhere. On the previous day he appeared in college chapel in full cardinal robes and made a farewell address to his bishops and priests. His remains will lie in state in the cathedral at Westminster and will be buried at St. Joseph's college.

ONLY GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE.

Hyomei Costs You Nothing If It Fails, Says S. F. Boyce.

Among the many medicines upon the market that claim to cure catarrh, none but Hyomei has enough faith in its own merit to be willing to refund the money if it does not cure.

This remarkable remedy for catarrh kills the microbes and the germs of the disease, and from its introduction has been sold under a positive guarantee to return the money to all dissatisfied customers. S. F. Boyce has sold thousands of Myomei outfits in the last few years, and has had only two customers ask for a return of the money, which in every instance was promptly and cheerfully returned. He stands ready today to refund the price to anyone who is not helped by Myomei.

The complete outfit costs $1, and comprises an inhaler, a bottle of Hyomei and a dropper. The inhaler will last a lifetime, and additional bottles of Hyomei can be obtained for 50 cents.

Breathe Hyomei for a few minutes four times a day, and your catarrh will grow better from the first day's use, and will be completely cured in a short time.

Do not try to cure catarrh with ordinary stomach medicines. Breathe the healing Hyomei, which goes to every part of the air passages and respiratory organs, killing the catarrh germs and preventing their growth.

It is the only treatment for catarrh where you can get your money back from a local dealer in case it does not help.

THE DERBY

Nineteen Horses Start In Great Event at Chicago.

Chicago, June 20.—The crowd which saw the American Derby was the largest in the history of the race. It numbered between 60,000 and 65,000 people.

It was Chicago's greatest gathering of any year and carried with it an astounding display of fashion. A chilly, damp morning was followed by a warm afternoon, with the sun shining occasionally, and what promised to be a dismal day for derby display turned out to be the ideal in weather. The grand stand was packed before 1 o'clock. The crowds started as early as 11 o'clock, and there was a continual rush of people up to the time the bugle sounded the call for the derby. The infield, from the club house to the head of the stretch, was covered by hundreds of equipages, the smartest turnouts which the wealth of the city could porcure. In the infield gathering were 500 vehicles of all sorts, except automobiles, the automobiles were barred from the grounds, but were alloted space outside the main entrance to the track. It took ten acres of ground to accommodate the horseless machines. Society gathered at the club house and in the boxes and formed the most fashionable outdoor gathering that ever assembled in Chicago.

Nineteen horses started in the derby. Early, a colt from the stable of M. H. Tichenor & Co., and Colondae and Dick Weller, owned by J. B. Respasss, were withdrawn at 2 p. m. Gregor K., the property of W. M. Hedges & Co., ran in the first race.

Chicago, June 20.—The American Derby, which has puzzled turf experts for three months, is as much of a problem three hours before the race as it was when the entries were announced. Owners who are after the $25,000 prize to be won at the Washington Park track this afternoon are concealing their plans and intentions to the last possible moment. Twenty-three horses are named in the entry list. Some of them will be scratched, but which ones will not be known until forty-five minutes before the race.

The West's best array of 3-year-old horses will decide the sectional championship over a fast track. The rain which fell last evening did no more than a good sprinkling would have done. The course may now be rated as fast and the Derby distance, a mile and a half, will be run in 2:34, if the opinion of experts can decide it.

RECEIVER ASKED

Trenton, N. J., June 20.—Application was made in the court of chancery by Andrew McNeal of Burlington, N. J., for the appointment of a receiver for the United States Cast Iron Pipe & Foundry company, which has fourteen plants at different points throughout the United States, one of which is located at Burlington, and other plants at Buffalo, Cleveland, Columbus, O., Scottdale, Pa., and in Wisconsin, Kentucky, Ohio and Alabama. The company was incorporated about three years ago with an authorized capital of $30,000 to make cast iron pipe and foundry work.

McNeal in his bill of complaint charges extravagance and mismanagement in the operation of the business of the company.

TIMBER RESERVE LANDS.

Washington, June 20.—(Special to The Herald.)The secretary of the interior this afternoon approved the action of the land office in its selections of 89,707 acres of and around Cass Lake, set aside aside as a timber reserve by the agricultural department. On this tract 95 per cent of the timber will be sold under public advertisement, bids to be opened on Dec. 26 next.

ORDER FOR HEARING APPLICATION FOR APPOINTMENT OF ADMINISTRATOR.—
State of Minnesota, County of St. Louis. —ss.

In Probate Court, Special Term, June 18th, 1903.

In the Matter of the Estate of Patrick Sullivan, Deceased:

On receiving and filing the petition of Patrick B. Sullivan, of the county of St. Louis, representing, among other things, that Patrick Sullivan, late of the county of St. Louis, in the state of Minnesota, on the sixth day of June, A. D. 1903, at the county of Roseau, died intestate, and being an inhabitant of this county at the time of his death, leaving goods, chattels, and estate within this county, and that the said petitioner is a son of said deceased, and praying that administration of said estate be to him granted;

It is ordered, that said petition be heard before said court on Monday, the 13th day of July, A. D. 1903, at ten o'clock a. m., at the probate office, in the court house, in the city of Duluth, in said county.

Ordered further, that notice hereof be given to the heirs of said deceased and to all persons interested, by publishing this order once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in The Duluth Evening Herald, a daily newspaper printed and published at Duluth, in said county.

Dated at Duluth, Minnesota, the 18th day of June, A. D. 1903.

By the Court,
J. B. MIDDLECOFF,
Judge of Probate.
(Seal Probate Court, St. Louis Co., Minn.)

ORDER FOR HEARING PROOF OF FOREIGN WILL.—
State of Minnesota, County of St. Louis. —ss.

In Probate Court, Special Term, June 20th, 1903.

In the Matter of the Estate of Letita H. Chase, Deceased:

Whereas, certain writings purporting to be duly authenticated copies of the last will and testament of Letitia H. Chase, late of Oswego, New York, deceased, and the probate thereof in the surrogate court of Oswego County, New York, have been delivered to this court;

And whereas, Emma H. Drew has filed therewith her petition, representing among other things that said Letitia H. Chase, lately died in said county of Oswego, New York, testate, possessed of certain real estate, situated in the county of St. Louis, Minnesota, and that said petitioner is interested in said estate as a devisee and legatee under said will, and praying that the said instrument may be admitted to probate, and that letters testamentary be to J. Shepard Fitch issued thereon;

It is ordered, that the proofs of said instrument and the said petition, be heard before this court at the probate office in said county, on Monday, the 13th day of July, A. D. 1903, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, when all persons interested may appear for or contest the probate of said instrument;

And it is further ordered, that notice of the time and place of said hearing be given to all persons interested, by publishing this order once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in The Duluth Evening Herald, a daily newspaper printed and published at the city of Duluth, in said county.

Dated at Duluth, Minn., this 20th day of June, A. D. 1903.

By the Court,
J. B. MIDDLECOFF,
Judge of Probate.

THE GRAIN MARKETS

Wheat Closed Higher In Duluth and Lower at Chicago.

Flax Trading Was Active and the Market Weak.

Duluth Board of Trade, June 20.—The Duluth and Minneapolis wheat markets closed with an advance in the price of wheat, while the Chicago market showed a slight decline. There were more reports of poor returns from threshing in the Southwest, and there were also bullish reports from the Northwest where rain is much needed. On the other hand cables were easier.

The Northwestern markets, Duluth and Minneapolis, turned very strong during the last half hour of the session, the latter leading and making a big advance in the July price there, 1½c. That option is controlled by one interest in that market. Duluth followed to the extent of ½c. In Chicago a somewhat easier feeling was caused by the publication of the estimate of H. Jones, crop expert of the Commercial West of Minneapolis on the winter wheat situation. After a trip through the outhwest Mr. Jones estimates the crop as follows: Kansas 75,500,000 bushels; Nebraska, 42,500,000; Oklahoma 25,000,000; Texas, 18,000,000; Missouri 45,000,000; total 205,500,000 bushels against 160,000,000 bushels last year. He did not give any sensational news. He estimates the total for the United States crop, 740,000,000 bushels as maximum, allowing 240,000,000 for the three Northwestern states. This is 55,000,000 bushels more than raised in 1902.

In the Duluth market a little export business was worked, about five loads.

The Liverpool market closed ¾d lower for July wheat and ½d lower for September.

Primary receipts of wheat were 322,000 bus., last year 423,000 bus. Shipments 128,000 bus., last year 317,000 bus.

Corn in the Liverpool market was ½d lower. In the Chicago market July corn closed a shade higher. July oats closed ⅝c up. Primary receipts of corn were 625,000 bus., last year 595,000 bus. Shipments 263,000 bus., last year 232,000 bus.

In the Duluth market the July wheat option was strong, closing ⅜c up to ⅝c for September. Trading was quiet. September opened ⅛c up at 74⅝c, sold between that price and 74⅜c for an hour and a half and fell to 73¼c at 11:45 and then turned strong, closing ⅝c up at 74¾c. July closed at 72⅝c. Chicago July closed ⅜-⅝c off and September ⅛c off. Minneapolis July was ⅜c up and September ⅛c up. St. Louis July was off ¼c and September unchanged.

Cash sales were active, aggregating 50,000 bus at July price for No. 1 northern and 1⅛c under for No. 2. Receipts are steadily increasing, the posted cars today being sixty against one a year ago.

Flax was active and weak. July soon after opening sold ¼c up to $1.65, but turned weaker and fell to $1.01¾, rallying to $1.01⅝ and closing at $1.01¾, a decline of 1⅜c. September fell 2c, October 1⅜c and November 1⅝c.

Rye declined 1¢.

Following were the closing prices on the Duluth board:

Wheat to arrive No 1 hard 83¼c No 1 northern 82½c; No. 2 northern 80½c; July 82¾c; September 74½c; December 72½c; Flax in store $1.01; to arrive $1.01; on track $1.01; July $1.01¾; September $1.01; October $1.03½; November $1.03½. Oats to arrive 37½@38; on track 37½@38. Rye to arrive 51c; on track 51; Barley 35@61c.

Cars inspected: Wheat 40; last year 12 corn 13; oats 4; flax 41, last year 0.

Receipts: Wheat 48,247; oats, 40; rye 5010; flax 3976.

Shipments: Flax 6116.

COPPER GOSSIP.

Boston to W. H. Laidley & Co.: Coppers have been somewhat lower on light trade, no feature and no news to affect prices. Copper is still 14½ with buying more free. With copper at this price and the stocks at present they are cheap.

• • •

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: Coppers declined today on publication of a statement that Calumet and Hecla people had announced a cut in price of copper to 14½c and were offering the metal at that price from New York. It is positively denied. Calumet and Hecla officials state that they have not changed their position of metal one cent. Today's bank statement was not as favorable as had been expected, but traders were unable to depress prices materially. We think we shall continue to have simply a traders' market and that the stocks can be bought on weak spots and sold on the sharp rallies.

TREASURY BALANCES.

Washington, June 20.—Today's statement of the treasury balances in the general fund exclusive of the $150,000,000 gold reserve in the division of redemption shows: Available cash balance, $228,587,834; gold $102,624,845; silver $26,459,154; U. S. notes $9,267,589; treasury notes of 1890 $42,155; national bank notes $12,838,709; total receipts today $1,593,756; total receipts this month $35,392,319; total receipts this year $345,925,720; total expenditures this day $1,060,000; total expenditures this month $24,460,000; total expenditures this year $496,046,852; deposits in national banks $155,076,903.

NEW YORK MONEY.

New York, June 20.—Close: Time money easy; 60 days, 4@5 per cent; 90 days, 4½@5; 6 months, 5. Money on call, nominal; prime mercantile paper, 5½@5½. Sterling exchange fairly steady, with actual business in bankers' bills at $4.87.75@4.87.87 for demand and $4.85.25@4.85.375 for 60 days bills; posted rates, $4.85½@4.86 and $4.85½; commercial bills, $4.84½@4.85. Bar silver, 58c; Mexican dollars, 41c. Government bonds steady; railroad bonds steady.

EASIER IN STOCKS

But the Tone at the Closing Was Quite Firm.

Bank Statement Was a Disappointment to the Street.

New York, June 20.—Opening prices were a fraction lower than last night, except for small gains in Reading, the Eries and Amalgamated. There were 1500 shares of U. S. Steel sold at 29¼ and 29½, compared with 29⅝ last night. Colorado Fuel dropped 1¼. The market was dull and sluggish.

The market showed considerable hesitation, moving up and down slightly, but with a yielding undertone. Most of the business was in the Pennsylvania group with Reading the pivotal stock. American Ice preferred advanced 1 and Realty preferred 1¼. Smelting lost 1⅝ and Des Moines & Fort Dodge 2.

There were gains by Toledo, St. Louis & Western of 1, Wheeling & Lake Erie first preferred 2¼, second preferred 1⅝, and Reading second preferred 2¼. The market halted to await the bank statement and sold off in disappointment over the showing. Prices generally reacted to below last night's, including the coalers. Smelting lost 2⅝, Colorado Fuel 1⅜ and Atchison, Wabash, Denver & Rio Grande, Canadian Pacific, Delaware & Hudson and Copper a point. The selling movement was not pushed and the market rallied slightly.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Ridgley to W. H. Laidley & Co.: The big men have accumulated quite a mass of stocks the past month, but apparently they are not ready for a bull market yet. The money to move the crops must be provided and the crop situation itself must come clearer before a bull campaign of any importance will have a strong enough foundation to rest on. For logical reasons which have been often explained in the past month, there will be a little boom around January 1 and July 1. There is no reason to expect anything different this time. If the bank statement is moderately good, stocks should rally until Monday.

• • •

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market is very quiet and easier. The street was disappointed in the bank statement. We can only repeat that we think good stocks are selling on a good investment basis and that unless some unthing decidedly unfavorable results in the crop conditions, we do not believe the bears will make any money. A quiet market is in our judgment, however, likely.

• • •

Waldorf to Coe Commission Co.: Sentiment continues fairly good with confidence in an improving stock market. Pressure to sell generally speaking becomes less urgent daily and there is liquidation only in spots. With many dividend stocks selling on a 5 per cent basis there is a steady demand from investors and it is believed that the quantity of securities taken out of the market in this way has been underestimated. This absorption is bound to tell in favor of prices at no distant day and representative brokers express the belief that good stocks will soon begin to discount better crop prospects, a stronger financial situation, and large July interest and dividend disbursements. The fact that preliminary estimates from movement of cash to this point to a gain by banks of a bout $5,000,000 suggests the contingency of easy money, and some observers believe that if later in the summer the outlook for financial legislation appears set back, money will be obtainable at 5 per cent by carrying borrowers over Jan. 1. Large operators seem to be confident enough on this point to feel justified on the long side and are advising their friends to buy many of the railroad stocks when attacked on such groundless rumors as have been in circulation the past few days for adverse effect on values.

• • •

Zimmerman & Forshay to Paine, Webber & Co.: Price movements during the week have been erratic with a shrinkage in volume of business. Today bank statement, while fairly favorable, failed to meet expectations, increase in reserve being less than anticipated. The close was heavy, but the losses only fractional. We are inclined to think the tendency of the market will be quieter with stocks being established on a firmer basis.

• • •

Bache to Paine, Webber & Co.: The opening was without interest. Lower London prices did not affect sentiment. London prices showed strength on buying for Steels showed strength on buying for Arbitrage account, but eased off later. The market continued firm, but dull, until the appearance of the bank statement, which was considered rather puzzling. The bears have made desperate efforts to break the market this week and took advantage of every weak spot to do so, but without avail.

• • •

W. H. Laidley & Co.: Stocks opened at about yesterday's closing figures, but remained firm. Trade was on a smaller scale than for several days past. The bank statement was fairly good, but it was also used to make a market for some stocks and prices eased off a trifle, closing somewhat under yesterday. We are not particularly enthusiastic over the future of the market, but think purchases on the breaks safe for the present. But would take profits when in sight.

• • •

Dick to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market has been dull and irregular today. It was under moderate pressure and prices yielded somewhat, both before and after the bank statement appeared. No long stocks came out. In the last ten minutes there were evidences of good buying in the railroad stocks. The bank statement was disappointing, showing smaller gain in cash and in reserves than was expected. Traders made a drive against Smelters' common and knocked it down sharply. The tone at the close was firm.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, June 20.—The cotton market opened steady at an advance of 16@8 points on better cables and talk of too much cold weather in the cotton belt, which led to covering without stimulating new speculation activity on the long side of the account; the public, if anything being inclined to sell the new crop months on any rallies. This morning, the principal sellers were profit takers however, and the market varied but little from the figures after the first call.

Cotton futures closed weak. June 12.14; July 12.20; August 11.74; September 10.80; October 10.09; November 9.77; December 9.71; January 9.70; February 9.65. Spot closed dull. Mid ups 12.40; mid gulf 12.65. Sales 664 bales.

IN MARINE CIRCLES

Exciting Race Between Six Tugs Interests Excursionists.

Capt. Byers, of Tug Excelsior, Narrowly Escapes Death.

An exciting race between six tugs, two from the Independent line and four from the Great Lakes fleet, proved a source of much excitement to a large crowd of excursionists who happened to be on the canal piers early this afternoon.

Shortly after noon three tows were seen coming up the lake. The Dowling and Carpenter were immediately dispatched from the Independent line's office on Lower Lake avenue. Shortly afterwards the Superior and Abbott were sent out from the office of the Great Lakes company at the foot of Seventh avenue west.

The Dowling and Carpenter passed through the canal together with the Superior and Abbott under full steam about half a mile behind.

The Record and the Carrington, also of the Great Lakes company's fleet, which happened to be in Superior at the time, joined in the race, going out the Superior entry, the tows being equally distant from the two entries to the harbor.

From the canal piers it could be seen that the four tugs were making a great race, the Dowling holding her own well while the Superior seemed to be drawing slowly up on the Carpenter.

From the south side of the lake the Record and Carrington were making good time and were heading for the most southerly tows.

Honors in the race were about evenly divided. The Dowling kept her lead over the other three tugs coming from the Duluth entry and was followed in starting one of the tows. The Superior of the Great Lokes fleet got the second and the Record, coming from the south, took the third, which was closest to the Superior entry.

HAD NARROW ESCAPE.

Capt. Frank Byers Dodges Death Narrowly.

Captain Frank Byers, of the tug Excelsior, had a narrow escape from death yesterday afternoon. Nothing but his presence of mind saved him from being buried under an avalanche of lumber at the Clark-Jackson mill.

The Excelsior was approaching the lumber dock at the mill with the schooner Delaware in tow. The tug collided lightly with the dock and the structure gave way, allowing a pile of lumber containing about 25,000 feet to slide into the slip. The tug was directly in the path of the sliding lumber.

Captain Byers saw the lumber falling and turned and dived over the side of the little vessel into the water. The pilot house in which he was standing was badly damaged by the falling lumber, but otherwise the tug escaped unharmed. Captain Byers was helped on board the tug none the worse for his ducking.

NOTICE TO MARINERS.

Notice has been given that on June 18 the defective lower entrance west side gas buoy No. 1 in Lake St. Clair 20-foot channel from which a temporary white light was shown since June 5, 1903, has been removed and a new gas buoy substituted showing a light of the same character as called for in the lighthouse list buoy lists. Also that on the same date the St. Clair flats canal lower entrance west side gas buoy No. 21, reported out of place on the 13th inst., was returned to its proper position.

AN AMATEUR SNAKE EATER.

Logansport, Ind., June 20.—Alice Fairchild, 12 years of age, tried to eat a dozen live snakes, in emulation of a circus attraction, and is in a precarious condition as a result of numerous bites inflicted by the snakes. Last week Alice was taken by her parents to see a so-called snake eater, who appeared at a carnival. Thursday Alice's brother caught a dozen small snakes and the girl tried to eat them. She was found in convulsions with the snakes wriggling about her body. She may die.

THE REALTY MARKET SHOWS NO REVIVAL

Business Continues With Characteristic Summer Dullness, But Prices Show No Sign of Weakness —Considerable Interest In Tax Abatements.

The local realty market continues quiet. In fact conditions have scarcely changed from those a week ago. Realty is being sold right along, but the sales are mostly small and do not come with a frequency that is causing any of the local offices to complain of overwork. Prices are not weakening, however, in fact, several instances are known where earnest money has been returned this week in proposd sales, where the owners have raised their figures since offers were made.

This is eminently an excursion week and the city has been crowded with visitors, many of whom have been looking over Duluth property and have called at the real estate offices. While the class of people that come on the popular excursions are not as a rule those who seek investments here, there are numerous instances where visitors have been attracted toward some property and have negotiated for it after returning home, resulting in purchases.

Dr. David Graham, of West Duluth, has purchased the frame store building property at the northwest corner of Bristol street and Fifty-fifth avenue west, for $4500.

* * *

One of the largest sales of the week has been that of the Western Land association to Louis and Samuel Loeb, of the Clarendon hotel property at the corner of Garfield avenue and Michigan and Superior streets. The consideration was $14,000. The property is now undergoing extensive improvements, the hotel being practically remodeled to fit the conditions brought about by the new viaduct.

* * *

The deed transferring the residence property on lot 4, block 18, Banning & Ray's addition to Duluth, from the Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance company to William M. Abrahamson, went on record this week. The sale was made some weeks ago, the consideration being $7200.

* * *

Interest has been manifested by local taxpayers, this week, in the action of the board of county commissioners in recommending certain tax abatements to the state auditor. A merry scrap has developed aver any reduction of the Northern Pacific company's taxes on lands in the city not actually under trackage and while the county authorities have recommended some abatement, the city authorities are protesting vigorously against it and will bring all the influence to bear on the state auditor to let the figures stand as the assessor first made them. The city assessor's office claims that the railway company's assertion of unfair treatment is absurd, that it has been treated with just as much consideration as individual property owners and in some instances even better.

* * *

Deals in country lands, while occurring with frequency, do not often reach a large figure. One of the largest recently made was recorded this week and ran from the Santa Fe Railway company to C. H. Maginnis, the consideration being nearly $15,000.

Carroll G. Copp, pricer for the Leithhead Drug company, is reported to have purchased one of the Nesbitt houses on Eleventh avenue east for a home.

* * *

It is reported that a sale has been made this week of the unimproved property belonging to the I. P. Gray estate, lying between Superior street and London road, adjoining the F. W. Payne property on the east, but no confirmation can be had. Rumor says that the 100 feet was sold, or a portion of it, on a basis of $4000 per 25 feet.

* * *

The Massachusetts Real Estate company has completed its apartment house row on Fourth street between Sixth and Seventh avenues east, and is now putting the finishing touches on the ground improvements. The building has been christened Brook terrace.

* * *

Hill & Bray are getting out the plans for an 8-room frame residence building and an office building for Blwabik parties.

* * *

Young & Nystrom are preparing plans for a frame double house for Erickson & Nelson, at Twenty-first avenue east and London road, and for three brick houses for a Mrs. Jones, of Erie, Pa., on Third street, between Sixteenth and Seventeenth avenues east.

* * *

A large number of building permits have been issued recently, but no one of them has amounted to any considerable figure. Following is the list of the permits since the last report:

Brick store and flat building, south side of First street, between First and Second avenues west, for E. M. Fowler, $28,000.

Frame dwelling, north side of Fifth street between Sixth and Seventh avenues east, for Thomas Stack, $1000.

Frame barn, north side of Fifth street, for Joseph Guthrie, $400.

Frame dwelling, west side of Garfield avenue, for Gust Carlson, $1250.

Frame cottage, west side Twenty-ninth avenue west, for J. C. Dunbar, $1100.

Frame residence, west side of Minnesota avenue, between Eighteenth and Nineteenth streets, for F. J. Burnett, $700.

Addition to dwelling, south side of Oneota street, between Thirty-ninth and Fortieth avenues west, for C. S. Raymond, $200.

Frame dwelling, west side Fifty-eighth avenue west, between Eleanor and Tacony streets, for Albert Hanson, $700.

Stone foundation, southside Third street, between Second and Third avenues east, for R. B. Knox, $500.

Brick flats, north side Jefferson street, between Eighteenth and Nineteenth avenue east, for Mrs. A. S. Reed, $9878.

Frame cottage, east side La Rue street, between Thirty-first and Thirty-second avenues west, for F. B. Schuman, $300.

Frame kitchen, Hazelwood Park, for Horace Bolot, $125.

Frame dwelling, Superior View addition, for Reil Rasmusson, $400.

FOND DU LAC, THE PICTURESQUE AND THE ROMANTIC

The Ancient Village on the Banks of the St. Louis River, Situated In the Midst of a Fairyland of Rare Scenic Beauty.

FOND DU LAC FROM THE ISLAND.

CROWLEY'S QUARRY.

Fond du Lac, the picturesque, the healthful, the historic, the romantic!

Up the St. Louis river, at the extreme head of navigation, lies this ancient village, nestling at the banks of the river in the midst of a fairyland of scenic beauty. Safe from the chill winds of the lake and the noises and hurry of the city, it is a charming spot for summer day picnics and outings, and it is beyond compare the most beautiful spot in all the country around Duluth.

Once upon a time Fond du Lac cherished dreams of becoming a great sister city to Duluth. A dozen years or so ago real estate boomers got out a map telling about this, and painting in colors attractive to lot buyers the glorious future of the community.

Old Fond du Lac has slumbered peacefully, contentedly and pleasantly during many of the intervening years. It can no longer dream of becoming a great city, but it is part of what is rapidly becoming a greater city. Some day the hum of the iron servants of man and the despoiling black of furnace smoke may intrude upon this dreamland, but the unpractical lover of nature's charms will hope that that day will be long postponed. The smoke of furnaces means material prosperity, but it will be the doom of scenic beauties and the peaceful quiet that now makes Fond du Lac an ideal summer resort.

Many Duluth people take advantage of the place to put in a charming summer there, living in cottages or living in tents. The number is growing every summer, and now that rail transportation has been resumed this season, will show a big gain. The steamer Newsboy and the Northern Pacific railroad are both serving the people that want to travel there, and one day an electric line will be built.

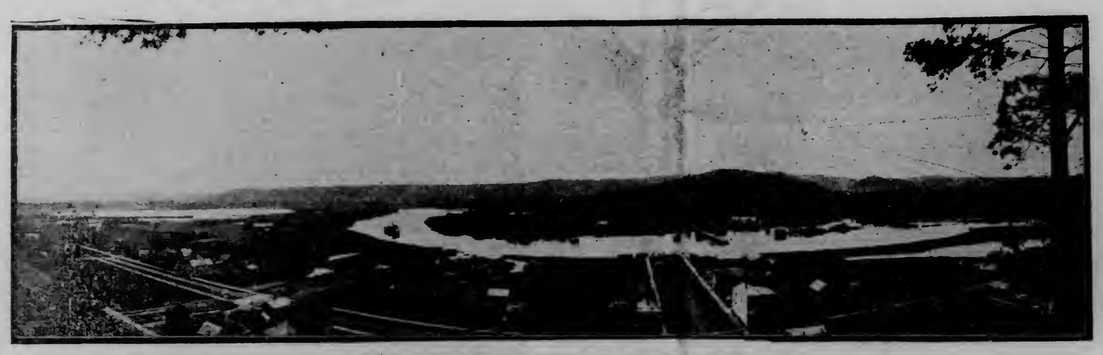
Among the well-known people that make summer homes there are: Judge W. L. Windom, Judge W. A. Cant, John L. Fuller, R. C. Hunter and John H. Brigham.

The pictures shown herewith give something of the picturesque beauties of the scenery. They are by Richard W. Itea, who took them a few days ago for publication in The Herald.

Not the least among the attractions of Fond du Lac are its historic features.

Over 250 years ago a valiant band of French priests and traders carried on a wonderful work of exploration and discovery in New France, of which this territory was a part. Among their number were Marquette, La Salle, Allouez, Hennepin, Le Sueur, Du Luth, and many others. Adventurous traders came to the western extremity of Lake Superior as early as the beginning of the seventeenth century. Father Claude Allouez, a devout Catholic priest, established a mission near the bay that bears his name, in 1665. Daniel Graysolon, Sieur du Luth, from whom the city of Duluth is named, came to the head of the lake in 1673, and convened a great council of the different Indian tribes. Tradition tells that these earlier voyageurs entered the natural entry of the bay of Superior, near the mouth of the Nemadji river, skirted the shores of what is now the city of Superior, passed into the bay of St. Louis and continued up St. Louis river until they reached the end of navigation and the foot of the rapids. In this romantic spot, nestled among the wooded hills, with beautiful islands in the river, a bounteous supply of fish in the streams, and the woods teeming with game, they found an Indian village. And we can believe that ever after this point has been settled by the white race. Tradition says that it is nearly as old as Philadelphia. There is little doubt but this site was selected for the first permanent trading post in this locality, though some writers have attempted to prove it was at the entrance to the Nemadji river, within the present city of Superior. The first reliable data extant is in the records of the Hudson Bay company, which are very positive in the location of a post and garrison at the head of Lake Superior in 1592. Du Luth had gone into the Mississippi valley by way of the Brule river, and thence across the St. Croix. Years after, the route to Fond du Lac by canoes, up the St. Louis river to near the present site of Cloquet, and by portages to a branch of the great river, became a regularly traveled route for the fur traders. The Hudson Bay company held supremacy until 1787, when, after a stubborn resistance, they were driven from the post by the recently organized Northwest Fur company, whose headquarters were at Mackinac. This new company built a large storehouse, which was destroyed by fire about sixty years ago, and rebuilt by their successors. One or two of the Indians now living at Fond du Lac can remember the burning of the building. They built additional dwellings for their employes and otherwise improved the post.

John Jacob Astor, a native of Waldorf, Germany, who for many years carried on a fur trade with the Indians of the Six Nations in the state of New York, organized the American Fur company, and in the year 1809 secured a charter for the same, from the New York legislature, with a capital of $1,000,000. This company purchased the posts and trade of the Northwest company. Two additional storehouses were erected by the American company and their trade considerably extended. Travelers of that early date told of seeing their traders as far north as Rainy Lake and the Lake of the Woods. There was standing in 1890 the last of these old fur storage houses shown herewith. This was in a dilapitated condition, the roof fallen in and rapidly going to decay. In that year it was taken down and most of the timbers used in the construction of a barn on the estate of the late P. J. Peterson, and quite near where the old building was first built. On one of the timbers can be seen the name "J. J. Astor" painted n large letters. Curiosity seekers will find this barn on Second street, a few rods west of Roussian avenue.



FOND DU LAC FROM HILL BACK OF DEPOT.

A PAIR OF THOROUGHBREDS.

For several years after the close of 1812 most of the Indians of this section, who had fought on the side of the British during the war, remained allies of the English. They annoyed the American traders and few settlers who had ventured into the Northwest. The two powerful tribes then about Lake Superior were the Dakotas and the Chippewas. These two tribes had, for many years, quarreled between themsives for the supremacy of the St. Louis river and bay. To settle this dispute and win the Indians to the side of the Americans, President Monroe, in 1825, directed Gen. Lewis Cass, of Michigan, to proceed to the western end of Lake Superior and endeavor to negotiate a treaty. He arrived at his destination in 1826, and Aug. 5 of that year gathered all the tribes of the Chippewas (the Dakotas refusing to join them)at Fond du Lac, and the first formal treaty ever entered into in the limits of Minnesota was signed. By this treaty the Indians severed their relations with the British and swore allegiance to the United States. At that immense gathering, on either side of the river and on the islands were hundreds of Indian camps and the woods at night shone resplendent with the camp fires. After the disorganizing of the American Fur company, the fur business was continued by private individuals. Alexander Paul, whose name appears as one of the village trustees, came to Lake Superior in 1854 with a trader's license, and at one time had five different outfits on and around the head of the lake.

Fond du Lac remained purely a fur trading post until the fifties. In the early part of that decade the project for building a canal around the Sault Ste. Marie was agitated; a bill for subsidizing the state of Michigan for the purpose was introduced in congress in 1852, and the canal commenced in 1853. People saw, in the future, a great city at the western extremity of Lake Superior; hundreds eager to be first in the field, flocked to the new city of Superior, town lots sold for large sums each, and several townsites were platted on the north shores of the lake, and on St. Louis bay and river.

In 1856 several gentlemen who had come in with the great rush to the head of the lake since 1853, and foreseeing the advantages of the actual head of navigation, with one or two residents of Fond du Lac, employed Richard Relf, a "surveyor, draughtsman and land agent," doing business in Superior, to make a survey and lay out a town at this point, "pursuant to and by virtue of an act of congress of the United States, passed May 23, 1844," and known as the townsite act, December 29 of that year the present plat of the town was filed for record with the register of deeds of St. Louis county, Minn., and was recorded on page 55, plat book "A." The avenues of the new town were named after the promoters and others living in and interested in Superior at that time.

The town council were Col. Reuben B. Carlton, of Superior; Francois Roussian, a French-Chippewa halfbreed, living in Fond du Lac; Alexander Paul, a storekeeper of Superior, and George D. Morrison, the latter coming to Superior in the early part o f1854. The only acts of this council appear to be the transfer of the lots, which did not take place until 1869, when most of the property seems to have been divided among the proprietors then living and the heirs of those deceased. The first deed recorded Jan. 20, 1869, was signed by D. George Morrison, recorder; J. B. Culver, treasurer, and Francois Roussian, trustee (the latter making his mark), "surviving members of the town council."

Among the other new townsites platted at that time were "Wabegon" and "Ogontz," both situated in the state of Wisconsin, opposite Fond du Lac, and both taking their names from Chippewa words. The only settlement in these two proposed towns, was a hotel that was run for a few years, and depended on Fond du Lac for its patronage. Fond du Lac withstood the panic of 1857 better than any other community in the Lake Superior region. While the population may not have greatly incerased in numbers, it remained a place of considerable importance at the head of the lake. The records of the county commissioners of St. Louis county show that one of the first county roads built was from Fond du Lac to Oneota, and thence to Duluth.

The fur trade gradually became less, the Indians were removed to reservations into the interior of the state, and the town became a suburb of the great city that has during the last twenty years grown up within sight of Lake Superior. The project to utilize the falls of Niagara and transmit its power long distances by electricity, has called the attention of capitalists to the water powers of the country. It was seen that there exists in the falls of the St. Louis river immense possibilities, which are shortly to be developed. In the winter of 1890-1, the state legislature passed an act which was aproved April 2, 181, enlarging the city of Duluth. By this act Fond du Lac became a part of Duluth on Jan. 1, 185. Seeing the need of immediate improvements, the citizens Fond du Lac organized a village government in 1893. The first officers of this government were: Charles Gasper, president; William H. Hollenbeck, recorder; B. F. Bishop, O. A. Peterson and E L. Hogstead, trustees, C. H. Miller, treasurer.

There exists an impression, among those not familiar with the country, that the Lake Superior region possesses a climate so rigorous as to make it almost unbearable, particularly during the winter months. This is a great mistake. While the thermometer, in winter, indicates a lower temperature than in the East and South, the dry atmosphere makes even the coldest weather more bearable than in regions of less severe but moister climates. It is a well-known fact that in regions of intense cold, mankind is endowed with stronger constitutions and healthier bodies, and are more vigorous and energetic, because they are freed from enervating influences. From October to March little or no rain falls, with heavy rains in the spring, which is the wet season. The summers, rarely hot, are always pleasant and healthy, from the refreshing breezes that flow from the lake, while the autumn season is scarcely equalled in its delightfulness anywhere in America. Here are known the most perfect Indian summers of the continent. No scene is lovelier than that of the full moon on an Indian summer night, or the matchless splendor of Aurora Borealis as seen here. This delightful season is prolonged late into the fall and often near the holidays. Heavy snows rarely fall until after midwinter, and then even in less quantity than further inland. Much of the severe weather of other sections of the Northwest is escaped by the temperating influence of Lake Superior's waters. The mortality is less than in any other American city of its size. The Lake Superior country is destined to become, in the very near future, the great summer resort of the nation. But there are quite a number of people whose health, owing to the east and northeast lake winds, particularly of the springs, does not permit them to live in the immediate vicinity of the lake shore. While allowing those people to enjoy all the advantages of this healthful climate, Fond du Lac affords a locality free from these winds. In this village, health and longevity are almost assured facts. The oldest person in the village, where he has spent most of his lifetime, lived to be 111 years old.

No locality in this section offers more inducements for pleasant homes and pleasure seekers than this. The lovers of romantic scenery are delighted with the beautiful groves of elm, oak, birch and other native trees, the islands in the river and the placid waters between. Business and professional men who spend hours over the desk, in the stores, or about the workshops, crave relaxation and a few hours in the open air at the close of the day's work. Those who have their homes along the High Crowns In Women's Fall Hats a Debatable Question—Toques Are Popular In Paris—The Question of Bonnets Is Being Discussed.

New York, June 20.—The June Millinery Trade Review says—After this date, perhaps, we may be able to sort matters a bit. At present writing it is impossible even to hazard a guess concerning the shapes most likely to be chosen for the Fall, so divided are the opinions on the subject. The fashions of today, which should be our guide, exhibit such variety that there is little faith to be placed in them as shadowing forth those of the future.

Once more we are confronted with the problem—is a return to higher crowns imminent? One or two first-rate firms answer this in the affirmative, whereas others of equal importance flout the idea altogether. The same uncertainty prevail with respect to the much talked of revival of small toques and bonnets. They undoubtedly have a following, both in the millinery world and with the public, but whether this is sufficient to ensure them an all-round success, remains to be seen.

Probably the fact that the princess bonnet and other forms of a similar description have been taken up seriously by the best people in England, may have an influence on fashions here. Many orders for bonnets have lately been executed by the Paris milliners for court ladies in London. At the official afternoon reception, held by the king and queen at Holyrood castle last week, all the ladies wore bonnets or capotes. The greater number of these are made entirely of gossamer fabrics trimmed for the most part with ostrich tips, lace and sequins. Some, however, are built up of a combination of gossamer and straw braids, and these had generally plumes for trimming. In some few cases strings were added—the princess bonnet is not really complete without this addition. As a rule, Parisians do not borrow their millinery fashions from over the channel; still, it is an historical fact that this has happened more than once.

Toquets and quite small hats are made for wear in Paris, but their numbers are somewhat restricted, and the capote merely looms as a future possibility. On the other hand, fewer large picture hats are seen than usual at this season of the year. So far as hats go, it is the medium sizes that prevail most. The toques, however, are decidedly voluminous and their brims turn or roll up very high, at least in front and at the sides.

Many of the latter are of plateau form in the center, the brim rolled up in a graceful curve, from the front and ears, its border converging inward and apparently kept in this position by the trimming. Others, also flat in the center, have the brim turned up all the way around, but slanting somewhat outward. Nevertheless, a stiff appearance is avoided by the use of loosely woven braids. Moreover, the brim may wave slightly, but not enough to give a regular tricorne effect.

Toques with the brim turned straight up against a wide flat crown, on the contrary, have a solid stiff appearance, particularly noticeable where fine English straw is used, or plain braids arranged in leaf or shell form set flat against the brim and lapping one over the other. At the race meet held in honor of King Edward, Mme. Loubet wore a toque of this sort in fancy Tuscan braids trimmed with a white feather fastened in front, transversing the top of the crown, its tip curling down in the neck behind. These toques are much affected by women no longer young. Where a square or semi-circular notch is cut out of the back, so as to form "ears" at the sides, they approach bonnets very nearly.

Only quite a young face looks well under a flat plateau or the new sailor with a very low crown and rather wide brim, but it is only necessary to raise them on a cachepeigne, or to roll or fold back the brim on one or both sides, to obtain a hat more generally becoming. These shapes are trimmed as flat as possible whether the decorations be flowers, fruits, birds, ostrich or soft-textured ribbons. Indeed, in no case are floral decorations, leaves, etc., arranged so as to give additional height to the shape, whatever may be the form chosen.

Among the plateau hats I have noted is one in a delightful combination of pastel shades. The fancy braids of which it is made are pale lavender. Wide ribbon, showing stripes of two shades of gray and pink line-striped with white, is drawn through a loop of the straw in front; the ends, after passing through the sides, are arranged in flat bows underneath the brim. Outside the trimming further consists of a small chaplet of heliotrope on the left and a flat garland of tiny blush roses and green buds running from the right side around the back.

Another, made of fancy black braids, has several large whitish-green daises on the left side, balanced on the right by a spray of black velvet daisies with yellow hearts and a small knot of sky-blue ribbon velvet. The whole of this trimming lies quite flat, but the hat is raised in front on a velvet coronet, and, moreover, the front portion of the brim is curiously trimmed underneath with big, pendant jet of spangles sewn very closely together.

The best specimens of low-crowned hats include one made of cream-colored braids. This has the edge of the brim slightly rolled and worked over with half-inch wide black velvet, first one way, then the other, so that the velvet forms a series of crosses. A wreath of miniature white roses and a fringe of beads rests on the sides and back of the brim, finished with tufts of green leaves on each side.

Another in burnt yellow straw is almost entirely wreathed around with full-blown double poppies, shaded from violet to palest lilac; the interval being filled up with a large flat rosette of black ribbon velvet. Two bands of the ribbon, starting from this rosette, cross the crown, pass through the straw, and are fastened underneath the brim on the left by a second flat rosette.

Another flat hat is in high favor just now. Here the crown is so low as to be almost non-existent, and it is covered with cherries laid closely side by side like the fruit in an open cherry tart, surrounded by a border of leaves or a of these is in burnt straw worked over in magnified cross-stitch with green band of green velvet. The brim of one velvet ribbon.

Ribbon velvet, in widths varying from half an inch to two inches in breadth, is much in demand. Quillings of the broadest width are used to encircle the low crowns of the new sailors. In brown and maroon they make a nice trimming for a simple hat in burnt straw. Satin or taffeta ribbons are also quilled and laid around the inner edge of the brim of rolled toques.

The most novel trimming, however, made out of ribbon is a flat rosette obtained by folding the ribbon double, gathering it up closely and then sewing it in a spiral on a circular piece of buckram. These rosettes are of different sizes, some measuring at least four inches across. When properly made they look very much like full-blown roses. They suit almost any situation to which a flat trimming is adapted. Sometimes they are placed one on each side of a low-crowned sailor joined by bands of the same ribbon passing over the crown, when the hat may be further trimmed with a garland of flowers resting on the back of the brim only, or with a bird purposely prepared to lie as flat as possible, and which lies athwart the center of the hat, beneath the cross-bands. They prove also an attractive addition to a floral plateau made of small blossoms, such as daisies, cornflowers, small heartsease, etc., inserted on one side among the flowers and fixing bands of ribbon caught over the edge of the brim. I have also seen them used to fasten back the folded or rolled brim of a hat or toque. The following is a good example of this arrangement, as applied to one of the large toques:

This is of the plateau form in the center, with the brim rolled very high in front and at the sides. It is built up of rose-pink fancy braids, loosely laced together by bands of pink mousseline. A large rosette of pink satin ribbon lies flat on top of the rolled brim aver the right ear, and a smaller one is set against thet front of the brim, the two being joined by a taut band of the ribbon. Both the rosettes and band of ribbon are edged with a narrow garland of shamrock.

Some notable exceptions to the very general rule of trimming low are to be found in some of the latest models, other than toques, in the decoration of which mephisto plumes and upright couteaux have been used for some time.

A sort of prince of Wales' plume is the decoration chosen for the high-crowned hats that have lately put in an appearance. The three feathers are fastened together in front of the crown, the center one erect, the others bending right and left, underside foremost, and all the tips curling even to the front.

One hat trimmed in this way, with three long ostrich tips shaded from "champagne" to white, is made of white mousseline de sole applique, with handsome scrolls of ecru guipure lace. It has a moderately high crown, somewhat broader at the top, and a broad brim pressed down against the hair at the back and slightly waved in front. It have also noticed in some other hats trimmed with ostrich, a tendency to adopt arrangements which show off the feather to much better effect than those that have lately been resorted to. A feather lying flat loses much of its beauty; it appears to much better advantage when gracefully curved. On some of the hats with the brim rolled at the side, the feathers are fastened in front and then sweep back, following the curve of the brim. A sort of Amazon hat in fine sewn Tuscan is trimmed thus, with two white Amazons, between which, in front, is a much curved yellow tip.

An important impetus is given to the ostrich feather trade by a revival of a taste for shorter feathers and tips. While the Amazon reigned alone, ostrich had necessarily to be confined to the trimming of broad brimmed hats, but the former are suitable to smaller hats, toques and toquets.

It is understood that owners of a seasonable sort, and especially foliage and fruits—generally much reduced in size—and berries, will be maintained as fashionable trimmings right on through the fall. Still they have formidable rivals in plumage of different sorts. Birds are already in much demand. As we have seen, birds arranged so as to be quite flat are favorite trimmings for plateaux, the new sailors and other hats which have to be trimmed low, and also for placing underneath or against turned-up brims. Many sorts of birds are treated in this way, including parrots and others with bright-colored plumage, besides white doves and white or pale-gray seabirds. Small tropical birds are also shown. These are used in pairs, frequently, to fasten to the sides of rolled toques.

Quill feathers are likewise in much request, as are also mephisto plumes; but, whereas the former are preferred by the best houses in their simple form and plain but dyed in different colors or glace tints, to suit the straw shapes they are intended to trim, the mephisto plumes are often of a very fanciful description and frequently only feathers in name, being made of stiffened silk gauze covered with jet or colored sequins. Long-pointed leaves made up in the same way, clustered over with black or pearl sequins, are sometimes introduced in garlands of natural green foliage. On the other hand, green reeds and leaves shaped accordingly are now and again used as substitutes for couteaux and mephisto plumes.

For traveling and outing wear, the dress of lawn games, and general service, the inevitable sailor hat, which long ago defended its right to existence by its convenience, has put in a reappearance. And this season, turning a cold shoulder on the fanciful in its trimming, it has been rendered peculiarly pleasing, and more than ever popular, by its simplicity.

Some of the most attractive of the new sailor hats, which are fashioned with a medium wide and medium low square crown, and a flat brim somewhat shortened at the back, are of the new braid referred to in the foregoing—namely, of coarse, whole-wheat straw in its native yellow, in basket platting, pressed perfectly flat, varied by models in which the straw is cut in suitable short bits, is applied in the effect of fish-scales, and pressed flat. The band of ribbon, about an inch and a half in width, passed around the crown and terminading in a flat bow at the left side, an osprey quill, or quill of other bird suited to the purpose, thrust through the bow, is the only decoration—the brim being unfaced or self-faced, and unbound on the edge.

The most recent development of fancy in hats for elegant dress in summer are those which are made objectively of embroidered mull and laces. The muslin and the laces in these hats show specially designed crown-tops and brim-coverings, and these in the making up of the hats are stretched tightly and smoothly over the wire frame, the creation being transparent or semi-transparent, according to the absence of lining of the character of the lining employed.

A large hat with wide and medium low square crown, and brim flaring around the front and drooping at the back, of white embroidered mull, faced with folds of white tulle, and the crown lined with a single ply of tulle, the crown and the brim edged with a cluster of tulle folds, has the crown encircled with two smoothly laid bands of folded white satin ribbon, and a little to the left of the front of the crown a tuft of three demi-long curling ostrich tips, posed upright and nodding forward.

In examining a comprehensive stock of veilings, a surprising variety in texture and design is to be discovered. The latest penchant in what has been termed "the beauty veil" is for that of silk tulle of wide-open meshes "woven undotted; yet dotted veilings have their persistent advocates, and textures of tulle are laid out for inspection thickly seeded, as it were, with specks of velvet as minute as the tiniest beads; and from this are tissues flecked with dots of all sizes up to that of a silver half-dime piece—the larger the dots the scarcer on the surface of the texture. Contrasting with the tulle of wide-open meshes, are shown tulles of very fine close texture, some of them revealing printed tracery designs—as of black on white grounding, for example, or of white on black—flecked sparsely with small chenille dots, or with velvet dots.

Black veils continue to be in the highest favor; yet the women of fashion have their white, gray-mixed and pure gray beauty veils, for changes, and tulle veilings of open meshes have come out in red, blues, brown, violet, amethyst, and all the fashionable cloth colors, flecked with chenille dots. Scarf veils in imitation Mechlin and other of the delicate point laces are worn in high dress by fashionable women; and bordered lace veils, worn in the old flowing fashion, contest selection with the simple recent veilings. Chifon veilings of hemstitched finish, seen both plain and dotted, are those chiefly chosen for the purpose of protecting the complexion of wearers from the air, the sun and the cold. The chiffon veilings are in black, white, gray, and all the colors approved for veils.

Birds and bird plumage are likely to be as popular this season as they were last Fall and Winter, if not more so. The agitation over the question of the agreement with the Audubon societies and the buying and selling of certain varieties of birds and bird plumage has attracted the attention of the public at large to this class of millinery. Some people who have had no thought of using quills or wings are now asking for them to wear with outing and Summer hats, and there is latitude enough within the law to allow for extended catering on the part of manufacturers of these goods to satisfy the demands of the public.

Miss Nettie Blackmore, Minneapolis, tells how any young woman may be permanently cured of monthly pains by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"YOUNG WOMEN:—I had frequent headaches of a severe nature, dark spots before my eyes, and at my menstrual periods I suffered untold agony. A member of the lodge advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, but I only scorned good advice and felt that my case was hopeless, but she kept at me until I bought a bottle and started taking it. I soon had the best reason in the world to change my opinion of the medicine, as each day my health improved, and finally I was entirely without pain at my menstruation periods. I am most grateful."—NETTIE BLACKMORE, 28 Central Ave., Minneapolis, Minn.

Painful Periods

are quickly and permanently overcome by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. The above letter is only one of hundreds of thousands which prove this statement to be a fact. Menstruation is a severe strain on a woman's vitality,—if it is painful something is wrong. Don't take narcotics to deaden the pain, but remove the cause—perhaps it is caused by irregularity or womb displacements, or the development of a tumor. Whatever it is, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is guaranteed to cure it.

If there is anything about your case about which you would like special advice, write freely to Mrs. Pinkham. No man will see your letter. She can surely help you, for no person in America has such a wide experience in treating female ills as she has had. She has helped hundreds of thousands of women back to health. Her address is Lynn, Mass., and her advice is free. You are very foolish if you do not accept her kind invitation.

Details of Another Case.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Ignorance and carelessness is the cause of most of the sufferings of women. I believe that if we properly understood the laws of health we would all be well, but if the sick women only knew the truth about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, they would be saved much suffering and would soon be cured.

"I used it for five months for a local difficulty which had troubled me for years, and for which I had spent hundreds of dollars in the vain endeavor to rectify. My life forces were being sapped, and I was daily losing my vitality.

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cured me completely, and I am now enjoying the best of health, and am most grateful, and only too pleased to endorse such a great remedy."—MISS JENNIE L. EDWARDS, 604 H St., N. W., Washington, D. C.

Mrs. Pinkham, whose address is Lynn, Mass., will answer cheerfully and without cost all letters addressed to her by sick women.

FEAR A FLOOD.

People of Albuquerque Living In Great Terror.

Albuquerque, N. M., June 19.—The people of this city are living in constant fear of being overwhelmed by the flood from the Rio Grande river. The breaks in the dyke and the Alameda, ten miles above the city, sent down a tremendous volume of water against the eight-foot Acequia embankment, a mile above the city.

The water was near the top of the embankment, when the alarm was given and several hundred citizens rushed to the Acequia and began the work of strengthening it with sacks of sand. They worked throughout the night and managed to prevent the flood waters coming down upon the city.

COAL STRIKE ENDED.

Victoria, B. C., June 19.—The coal strike of Vancouver island, in consequence of which steamers have had to bring coal from Newcastle and Japan to supply the coast market, held by the Vancouver island collieries, is now at an end. The striking miners have petitioned Dr. Dunsmuir, head of the mining company, to be allowed to return to work and he will meet them at Ladysmith today.

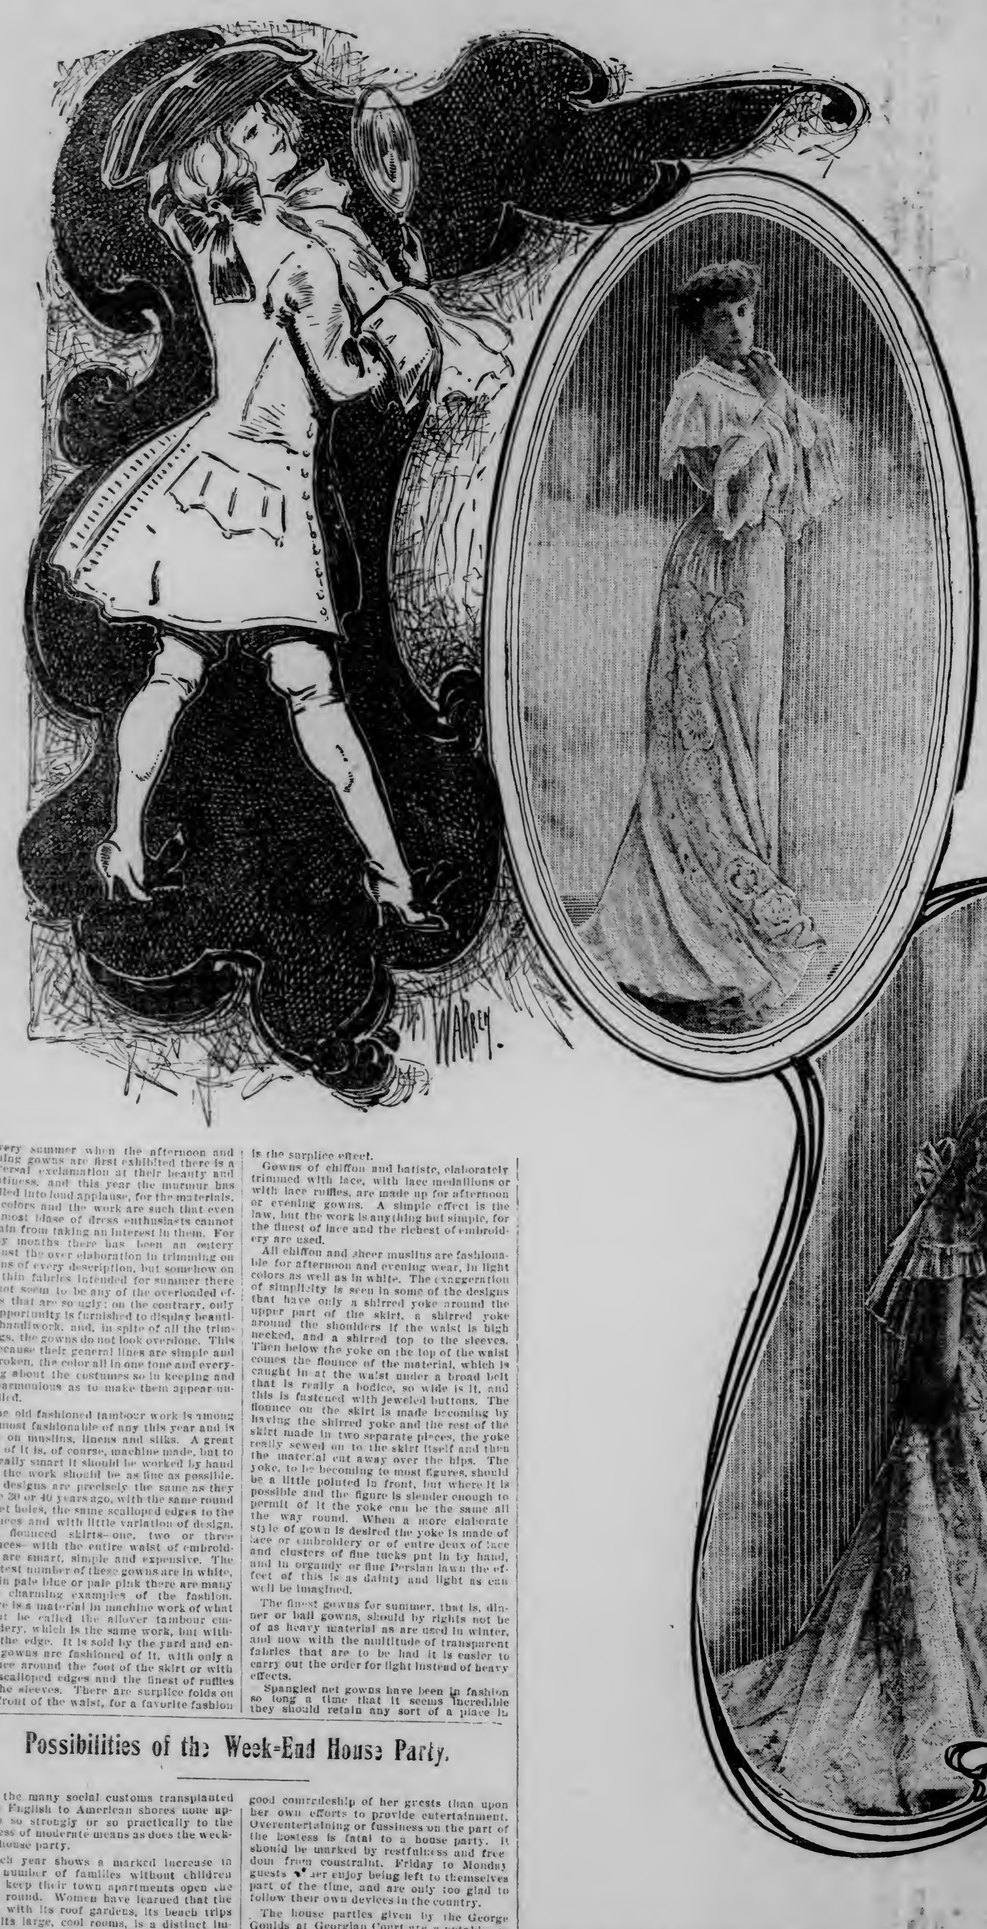
PARIS FASHIONS: Embroidered Gowns for Summer Evenings



Every summer when the afternoon and evening gowns are first exhibited there is a universal exclamation at their beauty and daintiness, and this year the murmur has swelled into loud applause, for the materials, the colors and the work are such that even the most blase of dress enthusiasts cannot refrain from taking an interest in them. For many months there has been an outcry against the over elaboration in trimming on gowns of every description, but somehow on the thin fabrics intended for summer there do not seem to be any of the overloaded effects that are so ugly; on the contrary, only an opportunity is furnished to display beautiful handiwork, and, in spite of all the trimmings, the gowns do not look overdone. This is because their general lines are simple and unbroken, the color all in one tone and everything about the costumes so in keeping and so harmonious as to make them appear unstudied.

The old fashioned tambour work is among the most fashionable of any this year and is seen on muslins, linens and silks. A great deal of it is, of course, machine made, but to be really smart it should be worked by hand and the work should be as fine as possible. The designs are precisely the same as they were 30 or 40 years ago, with the same round eyelet holes, the same scalloped edges to the flounces and with little variation of design. The flounced skirts—one, two or three flounces—with the entire waist of embroidery, are smart, simple and expensive. The greatest number of these gowns are in white, but in pale blue or pale pink there are many very charming examples of the fashion. There is a material in machine work of what might be called the silover tambour embroidery, which is the same work, but without the edge. It is sold by the yard and entire gowns are fashioned of it, with only a flounce around the foot of the skirt or with the scalloped edges and the finest of ruffles on the sleeves. There are surplice folds on the front of the waist, for a favorite fashion is the surplice effect.

Gowns of chiffon and batiste, elaborately trimmed with lace, with lace medallions or with lace ruffles, are made up for afternoon or evening gowns. A simple effect is the law, but the work is anything but simple, for the finest of lace and the richest of embroidery are used.

All chiffon and sheer muslins are fashionable for afternoon and evening wear, in light colors as well as in white. The exaggeration of simplicity is seen in some of the designs that have only a shirred yoke around the upper part of the skirt, a shirred yoke around the shoulders if the waist is high necked, and a shirred top to the sleeves. Then below the yoke on the top of the waist comes the flounce of the material, which is caught in at the waist under a broad belt that is really a bodice, so wide is it, and this is fastened with jeweled buttons. The flounce on the skirt is made becoming by having the shirred yoke and the rest of the skirt made in two separate pieces, the yoke really sewed on to the skirt itself and then the material cut away over the hips. The yoke, to be becoming to most figures, should be a little pointed in front, but where it is possible and the figure is slender enough to permit of it the yoke can be the same all the way round. When a more elaborate style of gown is desired the yoke is made of lace or embroidery or of entre deux of lace and clusters of fine tucks put in by hand, and in organdy or fine Persian lawn the effect of this is as dainty and light as can well be imagined.

The finest gowns for summer, that is, dinner or ball gowns, should by rights not be of as heavy material as are used in winter, and now with the multitude of transparent fabrics that are to be had it is easier to carry out the order for light instead of heavy effects.

Spangled net gowns have been in fashion so long a time that it seems incredible they should retain any sort of a place in fashion's domains, and yet they are almost without exception effective, cool looking and dainty, so that it is not surprising after all that this summer again sees them made up in the smartest of gowns. The patterns of the spangles are different from those formerly used, as are also the beads and paillettes. White and silver or black and silver are more fashionable than anything else. The chiffon embroidered with white cut beads mixed with paillettes of silver or the fine net completely covered with tiny star shaped spangles woven into the material are really the newest of all and quite a new fancy is the wearing of these spangled gowns over colored linings—the palest blue, yellow or pink—of any thin material with a foundation always of white silk, so that the color is very faint.

Accordion plaited dinner and ball gowns for summer are as fashionable as they were in the winter, and in all the light stuffs look especially well. It is by no means an easy matter to trim these skirts, and yet an immense amount of trimming is now put on them, rather in contrast to the perfectly plain accordion plaits of the simpler frocks. Bands and lace entre-deux medallions of lace and always a lace edge to the skirt, varying in width from two inches to a band half a yard deep, are some of the characteristics, and the lace insertion that is finished with an irregular edge is considered for the moment smarter than that with the plain edge. The way in which the points or irregular finish of the lace insertion runs up into the plaits is always effective, so that it is not marvellous that the fashion is a popular one. The effort to introduce the flounced and ruffled skirt is also seen again in this style, and with alternate flounces of lace and plaited chiffon, tulle, batiste or whatever the material may be. Gowns made entirely of lace are, of course, fashionable, and always will be, but they are not now so new as these gowns with the combination of lace flounces and accordion plaited ones, and on the low cut waists to wear with the skirts the chiffon and lace are most cleverly combined. When there are sleeves there will be a cap of lace and the lower part of the chiffon will be draped across the front of the waist and the lace will fall over it. In other words, there is a very clever combination of the two materials, which has the ultimate object of showing off to the best possible advantage the lace itself.

The economical woman finds much to be thankful for in this combination of lace and chiffon, for lace jackets can be worn over the chiffon and lace gowns, and will transform a dinner gown into an afternoon gown, as the unlined lace of the jacket simply forms a yoke and sleeves without interfering with the effect of the waist itself, and yet disguises it so that when the waist is worn without the jacket it is a smart dinner or ball gown. Let no one, however, delude herself into the belief that a chiffon and lace gown is an inexpensive one. It is one of the luxuries of the times, and while a good investment because it can be renovated and changed in so many different ways, invariably requires an outlay of considerable money.

Possibilities of the Week-End House Party.

Of the many social customs transplanted from English to American shores none appeals so strongly or so practically to the hostess of moderate means as does the week-end house party.

Each year shows a marked increase in the number of families without children who keep their town apartments open the year round. Women have learned that the city, with its roof gardens, its beach trips and its large, cool rooms, is a distinct improvement over the summer resort, with its noisy modes of entertainment, its eternal round of dressing and its stuffy, incommodious rooms. Many a wife who could amply afford to spend the entire heated term out of the city, will remain this year to share with her husband the pleasures of summer evenings in town, which, by the way, are not to be despised.

To these couples in particular an invitation for a week-end house party will prove most welcome.

The duties of the week-end hostess are most simple, if she only realized it. She arranges her parties with infinite tact, knowing that success will depend more upon the good comradeship of her guests than upon her own efforts to provide entertainment. Overentertaining or fussiness on the part of the hostess is fatal to a house party. It should be marked by restfulness and freedom from constraint. Friday to Monday guests rather enjoy being left to themselves part of the time, and are only too glad to follow their own devices in the country.

The house parties given by the George Goulds at Georgian Court are a notable example of this principle. Their beautiful home, their luxurious grounds, the pleasures and amusements of their family are placed at the disposal of the week-end guest, but no set form of entertainment, no formal functions are provided. Yet of all the invitations issued by the smart set none are more eagerly sought than those which come from Georgian Court.

If Mrs. Suburbanite is wise she will follow the same plan. Her guest rooms will be as large, airy and daintily furnished as her purse affords. She will give more attention to her porch furnishings in summer than to thin draperies for her drawing room. The weary cityite, whose first glimpse of his host's home takes in a veranda scattered with easy chairs and cushions, a wicker table for the afternoon tea service and the new magazines, a hammock, cosey corners and arbors in the garden, feels that he is doubly welcome. What is but a part of his hostess' everyday life forms the novelty for the guest. News that the country club has opened up golf links is more interesting and pleasing than the announcement that other suburbanites are to join the party for progressive euchre or bridge in the evening. Anything more formal than an impromptu dance at the country club is really in bad taste. And the hostess who has any regard for the spine, nerves and temper of her guests will eschew the straw ride. Hayracks still possess a fascination for the very young set of society. The older guests prefer less strenuous methods of entertainment. A porch dimly lighted by Japanese lanterns, plenty of pretty girls, someone who can thrum a banjo, cooling drinks—this represents comfort.

Where guests arrive on Friday there is generally some such informal entertaining as a dance at the clubhouse. In case guests do not arrive before Saturday the party is tolerably sure of finding ample and congenial entertainment within its own ranks, riding and driving if the host has horses; the early morning tramp over the hills or through the woods, the rest of the day on the links or the tennis court, the evenings on the dim, breezy porch, or, in case of storm, indoors, with music and cards and all that the house party fiend wants or expects.

There lives in Westchester county a couple whose week end parties are more than famous among art and literary folk of New York, yet their entertaining is of the simplest sort. The head of the family is a publisher, who frankly confesses that his income has never reached the point where he could move his family of three boys and two girls to the city for the winter.

Their assets for entertaining consist of a great, roomy, old fashioned house, with porches all around it, a vista of darkling woods, two devoted servants, a rollicking, creaky old phaeton and a gray horse who knows his business so well that he pauses instinctively before the fields where the best wild flowers grow.

In this home no entertaining is done save from Friday to Monday, but on those days the house is always filled with guests during spring and summer. The men spend their mornings fishing in a nearby brook, which would be scorned by the boys of the village, or on the nearest links, while the women often drive to the nearest town, where their hostess buys such supplies as are not raised in their own garden. Dinner comes in true country style at noon, and supper is often served on the porch. All day Sunday the family horse earns his oats, and the broad veranda looks as if a newsstand had been overturned upon it, for each man has his favorite Sunday paper. Only intimate friends among the neighbors call during this time, for the sacredness of the house party is respected by these happily constituted suburbanites. Twice a month, on Saturday afternoon, the Country Club has a series of matches on the grounds, and on the alternate Saturdays gives a most informal dance, with music by local players and refreshments limited to ices and cakes.

In speaking of her long series of house parties, the hostess says:

"We never knew until quite lately that in giving these week-end parties we were doing a most fashionable stunt. It has long been my husband's fad to have his city friends here over Sunday, and while we entertain almost every week during our 'season,' I do not believe we spend as much as one of our city friends on her winter round of teas, luncheons and dinners. We do not set an elaborate table, but offer what we know our guests do not have in town—fruits, vegetables, eggs and chickens raised on our own place. This style of entertaining does not entail the specially prepared programme of amusements necessary when you have guests for a week or more and country life begins to pall upon them. My servants know that company is limited to these three days, and there will be no confusion during the rest of the week.

Another hostess has even less to offer in her pretty New Jersey home, yet her invitations for the week-end are always accepted with gratitude.

"You see," she said, "our guests seldom arrive before Saturday afternoon, and by the time they have slipped into something cool and summery and have had dinner they ask nothing more than a quiet, restful evening on the porch, where the men smoke and the girls—look pretty. Sunday morning's breakfast is a movable feast, which I prepare myself. This gives the guests a chance for the sleep they cannot get in town, with milk wagons and elevated trains clanging at daybreak. The arrangement also gives my one servant a chance to go to church and reconciles her to the 6 o'clock dinner.

"For the breakfast I have fresh fruit, prepared cereals, rolls, coffee and eggs or other dishes easy to prepare, so that my morning's work is not a hardship for myself, nor does it make my tardy guests feel that they are putting me to much extra trouble. However, they are usually down and ready for outdoor pleasures by half-past 9 o'clock.

"We have no horses, but our street leads to the woods, which are alive with wild flowers, and we sacrificed our side lawn to tennis. Men in particular do not seem to desire entertainment. Given an ugly black pipe, an interesting book and a shady corner on a velvety lawn, they seem supremely content, or a group of them will spend hours playing 'catch,' as if it were a new found amusement.

"Luncheon is served on the porch, and the 6 o'clock dinner is the one formal event of their stay. Occasionally we increase the dinner party by inviting a couple of our neighbors. From experience I have found that the week-end party, composed of people who are held in town all summer by business, does not wish to be entertained too much. They want to be let alone, to loaf comfortably and in congenial company. The art of letting people alone is one that our English cousins cultivate gracefully. Americans, as a rule, are apt to overact the role of hostess. Our guests include both personal friends and the men and women whom my husband meets in a business way, so we begin to entertain very early. May and June are ideal months for house parties, for then the woods and the fields are at their best. Occasionally we join with our neighbors in giving a dance at the village club house, but we make it a point to have young people in our party at such times. The older set seem to enjoy better the porch, with its hammock and easy chairs, the new magazines and cooling drinks. A summer hostess should aim at simplicity if she wishes her guests to feel at ease with her and themselves. A flustered hostess is bad enough in winter; in summer she is intolerable."

The guest who is joining her first house party should give considerable thought to the clothes she will take with her. If the hostess she will take with her. If the hostess and hostess are known to go in for athletic sports she will prepare accordingly. If she plays golf she takes her own sticks, or if it is tennis, her own racket. If the home is on the water front and sailing will be in order she takes her thick veil, her sweater or her reefer. The overdressed girl is distinctly out of place in a house party whose members go in heavily for sports. If there are horses and she rides she will, of course, need her habit.

The traveling gown is important no matter how short the trip. Last summer a Stamford hostess was astonished and annoyed to receive among her guests at the depot a young girl (who, by the way, ought to have known better) arrayed in a lace trimmed dimity and a picture hat fit only for a garden party. The traveling gown may be of light weight cloth, linen or the new taffeta woven in imitation of linen. A hat in the sailor effect, ready to wear straw style, silk or lisle gloves and walking shoes or ties complete the toilet. If the traveling gown barely escapes the ground she will need even a shorter skirt for the walking and golfing. Plenty of clean shirt waists, and, if the host be a devout churchgoer, a smart but simple bodice, will be needed to wear Sunday morning with the travelling suit. Fashionable suburbanites dress very simply for churchgoing.

One dainty dinner dress will suffice, for it will do service also for the dance at the country club. Organdie, mousseline and dimity, made with elbow sleeves and a low neck, are most appropriate.

In England, where the dinner hour is very late, the women consider an elaborate tea gown essential. Here tea is seldom served indoors, and the company, if it gathers at all for the afternoon refreshment, will stroll in from the links and the fields in outdoor costume. A woman will do well, however, to carry a kimono, or thin tea jacket, for wear in her own room when resting.

The guest should never fail to notify her hostess of the hour of her arrival, and, unless her invitation expressly states otherwise, she should leave with the other guests on Monday. Last, but not least, the finicky girl, the girl who never feels quite sure that she wants to do what the others like, should stay away from the house party, unless she expects to be placed on her hostess' black list forever. The house party is no place for the whimsical, capricious girl, but the wholesome, fun-loving, tactful girl is always in demand for the week-end functions.

Green Gooseberry Jelly.

Wash the berries and take off the tops; to six pounds of gooseberries pour a scant pint of filtered water and simmer until the gooseberries are well broken; turn into a jelly bag and let drain through; measure the juice, then put back on the fire and boil rapidly for fifteen minues; draw it back from the fire and stir into it an equal quantity of sugar, sifted fine; then boil it fifteen to twenty minues longer, or until it jellies strongly on the spoon; while boiling it must be kept perfectly free from scum.

THE WEEK IN SOCIETY

Weddings are demanding all the attention that they are supposed to attract in June, and the superstition, or whatever it is that make people want to marry in June, is not dying out, several have been celebrated this week and others are promised for the remaining time. The one for next week that will attract the most attention is the wedding, Tuesday evening, of Miss Clara Hector and James F. Walsh. It is to take place at Pilgrim Congregational church, and the bride will be attended by her sister, Miss Stell Hector, and the groom's attendant will be Charles O. Baldwin. The ushers are to be John Martin, C. P. McCormick, Elmer White and L. Keith, of Little Falls. Mrs. J. N. McKinley will play the wedding marches, and before the ceremony Miss Rena Smith will sing.

Any number of theater parties saw "The Charity Ball" yesterday at the Lyceum. The production of this ever-popular drama has roused more interest in society's circles than has a like event for some years. The piece was staged beautifully, and each member of the cast did work that brought forth enthusiastic praise from all that saw the performance. The audience was a large and fashionable one. A number of parties went to Superior last evening where it was again played.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Clark Fagg, of Milwaukee, have been in the city this week.

* * *

The last Assembly party of the season will be given Friday evening at the Spalding. The party that closes the season will be more elaborate and larger than any of the previous parties, and with the usual fine management will probably be of more interest to the young folks than any of the June affairs.

* * *

Miss Ida Magie, of 1101 East Superior street, returned during the week from St. Paul, where she has been attending school.

* * *

Miss Josephine Sattler returned the first of the week from Minneapolis, where she had been attending school. She will spend her vacation in Duluth.

* * *

Mrs. C. H. Whitemore and children, of 1007 East Third street, has returned from a two months' visit with friends at Wabasha, Minn.

* * *

Miss Lulu Jones, Miss Ruth Ely and Miss Mary Bartlett, who have been visiting at the Jones cottage at Deerwood for the past two weeks, returned home Thursday.

* * *

Mrs. Henry R. Grachau and son, of St. Paul, are visiting friends in the city.

* * *

Miss Grace Sheridan and Miss Jessie Sheridan left Friday for St. Paul to attend the wedding of Miss Mollie Kenny.

* * *

Mrs. John Coventry and children left yesterday for a several weeks' visit with friends in Canada.

* * *

Miss Gertrude Voss left Friday for a short lake trip.

* * *

Miss Katherine Ensign, of 504 East Second street, and her guest, Miss Mary Downey, of Ottumwa, Iowa, left yesterday for the East. They will attend the library convention at Niagara.

* * *

Miss Charlotte Partridge, who has been attending Dana, will return home this evening.

* * *

Miss Mildred Cleland returned Saturday from Wells college.

* * *

Mrs. J. A. Stephenson left yesterday for a visit with friends at Boston.

The Woman's Relief corps of the G. A. R. will give an excursion next Thursday to Fond du Lac on the steamer Newsboy.

Wednesday evening the marriage of Miss Mattie Marietta Burgo, daughter of Mrs. Elizabeth Burgo, to William James Gray took place at the home of the bride's mother, 126 West Third street. The ceremony was performed under an arch in the front parlor, Dr. S. P. Long, of the First Methodist church, reading the service. The bridesmaid was Miss Anna Cook, and John Burgo was best man. The bride was gowned in a dainty gown of cream crepe de chine over silk and carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley. Miss Cook's gown was cream London twine trimmed with Cluny lace. Miss Sadie Black played the wedding marches. Mr. and Mrs. Gray will be at home at 410 Gray terrace.

The following from a Minneapolis paper will be of interest to many Duluth people, as Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Holden and their daughter were well known here during their residence here some years ago.

"The engagement of Miss Fanny P. Holden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Holden, of New York, and Howard Butler, of New York, is announced. Miss Holden is a sister of Mrs. Dana Case and has been a frequent visitor at the lake. The wedding will take place in October and Mrs. Case will be her sister's matron of honor."

Tuesday the annual outing of the Delta Sigma Nu fraternity of the high school took place and was the usual jolly affair. The party left early in the morning in the Swansea, and after luncheon at the end of Wisconsin Point, returned in the boat and went for a trip out in the lake. The chaperones were Mrs. J. M. Miller and Mrs. F. C. Bowman. Those in the party were:

Hazel Owens.	Whitfred Davies.
Florence Bradley,	Helen Halg,
Genevieve Ramsey,	Lizzie Sharvy,
Margaret Willppic.	Katherine Hoops,

The management of the popular resort, Oatka Beach, Park Point, has decided to add further to its attractiveness by introducing occasionally a concert. The first of a possible series will be given next Tuesday evening at the auditorium by the Orpheus Male quartet, under the management and direction of Milton B. Griffith. This quartet, composed of William A. Cleland, first tenor; Mr. Griffith, second tenor; Claude H. Hare, baritone, and G. H. McCarthy, bass, will be assisted by the Ladies' quartet, which made such a hit in the concert given to the commercial travelers at the High School Assembly hall last Saturday night. Its personnel is: Miss Elizabeth Bailey, first soprano; Jane Everington, second soprano; Antoinette West, first alto, and Lucy Sterns, second alto. Besides these quartets there will be solo numbers by Miss Elsie Thiel, violinist; Mr. Hare and Mr. Griffith, and a reading by Miss Laura Frankenfield. Mrs. Fred G. Bradbury will be the accompanist. The concert program will close at 9:30 and the remainder of the evening will be spent in dancing by those who care for this pastime. Music for the dance will be furnished by La Brosse. Following is the program for the concert:

THE AMERICAN TRACT SOCIETY

Presents the Seventy-Eighth Annual Report of Its Work.

New York, June 20.—The seventy-eighth annual report of the American Tract society, made public today, stated that in this society a consensus has been reached as to what the Bible teaches on many, if not all, essential points, as held in common by the several evangelical denominations, in printing it in various forms and many languages and in sending it to the people in all quarters of the globe.

The new year begins with a revenue from rentals from the society's building, which will yield a considerable sum available as a sinking fund toward removing the burden of debt.

The new publications, distinct from periodicals, brought out by the society during the year are eighty-five in number. Of these fifty-six were volumes and twenty-nine tracts.

The society is now publishing seven periodicals, four in English, two in German and one in Spanish. The aggregate circulation of these periodicals during the year has been 3,090,000.

Union missionary colportage finds among the immigrants' anarchistic organizations infidel literature bitterly hostile to Christianity, and grossly immoral, and catechisms for the young. Colportage among the immigrants in cities has been diligently prosecuted.

The demand for Christian literature in the mission stations throughout the world is greater than it has been for three-quarters of a century. On the Pacific coast colportage has a peculiar power in the families where church-going and Sabbath-keeping are less general than in most states. Over 500 missionary colporters have been commissioned in more than sixty years of the society's activity in the Mississippi valley to carry the gospel to the homes of the settlers in the wildest regions of our country.

Out of 70,730 families, 9150 were found last year destitute of all religious literature, 3150 were found destitute of the Bible, 12,370 families were found that never went to religious worship. Over $250,000 in cash have been sent to India for printing the gospel in many of its varied languages.

The whole number of publications approved for circulation at the society's expense is 5013, including 972 volumes, and the society and the institutions it thus aids have issued publications in 155 languages and dialects.

The society has expended, in its seventy-seven years, in creating a Christian literature for Turkey, including the Armenians and Jews, and for Greece, $117,799, in cash grants.

DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

Calumet—The plans for the new copper range smelter have been completed and construction work will start at once. The plant will be located on the shore of Portage lake, near the mouth of Cole's creek, and about two miles west of Houghton.

The new smelter will contain five reverberatory furnaces, three of which will be melting and the other two casting furnaces, and one cupola. Every mechanical device that will prove economical will be used, and the plant will be made as near perfect as possible.

The construction of a new smelter in the lake district is the direct result of the opening and development of new and important mines south of the Portage lake waterway. The productive capacity of the mines in that section of the lake district is increasing rapidly. The new smelter will handle the product of the Stanton-Paine mines with the possibility of a few others.

Sault Ste. Marie—Commencement exercises of the high school, held in the Presbyterian church, were the finest ever held here. The graduating class of nineteen was the largest in the history of the school. Six took an active part in the exercises, George Osborne, son of the late railroad commissioner, being one of the number. The class honors were taken by Bessie F. Wright, who has gained distinction locally as an elocutionist and who expects to become a professional.

Menominee—The voting contest at Menominee, with a $500 piano as the prize, has resulted in favor of the Eastern Star lodge, which piled about 202,000 votes. The St. Jean Baptiste church was second, with 160,000. A dozen different organizations participated in the balloting.

Iron Mountain—Nick Eckerly was confined in the Iron Mountain pesthouse nineteen days, suffering with the smallpox, and it will cost the county about $500. The attending physician receives $12 a day, amounting to $228.20, while the nurse gets $5 a day, or $130. The supplies, etc., will bring the cost up to the half thousand-dollar mark.

Ironwood—Julius J. Patek, a well-known lawyer of Ironwood, writes of the crown prince of Austria, who was supposed to have been in Menominee many years ago in disguise, as follows: "On Friday, Aug. 18, 1893, I was making my way from the Hotel Saratoga, on Dearborn street, Chicago, for the World's fair to witness the Austrian day celebrations, and when I reached the corner opposite the postoffice building I noticed a well dressed, military-appearing man, whom I believe to have then and there fully recognized as the crown prince of Austria-Hungary. It seemed to me as though some one had struck me with a club or sandbag over my head. I stepped back and we looked at each other square in the eyes, whereupon I saluted him, and he, without saluting, but with an apparent forced smile on his face, turned and walked away ahead of me. "I followed him at a distance down State street, from State to Wabash avenue, then back to State, then up Monroe, then to Madison, and there I lost track of him."

A WOMAN'S WAR

By Frank Neilson.

(Copyright, 1903, by Daily Story Publishing Company.)

The queen, gazing from an open window of the palace, looked not upon the myriads of goregeous flowers in the royal gardens beneath, heard not the warblings of bright-plumaged birds, the tinkling lullabies of flowing fountains—she saw only her subjects gathering sullenly in the silent streets—she heard only the rattle of the distant drums, the rumbling of hurrying artillery, the ominous tread of maching men. Amazed and anxious she turned to meet the patriarchal man whose faltering steps had scarce announced his entrance.

"Your excellency," she exclaimed, "I have sent for you that you may explain why the preparations for the marriage are discontinued, why our troops are assembling, why the people have ceased to shout 'Live Prince Ludovic,' and scowl and mutter as they pass this way."

The gray-haired minister bowed low.

"Is it possible, your majesty, that the princess has not informed you—"

"The princess had informed me of nothing," interrupted the queen, impatiently. "It seems that the queen must beg for information possessed by her meanest subject."

"Learn, then, your majesty," said the old minister, bluntly, "that a crisis is upon us. Late last night your daughter dismissed Prince Ludovic and renounced the intended marriage. At 2 o'clock this morning the prince raging and furious, departed for his father's kingdom, taking his entire suite."

The queen sank upon a couch.

"Her reasons?" she gasped. "The princess' reasons?"

"None know, your majesty. I suspect—strongly suspect—but am not sure."

The queen summoned an attendant.

"Convey to the Princess Alicia my command that she instantly present herself before me."

"Your majesty has yet to learn the worst," continued the minister, as the messenger hurriedly departed. "At 8 o'clock this morning I received an ultimatum from the king of Montegramo. Unless within twenty-four hours the prince is recalled, an apology tendered and the marriage consummated, the king will declare war and begin hostilities."

"War?" cried the terrified queen. "War with Montegramo? Impossible! Our troops need arms, our treasury is exhausted, our people taxed to the verge of revolution. The princess shall retract—she shall apologize—the marriage shall be consummated. You will so inform the king immediately."

"One moment, your majesty. If I obey and you, after hearing the princess' explanation, should determine to sustain her and defy the king, his majesty's wrath would be intensified—"

"Have no fear, my lord. There can be no reasons sufficient to justify this outrageous conduct. I shall hear my daughter's explanation, but her foolish fancies shall not plunge us into a war that must result in the loss of our kingdom and the subjugation of our people."

"Then your majesty must not listen to the princess—"

The queen arose haughtily.

"My lord, it appears to me that you are dictating to your sovereign. Am I not take queen? Do you doubt my sincerity, my sanity?"

With trembling fingers the venerable minister unclasped the fastenings of his robe of state and allowed it to fall to the floor. He lifted the jeweled collar from his bent shoulders and cast it aside.

"See, your majesty," he said, his voice shaking with emotion, "it is not now the minister who speaks to his queen—it is the old servant who rejoiced at your birth, who held you in his arms at the christening, who has faithfully and loyally guided you through many perils to a throne.

"My queen, for many years you and your royal spouse of loving memory cherished the hope of uniting this kingdom with that of Montegramo, that you might found an empire and rear an impassable barrier against the encroachments of your mutual foes. The king of Montegramo wisely agreed, and the concurrent births of Ludovic and Alicia marked the approval of Providence. In all things fate favored your design, and the time has now arrived when your ambition may be realized and the prosperity of both nations be assured.

"My sovereign, I doubt not your sincerity, but I have grown old and gray in plot and intrigue, in the study of men and of women. Do not, I entreat you, listen to the princess. You are the queen, but you are a woman, and, your majesty—there are some things a woman never forgives."

The silken curtains of an archway stirred, parted, and enframed the princess. The queen turned and regarded her sternly.

"Princess Alicia, without cause you have endangered my greatest ambition; you have plotted a ruinous and suicidal war; you have invoked calamity and disaster upon the nation and our throne. I had intended to demand of you an explanation of your conduct. I have changed my mind. Your reasons are not material. Prince Ludovic shall return this day, and you will immediately prepare for the marriage."

Over the wan face of the princess crept an expression of inflexible determination. Tears sprang to her dark eyes—tears of indignation rather than of grief.

"Listen, your majesty, but for one moment. Last night—"

The queen made a gesture of impatience.

"Explanations and entreaties are useless. Only prompt and implicit obedience can atone for our conduct."

The princess turned to depart, hesitated, and glanced back.

"Your majesty," she said, softly, "I obey. But before I go I ask one favor, not of the queen, but of the mother."

The queen smiled an assent.

"Recall, then, my mother my situation when you departed from the Countess of Cannento's party last night."

The old minister cast a glance of warning and alarm toward the queen but she, pondering curiously, saw it not.

"I recall," she mused, "that the last games were being played—that you and Prince Ludovic were partners, opposing the duke and duchess of Formonia—that you and the duchess were tied for the prize—and that you and the prince held winning hands. By the way, my child, I congratulate you. It is the first prize you have won this season."

"But—we lost!" wailed the princess, extending her beautiful arms toward her mother.

"Lost!" cried the queen, incredulously, starting forward. "Again? And you have tried so hard!"

"Lost!" riterated the princess, casting herself into her mother's encircling arms and sobbing piteously. "The prince—trum—trumped—my ace!"

"All is lost!" exclaimed the old minister, turning away despairingly.

From over her daughter's quivering shoulder the queen flashed her indignant and tearful eyes upon the dejected old man.

"My lord," she ejaculated, hoarsely, "you were right—there are some things a woman never forgives! You understand! Go!"

In a few moments the two women, sobbing in each other's arms, heard through the open window the tramp of armed squadrons rushing to defend the frontier.

On every box. A Woman in Red. Never take another instead.

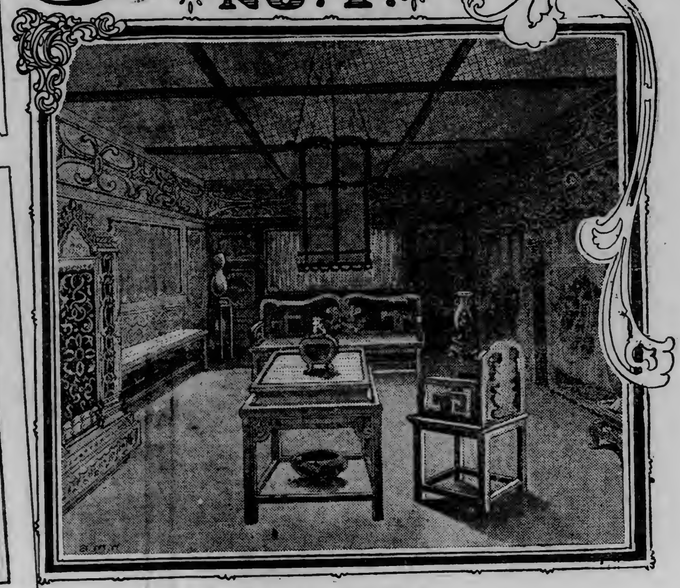
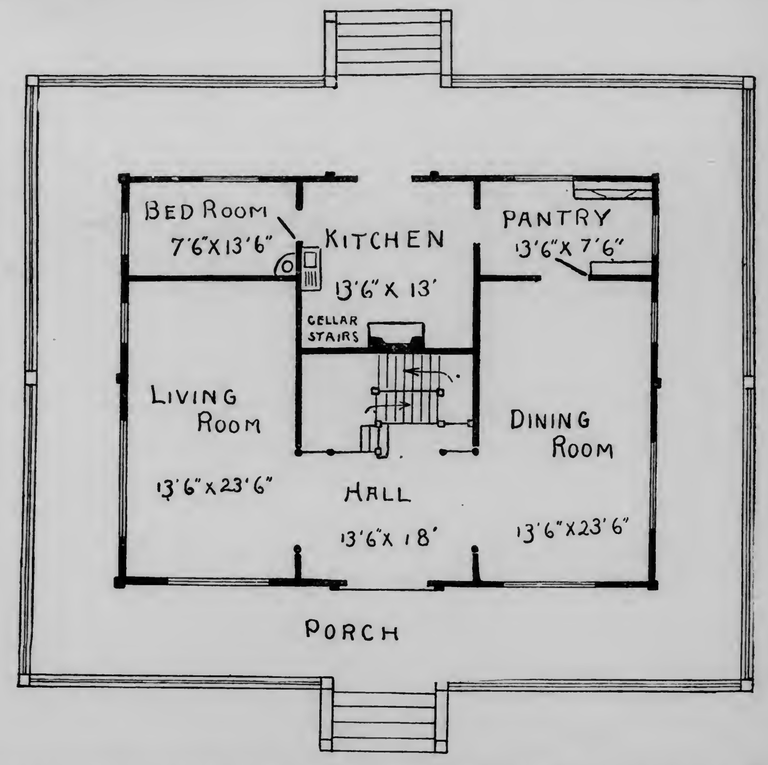
A CHINESE COTTAGE

No. 1.

CHINESE COTTAGE.



LIVING ROOM.



[Copyright by W. M. Butterfield.]

"What are you going to do with that plunder from the land of the tea box and the corner laundryman, Jenkins? You must have a lot of it. You have been collecting that sort of stuff for years, haven't you?"

"There is a good deal of it, and I have a well defined plan for its use; although I admit that at first I collected it merely to satisfy a whim. It has become a passion now. I propose building a cottage on the Jersey Coast. It may result in a Chinese puzzle but I do not know why a puzzle of this sort would not be acceptable. We have Italian, Dutch, French, English, colonial and various other kinds; one might as well have a conundrum from the haunt of the mandarin as from the shadows of Fontainebleau."

"It will be novel, but are you sure it will not attract too much attention, be outre, affected and all that?"

"It may be that and more; I trust that it may. One builds a home to satisfy personal desires, or, as you have hinted, affectations. One can, of course, subsist within the bare walls of a hut. Decorations and things beautiful are not directly necessary to sustain life, and one's desires for these things—in a sense unnecessary—may be called affectation; yet the indirect influence upon mankind in the gratification of these desires is called civilization. One tries, also, to differ from others in the choice of style and design. If he succeeds the result may be termed outre; yet this term does not frighten; it is, rather, interesting. The chief motive of the prospective builder is to attract attention. If a building that is strange or novel will do this so much the better."

"But, my dear chap, the Chinese is so overloaded with ornament. Architects are telling us that we should curtail our desires in that direction, maintain the simple and severe lines rather than the neglect of ornament."

"To be sure, there are self-appointed reformers in the profession of architecture. Some lean toward simplicity, while others go in for ornamental extremes, both believing that each is the advocate of the 'correct' in his line. There can be judgment and taste shown in either direction, as the experienced architect is aware. He does not overload with ornament the structure that, either through limitations of cost or purpose, does not require it or upon which it would look out of place. Yet the extreme purist cannot deny that the building of large cost and of certain character may have the 'degree of ornament. Time has proved that there cannot be too much ornament when it is properly used. Taste will dictate when its use should be curtailed. If you look at the drawing, or elevation, that I have had prepared for the cottage you will see a structure not unlike buildings common in various parts of our country, yet it is almost an exact copy of one of the gate towers at Ping Yang. The double roofs, with thin tiles and battens, have been modernized so that the cost of construction will be moderate. A chimney has been added with a roof-covered ornament at the top. A wide porch is also a feature not found in the original. Although 'Chinese taste' is shown in the decorations, so far as a limited purse and modern requirements will permit, yet you cannot say that the house is 'overloaded with ornament.'"

"No, there is not much evidence of overloading here. It is quite a logical and reasonable proposition, in fact, I rather like it—cool, salutary and promising of good results within. But is it going to be expensive?"

"There you go, the calculating spirit of the day. How can art thrive in such an atmosphere? But I will satisfy your mercenary cravings. The cost of the building will not be above $3,500, not including the carving and decorations upon the walls of the interior. This work will be done by the day, and will cost probably $1,000 more. I have not taken the advice of Ruskin, I shall have to admit, and some things are not what they seem. For instance, the carving upon the walls will be of plaster, colored to represent wood. In some cases, as you know, I have the genuine Chinese carving—the grilled archway from near the Klu-Cha River, the lacquered arch from Tung-Cho. These I shall use, of course, reproducing in plaster others to go with them. These arches, by the way, cost the magnificent sum of $50 last winter at one of the sales of temple ornaments held in Fifth avenue."

"You have the knack of discovering that sort of bargain and it looks as though you are going to turn it to practical use. I am beginning to think that your cottage will not be so much of a Chinese puzzle after all—more homogeneous than many more expensive, where the motif is a matter of conjecture rather than an established certainty."

"Familiar styles grow tiresome. A house should possess uniformity, however, or, as you say, a concrete sameness in all parts that will admit of that term 'motif' being used in connection with it. If it pretend to have style, let the motif predominate. That is good judgment. The builder may adapt style to conditions, but he should preserve form and proportion. When he undertakes to blend or mix styles the result is invariably bad. If a person wishes to build a house, however elaborate or however modest it is to be, he would do well to read first Ruskin's 'Seven Lamps of Architecture.' He may not agree in all things with the author, but at least he will conclude that it is wise to consider carefully before building.

"In the specification for my cottage hemlock timbers are called for in the rough body construction, while chestnut will be the wood for the exterior—roof beams, hand rails, door and window sills, flooring, &c. The structure will be half timbered with rough plastered walls, laid upon plaster board and stained; in the mixing, a deep buff color. The porch wall and posts will be made of common field stones, with moss and lichens left on. If this is done with the idea of simulating a huge, roughly constructed wall, it will give to the building that look of age desirable. A good stain will be used to give the outer woodwork a weathered appearance. The chimney will be of brick matching in color and appearance the red tiles of the roof. You will observe by the floor plan that the porch runs entirely around the house. The cellar will only extend to the foundation walls of the building. It will have a flooring of concrete and be divided with partitions of wood into laundry, coal bin, &c. The walls, which are also the foundations of the building, are waterproofed with asphaltum upon the outside. A dry cellar is a positive necessity in a summer cottage, and particularly to the city family used to steam and furnace heat.

"The floor plan of the lower story provides for five rooms—a dining room, living room, kitchen, pantry and servants' room. The hall is wide and has a large unoccupied space in the front where wet and chilly evenings may be spent. In the back of the hall and under the stairs is a secluded library or den. A low fireplace will occupy one side of this enclosure, while a long seat, bookcase and table of Chinese workmanship which I have will furnish it. The woodwork in the hall will be a copy of that upon the portico of the Temple of Confucius, in Pekin. The walls are rough plastered, as I will use them as a background for displaying appropriate curios. The ceiling and floor will be of oak, as well as all of the woodwork here and in the dining room.

"Your commercial inquisitiveness will want to learn what the articles I have mentioned and that are shown in the hall sketch cost me. To buy curios cheaply one must have time and patience. With these requisites one can, in New York, buy them with a moderate purse. The bookcase cost me $15. It is of teakwood, and was very shaky when got it, but as this is often a fault of teakwood furniture I was rather pleased than otherwise, for I would not have got it for that price had it not been in that condition. The long seat cost me $18, while the table cost me $25.50. The lantern, known as a Tento, or heavenly lantern, cost $6.75, while the Japanese bronze, which is shown by the stairway, cost more than anything, yet I think the least of it. It cost $38. All of these articles and those in the sketches of other rooms were picked up at auction sales in Fifth avenue and further down town. One can, of course, obtain plenty of Japanese furniture in the regular way, as well as Chinese, but it will cost considerably more than these articles have cost me.

"In China there are three forms of religion—Taoism, Buddhism and Confucianism. Each seems to have in architecture a style of its own. The seat and table in the den are said to have come from a Taoist temple, while the bookcase can be said to be Buddhist. The chair which is seen under the stairs can be called Confucian, and the architecture of the room is, as far as it conforms with the original, also Confucian. The lantern and bronze are, unfortunately for the conformity of style, Japanese, and belong to the Shintoist period. Many variations in styles or periods of architecture are often repeated, and for that reason may be classed under substyles or subperiods. They are quite marked in their difference, yet in general outline they are beyond question of some particular master style. For instance, the Tuscan, Doric, Ionic and so on, with their adaptations; the Italian, Elizabethan, Norman, Gothic in architecture and the colonial, French, Italian, Swiss, with the various times and periods in furniture. When the variations are not too marked they may be combined, yet this is not always advisable. If one says: 'I will have a French house,' then all things French may go into it, but the indiscriminate mingling of periods should be avoided. There could be, with good taste, an Empire room, a Louis XVI. room, and so on through the gamut of French periods. In the case of my cottage I shall try to carry out this plan. In the living room I have tried, as far as my collection will permit, to make all of the fittings of one period, but with the collector this cannot always be done, and if the house is in the main of a certain style it will be satisfactory."

"You do not mean that such a house as you have drawn up can only be built by the collector of curios?"

"By no means. We are all collectors, but many are satisfied with the commonplace things that are easily obtained. You are enamoured of my cottage on account of its novelty, yet it is not unobtainable on that account. Anyone can have a Chinese cottage as easily as I can, and at little cost. The set of furniture in the living room cost $60 and the cabinet cost $85 more. The furniture and the table are not Chinese, but they are good cheap facsimiles, and must have cost considerable at one time. I got them second hand. The cabinet is a genuine importation. It is teakwood. The small tabourets at the door are Chinese red and black cinnabar lacquer. They cost $3 for the two. There is also a teakwood stand in the corner that, together with the gourd-shaped mustard yellow vase, cost $13.75. A duplicate of the lacquered temple arch from Tung Cho is to be made for the other side of the door facing the hall. The draperies and hangings are the most expensive. To obtain pairs you must go to the dealers. I paid for the pair of portieres—they are not made for door hangings, by the way—$65. Come in next week and I will have some more drawings and will tell you more about the plans for my Chinese cottage."

Statistics Of Wealth.

Recent statistics show that if the wealth of the various countries were to be divided equally among their inhabitants Frenchmen would be richer than any other persons, and Bulgarians would be poorer.

A Frenchman would have $37.28; a Siamese, $34.58; a citizen of the United States, $29.04; an Austrian, $8; a Russian, $6.25; a German, $19.92; a Servian, $2.72; an Englishman, $18.29; a Turk, $3.72; a Japanese, $3.09; a Spaniard, $23.58; an Italian, $9.68; a South African, $27.62, and a Bulgarian, $1.91.

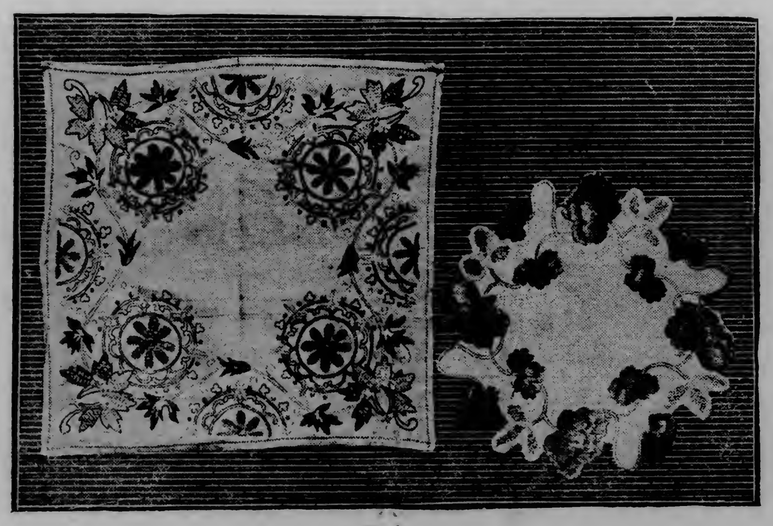
Doylies Embroidered In Rich Colors.

BY CLARA L. KELLOGG.

These plate doilies have two smaller sizes for bread and butter use and under water glasses with 3-4-inch centers. These are intended for use on a polished table. The geranium design in white round thread linen, wrought in the crisp greens, is especially pretty for a salad set. The plate doilies 12 inches in diamter, bread and butters nine inches, and tumblers five inches; these sizes allow the shirring of the embroidery outside of the covered part, giving the green a delightfully crisp effect. Foliage of geraniums, in shaded South Kensington work, blends of palest green into the darkest of the salad greens, with stems of the darkest shade, in fine buttonhole stitch. The open work leaves of white silk have their edges of buttonhole stitch, with lace stitch for centers, from which underneath the linen has been cut, forming a beautiful effect in open work.

The design on Shanghai linen is of the royal chrysanthemum—square plate doily or serviette, with thirty-four inch square center to match. Design taken from the royal robes of the Chinese Emperor, showing the conventional chrysanthemum. Colorings of the country, golds, blues, greens and black. Corner disk of chrysanthemum florets. In the Oriental combing stitch in shades of steel blues outlined with black, leaves in shades of olives in lace stitch; extreme corner blooms in shades of gold in basket stitch with crossings of the various shades and the tiny florets of the center in shades of apricot in satin stitch, each having a pale green French knot for its center. Each part of the whole design banded with black silk outlining.

The other doily design of round thread white linen is wrought in a Greek design, in iridescent colorings of blue and green. Each section wrought by itself in the blue or green, and all in oriental combing stitch, but its catchings or markings of little squares are in old rose twisted silk, and each section of the designs outlined with this old rose, and edge formed of old rose buttonholing, with linen cut and run neatly back underneath. If one did not care for a luncheon set of this on white linen, it is pretty in a green, brown or natural linen, and in the dark iridescent threads of colorings goes well as a table mat with floor coverings of Turkish rugs in self-same colorings as the stitching.



Observances Of St. John's Eve.

Outside the Saints' Calendar, St. John's Eve, or Midsummer Night, which meant so much to our forefathers, goes practically unnoticed among the great majority of their descendants. We are not so poetical a people as we were once. We have grown prosaic and illiteral with the years, and the old beliefs, such as that Queen Mab and her maidens danced in the meadows under the moonlight and left magic circles on the dewy grass, that Oberon ruled his court with a fairy rod, that spectral horsemen cantered down the high roads and witches circumnavigated the air on broomsticks, are only left to the very young or extremely credulous.

The maid of sentiment, however, still clings to any rite that promises to give a hint as to the personality of the coming man, and at many of the girls' colleges St. John's Eve is duly celebrated along the same lines as those detailed in the Connoisseur, an English publication of two centuries ago.

"I and my two sisters," runs the account, "tried the dumb cake together. You must know, two must make it, two bake it, two break it and the third put it under each of their pillows (but you must not speak a word all the time), and then you will dream of the man you are to have. This we did, and to be sure I did nothing all night but dream of Mr. Blossom. The same night, exactly at 12 o'clock, I sowed hempseed in our backyard and said to myself: 'Hempseed I sow, hempseed I hoe, and he that is my true love come after me and mow.' Will you believe it? I looked back and saw him as plain as my eyes could see him. Our maid Betty tells me that if I go backward without speaking a word into the garden on a Midsummer Eve and gather a rose and keep it in a clean sheet of paper without looking at it till Christmas Day it will be as fresh as in June, and if I then stick it into my bosom he that is to be my husband will come and take it out."

One custom was to go out in the fields or wood and gather plants and flowers said to possess supernatural properties, such as St. John's wort, trefoil, vervain and the rose. A yellow colored verbaceous plant called orpine was plucked by anxious maids and stuck in pieces of clay set on slates in their houses. This was known as the "Midsummer Man," and, according to the way he was found inclined the next morning, the young women could tell whether their lovers were faithful or not.

The tiny seeds on the back of the fern, which were believed to endure their possessors with their own invisibility, were eagerly sought for by young men and women who wished to see the object of their affections without being seen. The task of procuring these almost invisible seeds was a difficult one, as to retain their virtue they must not be touched by human fingers.

Among the Greeks of Thessaly and Albania a curious ceremony called the "Kilthona" takes place on St. John's Eve. At sunset a large jar of water is placed in the garden, and around it the family assemble, each one throwing in a leaf or flower, accompanying it with a wild chant and dance. The jar is then carefully covered with a linen cloth, and the youngest of the party goes through the ceremony of "locking" it with the house key. The jar is then set aside until the next day at noon, when the family assemble for the "unlocking." The linen is removed, and each peers in anxiously to see if his leaf or flower is floating on the water, as that forteils long life, while an immersed one points to an early death.

A general sprinkling then ensues, the young people chasing each other with glasses of water from the bowl. Singing is kept up all the time—improvised couplets being specially popular.

In Macedonia the ceremony varies a little in that only the girls and unmarried women are allowed to participate.

One of the number is sent to fill a large jar of water at the public fountain, with the injunction not to open her lips until her return, no matter who may accost her. Into this jar each girl drops some small object, like a ring, bead or glass bracelet, which is called the akilthona. A cloth is then tied carefully over the mouth of the jar, which is left out all night under the stars. If the young men of the neighborhood do not find it and possess themselves of the contents, it is opened the following evening at sunset, when one of the girls, closing her eyes, plunges her bared arm into the water and fishes out the objects one by one. During this operation she is required to recite certain distiches, which serve as propitious or disappointing auguries as to the matrimonial prospects of the owner of the article drawn out.

After supper the bonfire, which is always closely associated with St. John's Eve observances in every country, is lighted before the gate, and into it are cast the faded garlands hung over the doors on May Day, the young people leaping through the flames, assured that the fire of St. John will not harm them.

In certain sections both Turks and Christians go out to gather a most unpleasant smelling herb called uzerlik, with which they wreathe the doors and windows of the houses and cast it on the beds of the children or aged who have had to remain at home. This is supposed to counteract the effects of the simoon or any burn by fire.

EMMA PADDOCK TELFORD.

Ages Of Living Rulers.

Emperor William of Germany recently said he was one of the youngest sovereigns of Europe, yet there are seven rulers who are younger than he is. They are the King of Spain, seventeen years of age; the Queen of Holland, twenty-three; the King of Servia, twenty-seven; the King of Italy, thirty-four; the Czar of Russia, thirty-five; the King of Portugal, forty, and the Prince of Bulgaria, forty-two. Emperor William comes next, being forty-five years old, and after him come the King of Greece, fifty-two years; the Sultan of Turkey, sixty-one; the Prince of Montenegro, sixty-two; King Edward of England, sixty-two; the King of Roumania, sixty-four; the King of Belgium, sixty-eight; Emperor Francis Joseph, of Austria, seventy-three; the King of Sweden and Norway, seventy-four; the King of Denmark, eighty-five, and the Grand Duke of Luxemburg, eighty-six.

The Presidents of Republics are, with few exceptions, comparatively young. The Presidents of Salvador and Paraguay are each forty-one years old, President Castro is forty-three, President Roosevelt is forty-five, the President of Nicaragua is fifty-one, the ruler of Bolivia is fifty-four, the Presidents of Honduras and Peru are each fifty-six, M. Loubet is sixty-five and the President of Columbia is seventy-six.

THE COMING WEEK AT THE THEATERS

"Chimes of Normandy" and "Fra Diavolo" to be Sung at the Lyceum and "Girofle-Girofla" and "Olivette" at the Metropolitan.

The Northwestern Opera company opens its third week at the Lyceum Monday night with "The Chimes of Normandy." The opera for the latter half of the week will be "Fra Diavolo." Both are attractive entertainments, but the "Chimes" is a particular favorite with all classes of music lovers.

For the coming week two numbers will be interpolated, in the nature of features, one to be sung, "Lady Lu," by Miss Hayden, sung with novel effects, and the other a Spanish dance by Miss Nellie Young, whose terpsichorean talents have won her some fame.

The company has been strengthened from time to time by new people, and the chorus, which has been very strong from the start, is now in the best of shape. The staging of the pieces is the especial pride of Director Drew and Manager Wallc, for every opera up to this time has been pictured and costumed in as fine a manner as is done with organizations expending by far greater amounts for these effects, and is every inch a metropolitan performance.

The singing has pleased Duluth audience, and the indefinite class has been growing from the opening performance. The two operas for next week will be presented in a most pretentious manner.

Both productions are to be made with the same regard for staging and picture appearances, which includes costuming, that has marked the previous performances. It is the general verdict that the company has been offering prettier spectacles and more pleasing stages full of singers, than the average traveling company, which plays at much higher prices. Besides that, the singing of the company is considered remarkably good, and it has been getting better in the chorus work ever since it started.

The cast for the Planquette opera, "Chimes of Normandy," will be:

Serpolette, the good-for-nothing....
.....Bertha Hayden
Germaine, the lost marchioness....
.....Eleanor Jenkins
Suzanne .....Ivy Teel
Jeanne .....Marie Connell
Henri, marquis of Corneville ....
.....Sylvian Langlois
Jean Grenicheaux, a fisherman....
.....George Lyding
Caspard, an old miser.....
.....Charles H. Drew
The bailli .....Stanley Felch
The notary .....Dan Young

The argument of the opera: Henri, marquis of Corneville, who has been an exile since childhood, owing to civil war, returns to his ancestral home for the great annual fair, the time being the seventeenth century. The assemblage is there, Serpolette, a cross between Fanchon and Roulette, is the subject of gossip among the belles, and she, overhearing, turns their taunts to expressions of rage. Gaspard, the miser, wishes to marry his niece, Germaine, to the principal magistrate of the district, the bailli, but the arrangement does not suit Germaine, nor a young fisherman, Jean, who pretends he has saved her from drowning. To escape the undesirable alliance, Germaine takes advantage of the fair, and becomes a servant to the marquis, as do also Jean and Serpolette.

The second act deals with supernatural visitors, who have made the chateau of Corneville an object of dread. Henri determines to probe the ghostly demonstrations, and ascertains it is the work of the miser, who has concealed his treasures there. When the bells of the chateau ring out and the miser discovers some one has found him out he becomes insane. The third act represents the fete given in honor of the return of Henri to his castle. Serpolette arrives as a marchioness, papers in the chateau showing she is the lost heiress. The miser recovers his reason and verifies the indications contained in these papers. A love duet between Henri and Germaine and the reconciliation of all brings the play to a close.

The music throughout is beautiful, most of it being very familiar to the present generation.

The cast for "Fra Diavolo," the latter part of the week, will be as follows:

Zerlina, Mattee's daughter, in love with Lorenzo.....Eleanor Jenkins
Fra Diavolo, bandit, disguised as ....
Marquis.....George Lyding
Beppo, follower of Fra Diavolo..
.....Stanley Felch
Giacomo, follower of Fra Diavolo..
.....Dan Young
Lord Allcash, an English tourist
.....C. H. Drew
Lady Allcash.....Sylvester Cornish
Roberto.....Bertha Hayden
Matteo, landlord of the inn.....
.....Harry Keough
Lorenzo, captain of carbineers....
.....Sylvian Langlois
Francesco Veroma, the bridegroom
.....Paul Anderson

The story of the opera tells of a band of robbers of whom Diavolo is the chief, which is the pest of Terracina and vicinity. An English nobleman and his newly-married wife, making a tour of Italy, are set upon and plundered by the bandits though they contrive to secret the greater part of their money. Arriving at the inn of Terracina, they meet Fra Diavolo, disguised as the Marquis of San Marco, who they had previously encountered on their travels, and who is an object of jealousy by the Englishman. They arrive to see Lorenzo in charge of his carbineers setting out after the robbers. Lorenzo loves Zerlina, daughter of Landlord Matteo, and his affections are returned, but Mattee insists upon her marrying a rich farmer.

Fra Diavolo is extremely courteous to milady, in order to ascertain where the balance of the treasure is. Lorenzo returns from the encounter with the bandits in which his men kill twenty, and Diavolo vows vengeance upon him, not only for killing the comrades, but far recovering the jewels. Lorenzo is given 10,000 francs reward, and now stands a chance of winning over Zerlina's father.

When all have retired in the inn Diavolo steals from a closet adjoining Zerlina's room and admits two bandits. They are interrupted by the return of Lorenzo and his soldiers, and hide in the closet again. Zerlina retires to prepare refreshments for the soldiers and the Englishman, hearing noise, comes in. A noise at the closet causes a search and Diavolo slips out and tells the Englishman he has an assignation with his wife, and tells Lorenzo he came at the invitation of Zerlina. A duel is arranged and Diavolo, who intends to entrap Lorenzo, is caught in the snare and the carbineers capture the noted band. The imputations against the names of the women are cleared and Lorenzo is made happy in the possession of Zerlina's hand.

THEIR CLOSING WEEK.

Wilburs Will Play "Girofle-Girofla" and "Olivette."

Three weeks of summer opera have been concluded at the Metropolitan, and the Wilbur company will open the fourth and last Monday evening, when Duluth theater-goers will be given a last opportunity to see this popular company this season. From here the company goes to Winnipeg, Can., to open a six weeks' engagement, and when that is concluded they will play the circuit controlled by Manager C. P. Walker, of the Winnipeg house, including Grand Forks, Crookston, Fargo, Brainerd, Brandon and Rat Portage. The reason for the Wilbur company leaving Duluth after having expected to play a ten-weeks' engagement is that the managers of the company and of the house have decidde that the business will not warrant the troupe remaining here, in view of the fact that Manager Fullwood, for the company, has a good opening with the Winnipeg manager.

The coming week they will present Lecoq's "Girofle Girofla" during the first three days and at the Wednesday matinee, and for the last three days and the Saturday matinee Audran's "Olivette" will be the bill.

"Girafle Girofla" is one of the favorites of the company. It is a French opera and the story deals with the complications arising from twin sisters, both of whom are engaged to be married, being missing, and the anxiety of the respective bridegrooms as to which the remaining one belongs. The play is one in which Lillian Runssell made a great hit. Miss Richardson is said to be charming in the dual role of Giroife and Gildola, and Miss Langdon makes a piquant Paquita. The other members of the cast are well suited to their roles.

The vaudeville features of the company will undergo decided changes. The little Gardner children will appear in songs, dances and cake walks, Miss Katherine Goodrich in popular ballads, Miss Hunt in the Amazon march and recitations and Reick and Lamar in illustrated songs. These artists have been popular with the patrons of the theater for the past three weeks and will probably receive their share of attention during the closing week of the company's engagement.

"The Chimes of Normandy," which will appear for the last time at the theater this evening, has been popular. The music is pretty and the solo work is excellent. Henry Peakes as Gaspard, the miser, is exceptionally good.

GOSSIP OF THE RIALTO.

Blanche Ring Was Anxious to Learn Her Fate.

New York, June 20.—Miss Blanche Ring has at last made her bow before a New York audience as a star, and, generally speaking, is fairly well satisfied with the result. The papers did not go into ecstacy over "The Blonde in Black," but they were all careful to mention that it was the fault of the play, and not of the star. One unkind critic recorded that the real hit of the show was by Miss Rose Beaumont, whose song was received with greater favor than any of those sung by Miss Ring. The latter was exceedingly anxious to learn her fate, and on the opening night invited a party of friends to her flat to hear the returns. Her manager, George W. Lederer, called up the paper in which he was most interested, and had this criticism read to him over the telephone at half-past 2 o'clock in the morning. As he repeated each sentence to the anxious listeners their comments indicated that it was probably one of the most dramatic situations in Miss Ring's experience. Since then the show has been playing to fair business for this season, and will probably be continued at the Knickerbocker until the fall.

Miss Pauline Hall has decided to return to the comic opera stage, and will appear as a prima donna again under the management of Nelson Roberts, who is building a half-million-dollar theater in Harlem, which he is to call the Auditorium. Miss Hall, who is as popular in this city, as she was in the good old days of "Erminie," has been living a quiet and peaceful life of late at Yonkers. She has played many engagements on the vaudeville stage, but every moment that she can spare from the footlights is devoted to her suburban home. Among her neighbors she is regarded as a model housewife, never hesitating to superintend in working clothes and an apron the beating of rugs, the care of flowers or the hanging of clothes in the rear of her villa. Since the departure of her husband, George McClellan, and his prolonged stay in London she has managed her household affairs with diligence remarkable in any one connected with the stage. Her new contract calls for her to play the principal boy parts in operas and extravaganzas for one season, and then she is to tour the country as a star in a comic opera that is to be written for her by experts.

• • •

Doubtless inspired by confidence by Miss Hall's determination to appear in trousers, Miss Malmie Gilroy is coming back to Broadway, and will hold forth at the New York Theater roof garden. In the last few months she has grown from a decidedly plump young lady into veritable shadow of what she was in "Lady Bountiful." She says she has lost thirty-three pounds of superfluous flesh, and she certainly looks it. Miss Gilroy ascribes the change in her personal appearance to two causes—charcoal baths months she has daily taken two baths with the chemical preparation and four pounds of powdered charcoal in the water. She has also taken a course of fencing lesson at Carnegie Hall each day. In consequence of this she expects to give New York a large-sized jolt.

• • •

There was a remarkable exodus of theatrical talent from this city last week by the same steamer. George C. Tyler and Kyrle Bellew were on the list, and keeping them company were E. J. Jack and George Klingsbury, the latter the right-hand man of William W. Savage, and who is making a trip abroad for the first time. All four are devoted to the art of draw poker, and it is a matter of much speculation along Broadway as to which one will first cable home for funds on reaching the other side.

• • •

John R. Rogers, known the world over as "Yours Merrily," has been prevading the Marlborough Hotel with a broad smile of satisfaction. For many months Rogers has been busily engaged in selling gravestones and fighting his employers with a lawsuit whenever some particularly handsome monument got past him. Yet never has he been untrue to his love of the stage and he has at last signed a contract whereby he will manage Lola Fuller during a tour of this world. Despite the changes of recent years Rogers in the matter of advertisement, has not forgotten his cunning and it is safe to predict that Miss Fuller will at least be heard even if she is not seen to any remarkable extent.

• • •

Manager W. G. Smith has contemplated opening the season at the Madison Square Theater with his production of "Tangled Up In Beulahland." There is, however, at the present time no prospect of this play being completed before December and he has been compelled to cancel the engagement. Just what play will open the season at that house is still up in the air.

• • •

Henrietta Crosman has cast defiance at Viola Allen in an announcement that she, too, intends to play "Twelfth Night" in the fall. No one has heretofore suspected the popularity of this Shakespearean masterpiece, but it is evident that New York is to have its fill. In addition to these two Miss Grace George will hand out her brand, especially prepared by William A. Brady, and it will be strange if New York is not completely satisfied with the role of Viola before these three get through.

"The Sultan of Suln" celebrated its two hundredth performance last Saturday and ended its remarkable New York run on the same day. Business has been so excellent that the production could have remained on Broadway all summer were it not for the fact that contractors took possession of the theater on Monday to refit it throughout. The souvenirs for the final performance were librettos of the play in book form, handsomely illustrated.

Winifred Goff, the barytone of Henry W. Savage's English Grand Opera company, has abandoned his proposed European trip and will make life a burden for the salmon and trout in the head waters of the Kennebec. He says that if these up-state fish go back on him he will sail down the river to the sea and go after the less sporty cod. Fish he must and will have, however.

Here are the plans for next season at the American, as arranged by Klaw & Erlanger and Albert Weis. The house will open late in August with Sullivan, Harris & Woods' "The Evil That Men Do," followed by Kirke La Shelle's "Checkers." Fred Berger's "The Worst Woman in London." J. B. Dixon's "Humpty Dumpty" (during the holiday season), a new play by Joseph Arthur and Augustus Pitou, "Quincy Adams Sawyer," a new specIacle under the direction of Charles H. Yale, a production by Gus Hill and a melodrama production by Fred Niblo, the manager of the Four Cohans.

Mme. Schumann-Heink, who is to star in English comic opera under F. C. Whitney's management season after next, sailed for Europe on the the steamer Deutscliland. She goes direct to Mainz, after which she will spend a couple of weeks at her home, near Vienna, and then go to Munich for the Wagner festival, which will open at the Prinz Regent theater on Aug. 1. Mme. Schumann-Heink will not return to this country until January of next year, when she come for her agement of Henry Wolfson. Asked if "farewell concert tour," under the management would sing in opera next season Mme. Schumann-Heink said she had received an offer from Mr. Conreld, but that her concert engagements might compel her to decline it.

Another innovation in roof gardening is promised by the new management of the Lion Palace, commencing on Saturday night. This garden has been fitted up to represent Germany by night—German decorations, German flags, the attaches in German uniforms and costumes, and interspersed between the American vaudeville and music will be German music by a German band. German songs and national airs will be sung by Germans, who, between arias will fill themselves up with German beer.

A catastrophe was narrowly averted last week at the Madison Square Garden, where Duss, the immortal band leader, is holding forth in what he calls "A Night in Venice." Naturally the feature of the production is the Grand Canal, which one is carelessly around the orchestra seats and properly sets forth some 12,000 square feet of canvas, painted by Arthur Voegtlin to represent the Queen of the Adriatic. All went well until early in the week, when the croton water, even after extensive filtering, took on a yellow hue. Of course, no one with an artistic soul could stand for Venice in the midst of yellow water, so a consultation of all hands, including the artists, was promptly called. The gloom that pervaded the assemblage was finally dispelled by Mr. Voegtlin, who calmly announced that because of the large profits in his contract he would fix up the water free of charge. He went to a near-by grocery store and invested a dime in some bluing material, which he came back and poured into the canal. Then the hired hands were called and with long sticks turned the canal for a few moments into a raging flood. When they got through the canal would have satisfied the soul of the most enthusiastic Venetian.

If ever a theatrical manager was entitled to the adjective "irrepressible" the same is Alfred E. Aarons, who has batted into Broadway many a time and oft, and who is not yet discouraged. He made his appearance with the production of "The Knickerbocker Girl," which opened at the Herald Square theater on Monday night, following the ill-fated "John Henry." At the head of the Aarons forces is Miss Josephine Hall, and supporting her Miss Nellie Beaumont, Carle Kelley and William A. Sloane.

Frank A. Perley is mapping out a strenuous campaign for next season. To begin with he will star Miss Roselle Knott, who was formerly the leading woman for Richard Mansfield, in "When Knighthood Was in Flower." Before that, however, he will take the Sixty-ninth Regiment band on a tour throughout the country, going as far as the Pacific Coast.

• • •

Richard Golden, the well-knowne comedian, who last year was with the Foxy Quiller company, has been engaged by Henry W. Savage for a term of years. He will star next season in "King Dodo." The following year he will appear in a new musical play by a prominent young American writer and a well-known composer. Mr. Golden has been a star for several years. His greatest fame was achieved in "Jed Prouty."

• • •

Great preparations are under way at the Murray Hill to make the final appearances of Henry Donnelly's Stock company a memorable event. "The Rivals" has been chosen as the play in which this most popular comedian will make its farewell appearance on the New York boards Mr. Donnelly himself will play Bob Acres and Mr. Walter Allen will appear as Sir Lucius O'Trigger.

The coming Shakespeare boom is going to bring woe to many a dramatist—American and otherwise. Anybody can appear in a play by Shakespeare, but when a manager puts on a [illegible] modern author he must pay [illegible] per cent of the gross [illegible] really seem [illegible] turn" of Sothern [illegible] Gagri and a [illegible] dramatists of [illegible] expect the shutting [illegible] tide of royalties. Any [illegible] has a drama produced [illegible] season by players of the [illegible] either Viola Allen, Nat C. Goodwin, Marlowe or Richard Mansfield [illegible] count on a snug little fortune. The average week's business of any one of these popular stars might safely be put at $10,000, while each of them have single weeks which amount to $15,000 or more. All of these important stars, except Miss Allen, Mr. Goodwin and Mr. Mansfield will have thousands of dollars which would otherwise be paid to dramatists for the exclusive use of their plays. It will be a great year for Shakespeare and the classic drama, but a bad one for the modern dramatic author.

Miss Zeffie Tilbury, at present leading lady with Nat C. Goodwin's company, has been engaged by Charles W. Allen to enact the role of Maria in Viola Allen's production of "Twelfth Night" for next season. Miss Tilbury has appeared in many Shakespearean productions in England with great success. She was the Maria in Beerbohm Tree's famous presentation of "Twelfth Night" at His Majesty's Theater, London, two seasons ago. Her Maria was one of the big hits of the presentation, and her portrayal of the role was proclaimed to be one of the most delightful seen in recent time. Maria in "Twelfth Night" is of the rollicking, jovial sort, a role particularly well suited to Miss Tilbury's unctuous and captivating style. Miss Allen's production is promising particularly well, especially when it is considered that, other than Miss Tilbury, John Blair, C. Leslie Allen, Clarence Handyside and James Young have been engaged for important roles.

• • •

During her American tour next season Miss Marie Tempest will, like a dutiful wife, be supported by her husband, Cosmo Lenox, not only in real life, but on the stage. The principal role in "The Marriages of Kitty" was created in London by Leonard Boyne, an actor who has long been a favorite here, but Miss Tempest has decided that her husband, who adopted the play from the French, ought to have a chance to shine with her during her American tour. He will replace Mr. Boyne in the east, but Mr. Boyne in the meantime, will probably have an opportunity to appear in New York before either of them. There is a very strong probability that Mr. Boyne will appear with Mrs. Langtry when she opens the season at the Savoy in "Mrs. Deering's Divorce."

THE TRAPPER'S LOVE STORY

By Frank H. Sweet.

(Copyright, 1903, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

"What you say?" and Raoul looked up sharply from the trap he had been scraping and cleaning. But the visitor's face was only friendly and inquiring, without sarcasm or impertinence; and the momentary gleam in the trapper's eyes died out. He had grown to like this stranger, and had told him more things concerning his past life than he had ever divulged to any living man before. But the last question had cut deep.

For a long time he bent over the trap, his fingers trembling as he scraped the rust from the jaws and shank. All around were evidences of speedy departure, his gun standing in a corner, cleaned and polished until the barrel shone like a mirror, his blankets, provisions, all the rest of the traps, even his moccasins and snowshoes, packed and fastened into compact bundles for convenient carrying. In a wolf skin a few feet away the dog lay with his nose resting upon his outstretched paws, motionless, but with his eyes wide open watching. He understood and was ready and waiting. Twenty-four hours and he and the trapper would start for their winter in the far north, where every day was in close companionship with life and death.

As he saw the shadow come to Raoul's face and slowly fade, the visitor stepped forward impulsively, placing his hand upon the trapper's shoulder.

"I beg your pardon, Raoul," he said. "I did not know—I was merely interested in your life, and spoke without thinking. You may tell me something else."

"Non, on, m'sieu; I been tell you 'bout dis. It is not dat I be 'ashame,'" and Raoul forced the last vestige of shadow from his face. But he was still grave. "If ahi' ver' mooch to tell, m'sieu," he went on, "only jus' one little part my life, an' it happen long, long time ago, an' all in two, t'ree week. But young peoples like hear 'bout dese t'ings, an' dis be so ver' long time by." drawing a hard breath which he forced into a mirthless chuckle, "dat I ain't min' tellin' 'bout him. You been t'ink it funny I ain' like no girl, dat I ain' never be married, dat I ain' never make no home?"

"Yes, if you don't mind my saying so," the visitor answered. "You are a strong, handsome man, even though your hair is turning gray and you are scarred by encounters with wild animals and the elements; and you are straightforward and tender-hearted enough for a gentleman in all your instincts—just such a person as any thoughtful girl might love."

Raoul shook his head.

"T'ank you, m'sieu," he said, "but you ain' know all. Dat t'oughful girl been like man who stay in home an' tix up t'ings an' ain' nev' car' run roun'. I been like man run' all de time. When I was a boy I run off to be hunter, an' when I grow to be man I like more as any't'ing to go 'way off in de weed 'among de big game. Be sure' I come back once, two, t'ree time 'fore de hair turn. I be mooch stronger. Not in' ain' seut me sowell in dose day as to fin' de bigges' an' wifes' game in all de place roun' an' den see which de strongest, him or me. Sometime I been t'row de gun down an' roll up de sleeve, jus' to make de wrestle more fair.

"But you ain' no car' 'bout all dese," his animation suddenly vanishing. "I been goin' tell 'bout de girl. Her fader came to work 'long me on de reever, an' him an' me be ver' good frien's. Folks say I likely young man den," simply, "ver' strong an' ver' han'some. De fader like me an' say so, an' I t'ink de girl been like me some, too. An'—" he stopped suddenly, rising his keen, deepset eyes to the visitor's face. "You ev' know a girl dat was an angel come down to show what Heaven been like?" he asked; "sweeter den anyt'ing you ev' dream of in de worl' before, closer in your heart den life an' more far off as de stars? You ev' know her?"

"Yes," the visitor answered, his tender, almost revent look coming into his eyes, "I know her."

"Den ju nev'stan' den," Raoul went on, "dat ain' not'in 'cept it goin' make dat girl more happ' an' better off. She not like any girl I ev' see 'fore, an' dere plenty han'some girl in Canada. She be more like some great lady dat ain't proud an' ain' know she been han'some—only Elise ain' educat. She one queen drop down in de wood by mistake an' grow up 'fore peoples fin' out. When I t'ink maybe she goin' come live long me till we both dead, I ain' hardly know how I breathe, it be so wonderful.

"Den a young man come from Montreal to see about some reever claim, an' he hire me to show him how de current run dis way an' dat way an' how far up de spring water place an' den one day we go pas' de cabin an' he see Elise.

"Well, he feel 'bout her jus' like me, an' ver' soon I see dat Elise feel to M'sieu de t'ing I been, me 'bout de same. When 'en go see her she like me bes', 'cause I nev' 'fraid not'in', an' go down de an'in' straight up on a log like men ev' dar to; but when M'sieu go see her, den she like him 'cause he sof' spoke an' poleesh an' [illegible]. I been see how it goin' be pret' hard for me, for I know in two, t'ree weeks, an' she like both de same; two, t'ree more weeks, an' she goin' like jus' one mooch better, an' it goin' 'pend on which de bes' man."

"And you proved yourself to be that, of course."

"I been pret' steedy nerve dose day," Raoul went on, without seeming to notice the interruption. "When I start out for t'ing I go straight on, an' if it broke my head I let it been broke. I nev' stop to count dat. Soon as I see how t'ings goin' I slip off in de wood wher' I be by myself. Dat my way. I ain' nev' t'ink good with peoples roun'. Well, firs' I see Elise married an' me lookin' out for her, an' how I goin' do de ver' bes' I know how; den I see M'sieu de l'Irme lookin' out for her, an' I know he goin' do jus' de same. I been watch him pret' close, an' know, he clean, straight man who goin' do jes' what he say.

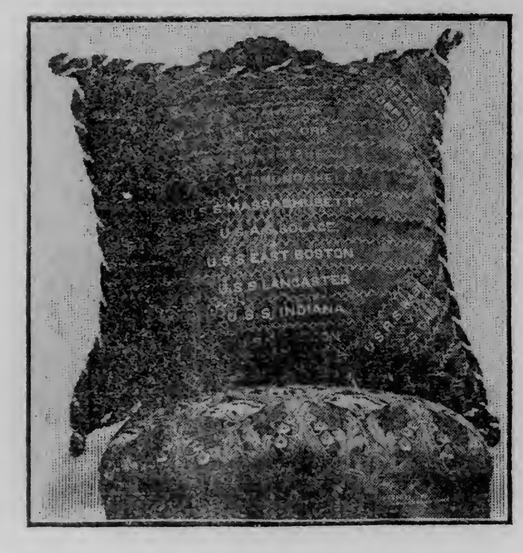
"So dat ain' settle it, an' I go quecck to Montreal, my t'ree set hurds."

"To find out something about M'sieu de l'Irme?" the visitor said.

Raoul nodded. "Qui, m'sieu. Her fader an' bodder 'bout dat. But when a girl get married she goin' 'pend a might' long time on de man mos' likely. I been know 'bout myself, an' I t'ink I know 'bout M'sieu de l'Irme. But I ain' goin' let Elise take some reesk, non. When I t'in' out

New Things Strange and Curious

RIBBONED HISTORY ON THIS WAR PILLOW.



Here is a sofa pillow made from cap ribbons of the United States Navy, many of which have historic value. The ribbon from the Oregon came on its famous trip around Cape Horn. The collection shows the old and new type, from the old Wabash to the modern Indiana, and the various kinds of craft, from the tug Uncas, the converted ferryboat East Boston, the light cruisers Detroit and Vicksburg, to the heavier fighting ships New York and Massachusetts.

The pillow is made of black ribbons feather-stitched in golden silk, with black and gold cord and yellow back.

The ribbons were gathered in all quarters of the globe—the Olympic, Solace, Indiana from Manila, the Marblehead and Yankton from Cuba, the Caesar from Guam, the Detroit from South America, the Monongahela, Uncas, Mayflower and New York from Puerto Rico, the remainder from different coast stations of the United States. It took several years to collect them, and their cost and history make the pillow very valuable, as well as a beautiful ornament.

Ribbons belonging to converted vessels are only made in such quantity as will be likely to be used by the crew, and when the department gets through with the vessel no more ribbons are made, so that only such as have been issued are in circulation, and once used cannot be replaced.

ZEBROIDS HARNESSED TO A SMART TURNOUT.

Very like zebras in some respects, and like horses in others, are the animals shown in the accompanying picture, and no wonder, for their fathers were wild zebras and their mothers were ordinary mares. They are known as zebroids, and may be seen in Hamburg harnessed to a carriage and trotting quickly through a park.

An expert who has carefully studied them says: "By crossing zebras and mares animals of a very high type can be obtained. Not only are they able to trot fast, but they will also thrive in almost any climate. Moreover, they are patient workers, and hence will prove very useful to farmers. Another point in their favor is that they are easily trained, and are not frightened by sounds or objects which generally scare ordinary carriage horses."

Several zebroids were born recently, and it is said that some excellent zebras are now being imported to Europe from the Kilimanjaro, in East Africa, for the express purpose of propagating the species.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT S DOUBLE.

When President Roosevelt and party arrived in Los Angeles he was in the "home town" of his marvelous double. This man closely resembles the President in form and features. F. G. Huddleston is his name, and he is a business man of the Angel City.

While Los Angelenos are familiar with Mr. Huddleston's countenance, he suffers no little annoyance when away from home by finding himself the subject of the inquisitive gaze of crowds of people who constantly remark upon his striking resemblance to the President. Even members of the Rough Riders, who have seen both men, declare that they could scarcely be told apart.

Mr. Huddleston's busines carries him into Arizona a great deal, and it is there that he is compelled to explain over and over again that he is not the celebrated Rough Rider who breasted the heights of San Juan. Throughout the territory he is constantly meeting members of the celebrated regiment which the President formed, and in nine cases out of ten is greeted familiarly with:—

"Wal, by thunder, Colonel, when did you strike town? I didn't know you was in these parts."

Mr. Huddleston is the same age as the President, the same weight and height, has that same heavy, determined jaw and keen eye.

"MY CHUM'S A FOX," SAYS M. DOG.

Here's a pair of singular chums—a fox-hound and a fox. They were raised together by a gentleman in the country, and from early infancy each has shown an extraordinary fancy for the other, the dog preferring the society of his fox comrade to that of other canines, while the fox, in accepting his attentions, smartingly rejects those of other dogs.

"For a year and a half this odd pair have been 'pals,'" says the owner, "and the beasts have yet to have their first quarrel. They are remarkably attentive to each other, sharing the same bone and the same kennel. Each seems unhappy when separated from the other. Therefore, they have been christened Damon and Pythias."

NEW LIFE SAVING DEVICE.

M. Probst, a Switzer, has invented a life-saving costume in which he has remained 15 days at sea. He spent one month this spring in the water. The sensation was most delightful. The dress is so buoyant that nearly half of the body remains above water.

The first experiment was made in the Lake of Geneva. He lay first on the surface of the water in a horizontal position. Then he assumed an upright one, as though walking in the water. The horizontal position he considers the more agreeable. This costume consists of a kind of diving suit, made of India rubber. It opens in the center, so that it can be put on rapidly. The legs and feet fit into the trousers, weighted at the end. The hands and arms are similarly encased, but otherwise free. On the outside of the dress there are airtight pockets, similar in effect to the patch pocket once so greatly in vogue. The pockets contain a lamp, matches, etc., stores of food, a trumpet and an instrument to repel the attacks of large fish and other sea monsters.

Fine Bronze Relic.

In the accompanying picture is shown a beautiful bronze relic which was recently found in Pompeii and which has not yet been placed on exhibition.

It is a leg of a table, and was discovered in the house of Lucretius Trotulonus. Nearly three feet in height, it has at the bottom a lion's claw, and is surmounted by an exquisite flower cup and a charming little winged Cupid. Over the head of the God of Love is a cluster of leaves, which support a small bronze stand, and nearly are arms, which originally supported a marble top that no longer exists.

By antiquarians and archaeologists this relic is regarded as of unusual value and interest.

WEATHER PROPHETS.

In the reign of Henry VIII. a proclamation was issued against almanac-makers encouraging the belief in saints ruling the weather. Notwithstanding this and similar efforts to explode a popular notion, certain saints' days are, however, still supposed to assist in what may be called long-distance forecasts.

St. Catharine, whose festival falls on November 25, is such a saint, for "as at Catharine, foul or fair, so will be the next February."

Gigantic Stone Lion.

With the object of perpetuating the memory of the small band of patriots who died to the last man in defense of their country at the Battle of Chaeronea, which was fought in the year 338 before Christ, the Thebans erected over the grave of the vanquished heroes a monument in the form of a lion of colossal proportions, and until the beginning of the last century this massive work reminded all who saw it of the gallant fight which the Greeks had made in the old days against the foreign invaders.

During the War of Independence the monument was destroyed, for a rumor had spread that a priceless treasure was concealed under it. Since that time its fragments, most of which are very beautiful, have been strewn on the ground. Conspicuous among them is the head of the lion, not only on account of its beauty, but also because it shows hardly any trace of injury.

The Archaeological Society of Athens has now decided to restore and place in its former position this monument, which is known far and wide as "The Lion of Chaeronea." M. Sokhos, a distinguished sculptor, who has carefully examined the fragments, has been intrusted with the work, and he is confident that the lion, after it is placed in position, will be as imposing and majestic a figure as it ever was.

Walks On His Head.

A European variety performer provides a new sensation. He walks on his head after the manner in which the most of us locomote on our feet. The gentleman performing this extraordinary feat is a Dane, named Baptiste.

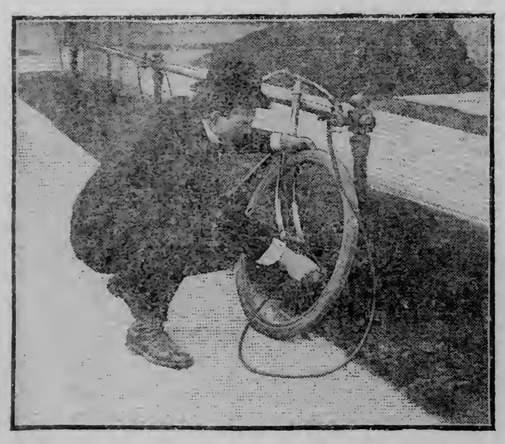
He straps a small pad to the top of his head, then, resting on his hands, he lets himself down on his cranium, when he proceeds to "walk" on the ground by a series of short, jerky jumps. While in this position the performer is able to do several every-day acts of life with evident ease.

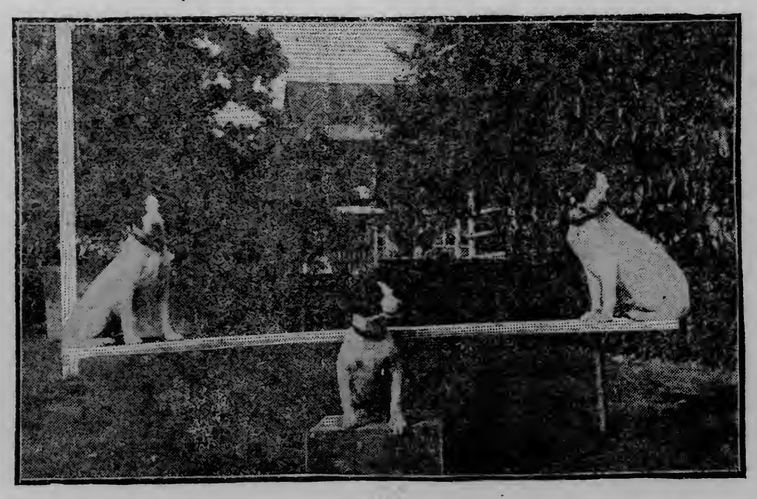
FREE COMPRESSED AIR FOR CYCLISTS.



"Compressed air on tap" is not a novelty, but the idea of utilizing an ornamental railing as an air receiver is something which is decidedly new. Many of the employes of a factory at Dayton, O., use wheels in going to and from their work. Frequently the tires have to be "pumped up" and the management hit upon a plan which would save both time and labor.

Near the entrance to the factory several iron railings have been erected to protect ornamental grass plats which have been laid between the sidewalk and the street. A section of one of these railings has been connected with an air pump at the factory and a supply continually forced through the tubing. Three or four valves, attached to lengths of rubber hose, have been inserted in the railing, and when the cyclist wishes to harden his tire it is only necessary to attach the air hose and turn on the cock as he would the gas jet in his room.

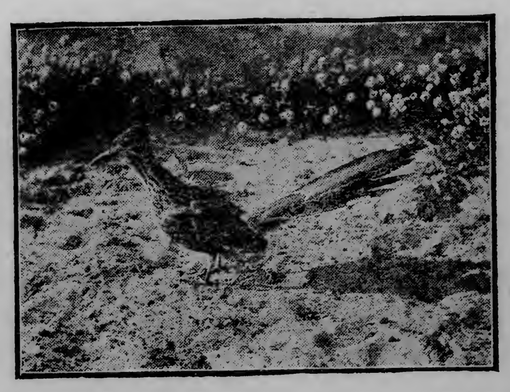
THIS DOG FINDS COMPANIONS IN HIMSELF.



Any skilful amateur may make freak photographs, and this form of camera diversion is becoming quite general. The picture given herewith, however, is one of considerable merit from the fact that much care was necessary to get the dog into proper positions and obtain a good print of him there. Though there appear to be three dogs, there is actually only one, and a good model he is, indeed. The picture is not a composite photograph, but the result of three exposures on the same plate, taken with a specially devised shutter.

It is complained in London that all the emigrants from Southwestern Europe who are incapable of earning money enough to pay steerage passage to the United States stop in that city.

THE ROAD RUNNER.



It was common a few years ago when driving in Santa Barbara or its suburbs to see a bird of sober plumage, with slender legs and long from beak to tail, start from under one's very feet, and instead of flying to one side run rapidly before, in the middle of the road. Its swift movement, without chirp or cry, and straight ahead course made an almost uncanny impression upon the observer. And right in the road the bird would keep till it suited its pleasure to seek other paths, when it would disappear as abruptly and silently as it appeared.

For this habit the little cock sparrow (geococcyx Californianus) has been called the road runner, and the Spanish give him the name of paisano, which is equally significant, meaning "belonging to the country or countryman." This plain little bird has other strictly original peculiarities. At the home of an acquaintance of the writer, on the Mesa, just west of Santa Barbara, several pairs of road runners have lived and nested for many years, and the family have become familiar with their habits.

The eggs are rather larger than a pigeon's egg, lustreless and dead white in color. The birds eat bugs and small reptiles. They are specially fond of lizards and may often be seen carrying them to their young. Their notes are of two kinds. One, a series of soft tones, resembling those of the turtle doves, is the language of courtship. The other is a harsh, discordant note, accompanied by a rattle that is apparently made with the bill. They are suspicious, although not at all shy. When angry or excited they flirt their long tails up and down with great rapidity, at times puffing out their feathers till they seem at least twice their natural size. The little creatures enjoy a dust bath as much as the barnyard fowls, and take it with the same joyous abandon.

ENTER THE FINE LAWN CONTEST

Press Committee of Women's Council Urges Active Competition Among Duluth Residents —View Showing Possibilities of Artistic Beautifying by Care and Proper Spirit.

In laying out the plans of a city there are many and great obstacles to contend against, but Duluth has passed beyond that chrysalis stage and has now to look to the cleanliness, healthfulness and beauty of her surroundings. We have well-laid out streets, and the parking along the sidewalks give them a very picturesque appearance. We have a number of parks and pleasure grounds in different parts of the city and driveways for many miles along the lake front. Our city fathers have kept their corps of employes busy all spring clearing away the debris and nauseous accumulations of winter from the streets and alleys. They are slowly but surely enforcing many recently passed ordinances to clear away telegraph, telephone and other unsightly poles, and to abate many other nuisances.

We should now look to keeping our own in order. We should not expect everything to be done by the city fathers. We should feel individual responsibility for our city's appearance. We seem to lack in a great measure the aesthetic sense of the beautiful, and we should endeavor to cultivate it.

We should form societies and lend the city authorities our hearty support and aid. Our women's clubs and other public spirited citizens should co-operate with them, for no one body can do all the work. One society might make art and beauty on the public way its aim. The application of art to objects of public use and to the furnishings of the streets. We should not allow unsightly pictures on the public thoroughfares, or to make hideous the walls of our public buildings. We should not allow the great telegraph, telephone and trolley poles mar the beauty of our streets, besides often proving fatal to life and limb in case of fires. However, since they are a necessity to a certain extent, they may be made after more artistic patterns and many of them placed in the alley ways. In some places in the city I know where some of the wires have burnt and injured a number of large shade trees, and this should not be tolerated.

We should also form a Municipal Art society to work along with the city fathers. This should not be counfounded with "The Society to Beautify the Public Way," for in the Municipal Art society much of the attention is given to erecting public buildings and looking to the decorating of their interiors. In other words, the plans of public buildings and their interior decorations are submitted to this society before allowed by the city. To this society are also referred the plans for loyal street improvements. It also has power to organize competitions for works to or- and generally offer prizes for artistic street lamps, benches, flag-poles, shelters, bridges, etc. The Municipal Art societies rally to the holding of them, and go into further detail.

The Woman's Council of Clubs and the Commercial club of Duluth are now taking hold of city matters in the right way, and it looks as though they might form themselves into just such a municipal art society before long as may be found in many of the large Eastern cities. All great things have small beginnings, and this competition for the best kept lawns and premises in our city may be only a stimulant to stir up the pride of our people.

We are very proud of our few large lawns and the handsome homes in Duluth. These lawns, with their fine trees, shrubs and plants, appeal to our artistic tastes. However, many good results can be obtained from small grounds, with their shrubs, clumps of trees and plants indigenous to the soil. To be sure, nursery trees are said to grow more rapidly and are less likely to die when transplanted, but good and healthy trees may be found in the woods and will flourish if selected with care and transplanted at the proper season of the year. There are many ways in which the natural growth of trees and plants may be improved with under clearing and the pruning knife. While the boulders and stones on many lots might be piled into rockeries and covered with running vines and plants. Many people complain that they know nothing of landscape gardening, but can do any amount of hard work without good results. Where such is the case, neighborhood clubs might be organized and the most artistic members be formed into a committee to plan work for the neighborhood. With a meeting once a month a great deal of good work might be accomplished. If one's grounds are very limited, it will be wise to look to a well-kept sward with a few flower beds, since trees overcrowd and look out of place.

There comes a hue and cry from over our city about the insolent dandelion, and that there seems no hope of its extermination. If one looks well to his own lawn and rids himself of it, he often gets it from his untidy neighbor. The vacant lot of some far-off Eastern man has a wealth of them, and their seed are blown by the winds and find lodgment on the well-kept sward of the toiler. What redress has he? None! Some law should be enacted to protect an energetic, industrious and public-spirited man from these drawbacks.

In a city in Illinois a plan to exterminate the dandelion has been successfully carried out. Several neighbors work together and spray the flowers on the vacant lots with an acid which was death to them, and afterward concentrated their energies in digging the roots of them from their own lawns. Eternal vigilance is the watchword. In a number of cities in the East it is now growing to be a fad for the fashionable women to assist in the garden work. The exercise gives growth to the muscles and brings color to the cheeks after a winter of fashion and folly.

Again, some of our women are agitating the question of getting the city authorities to place receptacles of tin about the streets for scraps of waste paper, banana peelings and cigar stubs. This plan has been very successful in our national capital, and one rarely sees the streets defaced with debris.

To take an interest in our city's welfare and its higher aspiration for the beautiful and to attain it requires much drudgery and patience, but the spirit for the work must be high, earnest and widespread. Friends to the cause of beauty in the community should give their labor more than their money, for beauty of a city can not be bought. We do not need costly statuary among our unfinished streets, but we need great care and vigilance. No legislation will give efficient city government, if public spirit is lacking. One must give his labor to instruct and interest the public and to guide its tastes, however thankless the return.

In considering the efforts for civic beauty one must confess that some places possess special advantages over others, and in this respect Duluth has nothing to fear. She has only to stoop down and to pick up the fortunes that lay at her feet. In other words, she has only to improve her wonderful possibilities.

ROYAL MARRIAGES TO COMMONERS

King Alexander's Fatal Mesalliance Was Only One of Many Similar Marriages, But In Most Cases They Have Turned Out Happily.

Undoubtedly the great cause of the late King Alexander's unpopularity at home and abroad was his choice, his marriage to one of his mother's chamber women, a mesalliance that the Servians and European peoples generally looked upon as of the most obnoxious character. Yet it must not be inferred from this that marriages of royalties to persons beneath them in rank are usually viewed with such disfavor. As a rule they have been found to increase the popularity of the royal personages, but in Alexander's case it was the character of the woman and not the mere fact that he married beneath his rank that brought the horors of hostility and contempt upon him and his court.

Although the most recent and prominent one to be brought before public notice, Alexander's action in marrying a woman of the people is not the only one of record among the royal families of Europe. On the contrary, they have been so numerous during the past century that unless some scandal is connected with the affair they hardly attract even passing notice and more, and t.ere are those of authoritive opinion in Europe who hold that it is only a question of a few decades ere a king may marry one of his subjects, no matter what her rank, providing she is a proper woman, without exciting the slightest unfavorable comment.

One of the most prominent marriages of a royal personage to a commoner, prominent in public attention because of the mysterious circumstances which succeeded it, was that of the Archduke John of Tuscany, an Austrian prince of the blood. The archduke met and fell in love with a beautiful actress named Ludmilla Hubel. His love was reciprocated and he announced his intention of marrying the girl.

Instantly there was great excitement in Emperor Franz Joseph's household and the strongest pressure was brought to bear upon the lover to induce him to recede from his determination, but nothing was of any avail and the marriage was performed in due course in London. The archduke renounced all his rights and titles in Austria, and, adopting the name og Johann Orth, after one of his castles, settled in England, apparently with the intention of making his permanent home there.

Not very long after his marriage, however, he bought the handsome steamer Santa Margarita, and then followed a series of actions that in themselves have intensified the veil of mystery that hangs over his probable fate.

All photographs, drawings and plans of the steamer he obtained and destroyed, and then went to extreme lengths to obtain every likeness of himself and wife that he could ascertain was in existence. He seemed filled with the desire to frustrate any chance that the steamer or its occupants would ever be identified after leaving Liverpool, and with a picked crew set sail from that port, and neither he, his wife nor ship have ever been heard of since, save once, and that was a few weeks later when the vessel put in at Montevideo, South America.

He left that harbor in a secret manner, obtaining no sailing papers, and his port of destination after leaving the South American city was unknown. From that day to this the Santa Margarita, Johann Orth and Ludmilla Hubel have been as though dead.

Under the direction of the emperor of Austria several attempts have been made to unravel the mystery, but without avail. Every part of the world has been subjected to investigation, but the Archduke John, if he is still living, has completely baffled all endeavors to uncover his identity, though thirty years have elapsed since the departure of the Santa Margarita from Montevideo.

His mother to her dying day believed her son was living somewhere on this globe with his wife, but the generally accepted belief is that the vessel on which he sailed went down in some storm off the Chilean coast. This is the merest conjecture, however, for not even a trace of wreckage from the ship has ever been found, and then again, why did the archduke take such elaborate precautions to destroy every means of identifying either himself, his wife or his boat if he did not intend to lose himself somewhere, where he could live among men as a man, could love his wife without his rank ever intruding between them?

Another notable marriage of royalty to a commoner was that of Price Oscar Bernadotte, second son of King Oscar, of Sweden, to Miss Ebba Munk. Miss Munk was a beautiful Swedish girl of many accomplishments and deep piety, and the prince, meeting her at his father's court, where she was serving as maid of honor to the queen, fell in love almost at first sight, and, after a comparatively brief courtship, they plighted their troth, and the engagement was announced to the king. As usual in such cases, there were strenuous endeavors on the part of the royal family to break off the contemplated marriage, but both the prince and the maid successfully resisted all pressure.

To proclaim his absolute devotion to the girl the prince renounced his right of succession to the throne and all privileges accruing to him as a person of royal blood. This stroke brought a full realization of his son's unalterable determination home to King Oscar, and from that time on the engagement had at least his tacit consent. Miss Munk had proceeded to England, however, to visit friends, and a few weeks after the king's partial reconciliation to his son's marriage the prince followed her there, and the wedding occurred at Lady Cairn's country seat.

After the union had been solemnized the pair returned to Sweden, where the royal blessing was bestowed upon them, and the prince restored to many of his privileges, though, under the law, he could not regain his place in the succession to the throne. The prince is now a vice admiral in the Swedish navy, has five children, all of whom have received titles from the king, and resides with his wife in a beautiful palace at Stockholm. His wife's piety has had a strong influence upon Prince Oscar, and recently his attempts to force all sailors in the Swedish navy to attend divine services regularly caused him a little trouble, but, fortunately, neither of a lasting or serious character.

One of the marriages of this same general character has a peculiar interest to Americans, for the girl in the case was born in the United States and lived there during the years of her childhood. This was the alliance of King Ferdinand, of Portugal to Miss Elise Hensler, who was considered at that time the prettiest woman on the European operatic stage. King Ferdinand had been Prince Ferdinand of Coburg, but at an early age he married Queen Maria of Portugal and was raised to the rank of king consort of that country. The queen was deeply devoted to the handsome Ferdinand, to such an extent that she practically resigned the government of the country to him and thereby created such a turmoil among the people that for a long time Ferdinand was compelled to live in complete retirement. On the death of the queen, however, he emerged again to accept the regency for a period of two years, until his son came of age, and shortly after that he met Miss Hensler and married her. The match appears to have been one of the purest love, for they lived happily together in much simplicity, the husband occupying his time by the collection of works of art, and on his death all of his fortune was willed to his wife, who is still living, honored and respected, in Portugal.

Princess Isabella and Princess Josephine, two of the aunts of the present King of Spain, contracted what the Spanish throne is pleased to term mo gamatic marriages, one of which was full of romance and happy, and the other full of romance and unhappy. Princess Isabella met and fell in love with a handsome young nobleman, Count Gurowski, but rumors of her affair percolating to the throne itself caused her to be confined in the palace in such a manner as to make her practically a prisoner. In some wondrous way known only to lovers the pair managed to communicate with each other and an elopement was determined upon. One night the count, disguised as a coachman, drove to one of the less frequented gates of the palace, in a room near which the princess had secreted herself. After many attempts the count finally succeeded in throwing a cord through the window, to the end of which were attached a rope ladder. This the princess drew up and fastened securely in the room and climbed down to her waiting lover. They succeeded in getting out of Spain before her absence was noticed, but did not stop in their flight until they had reached England, where they were married without delay. The pair took up their residence later in Paris, but the marriage turned out most unhappily and a few years later they separated.

The marriage of the Princess Josephine is not only part of a very pretty story, but was a singularly happy and fortunate union. There lived in Havana a few years before the marriage of the Princess Josephine startled Europe, a young fellow of good parentage, but very poor, who was earning a living on a newspaper as a reporter. He became desperately in love with the daughter of a wealthy planter, but when he sought permission to press his suit was rudely repulsed and asked how he dared to have the temerity to aspire to the hand of a planter's daughter. Smarting under the sting of the insulting language, he announced that they should find if he was not good enough to marry a princess. Gathering all his funds together, he found he had scarcely enough to pay for his passage to Europe, but without hesitation he resigned his position on the paper and started for Madrid.

For several years after his arrival there his life was full of hardships and privations, but finally his writings began to attract attention, especially his poetry, and at last a publisher expressed his willingness to publish a collection of the young man's poems. The volume was dedicated to the Princess Josephine, whom the young man had frequently seen in public places, and a copy of it reaching her she became so interested that the poet was commanded to appear at the palace and the beginning of the end of the romance was attained.

It was a case of love at first sight, but the princess kept her affaire du coeur so completely hidden from the court that when she was missed one morning no suspicion of what had really happened presented itself until the news of her marriage was wired to Madrid. Then there was a stormy time at the court and the princess was stripped of all her titles and prerogatives, but later the good sense of the queen prevailed and the Princess Josephine and her poet-husband were invited to return to Spain. There the young fellow became so popular that the princess was soon restored to her former rank and position and the marriage has proven one of the happiest that European royalty has ever known.

The recent marriage of the Archduchess Stephanie of Austria, daughter of King Leopold of Belgium, to Count Lonyal, is of too recent occurrence to need any mention here, save that it appears to have turned out very happily; but the fact that King Leopold L. of Belgium was married to an actress is an almost unknown thing. The king, when he was prince of Coburg, married Charlotte Bauer, a popular German player, and lived with her very happily until he became heir to the Belgium throne, when he acted in a rather despicable manner, not an uncommon thing among royal personages, however, by trumping up a lot of charges against the unfortunate woman and securing a divorce from her on clearly false evidence.

The Archduke John of Austria, head of the German confederation during the early part of the past century, went even farther in marrying a woman beneath his station than any of the royal protegees in such matters. He was returning from a trip to Italy in 1827, when, at Aussee, he found himself deprived of the services of a postillion. A young girl of the village, one Anna Plochl, learning of his plight, dressed herself in postillion clothes and offered her services, which were eagerly accepted. It was not long before the archduke discovered the sex of his postillion and he became so enamored of her skill in handling the lines and her unconventionality in assuming without hesitation the duties of coach driver that he returned later to the village and wooed and won the girl. Entirely devoted to the girl, the archduke's marriage proved a very happy union, and after a few years he succeeded in gaining a social footing for her at Vienna, a most wonderful feat to accomplish in those days for a peasant girl. She became quite a favorite with the emperor, who signified his pleasure by creating her Baroness Brandhoff in her own right, and in 1836 raised her to a still higher rank by making her countess of Meron.

The list of royalties who married commoners is more extensive than one would readily suppose. There is the Princess Elvira of Spain, a beautiful girl, who eloped with the artist Tolchi not so very long ago; there is the Archduke Henry, one of the heirs to the Austrian throne, who married an actress and was banished, but subsequently recalled and restored to rank, and his wife became so popular that she was created Baroness Weideck. Another is that of Prince Ludwig of Bavaria, who made two such marriages. In 1859 he became united to Fraulein Mendel, an actress, and lived with her happily until her death, shortly after which, in 1891, he married Fraulein Barth. The prince's oldest daughter by Fraulein Mendel married Count Larisch, but becoming estranged from him, secured a divorce and married Herr Brucks, a German opera singer. Princess Elizabeth, granddaughter of the emperor of Austria, eloped with Lieut. Siegfried Buttenheim to Genoa, where they were married, and Princess Sybella of Hesse-Cassel eloped with Herr von Funcke, for which she suffered the loss of all her rights in Hesse-Cassel. The mother of the dowager queen Margharita of Italy eloped with a young artillery officer and married him. She was banished for ten years from Italy, but the marriage was so unhappy that the young officer killed himself as a result of his marital troubles. Not long after this, however, King Victor Emanuel himself fell a victim to the little god that is no respecter of rank or persons and contracted a morganatic marriage with a pretty vivandiere of the Italian army. One other notable elopement was that of the Princess Henrietta of Schleswig-Holstein with a young army officer, a marriage, by the way, that turned out very happy indeed.

One royal affair that is interesting to recount, though it did not reach the altar, through the perfidy of the lover, was that of the Grand Duchess Olga of Russia, sister of the present czar, with Lieut. Bariatinski, a poor but handsome officer in the army. The grand duchess was deeply in love, and an elopement had been planned, when the lieutenant suffered from a bad attack of fright and revealed the whole plan to the czar. The princess was promptly compelled to marry Prince Charles of Wurtemburg, and the young lieutenant gained such a place in royal favor that he became a field marshal before he had attained the age of 50.

THOSE WHO HAVE DIED

New York, June 19.—Alfred Miller Hoyt, one of the thirty-two survivors of the original members of the Union league, is dead at his home in this city from heart trouble. He was interested in many large financial institutions.

Meriden, Conn., June 19.—William Lyman Squires, treasurer of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad company, died here today. He was 72 years old.

Milwaukee, June 19.—William H. Faist, a wealthy and well known flour miller, died today after a lingering illness. Mr. Faist was also a prominent member of the Milwaukee chamber of commerce.

Newburgh, N. Y., June 19.—David N. Selleg, a remarkable blind man, is dead here, aged 73. Although sightless from boyhood, he became a few years ago by his own efforts one of the foremost business men of Newburgh. He manufactured patent chairs of his own invention and employed many men. He also helped to develop a system of industrial education for the blind.

Chicago, June 19.—David H. Mason, formerly tariff editor on several Chicago newspapers, and more recently in the Chicago postoffice, is dead of pneumonia. Mr. Mason was born in Philadelphia in 1829 and came to Chicago in 1858. Besides his newspaper work he wrote several histories of the tariff question in the United States and foreign countries.

Washington, June 19.—Maj. Gen. Frank Wheaton, U. S. A., retired, died yesterday aged 70 years. A widow and two daughters survive him. Death resulted from a general breaking down in health.

Mary Dahl, Clinton, Iowa.—Rocky Mountain Tea is just lovely—makes the skin soft and beautiful, brings bright eyes, sweet breath. Keeps you well. 35 cents. S. F. BOYCE.

One of the essentials of the happy homes of to-day is a fund of information as to right living and the best methods of promoting health and happiness. With proper knowledge, each hour of recreation, of enjoyment and of effort may be made to contribute to that end and are of not less value than the using of the most wholesome foods and the selecting of the best medicinal agents when needed. With the well-informed, medicinal agents are used only when nature needs assistance and while the importance of cleansing the system effectually, when bilious or constipated, has long been known, yet until within recent years it was necessary to resort to oils, salts, extracts of roots, barks and other cathartics which were found to be objectionable and to call for constantly increased quantities.

Then physicians having learned that the most excellent laxative and carminative principles were to be found in certain plants, principally in the leaves, the California Fig Syrup Co. discovered a method of obtaining such principles in their purest condition and of presenting them with pleasant and refreshing liquids in the form most acceptable to the system and the remedy became known as—Syrup of Figs—as figs were used, with the plants, in making it, because of their agreeable taste.

This excellent remedy is now rapidly coming into universal use as the best of family laxatives, because it is simple and wholesome and cleanses and sweetens the system effectually without disturbing the natural functions and without unpleasant after effects and its use may be discontinued when it is no longer required.

All who would enjoy good health and its blessings should remember that it is the one remedy which physicians and parents well-informed approve and recommend and use and which they and their little ones alike enjoy, because of its pleasant flavor, its gentle action and its beneficial effects.

Syrup of Figs is for sale by all reliable druggists, at the regular price of fifty cents per bottle, in original packages only, having the name of the remedy—Syrup of Figs—and the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—printed on the front of every package.

THIRD REGIMENT IN CAMP AT LAKE CITY, MINN.

VIEW OF THIRD REGIMENT CAMP AT LAKE CITY.

THIRD REGIMENT BAND, OF DULUTH.

THIRD REGIMENT BAND—GUARD MOUNT.

The Third Regiment band of Duluth is again in camp with the regiment, and it is one of the most pleasant features of camp life, as usual. It would be a very dull camp indeed if it were not for the band.

When the details are called out for guard mounting, it makes it a good deal less of a burden to have the band playing. A rehearsal follows, and after supper comes dress parade, where the band again comes into play. The dress parade review is followed by the regular evening concert.

This year the band surpassed itself, and the verdict in camp is that it grows with every year. The members have been in the service three years now, and have become typical soldiers.

The evening concerts are well attended by the soldiers and citizens from Lake City. Compliments for Bandmaster Flaaten and his musicians are heard on every hand. Maj. McGuffin, the drum major of the band, is a veteran of three wars, is a handsome and striking figure, and he is a prime favorite with the ladies, it is said.

The band came into line on something not popularly supposed to be part of the duties of musicians. It upheld its reputation on the rifle range. The scores made were good, considering the fact that this was the first shoot. Grams and Howell qualified for marksmen, and Simpson for a sharpshooter. Today they were to shoot on the skirmish range.

The regiment is proud of its band, and will take it along, fifty strong, to St. Louis next year. The popular toast in camp is, "Here's to the best band in the state, the Third Regiment band."

Alfred Davies, of Minneapolis, manager of concert companies, lecturers, entertainers, etc., is preparing to give the Northwest a much larger number of attractions than ever before, believing that the demand for standard attractions is steadily growing in this field and that at the best will be liberally supported. For his concerts a number of Duluth singers have been engaged, which gives his enterprises a closer interest to Duluth people.

Sunday afternoon, June 28, Mr. Davies will present in a concert at the Lyceum theater, seven of the artists who will appear in different concert companies which he will send out during the season. Assisting will be George L. Tyler and George Lyding, through the courtesy of the Northwestern Opera company of which he is tenor.

The artists who will appear are:

Mrs. James McAuliffe, soprano, one of Duluth's finest singers whose ability has met recognition elsewhere as well as here.

Miss Mabel Runge of Minneapolis, a soprano who has met with wide success.

"Fultoni," well known to Duluth people as Mrs. Matie Bowen, who has won great success in the East and who was commissioned by the government to render "Nearer My God to Thee" at the McKinley memorial services in Buffalo. She studied in Europe under the maestros Sala and Marescalchi. She will give a limited number of song recitals during the season and by special request will sing at the concert here.

Miss Anna Braun, mezzo soprano, a charming singer whose ability has been highly praised.

Miss Antoinette, West, contralto, of Duluth who has appeared locally many times and is one of the city's popular vocalists.

Miss Elizabeth Bailey, soprano, who has appeared before Duluth audiences many times with much success.

Miss Bessie MacKeen, character impersonator, and reader. This young woman has been particularly successful in this line of work and in Minneapolis especially is a great favorite.

The program for the concert is as follows:

FINALE.

Miserere "Il Trovatore" .....Verdi
Mrs. James McAuliffe, Geo. Tyler, and full chorus.

Besides the concert features of his lists of attractions, Mr. Davies has a large number of others that will be heard in Duluth during the theatrical season. Among these is the Mozart Symphony club of New York, the Bostonia sextet, Eli Perkins, the famous humorist, J. Frank Fouche, dramatic entertainer; Prof. Charles W. Seymour, historical lecturer, and others.

AUDIENCE POSTPONED.

Pope Prevailed Upon to Rest For a Day.

Rome, June 20.—The pope did not give an audience yesterday, much against hi sown wishes, as he said he would be immediately reported as dying, "which I am not," he added emphatically. Indeed, a rumor that his holiness had had a relapse was already in circulation.

The only reason for the suspension of yesterday's audience was Dr. Lapponi's wish that the pontiff should be in the best condition for the consistory, which is to be held next Monday. The doctor would like to stop all audiences by the pope until Monday, but his holiness refused to accede to the desire, saying that it was his duty to go through it at all cost.

The pontiff has ordered that the new cardinal, Archbishop Fish, of Cologne, and his suite be admitted to see him today.

OFFICIALS AT WORK.

Railroad Men Handle Freight at Kansas City.

Kansas City, Mo., June 20.—Several high-salaried railroad officials donned overalls and began trucking freight in place of the striking freight handlers yesterday. The strike has practically tied up the handling of freight in this city by the Rock Island and 'Frisco roads, and has greatly interfered with freight handling by the Burlington. Several of the other roads declare they are not injured, but the strikers talk differently.

Indications are that within a few days all the roads will be taking care of freight as usual.

shores of the lake or bay have spent considerable money and labor with discouraging results, endeavoring to grow flowers and vegetables in the clay soil. Fond du Lac is located on a sandy loam, perfectly dry soon after a rain, with none of the mud so objectionable where clay predominates. The springs are at least three weeks earlier than in Duluth, crops come to maturity much sooner, and the bounteous yield attests the fertility of the soil. In summer the shores of the mainland and the several islands are crowded with campers and picnickers, some of whom spend weeks enjoying the beautiful scenery and take advantage of the superior boating and fishing. Daily excursion steamers and yachts come up the river loaded with pleasure seeksrs.

Boating, fishing and bathing are important attractions of the place. The river, with its miniature bays and inlets, free from storms, offers the best of boating. Owners of yachts, steam launches and canoes find endlesss enjoyment sailing among the countless islands that are in the St. Louis river, between Fond du Lac and Duluth. Below the falls the river affords good fishing. Pike, pickerel, bass, catfish, perch, sturgeon, etc., abound, and in the immediate vicinity are some trout streams. A sail up the St. Louis river is unequalled for natural beauties. The river is wide and crooked, full of bayous and lagoons, with ever-changing banks of deep forests and high, rocky bluffs, sharp turns and placid lakes, and dark evergreen islands—perpetual surprises. Above the rapids it becomes wildly picturesque—waterfalls, glens and precipitous cliffs of granite. A writer, in 1843, describing the panorama spread below one of its bluffy shores, said he "had never seen another spot where such a comprehensive view of the vastness of creation could be obtained." On Franquelin's map of 1688 St. Louis is named "River du Fond du Lac." Its present name was bestowed, it is said, by Du Luth in honor of Louis XIV, "The Magnificent." The Chippewas called it Wah-nit-ay-quay-ochcrooked, circular. Indian relics, some of considerable antiquity, are often found in the vicinity.

AMERICAN FLEECED.

Falls Into the Hands of a French Sharper.

Paris, June 20.—The Petit Journal reports the misadventure of an American named Charles Dixon, of Boston, Mass., who was victimized by a sharper whose acquaintance he made in a bank on the boulevard. The swindler succeeded in getting $2800 on the faith of his story of a suit to secure the inheritance of a millionaire uncle, and a bag that was supposed to contain diamonds was given to Dixon as security for his wallet containing the money. The bag contained pebbles. Dixon and the police are now hunting for the sharper.

THE WESTERN COAL TRADE

Strengthening of Bituminous Coal Values—Anthracite Activity.

Chicago, June 20.—The Black Diamond, reviewing the Western coal market, says:

The most important feature of the Western coal situation during the week has been the strengthening of values on bituminous coals. The market is in better shape today than it has been for some weeks, with a prospect that it will show a steady improvement the remainder of the month. Anthracite coal continues as active as it has been at any time in the movement by the large shipping interests to retailers, although on the part of consumers there has been more or less feeling of relief since the Scranton convention and the acceptance of the miners' members of the board of concillation by the operators. More or less of a shortage of all descriptions of coal obtains at St. Louis, owing to the flood on the east side of the river. Western mines are working only part of the time, due to mid-summer dullness, but a month hence will in all probability be in full operation again.

Large anthracite shippers of coal say that there has been practically no change in the activity apparent ever since the first of April. Dealers are calling for all the coal that they can secure this month, and are urging that shipments be made as promptly as possible, in order that they may receive the coal before the July circular becomes effective. It is expected the coming week the pressure to secure prompt shipment of anthracite will increase. Egg coal, which has been short in the Chicago market for the past few weeks, is in a trifle better supply, but the demands of the trade are not fully met by current receipts.

At retail it is reported that demand is not quite as urgent as formerly. Consumers in the larger cities are away on vacations and this interferes with demand to some extent, while in the other instance dealers have put in effect advance in prices which will cover the circular advances during the month of July. This removes the incentive to buy promptly on the part of consumers in localities where such higher prices have been made, and it is not anticipated that demand will be active until the middle of the coming month. On the average, notwithstanding these conditions, it is probable that the total tonnage of anthracite moving to consumers' bins is considerably in excess of normal movement at this time of the year.

In the bituminous trade the better markets on Western coals are due to the fact that much of the demurrage coal on track the first of the month has bee ndisposed of and is no longer a factor in forcing down prices; mines are closed down part of the week in numerous districts in order that prices may recover, and also due in many cases to the necessity of making repairs, while dealers are taking a more active interest in soft coal and are beginning to stock it in anticipation of the fall demand. If the present tendency of the market continues, by July 1 it is believed that prices will be on a firm basis at the circular range of figures.

Eastern smokeless and bituminous coals are not attracting a large amount of attention at this time in the open market. The energy of the operating interests is being directed to the movement of this coal to lake ports and tide-water, and no effort is being made to force the sale of it on the spot. Some trouble has been experienced at tide owing to a conditoin of traffic and embargoes have been frequent. Lake loading ports have also shown more or less congestion, especially some of the leading Ohio ports, during the past week and cargoes only partly filled have frequently cleared from Toledo and other ports owing to the inability of the railroads to secure the prompt unloading of coal at terminals. Prices are well maintained on all the leading descriptions of West Virginia coal, including smokeless and splint.

Pittsburg gas coals are fairly steady at the previous range of quoted prices, with supplies all-rail inclined to be rather light. Consumers are said to be more actively in the market and the outlook is favorable for the movement of a heavier tonnage during the next three or four months than was ever before experienced. Movement of Western Pennsylvania steam coals is largely by lake and river, with prices well maintained.

On the spot it is claimed that Hocking coal is showing a better tone than it has at any time during the past fortnight. A week ago there was considerable demurrage coal from private mines on track at Chicago and other consuming points and this was offered at comparatively low figures. It is claimed that it has been cleaned up and prices are gradually recovering. Chicago f. o. b. prices are generally represented by about $3.50, while occasionally these figures are shaded. The larger producing companies hold for full circular on all the coal they are moving and are upholding prices in good shape. It is only a question of the advancement of the season before they will be quite generally maintained.

Operations in Illinois and Indiana are probably not producing over 50 per cent of their maximum tonnage at the present time. This is nothing unusual during June and July. Many mines are closed down for repairs, while others are closed down temporarily, owing to the fact that the markets are weak and mining cannot be done at a reasonable profit. This has reduced the supply of coal on track and prices are recovering somewhat. Green county lump from the Indiana fields is held as high as $2.55 in some instances for the best prepared coals. Sullivan county lump ranges from $2.15 to $2.25, while mine lump is held at $1.90 to $2 per ton. In the Illinois list of coals, lump is held from $1.90 to $2, on track; mine run, from $1.50 to $1.65, and the better grades of screenings at from $1.40 to $1.50. Inquiries from both steam users and from the dealer trade are coming in much more freely than formerly.

In the specialty list, smithing coals are held about steady at last week's range of prices. Outside coals, such as Jellico, Massillon, etc., which have come into this market more freely than ever before, are fairly steady.

Coke continues on a nominal basis for standard seventy-two-hour foundry grades. Supply is heavy and large consumers are stocking a considerable quantity. West Virginia cokes are freely offered, with prices variable. The supply of gas coke is not large, with prices well maintained and demand steady.

In every city there is one paper favored by local advertisers. In Duluth it is The Herald.

Walker.

Walker, June 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Walker has entertained some of the "best people on earth" and feels better for it. At 9:15 Thursday morning the special from Brainerd carrying about 200 visiting Elks, their wives and sweethearts pulled into the station here and a cordial welcome was extended by Mayor Klukle and the local members of the fraternity. The Elk colors, purple and white, were to be seen on all sides and the badge of the order was at once the open sesame to the warmest hospitality of the citizens of Walker. Many of our own people being members of the Brainerd lodge they were enabled to make the visitors feel at home at once and no pains were spared to convince the excursionists that it was a good thing to be here. There was a contest between ball teams representing the Elks and Brainerd high school. In a recent game at home the Elks had been defeated, but here they retrieved themselves and administered a 7 to 2 defeat to the high school.

A week from today Walker will be invaded by over 200 visitors from Brainerd—the Northern Pacific picnic association, comprised of employes, their relatives and friends.

The usual service in the Congregational church gave way last Sunday evening to a program arranged for the children to which their parents and adult friends listened with a great deal of interest. The exercises were of a musical and literary character, and many of the children displayed marked ability in singing and reciting. At the conclusion of the program Rev. Mr. Michael gave a short and appropriate talk on the mission work of the church, especially in the way of establishing Sunday schools in regions where the people seldom hear the gospel preached. A liberal contribution to promote this work was given.

County Superintendent Olaf Olson has been in Walker this week making arrangements for the summer school which is to open here July 6. It is expected that about fifty teachers from various parts of the county and some from Crow Wing county will be in attendance and it is quite a problem to provide for all.

Next Tuesday evening and Wednesday, the editors of the Northern part of the state will be in Walker on their annual jaunt. It is proposed to have an informal dance at the Hotel Chase Tuesday evening. The following day a trip on the lake will be taken to Sugar Point and Bear Island, lunch for the party being provided by a committee of citizens, headed by Mayor Klukle. The return to Walker will be made in time to take the evening train to Bemidji.

Henry Belknap, a Southern Minnesota farmer living near Mankato, closed a deal this week with Harry Paddock, of the Minnesota Northern Land company, for an eighty-acre tract about two miles south of Walker and will move onto it at once, and begin clearing up. There are good prospects of several other sales also to actual settlers being made in the near future.

About seventy-five Walkerites took advantage of the excursion Sunday to visit Bemidji and view the ball game between the Northern league teams of Duluth and Crookston.

Troval Melby and wife, of Backus, were Walker visitors Tuesday, having come up on legal business.

Attorney B. J. Johnson, of Fergus Falls, was in Walker Tuesday and Wednesday.

T. Voorhees and family, and J. Mulhall, of St. Louis, are guests at the Hotel Chase.

A. B. Church, a Staples lawyer, was up this week for a consultation with Mrs. Pietz, who is in jail on a charge of child murder. The unfortunate woman has many sympathizers who will not believe she is guilty of the crime charged against her.

The Ladies' Aid society will meet with Mrs. Michael Wednesday, June 24.

Klukle's Juniors defeated a team of Indians from the agency in a hotly contested game of baseball Saturday afternoon. The score was 10 to 8.

The county commissioners met in special session Tuesday. The next regular meeting of the board will be held July 15.

A petition has been signed by the citizens asking General Manager Gemmell, of the Minnesota & International, to reinstate Walter Ellis as night operator at Walker.

Senator and Mrs. A. E. Ferris, of Brainerd, have joined a party of friends in St. Paul for a trip to Yellowstone Park. Their visit will extend over a month or two.

Mrs. C. B. Backman, of Little Falls, wife of the congressman for this district, has left for a six weeks' visit to Pacific coast points.

Mrs. E. L. P. Steede and two children, and Mrs. Brinkmeyer and two daughters arrived Monday from Mankato to spend the summer here. They will reside at Mr. Steede's cottage on Portage lake, a few miles south of Walker, making frequent trips to town.

H. Allen and wife, of Buffalo, arrived in Walker Monday.

F. W. Kinney, of Minneapolis, court house architect, was in town the first part of the week, and expressed gratification over the progress made on the building.

E. S. Berg, of Borup, was a Walker visitor Monday.

Miss Anna Feltus, principal of the Walker schools for the past year, left Saturday for Minneapolis. She will teach next year in Le Sueur.

B. A. Blakeslee returned from Nevis Tuesday.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Tennis Monday.

Miss Anna Dinkle returned from St. Paul Monday.

Clarence Delaney transacted business at Wadena the first of the week.

J. A. Mansfield went to St. Paul Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Zimblick were among those who went to Bemidji on the excursion Sunday to witness the ball game between Duluth and Crookston.

Rev. J. E. Mette deltvered the annual memorial sermon to the Knights of Pythias last Sunday morning at the M. E. church.

F. A. Fuller went to St. Paul Monday, where he will receive further treatment at St. Joseph's hospital. Mrs. Fuller accompanied him.

Miss Iva Walling visited with Mrs. Brearly at Wadena Wednesday.

Mrs. McCarthy, of Little Falls, is visiting with Mrs. Smythe this week.

Plans are being made for welcoming a large crowd of people here next week for the firemen's tournament and Woodmen's picnic.

Frank Mass and family departed Thursday for Washington, where they will make their home.

Mrs. Merritt Devereaux visited with friends at Latona Tuesday.

B. C. Sumner has accepted a position in Brown & Wilkins' store.

Peter Ant and family departed for their home at Wadena Tuesday.

G. W. Rima is spending the week with friends at Wadena.

Fosston.

Fosston, June 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Carl Lones and Miss Alma Larson were united in wedlock last Saturday, at 11 a. m., the marriage ceremony being performed in the Danish Lutheran church, in the town of Queen. Rev. Kringle officiating. Mrs. Boe officiated at the organ and played a march when the wedding party entered the church. The bride was attended by Misses Ida Nelson and Gellene Lones, and Joseph Lones and Gust Boe acted as groomsmen.

Attorney J. A. Hendricks was transacting legal business at Bagley on Monday.

George Senum, who has been employed in the bank of Fosston for some time past, has severed his connection with that institution and accepted a position with the new Clearwater county bank, at Bagley, for which place he departed this week to assume his new duties.

Mrs. A. G. Rutledge and son, Earl, are visiting friends at Cass Lake, where they intend to remain for another fortnight.

A party of ten immigrants came in on Monday morning, direct from Norway. They sailed from Liverpool on June 2, and did some very fast traveling, coming the entire distance from Liverpool to Fosston in nine days. The party will locate on farms in this vicinity.

The Ladies' Aid society of the Synod church will meet at the home of Mrs. Romsaas, next Wednesday afternoon, at 2 o'clock.

K. Moveld returned on Tuesday from Fergus Falls, where he went on business for the firm of which he is a member, Moveld & Jensen.

Rev. Dr. Dodds, presiding elder of the Crookston district of the M. E. church, was a visitor in Fosston on Wednesday. In the afternoon, he accompanied Rev. Porter to Porterville, on the border of the White Earth Indian reservation, where he preached a sermon and officiated at some services held in the church there Wednesday evening.

Miss Lillian Brabender left on Wednesday evening for Crookston for a visit with friends.

A. G. Torgerson went to Crookston on business Wednesday.

The Great Northern surveying crew, which has been at work in the vicinity of Sletten of late was called home to St. paul the first of the week. No information was obtainable from the party as to whether they would resume their work in the near future or not.

Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Hanson were visiting friends in Bemidji this week.

Rev. J. O. Sater and Gilbert Vingaard left here Tuesday to attend the observances in connection with the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the establishment of the Synod Lutheran church in America. This gathering will be brought together at Decorah, Iowa, and the meetings will extend over a number of days.

John Olson's friends were pleased to see him out again last Saturday, after his recent illness.

Clifford Staples came home from Red Lake Falls, where the Clearwater log drive was then located, last Saturday morning, and on Wednesday his father, Harvey, arrived. There is about 27,000,000 feet in this year's drive and the absence of rain and consequent low water has greatly delayed the bringing in of the logs, although the remainder of the distance to Crookston will be covered without any particular trouble, it is expected.

Mrs. A. W. Foss left Tuesday for an extended visit with relatives at Chatham, Ont.

Rev. S. R. McCarthy will conduct the usual services in the Congregational church next Sunday evening. Subject of discourse: "The Law of Rewards."

J. P. Nygaard, one of the pioneer homesteaders of this community and the first sheriff of Beltrami county, came up from his present home at Halstead Tuesday and spent the night in town. He rode the entire distance from Halstead on his bicycle, and left on Wednesday for a trip to Bagley, Bemidji and other points.

J. H. Foster left on Tuesday for Great Falls, Mont., on business.

L. Gagne expects to move his family from Duluth in a few days.

Grand Rapids.

Grand Rapids, June 20.—In the district court, the case of Chester W. Robinson charged with embezzlement of school funds of Eastman No. 5, went to the jury Monday noon. The case was vigorously prosecuted by County Attorney Spear in behalf of the state and as vigorously combatted in behalf of the defense by Senator C. C. McCarthy. After being out some hours, the jury brought in a verdict of not guilty. Negligence and bad bookkeeping was admitted but criminal intent was not considered proved. Monday noon the case of the State vs. Galbraith for highway robbery was called, and on Tuesday the jury returned a verdict of "robbery in the second degree."

William Allen and Miss Clara Eckholm were united in marriage Tuesday by Judge H. S. Ilson.

The marriage of Miss Josephine Lassard and Steven Jerabek occurred Wednesday of last week at the Catholic parsonage, Rev. Paul Valentine performing the wedding ceremony. A delightful supper was served by Mrs. W. C. Gilbert.

The wedding of Miss Nora Carpenter to Ignatius Taylor occurred at the Presbyterian church last Monday. They were both of Hill City. Rev. W. J. Palm tied the knot.

Dr. C. P. Dolan and family returned home to Waterville, Minn., Monday. The doctor enjoyed his outing here immensely and bought some Itasca county farming lands.

John Beckfelt was in Duluth this week.

The Eagles are planning a picnic some time in August.

Ben Levy left Friday last for West Baden, Indiana, on a health trip.

J. P. O'Donnell was a business visitor at Cass Lake and Walker this week.

Virginia.

Virginia, June 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—A locomotive and three flat cars loaded with pine logs now lie embedded in Silver lake almost in front of the new Plummer & Ash sawmill, as a result of the piling which holds the long trestle giving way. The accident occurred between 7 and 8 o'clock Thursday morning, and it is a miracle that five lives were not crushed out, or the train crew drowned. The cause of the break in the piling is attributed to the heavy wind of Wednesday night jamming the logs against the piling, rendering the underpinning loose and in bad repair. This condition, however, was unknown. The train was making its first haul of logs from up the Duluth & Virginia road. These logs are brought to the city and rolled into the lake, a long trestle having been built for the purpose. Just as the engine reached the weak spot it broke through and carried the cars with it. The engineer, Mark McCarthy, and fireman, Jack Kehne, went down with the locomotive but climbed out of the cab and swam to some logs. The conductor and two brakemen, also took water. The engine and cars were not immediately submerged, the mud in the lake holding the load until about noon, when the last of the smokestack on the former disappeared. One of the brakemen received a slight scratch on the face, this being all the fatalities. The railway company will proceed at once to hoist the wreck from the water.

The first three days of the week were happy ones for the small boy, and many grown up folks as well, as three large shows under canvass were the attractions, Monday Skerbeck's held the attention of our people, then came the killing of poor old Uncle om and the pleasure wound up with the Forepaugh circus Wednesday. Each show had good audiences.

Druggist Clark has a chicken raising hobby. His hatching is accomplished by the incubator route and he is very successful. He is also an expert window dresser and no day of import passes by unless Clark has something appropriate on display. Last week day he fitted to the exhibition of an incubator full of eggs is not known to our people, but had it not been for the fact that the lamp arrangement in the box became overheated during Sunday night and entirely destroyed the box, chicken and everything in connection with it, the proper hatching would have been eventually found its way thereon, somehow. The night watch saw the flame and broke in the front door of the drug store and put the fire out. By this time the fire department appeared and then the whole population. The alarm was given at about 1 o'clock Monday morning. Very little damage was done to the building, aside from the plate glass crackling from the heat.

Cass Lake.

Cass Lake, June 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The visit of the Northwestern Editorial association to Cass Lake on June 23 and 27 promises to be of special interest. The party will be given a boat ride on Cass lake and visit the famous Star island recently reserved by the government for its beauty. This island has an inland lake with much fish and the point of the island is the beauty spot of the government reserve. The party will be furnished free with bait and fishing tackle. The fishing is exceedingly good at present. The national forest reserve will be of special interest to the party. Secretary Bernard is making great preparations and expects to escort the party to the fishing grounds and the beauty spots.

Mrs. Hattie M. Bryant died at the family residence on Saturday evening, June 13. She was 28 years of age and was born at Mankato, Minn. Her husband, Charles Bryant, is conductor on the Great Northern from Cass Lake to Marlmore. Short services were held at the residence and the members of the Eastern Star and the Masonic lodges were present, she being a member of the local Star. Rev. Brabner Smith, chaplain, conducted the prayers. The remains were shipped to Larimore and were escorted and carried by the members of the lodges to the depot. The funeral was from her parents' home at Larimore, Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Brooks, on Sunday at 4 o'clock, and was largely attended by Great Northern employes and members of the Masonic order. Rev. Chew, pastor of the Methodist church, conducted the services. Several choice selections of music were sung. The burial service was in charge of the Eastern Star. The floral offerings were very fine and exquisite and profuse, showing that the deceased was highly esteemed. Mrs. Bryant was a lady of exceptional rare mental and moral attainments and while not outwardly belonging to any visible church was a believer in the best and highest in life. She lived a good life and was exceedingly fond of nature and possessed very fine and rare musical abilities, which she freely used for the benefit and enjoyment of others. She had ever near her in her sickness some choice flowers which she loved, and to her mother and friends she expressed a calm and blessed confidence of her belief in the future life and divine Providence and in Jesus Christ. She died peacefully and was conscious to the last moment of life. She is greatly missed and mourned by a large number of relatives and friends and has left behind influences for good which will ever live as a beautiful remembrance of a good and useful life.

Maj. Scott, of Onigum, is in town to attend the appraising of Indian land for school purposes. The appraisers valued the land at $900 and this was accepted by the major as agent for the Indians. The appraisers were C. M. Taylor, Dr. Rodwell and C. Leeman.

The vote at the recent election for consolidation of the two school districts was lost through a misunderstanding and there is some talk of voting again. It is expected that a petition will soon be signed asking for another election, as the voters on section 16 and the townsite are anxious to be united and have a good school house and a united educational district.

Maj. Scott is not worrying about the investigation now that his official acts in the Red Lake treaty filed by Senator Nelson for Senator Clapp, the originator of the Red Lake bill. Crookston papers say that Congressman Steenerson is now advocating the very things for which Maj. Scott has been questioned. Steenerson would withdraw the two objections that caused the Indians that Maj. Scott said were wrong and brought him into disfavor—the payment of the back money to the Indians, and the withdrawing of the clauses giving the sections 16 and 36 away. Maj. Scott said today that if Steenerson advocated that, he was just in line with him and that he could now go over one of the Indians sign such a bill and settle the matter. Friends of Maj. Scott here have signed a petition and sent it to Senator Clapp in favor of the agent who is a great favorite in Cass Lake because of his straight dealing.

Dr. Fred Barrett went to Duluth to see the production of the Charity Ball by Duluth society people.

Conductor Woolen has returned from an extended Eastern trip.

Wednesday was made rather a strenuous day in Eveleth police circles by the presence of the Luella Forepaugh-Fish Wild West show. They gave two performances to big crowds and the performance proper was quite creditable. But the side shows and their methods of doing business were likely to cause the unsuspecting trouble. They made short change in the boldest possible manner and in every way extracted the dollars. They were made to pay several fines and to reimburse where it was possible to prove it. After the afternoon performance their Indians became angered about something and left in a body. It was hard to learn the exact trouble, but it seems they were drinking or some say the manager struck the leader of them. Other rumors were that they struck because they hadn't been paid. At any rate they moved to another part of the town and while there was much parleying between them and the management of the show yet the evening performance was begun without them. However, they were in line for the evening's roundup, the difficulty having been somehow adjusted.

The plan of having a special train take the Masons to Duluth for the Masonic reunion, was abandoned, owing to so many not being able to get away at paytime. Mr. J. H. Hearding went down Friday on the regular train and will meet his niece, who is coming here to spend the summer.

Hypnotizing The School Cat.

BY FLORENCE A. DAWSON.

PART I.

When Rosalie entered Mrs. Samuels' select boarding school for young ladies the other pupils looked upon her merely as a very pretty and very jolly "new girl." The evening after her arrival she entertained them all with a number of games and songs they had never heard before, and was the center of attraction, as every new girl always was. But it was not until the cat appeared upon the scene that Rosalie became a personage of absorbing interest to the entire school.

The cat, as must be explained, was the special pet and pride of Mrs. Samuels, the principal of the academy. It slept upon a satin cushion in her study, and was such a big, handsome Persian that everyone fell in love with him at first sight.

When Rosalie first saw him, as he walked sedately through the recreation hall, she stopped the game she was leading.

"Oh, you perfect beauty!" she exclaimed, and, unmindful of the warning chorus which arose from the other girls, she ran over and stooped to pat his head.

To her surprise, the cat turned upon her with a vicious snarl, and if she had not grabbed her hand away quickly she would have had a scratch in return for her caress.

"The horrid beast!" exclaimed Rosalie, jumping back. And the other girls, laughing, began to explain. The cat was as disagreeable as he was handsome, they told her, and would let no one but his mistress approach him. Mrs. Samuels was so fond of her pet, however, that the girl who was wise would not molest him, nor even show her dislike to him. Once there had been a girl who actually pushed the cat out of her way with her foot, and Mrs. Samuels saw her. Well, that girl had been chosen queen of the school festival, and had made her dress for the occasion, and everything. But the first thing Mrs. Samuels did was to announce that she had concluded that another girl had a better right to be queen, after all. And everyone knew the reason. On the other hand, there was a girl—no one remembered her, but it was a legend in the school—of whom the cat had really been fond, and Mrs. Samuels so report said, had showered that girl with favors until the rest were green with envy.

Rosalie's eyes twinkled as she listened to these stories. "I'll tell you what," she said, "I'll hypnotize the cat, so that he'll become very fond of me. Then Mrs. Samuels may choose me as queen of the festival this year."

"You queen! Oh, no; that's impossible," said the other girls. "Why, the festival is only two weeks off. Mrs. Samuels will announce her choice in a day or so. Besides, to be queen is an honor conferred upon the girl who, in the estimation of all the teachers, has been the most deserving during the whole year."

But Rosalie did not seem impressed with these arguments.

"Perhaps if the cat grew very fond of me I might be queen," she persisted. "Anyhow, it's worth trying."

Some of the girls began to exchange anxious glances, for to be queen of the school festival was the most coveted honor of the year, and many of them had hopes of being the fortunate one.

"You don't suppose she means it?" they questioned.

And others laughingly reassured them.

"Nonsense! How could she hypnotize a cat?" they asked.

And Rosalie refused to say anything further upon the subject.

The next afternoon Rosalie was permitted to go out to see about her trunk, which had not yet arrived. On her return she went to Mrs. Samuel's office to report and found the cat sitting on the satin cushion by his mistress' side.

As Rosalie stood talking to her the principal was amazed to see her pet walk over to the young girl's side and begin to purr and rub himself in a most ingratiating manner against her skirts.

"You dear beauty," said Rosalie, stooping to caress his head. This time the cat did not snarl or scratch, but instead raised himself on his hind legs, clawing her dress and digging its head affectionately into its folds. When Rosalie left the room the cat went, too, circling about her, rubbing against her skirts and purring loudly all the time.

When night "ranks" formed, however, Mrs. Samuels had an announcement to make.

"The thing I have always tried hardest to instil into the young ladies under my charge," she said, "is courtesy, especially to a stranger or guest, and an excellent opportunity has just presented itself for most of those present to do credit to my teaching. A schoolmate has come here at a time when the rest are all old friends. I hope you have done all in your power to make her feel at home. I am sure, after what I have taught you, you all consider Rosalie as a guest, and that in order to show her how welcome she is you will gladly join with me in asking her to be queen of our approaching festival."

It was impossible to suppress the excitement after that. More than half the school lost marks for talking in their rooms. Even the loss of marks, however, could not keep Rosalie's roommate quiet, so wild with curiosity was she.

"How did you hypnotize him, Rosalie, dear?" she begged.

"That's my secret," replied Rosalie.

"I have a secret—a perfectly jolly one—I'll trade," said Cecilia.

"I won't," laughed Rosalie.

THE CAT BEGAN TO PURR AND RUB HIMSELF AGAINST HER SKIRTS.

"But I'll never tell a soul," pleaded Cecilia.

"Neither will I," said Rosalie.

"Perhaps you think I can't keep a secret?" said Cecilia, humbly.

"I know I can," returned Rosalie, as she turned out the light.

About twelve o'clock that night Rosalie was awakened by a slight shake on the shoulder. She found Cecilia standing by her bed.

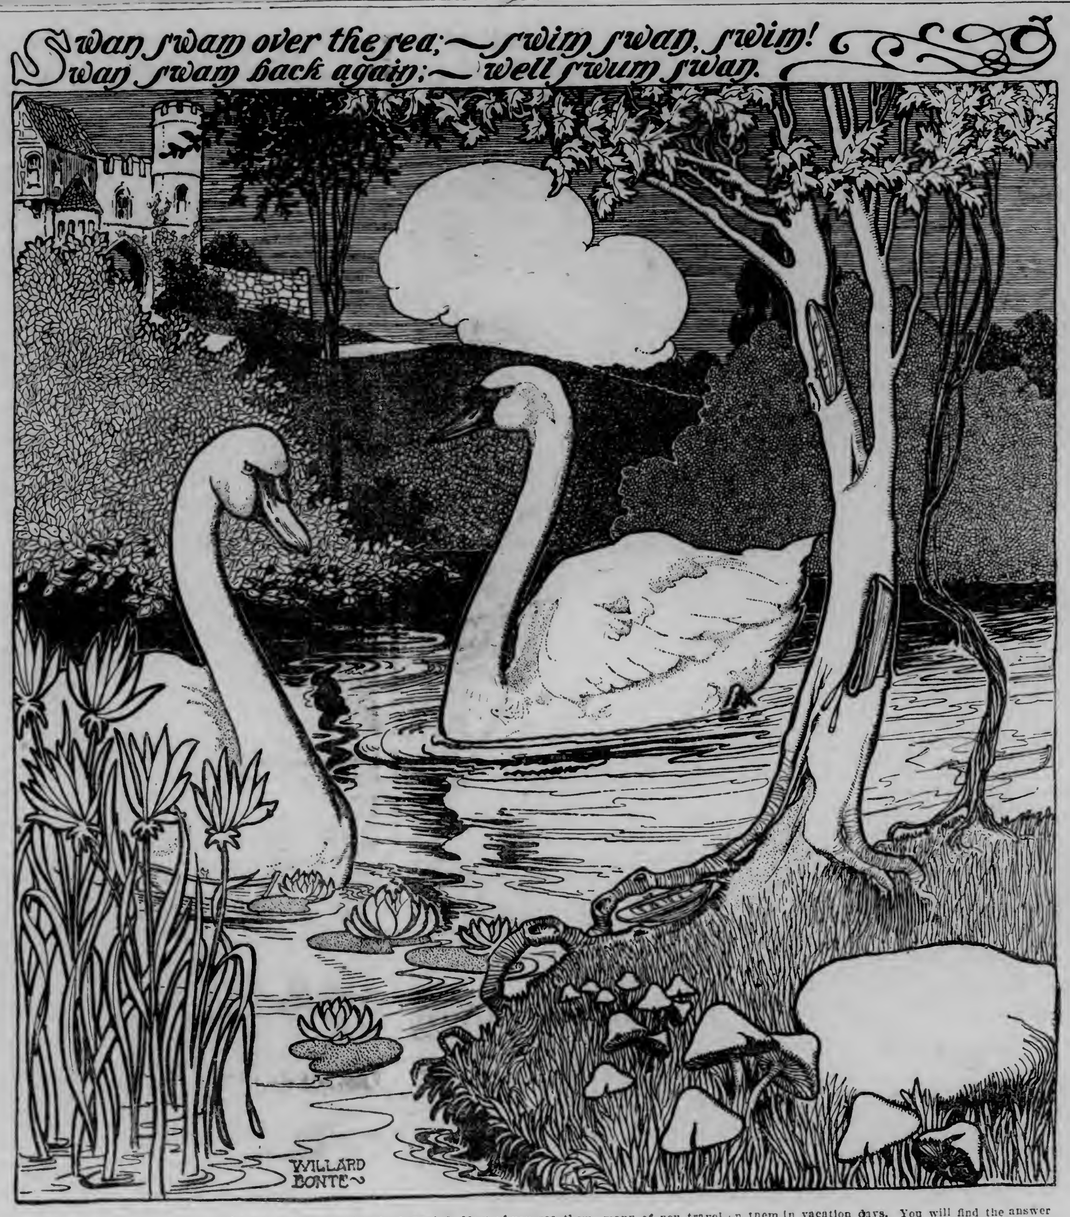
"Rosalie, dear," she whispered excitedly, "was it the 'power of the human eye?' Did you simply stare at him until you conquered him?"

Rosalie laughed in spite of herself. "You dreadful girl! The idea of waking me up to ask that."

"I haven't slept a wink yet," said Cecilia, reproachfully, "and I won't be able to until I find out."

"I'll never tell," murmured Rosalie, as she closed her eyes.

"Yes, you will tomorrow," Cecilia whispered to herself as she went back to bed.



What is it that swims over the sea and then swims back again? Most of you see them, many of you travel on them in vacation days. You will find the answer hidden in several places in the picture.

Dick Talbot's Lucky Swim.

BY JOHN ERNEST M'CANN.

June the Seventeenth, 1776, just one hundred years to the day after the Battle of Bunker Hill, was a red letter day in the life of Dick Talbot.

In the first place, he was fourteen years old on that day; and, in the next place, he had pitched his club, the Trimountains, to victory, over their bitter rivals, the Wonders, in an exciting 21 to 20 game of ten innings.

In the next place—

But wait until we get to it.

Dick was an orphan, his father having died for his country when Dick was a little chap in dresses; his mother having passed away a few years later, leaving Dick in charge of a maiden aunt, who was not quite rich enough to prepare and send Dick to Harvard, where he longed to go when he should be two years older, in order to pitch on the college team and row stroke oar in the eight oared crew on the Charles River. But at fourteen there was no more chance of Dick Talbot going to Harvard than there was of his going to dine with President U. S. Grant.

On the day our story opens something happened to Dick that changed the whole current of his life's stream.

After the game and the Wonders had gone home defeated to Hyde Park it began to rain hard. The rain began at five o'clock and it came down as if it intended to make a clean, all night job of it. As the boys ran into old Sky High Grimcrack's old red barn, out of the wet, Dick said:—

"Say, fellows, this is just the kind of weather in which to go in swimming!"

No sooner were the words uttered than the boys began to get out of their clothes and into their bathing trunks, which were hanging in the barn. Then, with wild yells of laughter, they all started for the water in the rain, and Dick was the first to dive off the little pier which ran from the barn 30 feet out into the bay. One boy after another followed, and soon they were all splashing around, ducking each other and playing leapfrog.

About a quarter of a mile from the pier was a small white schooner yacht lying at anchor. She had been there for a week. Nobody seemed to know anything about her, or very little, which amounted to this: Her owners, two mysterious-looking men, were seen around the village a good deal, but for what purpose nobody seemed to have much of an idea. They were evidently enjoying a vacation.

"Say, fellows," said Dick; "I am going to swim out to have a peep in at that yacht. Anybody coming?"

Nobody cared to accompany him, which proves that nothing was to happen to any boy in the crowd but Dick. So Dick started for the yacht alone. The other boys swam ashore, dressed, and went home, forgetting all about Dick in a rushing game of "tag" on the way, knowing that Dick was perfectly able to take first-class care of himself.

Dick swam out to the mysterious yacht, and boarded her over the bows. Nobody seemed to be aboard. Dick went aft and looked into the cabin. Nobody there. He went down the companionway and looked around. Not a sound could be heard except the splash and patter of the waves and rain. Boy like, he peered into the bunks. The cabin was nicely furnished; the bunks were clean. There were flashy New York weekly papers on the little table in the center of the cabin, and a book called "Cast Up by the Sea," by Sir Samuel Baker, under the papers. Dick opened the book and saw a fine frontispiece of Ned Gray and Jem Stevens struggling for the mastery, while a young girl looked on, fearing that the terrible Jem would kill Ned. Nick became so absorbed in the book that he read 50 pages with not a thought of anything else in the world, and darkness only made him realize his position, and was about to go up on deck when he heard somebody weeping in a berth alongside, and then a man's voice saying:

"Hurry up, Bill! Here, take her. Send her down into the cabin out of the way. Haist the anchor, then up sail, quick. Stop your snivelling, young one. Nobody's goin' to hurt yer if yer'll be nice and quiet like."

Then Dick heard steps overhead. He drew back as the companionway was darkened and a little girl came sobbing down into the cabin. He could hear them hauling up the anchor and hoisting sail while peering into the little girl's face.

He recognized her as Mr. Roger Baldwin's daughter Nelly. Mr. Baldwin was the richest man in Dorchester and Nellie was his only child. Dick gasped.

"What is the matter, Nelly?"

Then Nelly Baldwin sobbed as if her little heart would break as she replied:—

"The bad men stole me off the porch while I was playing with Pido after dinner."

Dick did not wait to hear any more. He said:—

"I'll save you. Don't worry," and he was on deck like a flash.

The yacht was going through the water at a spanking gait, the sails were up and there was a man at the wheel. Dick shot past him like an arrow from Robin Hood's bow and took a header over the stern, while the man at the wheel yelled:—

"Here! What are you—who—say, Bill, wing that duck, quick!"

By that time Dick was a little astern, but not out of range of the bullets that whistled around his head, one of which ploughed a furrow along his scalp like a part made by a comb and brush. In two minutes the yacht was far away and Dick was alone with the blood and rain running down his face and a mile of water between him and land.

With a "Now for it!" Dick's jaws came together like a steel trap, locking in his determination to save Nelly Baldwin from the fate of poor little Charlie Ross, who had been stolen two years before and was never heard of afterward. Stroke after stroke, on and on, toward that distant pier, Dick swam through the dark and rain. Now it seemed a thousand miles away, now as if he would surely go to the bottom. Then he would duck his head to wash the blood from his eyes. How far away the sky seemed! How cold the water was growing! How dark, how very dark it was! How faint he was getting! He turned over on his back and floated awhile, and in that position, thinking of Nelly Baldwin's dreadful fate if he should drown, he sent up a little prayer through the rain.

Steadily, splendidly through the waters he ploughed, until it seemed ages since he had leaped from that pier! Nelly might never again be heard of! The thought was maddening! Then the tears ran down with the blood and rain! Another dip, and his eyes were clear and he could see lanterns moving about the pier. He summoned all his strength and packed it into one long, tremendous shout. Some of the lanterns seemed to drop off the pier. Those who carried them were getting into rowboats. It seemed to Dick as if he were dropping out of a balloon, as if he were dying under a mountain, and then—a gasp—two white arms in the air—and a blank!

When he opened his eyes men and women, boys and girls seemed to be about him. In the army he saw Mr. and Mrs. Baldwin. He gasped his story into their eager ears, and then away he went into the land of oblivion again.

In less than five hours that yacht was captured by a revenue cutter off Nix's Mate, in Massachusetts Bay.

Mr. Baldwin had telegraphed the story to Police Headquarters in Boston, and by sunrise Nelly Baldwin was in the arms of her father and mother.

Do you think that Dick went to Harvard?

A Mother Goose Frolic.

At one of the show places in Newport there is to be given by a young miss of 10 a Mother Goose frolic, to which will be invited nearly a hundred boys and girls.

Of course, there will be Little Bo-Peep, Jack Horner, Simple Simon, Old Mother Hubbard, Miss Muffit and all the rest of the merry troop. The frolic will take place on the great lawn, which will be well equipped with swings, croquet, battledore and shuttle cock, balls and hoops. The most novel idea in connection with the entertainment will be a gooseberry tree.

A goose drill is being arranged, a score of little folks having been selected to take part. They will be made to look as much as possible like goslings through the aid of a theatrical costumer, who is making papier mache bodies and bills, with funny adjustable webbed feet and plenty of feathers. The drill will be performed by the feet, which the little folks will work by their hands concealed beneath wings, while will work on wires. The effect is sure to be very amusing.

Refreshments will also be served on the lawn, with Mother Goose presiding. An immense goose sitting on a nest of gooseberry tarts will form the center piece. This goose is to be worked automatically, at a signal from the hostess being removed from the nest, disclosing the tarts, which will be distributed to the little guests. At each plate will be a large sugar egg, on which will be a rhyme suited to the character chosen.

Little Betsinda.

A girl named Betsinda lived down in the glen
She remarked that she liked chickens much better than men.
When the chickens, made vain by her preference, boasted,
Betsinda declared she referred to them roasted.

So there are plenty of people who'll smile and insist
They prefer you to all they have coddled and kissed.
Beware of that sort, when you're flattered and toasted,
It may be, after all, they would like you best roasted.

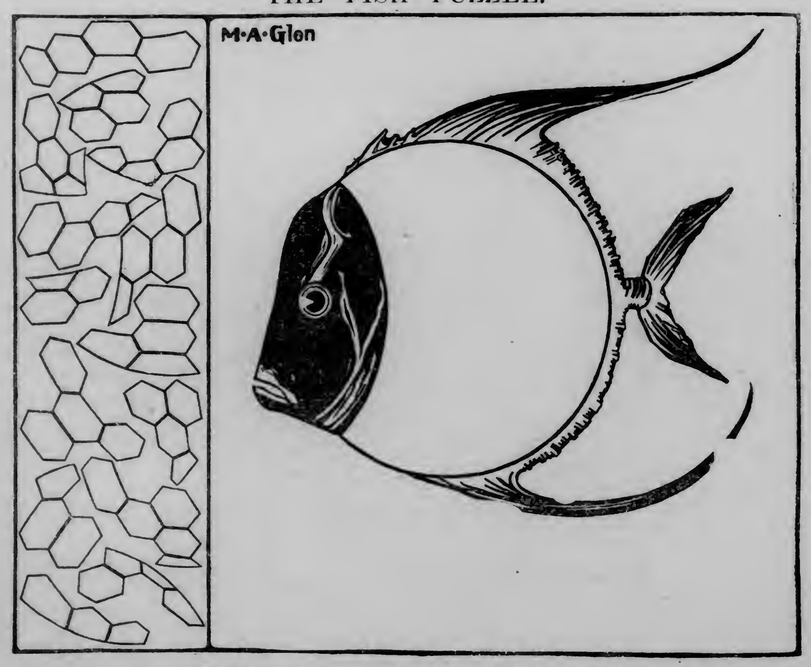
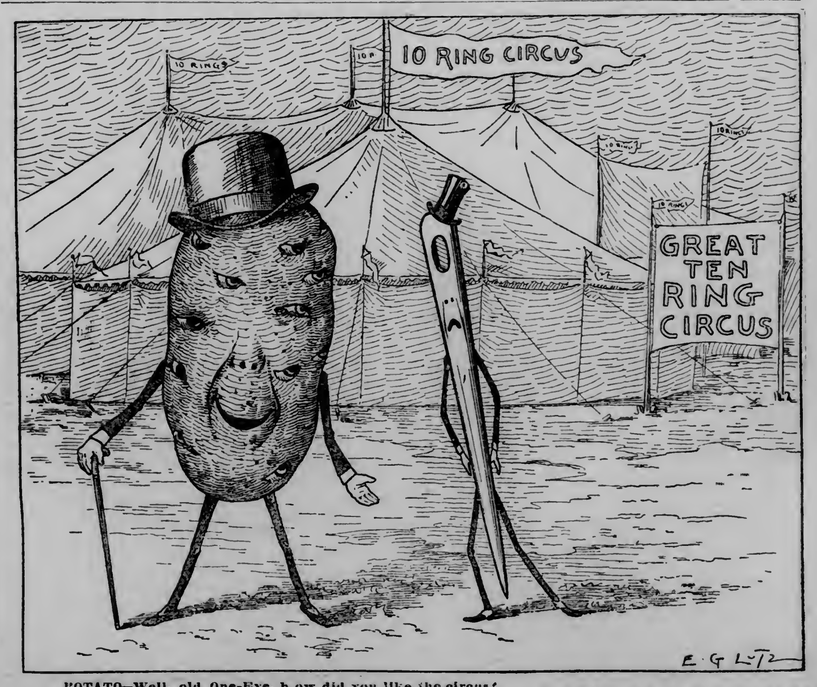
THE FISH PUZZLE.



Cut out the section containing the fish, paste it on a stiff back and use it as a puzzle board. Cut out the fourteen small pieces and put them together on the body of the fish in such a way as to make a perfect fitting suit of scales. Then paste the scales fast.



POTATO—Well, old One-Eye, how did you like the circus?
NEEDLE—Oh, not at all! Coul dn't see anything. There were to o many rings going on at the same time.
POTATO—Gee! I thought it fine; had a great time.
NEEDLE—Well, why shouldn't you think it fine? With all your eyes you could see all the rings at onee.

PRESIDENT ANNOYED BY STORY ON COWLES

Constructor Bowles Is the Person Meant.

Got Thousands From the Shipbuilding Trust.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, June 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—In addition to the anxiety President Roosevelt is experiencing over the rottenness in the postoffice department, he is considerably exercised about an article printed recently in a prominent newspaper, connecting the name of his brother-in-law, Commander Cowles, U. S. A., with the shipbuilding trust. This particular story set forth as a fact that an appraisal of the value and probable results of the shipbuilding trust was made in 1901 by Commander Cowles. The story is absolutely a canard. This labor was performed by a naval officer, who stands much higher in rank than Commander Cowles, viz., Francis Bowles, at the time of the appraisement a constructor in the navy, and now a rear admiral and chief of the board of construction of the navy department. It was he and not the president's brother-in-law, who figured as an employe of the shipbuilding trust. At the time of this appraisement, Bowles was in charge of the Brooklyn navy yard, and left his labors there to devote his time to the business of the shipbuilding trust, now in a very anaemic condition, as was evinced by a shrinkage in its values a few days ago to the extent of $30,000,000.

Rear Admiral Bowles is said to have been paid many thousands of dollars by the trust for this work, and it is insinuated that the connection of his name with what promised to be a gigantic monopoly, was worth a great deal to the incorporators than the technical knowledge and experience he gave in estimating the tangible value of the different properties he was called upon to consider. The name of a high government official in the navy department as their appraisor meant much to the shipbuilding trust in floating stock, especially when the tip was given out to prospective stockholders that it was a question of but a very short time when Bowles would be chief naval constructor and exert a powerful influence in awarding contracts for the building of war vessels.

In naval circles it is a subject of much discussion, that a year before the shipbuilding trust was formed Bowles appeared before congressional committees and argued earnestly for the building of war vessels in government yards. Later, however, he changed his mind. That was after he had acted for the ship trust, for it is a matter of incontrovertible record that he testified before the naval committees of the senate and house that it would be a very bad financial arrangement to construct war vessels in government yards, as from 20 per cent to 30 per cent could be saved by letting them out by contract. Rear Admiral Bowles had this acrobatic change of ideas all within two years. His very inconsistent attitude in the matter has subjected him to severe criticism in the navy department, and from what can be learned he may be called upon to explain his connection with the shipbuilding trust, as it is without precedent and an unheard of thing for a naval officer, while in the active service of the government, to deliberate leave his duties and give his time and abilities to a private concern. It is interesting to note that the shipbuilding trust for a time advertised Rear Admiral Bowles as its future president at a salary of $50,000 a year. But some of the admiral's critics are unkind enough to say that the trust, in reconsidering the matter, found that Bowles could be of more service to them in his present position than as their highest executive officer.

Some authorities state that the story connecting Commander Cowles with the trust arose from a confusion of names, while the wind from another quarter blows the news that it was a deliberate intention to cast a stigma on President Roosevelt and his brother-in-law. No matter what the circumstances causing this may have been, it may be interesting to note that the government of the United States has made contracts with a number of concerns as individual companies, but since absorbed by the trust, for the building of the following war vessels: Both Iron works, three vessels, Georgia, Nevada, Nevada, on which $2,740,910 has been paid; balance due, $2,852,738. Lewis Nixon, four vessels, Chattanooga, Florida, Nicholson, O'Brien, $1,932,925 paid; due, $262,040. Harlan & Hollingsworth, three vessels, Hopkins, Hull, Stringham, paid $754,432; due, $63,040. Union Iron works, six vessels, Ohio, California, South Dakota, Tacoma, Milwaukee, Wyoming; paid, $5,916,600; due, $9,360,480, making a grand total due on all these vessels of $12,638,300.

It should be remembered in connection with these contracts that Admiral Bowles passed on the imposition and remission of penalties and the extension of time and also that he has made the following statement regarding the ship trust, and the most careful man estimating these statements could not summarize them but as enthusiastic. He is on record as saying: "The commercial success of ship building depends upon a thorough organization and co-ordination of all the various industries and trades which together produce a completed ship ready to steam away." He also points out that the effect of the ship building trust will be to cheapen the cost of government vessels not only in the initial construction, but afterward, both in maintenance and repair. Continuing he said: "It will be possible to effect great economies by the separation of warships and merchant construction into different establishments, thus avoiding the difficulties of organization and increased cost of carrying out radically different types of construction upon adjoining ships." It can be seen by this remark of Rear Admiral Bowles that he contemplated the ship building trust getting all the contracts for war vessels to the exclusion of the ship builders outside of the trust. The condition of the ship building trust, as it stands today, does not bear out Bowles' rather Utopian ideas.

ASKED FOR MONEY

City Councilmen of Scranton Are Charged With Bribery.

Killed Ordinance Because They Did Not Get It.

Scranton, Pa., June 22.—Startling testimony was produced today before the select council investigating committee, which met today to investigate the charges of bribery made by ex-County Surveyor Stevenson, in relation to the defeat of the Dalton street railroad franchise ordinance in the council last Thursday night.

W. P. Boland, one of the promoters of the Dalton company, testified that Select Councilman David Evans, of the North ward, demanded of him in the presence of Mr. Stevenson $500 for himself and $500 for each of ten other councilmen. He named the following councilmen: John E. Regan, Thomas O'Boyle, James P. Maloney, Thomas C. Melvin, John Naegli, Thomas Cosgrove, Edward J. Coleman, Malachi Coyne, John McAdrew and Richard Morgan.

This testimony was corroborated by Mr. Stevenson. Both men testified that Evans threatened that unless the money was forthcoming immediately in gold, the ordinance would be either amended to death or defeated. The ordinance was subsequently loaded down with impossible amendments and then the quorum was broken.

The Municipal league will prosecute the councilmen. Evans is already under arrest. More warrants will be issued.

JUDGE WAS IMMORAL.

McMillan Removed From New Mexico Supreme Bench.

Washington, June 22.—President Roosevelt, after a conference with Attorney General Knox, signed an order removing Judge Daniel H. McMillan of the supreme court of New Mexico on charges of general immorality. Judge McMillan was appointed from Buffalo, Judge Clement C. Smith, of Hastings, Mich., has been appointed to succeed him.

PRACTICING FOR RACE.

College Crews on the Water at Poughkeepsie.

Poughkeepsie, June 22.—Despite the continued cold weather, rough water and the absence of sunshine, the following college crews in training for Friday's race were all at work today: Wisconsin, Syracuse, Pennsylvania Georgetown. They presented a pretty sight, all rowing up stream together. None of these crews had races, but contented themselves with limbering up and preparing for harder practice late this afternoon.

Cornell's eight rowed seven miles. They started up the river at a slow rate, but on the last mile there was a hot brush. The freshmen had a lead of two lengths and the varsity was unable to cut it down. In a three-mile down-stream race the first boat won easily.

CAUSING TROUBLE.

Former Sultan of Sokoto Annoys British Troops.

London, June 23.—The former sultan of Sokoto is causing the British troops trouble. A force of 130 West African troops in the middle of May unsuccessfully attacked the former sultan, who was in command of a large force in the walled town of Durmi, about 200 miles from Kane. The British were obliged to retire after losing four men killed and sixty wounded. The enemy's losses were estimated at 300 men killed or wounded. Reinforcements are being sent the British. A British gunboat has been ordered to Garroway, on the Liberian coast, in consequence of the recent looting of British steamers which have run ashore there.

GRAND JURY

Continues Its Investigation In Automatic Cashiers.

New York, June 22.—Sales of automatic cashiers to the government for postoffice use were taken up today again by the federal grand jury in Brooklyn. Today's was the fourth session of the jury devoted to this line of investigation.

The principal witness today was Postoffice Inspector Oldfield. George F. Miller, agent for the cashier company, was in the federal building, and it was supposed that he had been subpoenaed to testify. It was said that the jury was finding much trouble in getting testimony, and this was adduced as the reason why no results had yet been made public.

GOLD FOR GERMANY.

New York, June 22.—Kirder, Peabody & Co., of Boston, have engaged $350,600 gold for shipment to Germany tomorrow.

MINISTERS WORRY

The Russian Note Almost Caused a Panic In Servia.

Cabinet Officers Anxiously Await Arrival of King Peter.

Belgrade, June 22.—The position of the ministry is becoming more unenviable daily in consequence of the Russian and Austrian demands for the punishment of the assassins of King Alexander and Queen Draga. The terms of the Russian note almost caused a panic among the cabinet ministers, who are anxiously awaiting the arrival of King Peter to extricate them from the dilemma. The war minister is the paramount power in the ministry, as he is backed by the entire army, and threatens severe resentment in the case of any hint by a member of the cabinet of the punishment of the conspirators. The promotions of officers sent from Geneva are variously explained as either intended as an open defiance or as being the result of alarm caused by the attitude of the army. The foreign representatives who have not been instructed are asking their respective governments what attitude they shall assume at the reception of King Peter. The Russian minister is in a quandary. He had resumed relations with the provisional government when the czar telegraphed his recognition of King Peter, but the minister takes the subsequent publication of Russia's demand for punishment an indication that Russia will possibly order the suspension of relations with the government until the murderers are punished. Meanwhile the preparations for the reception of King Peter continue. A public holiday has been proclaimed, provincial deputations are coming to Belgrade, free wine and beer are to be provided by the government and the town is to be given up to rejoicings.

"LOOP THE LOOP" VICTIM.

Indianapolis, June 22.—William Zimmerman, the young man who fell while attempting to "loop the loop" on a roller skate before an audience in the Cyclorama building last Thursday, died today. Zimmerman's skull was fractured and there was no hope of his recovery. The coroner will investigate.

KILLED BY GUARDS

One Convict Dead, Another Wounded While Trying to Escape.

Partially Successful Break From Penitentiary at Canon City.

Canon City, Col., June 22.—One convict was shot and killed and another was fatally wounded by guards at the state penitentiary this morning in an attempt to escape.

At 8 o'clock a number of convicts overpowered the overseers and guards at the wash house, securing their keys. On the way to the front gate the convicts captured Mrs. Cleghorn, wife of the warden, and placed her in front of them. Reaching the front gate they dynamited it and got outside, taking Mrs. Cleghorn with them. The warden instructed the guards to pick the convicts off, taking care not to shoot his wife. When fifty yards from the prison Mrs. Cleghorn fainted and the convicts released her. In the shooting, which was general from the guards, Convict Kuykendall, No. 5385, was instantly killed; James Armstrong, the ringleader, was shot by Night Capt. Clark and will die. Tom Fisher was captured on the bank of the big ditch. Two other men are reported captured at some little distance from the prison, and two others are known to be gone, one of them wounded. They are on horseback, having stopped a wagon, cutting the horses loose and escaping.

POPE LEO PRESIDES AT DEFERRED CONSISTORY

Pontiff Shows Wonderful Vitality For His Age.

Cardinals Created With Ancient Ceremonies.

Rome, June 22.—The consistory today was specially important, owing to the persistent rumors regarding the pope's ill health and the previous postponements. Naturally a ceremony in which the pope himself, hidden in vestments, is borne on a chair and is continually assisted, is not the best opportunity to judge of his appearance or the state of his health, but a man undergoing the strain of such a function has plenty of vitality. The pope's features seemed slightly more clear cut, and his hands trembled perceptibly, but his voice is plainly heard, though it has lost something of its power. The ceremony was shortened as much as possible, and only lasted about thirty-five minutes. All the cardinals of the curia were invited to the vatican half an hour before the pope's appearance, and they assembled in the consistory hall in order of precedence, formed a striking picture. The entrance of the pope, clad in white vestments and surrounded by his trusted companions in their red robes, gave a finishing touch to the scene. After receiving the homage of those present, the pontiff recited a prayer, and then proceeded to the nomination of the new cardinals.

The traditional secrecy was maintained, though now it is largely a matter of form. The pope proposed the new cardinals, the members of the sacred college signifying their assent by raising their caps.

The following were created cardinals: Mgr. Fischer, archbishop of Cologne; Mgr. Taliani, papal nuncio at Vienna; Mgr. Cavicchioni, secretary of the congregation of the council; Mgr. Ajuti, papal nuncio at Lisbon; Mgr. Nocella, secretary of the consistory congregation; Mgr. Katschthaler, archbishop of Salzburg, Austria, Most Rev. Herropespinosa, archbishop of Valencia.

The pope transferred Cardinal Serafino Vannuetelli from the bishopric of Frascati to that of Porto Santa Rufina, which is of higher rank.

Cardinal Satolli was transferred from the titular bishopric of Santa Maria in Aracoeli to the diocese of Frascati, near Rome, the summer residence of the Roman aristocracy.

Afterwards the pope announced the nominations of several archbishops who had been appointed by brief.

The pontiff appointed Cardinal Argandelli, who has been prefect of economy of the propaganda, to be vice chancellor of the chiesa della volpe.

At the conclusion of the consistory the pope went to the throne room, where, surrounded by the cardinals and the papal court, he received the homage of the new archbishops and bishops. The ancient ceremonies were observed, each of the prelates kissing the pope's foot and receiving the apostolic benediction.

In the meanwhile the masters of ceremonies, accompanied by church dignitaries, proceeded to the residence of Monsignors Fischer, Cavicchioni and Nocella, announced their appointments and informed them that the pope would bestow the red hats on them at a public consistory to be held Thursday. Specially selected members of the noble guard will be sent to officially convey the news to the appointees, who are abroad.

The pope, at the consistory, delivered a short allocution, which he intended to be kept secret, though containing nothing of great importance. He merely greeted the cardinals, and said he liked to discuss only pleasant subjects, but satisfactory events were mingled with painful occurrences. The demonstrations of loyalty from all over the world on the occasion of his jubilee had caused him great joy. He had been saddened, however, by the persecutions, of which the church was the object. The pope did not add anything, but he evidently referred to the suppression of the unauthorized congregations in France.

SCHWAB GOT $30,000,000 FOR BETHLEHEM STEEL WORKS

Arguments Begin on Application For the Appointment of a Receiver For the United States Shipbuilding Company.

Trenton, N. J., June 22.—Argument was commenced in the United States circuit court today before Judge Kirkpatrick in the case of the application of Rolan R. Conklin and others for the appointment of a receiver of the United States Shipbuilding company. Each side had a big array of counsel. Representing the complainant were R. V. Lindabury, Henry Woolman and Henry Untermeyer. Counsel for the shipbuilding company were Charles L. Corbin, Attorney General Robert H. McCarter and Charles C. Deming. The case was opened by Mr. Woolman reading at length the bill of complaint, the substance of which has already been published. During the reading Mr. Woolman brought out the facts that Charles M. Schwab has received for the Bethlehem steel works $30,000,000, made up as follows: $10,000,000 preferred stock, $10,000,000 common stock and $10,000,000 of collateral bonds.

Judge Kirkpatrick asked what the collateral consisted of and was told that it embraced two mortgages, one on the Bethlehem plant and another on the shipbuilding company's entire property. He made a humorous comment to the effect that Schwab was well secured. When the reading of the bill of complaint was completed Mr. Woolman began reading the exhibits in the case, one of which was a statement issued by the Republic Trust company, containing a very flattering statement as to the company's condition. Mr. Corbin objected to this exhibit as not properly before the court. Judge Kirkpatrick remarked that the statement seemed to favor the defendant, but that at any rate it was immaterial, as what the court wanted to get at was the company's present condition and not what somebody else thought or said was its condition some months ago.

AN INTERRUPTED FUNERAL STARTS SCANDAL AT PASSAIC

Music Teacher In New Jersey Town, Who Had Been Keeping House For Prominent Man, Died at Home of New York Midwife.

New York, June 22.—Telephone messages sent by Coroner Scholer, of this city to Passaic have prevented the interment of the body of Mrs. Cora Snyder, a music teacher, and set the New Jersey town in an uproar. Mrs. Snyder for the last year had lived at the home of a prominent politician, where she was housekeeper and governess of the politician's daughter. Her death occurred last Friday at the apartments of a midwife in this city. Her child also died. Until the interrupted funeral it was supposed in Passaic that appendicitis was the cause of Mrs. Snyder's death.

On receipt of Dr. Scholer's telephone message the Passaic authorities took immediate action. County Physician McBride ordered the local undertaker who had charge of the funeral to stop the proceedings. In order to prevent a sensation Dr. McBride decided to allow the funeral to take place and to prevent only the interment. The funeral was held as had been planned. A large number of the woman's friends followed her body to the cemetery where the burial service was read. Instead of placing the casket in the grave, it was announced that it would be kept temporarily in a vault, owing to the water in the grave. The mourners departed, without suspicion of the state of affairs. As soon as the last of the carriages had disappeared the undertaker took the body out of the vault, and it was taken back to his mortuary.

Pending the result of an autopsy the authorities have taken no official action.

LOOTING MAY YET BE INVESTIGATED

Manila, June 22.—The charges that American officers looted public buildings in Manila after the surrender of the city in 1898 have been revived and may possibly lead to a formal investigation. Recently the authorities endeavored to locate certain pictures and art objects belonging to the municipal museum and the inquiry showed they had been given to a Filipino to take care of after the surrender. The Filipino offers to prove that some of the officers received the pictures and it is claimed that a former staff officer abstracted a silver service from the Malacan palace. The government may ask the war department to investigate the matter.

Governor Taft has returned from Benguet. His health is completely restored.

GLUTTONOUS CONTEST IN NEW YORK

New York, June 22.—Former Mayor Robert Van Wyck retains the title of the champion beef eater of Greater New York. Effort to beat his reported record of two years ago of eight and three-quarters pounds at one sitting failed at a contest just held in Williamsburg. The contestants were Michael Schnupauf and F. Oschmann. Fully 500 Brooklynites watched the contest. The time limit was one hour and forty minutes. Schnupauf took the lead at the second steak, holding it until the finish, when it was announced that he had eaten, in addition to a hundred clams and crackers, five and three-quarter pounds of steak, fifty oysters, two loaves of bread, a bunch of asparagus and ten crabs.

CONGRESSMAN BEDE IS RETURNING

Washington, June 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—Congressman J. Adam Bede started for home yesterday morning and goes direct to Duluth. Mr. Bede arrived in Washington a few days before the close of the last session and had a conference with Representative Page Morris during the course of which, pending matters of interest to the Duluth district were gone over and correspondence relative to unsettled matters turned over to Bede by Morris. Mr. Bede at once became active and has led a strenuous existence since around about the department heads. The bounds of the Duluth land district were changed at his request, he has taken an interest in the opening of the Chippewa reservation and has been active in getting the machinery at work to carry out the provisions of the Nelson-Morris act and, last and his crowning glory, one might say, was the procurement of the appointment of Henry F. Greene as a member of the civil service commission.

FOUR MEN KILLED IN A COLLISION

Jefferson City, Mo., June 22.—In a wreck of two Missouri Pacific freight trains, which occurred at Cole Junction, five miles west of this city, last night, four men were killed and one dangerously hurt. The dead:

FIREMAN MIKE DUVALL.

BRAKEMAN WILLIAM ATKINSON.

Two unknown men, supposed to be tramps.

Dangerously injured and will probably die: Engineer Michael Finnegan, Jefferson City.

One of the trains was laden with live stock, as well as merchandise, and many cattle, horses and hogs were killed.

APPLICATION FOR INJUNCTION AGAINST LONGSHOREMEN HEARD

Judge Lochren Listens to the Arguments of Attorney For Knudson & Eden and Reply In Behalf of the Freight Handlers.

St. Paul, June 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—Judge Lochren, of the federal circuit court, heard arguments today on the application of the firm of Knudson & Eden, of Duluth, for an injunction restraining the 'Longshoremen's union, of this city, from intimidating, threatening or in any way interfering with their non-union workmen employed in loading and unloading freight at the six Northern Pacific docks.

H. J. Grannis, on behalf of the complainants, read a formidable list of affidavits from workmen employed by Knudson & Eden and from special constables employed to protect them from which it appeared that the men working on the docks at Duluth have for the past three months, done their work in hourly fear of being assaulted or killed by the striking unionmen. Numerous instances were cited of non-union men being kicked into insensibility and of threats of terrible punishment to be administered if the men did not join the ranks of the strikers, who were holding out for 40 cents an hour and no night work. The present scale of wages is 30 cents an hour.

Mr. Grannis said the men working for the complainants were compelled to take their meals in box cars near the docks, fearing death should they venture up town. Threats, intimidation and violence were of daily occurrence, he said, and even now, men were daily quitting their employment rather than face the risk of meeting the union freight handlers, who were keeping a vigilant watch for them.

C. E. Adams followed for the union men, and, according to him, the strikers have behaved in an exemplary manner since the trouble first started early in April. The union had, it appeared, instructed its members to refrain from picketing or in any manner interfering with the complainants in the execution of their contract to load and unload the freight arriving at the six docks owned by the Northern Pacific road. The union officers disclaimed any knowledge of acts of violence, and professed to be at a loss to account for the hostile demonstrations which the employes of Knudson & Eden were encountering. The boarding cars were, they said, maintained, not to protect the men from the strikers, but to yield a profit to the complainants.

MEN DROWNED WHILE SCUFFLING

San Francisco, June 22.—While the tug Priscilla with a number of excusionists on board, was entering her wharf here last night, J. G. Paulson, a bookkeeper for an electric company, aged 35 years, and Edward Bellinger, a bartender, aged 24 years, began to scuffle in a friendly way and both fell in the bay. Life preservers were thrown out to them, but instead of utilizing the buoys the unfortunate men engaged in a desperate struggle with each other and before assistance reached them they were drowned.

HARVARD MAN HAVING LONG SLEEP

New York, June 22.—The strange case of Endicott Allen, a young Harvard man, is attracting much attention. He has been asleep, with short intervals of semi-consciousness for the last month, in a hospital at Long Branch, N. J. The only cause so far as can be learned is worry over business reverses which recently came to his father, forcing the son to go out into the world for himself. The hospital physician has diagnosed the case as hysteria, and said there is hope that he will come out of his long sleep after a few weeks. For thirty days young Allen has taken very little solid food. Liquid food is forced down his throat. Nevertheless, the patient has gained in weight.

PANIC ON CROWDED TROLLEY CAR

New York, June 22.—Three persons have been sverely hurt and a score were cut and bruised in a panic aboard an Amsterdam avenue trolley car. The fuses in the controller box blew out and jets of blue frightened those sitting nearby almost out of their wits. A woman leaped off and struck headfirst against an iron pillar. She was badly cut. Her husband jumped with their little girl and also was badly cut. The child was uninjured. Another man broke one of his legs. By this time the excitement aboard the crowded car had become intense. Several women fainted and their fellow passengers trampled them under foot in the rush for the exits.

COACH JUMPED TRACK, KILLING TWO

San Francisco, June 22.—A serious disaster occurred on the North Shore railroad yesterday afternoon, in which two persons were killed and a score were more or less severely hurt.

The dead are:

ANTON ROMAN, founder of Overland Monthly.

M. M. KIRK, of 1816 Steiner street, San Francisco.

Seriously injured: Thomas Donneau, ex-county clerk of Marine county; James Tunstead, sheriff of Marine county.

All of the victims were returning from the funeral of Warren Dutton, president of the State Dairymen's association and president of the Bank of Marine county, at Tomales. An extra special, consisting of an engine and a passenger coach, was used to bring back the friends of the deceased banker to this city.

About a mile south of Point Reyes, the passengr coaches jumped the track. The coach, which was well filled with people, rolled down an embankment of twelve feet and was badly shattered.

DOLLITA'S AUTOMOBILE.

Smallest Ever Built Will Be Seen Here Shortly.

The most unique and at the same time the smallest automobile ever built will be seen here. The Jenkins Automobile company, of Washington, has completed the machine. It has been all the order of Dollita, the tiny atom of humanity. The machine is a splendid specimen of the carriage maker's skill, fitted with electric lights with electric gong. It is a Victoria with top and upholstered in solid leather. The body is painted in dark green, with running gear of bright red, with nickle plated wheels and pneumatic tires two inches in diameter. In fact, it is an exact miniature of a full grown Victoria, with everything complete down to the tiny gong and card case. With the top up it does not come up to the ordinary man's elbow. It is, to look at, a toy or model Victoria of the style that has become so popular and is easily the most graceful of all machines so far turned out. It is perfect in all its appointments, even to the most minute details. In order that the chaffeur may be in keeping with the machine, Col. Ferari, who controls the destinies of the little lady, has secured a dwarf, who has been taught how to handle the vehicle. Dollita's automobile is operated by electricity and with the batteries charged and in position weighs 225 pounds and can run for fifteen hours at an ordinary speed rate of ten miles per hour. It is not much larger than the ordinary baby carriage. The seat is eighteen inches long and the forward wheels, with pneumatic tires, are twelve inches in diameter. The lacquer work and general finish of this dainty little affair is of the very best workmanship, and with its mistress and little chaffeur it cannot help but make a very attractive appearance on the city's streets during the Duluth July fair and carnival July 6 to 11, inclusive.

GLASS PLANT DESTROYED.

Gas City, Ind., June 22.—The plant of the American Flint Glass company at Summitville, Ind., was destroyed by fire early today. The loss is $75,000. The concern employed 150 men.

AFTER THE GRAND VIZIER.

Paris, June 22.—A dispatch to the Rappel, dated from Budapest today says a rumor is current that the palace of the grand vizier at Constantinople narrowly escaped being blown up today by dynamite bombs. The correspondent says it is certain the grand vizier has received threatening letters and that a number of arrests have been made recently.

REAM ELECTED.

New York, June 22.—Norman R. Ream, of Chicago, has been elected a member of the executive committee of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit company. Brooklyn Transit shares declined 2 points during the day's early session in sympathy with the other tractions.

SCHWAB GOT $30,000,000 FROM BETHLEHEM STEEL WORKS

When Mr. Woolman had concluded reading the bill of complaint of the accompanying affidavits, Attorney General McCarter rose to read the answer and also the affidavit of Lewis Nixon, the president and A. C. Gary, secretary of the company. The answer in the main is a general denial of the salient points of the bill of complaint. It absolutely denies that there was any insolvency and states the company was able to meet its obligations. It was stated that no arrangement had been made whereby bonds were to be issued on account of the Bethlehem plant; that the plant was not separately acquired; that it was included in the general purchase and that the promoter was neither Nixon nor Schwab but John W. Young; that the value paid was a matter of judgment and that good judgment had been exercised in the purchase. It was denied that any excessive prices had been paid and the company denied that it had made any exaggerated statement to the company's condition. The company denied absolutely any responsibility for the statements put out by the Republic Trust company. The statement given the New York stock exchange, it was claimed, was given in good faith while containing some errors that were afterwards discovered and that were immaterial.

It was denied also that the company was under control of Schwab or that there had been any understanding between Nixon and Schwab along the lines indicated in the bill of complaint. The affidavit of Mr. Nixon was a sweeping denial of the charges in the bill of complaint. He said he had absolutely nothing to do with the conception or carrying out of the formation of the United States Shipbuilding company. The promoter, he said, was John W. Young and that what he (Nixon) did was to give Young an option on his own plant. Naturally, he said, he had been applied to for advice as to the advantages of the consolidation and whenever asked he stated he believed the combination would be a good thing in that it would increase earnings. He also gave as his opinion based on his experience of eighteen years in the shipbuilding business, that the plants absorbed, exclusive of the Bethlehem works, were worth $20,000,000.

Mr. Nixon said that he had absolutely nothing to do with the selection of those companies outside of the Crescent company that were to form the United States Shipbuilding company. These companies, he said, were selected by Mr. Young. He denied that he with other directors of the company, or anybody else employed the Trust Company of the Republic, or through or by means or agency caused the circulation and publication of the statement put out by the Republic company.

He said he never saw the circular until after it has been published. He denied also that there had been an arrangement between Schwab and himself whereby Schwab should acquire the plant of the Bethlehem Steel company, and thereafter sell the same to the shipbuilding company at an enormous profit.

On the contrary, he said, the facts were that Schwab had acquired the Bethlehem plant long before the formation of the Shipbuilding company. He also denied that he had recommended or approved the supposed reorganization plan with a view to having a supposed investigation and exposure of his conduct as an officer or director of the shipbuilding company, and he also denied that there had been any misconduct on his part in the management of the company.

Mr. Nixon also denied that he had any arrangement or understanding with Mr. Schwab.

The affidavit of Mr. Gary was to the effect that the United States Shipbuilding company was entirely solvent.

When these affidavits were presented, Mr. McCarter offered other affidavits from officers to the subsidiary companies, showing their solvency. The additional affidavits were objected to on technical grounds because the complainant had no notice that they would be presented. After a long discussion it was agreed that these affidavits should be admitted with the provision that the complaint be permitted to call as witnesses and cross examine the signers of the affidavits. At 1:40 the court took recess until 2:30.

RETURN TO THEIR HOMES

Last of the Excursionists Leave Sunday Night.

The last of the big crowd of excursionists, who have been here since Friday, left last night over the Omaha at 11:20 o'clock.

While there were some cases of walking the streets at night, the immense gathering was well taken care of and the visitors from the southwest and western part of the state seemed to have had a good time.

The trains on the Great Northern and Northern Pacific roads left earlier last evening, and the city will be in a normal state, as to population, until next Friday, when other trainloads of excursionists will come in. The tourist season is on and all the up-coming boats are bringing large numbers of passengers daily. The Northern steamships have started and the North West will be here tomorrow. The hotels are rapidly filling with the summer guests and, while rooms are not at a premium as yet, the hotels are well filled.

BEQUEST OF GREAT VALUE

Immense Property Willed to United Church.

Rev. E. J. Homme of Wittenberg the Benefactor.

Several gifts to the United Norwegian Lutheran church have been made public during the session of the convention now being held at the high school here, but the greatest of all was announced this morning. It came from the beloved Rev. E. J. Homme, of Wittenberg, Wis., whose illness has brought much sadness to the members of the church now in session here and for whose welfare prayers have been offered in the convention. A telegram was received announcing his death at Wittenberg, at 2:30 o'clock this morning. Rev. A. L. Dahl thereupon read the will of the deceased which was signed by him Friday evening. It conveys to the United church Homme's Orphans' home and Homme's Home for aged people at Wittenberg, the only condition being that those homes be managed as Lutheran institutions. About 125 acres of land belong to the homes. Formand Dahl was instructed to appoint a committee of one to draft a letter of condolence to the wife and children of the deceased, and he appointed Rev. J. O. Hagen. According to a resolution by the meeting the formand appointed Rev. L. M. Dahl to attend the funeral, which will take place next Friday.

A most curious discussion was aroused by a motion expressing regret because two ministers had dropped out of the United church. One of them had run away from his family with another woman, and one of them, Rev. O. E. Loe, of Beloit, Wis., left the United church on account of divergent religious views. Rev. Loe is admitted to be a good and pure man whose character is absolutely without blemish. The two men were placed on an equal footing, and several ministers made an indignant protest against the coupling together of the two names.

Prof. M. O. Bockman defended the motion on the ground that both men are on the direct way to perdition. Prof. E. T. Johnson, Prof. Bockman's colleague, declared point blank that he "could not understand Prof. Bockman." Prof. Munsen even held that the members of the meeting have no right, either as citizens of this country or as Christians, to pass such a resolution.

Rev. N. E. Boe of Silver Lake, Ia., went all the other speakers one better by declaring that Rev. Loe's sin was even worse than the sin of that other wretch, because Rev. Loe's course might lead others into the same error.

Most of the audience felt very strongly on this point. The motion was referred to the committee by which it had been introduced.

Revs. A. Wright, I. A. Bergh, Beloit, Wis., and H. Roalkvam, Coon Valley, Wis., were elected as a committee to collect historical data bearing on the work of the Norwegian Lutheran churches in America.

Rev. O. Nilson, of Scandinavia, Wis., was re-elected editor of Luthersk Bornblad, and the Revs. C. M. Weswig and H. B. Kildahl were elected editors of the Children's Companion.

The morning devotionals were conducted by Rev. P. R. Syrdal, of Hatton, N. D., who read Psalm cxxvi, and led in prayer. The ministers' octette sang "Zion's Song" to the inexpressibly sad tune of "Suami's Sang," a Finnish national hymn.

A collection amounting to $90.97 was taken up at the service last night for the benefit of needy ministers and ministers' widows.

Formand Dahl made a brief but earnest appeal to the members of the meeting to stay and perform their duties to the end of the conference.

Rev. Tjornhom announced that a steamer would take 800 people out for a three hours' excursion tomorrow afternoon, but the meeting acted almost as though the delegated did not hear what was said.

The English conference of the United church will hold a meeting tonight.

A FINE BEQUEST.

United Church Hears of $3000 Given Its Work.

Saturday afternoon the annual meeting of the United church was treated to another agreeable surprise during the discussion of a proposition to establish a new so-called practical department at the theological seminary in order to educate a larger number of visitors. Rev. N. Norvesen, of Fillmore county, Minn., rose and stated that John P. Sviggum, a resident of North Prairie, Fillmore county, who died last winter, had willed $3000 to the United church, $500 to go to the Wittenberg orphans' home; $500 to the Beloit orphans' home; $500 to the Madagascar mission; $500 to the China mission, and $1000 to needy theologient students of good character.

The sudden resignation of Prof. E. G. Lund, as professor of theology, made the United church realize that some provision ought to be made for educating young men for stepping in to fill the gaps when the present theological professors begin to drop out. The annual meeting, therefore, passed a series of resolutions on this subject. One resolution declares that the United church will defray the expenses of young men who are willing to prepare themselves for occupying chairs of theology; another resolution throws a number of safeguards around the agreements between such statements and the United church; and a third one provides that if a candidate, after having completed a course on this plan, fails to serve the United church, he shall refund the money advanced by the United church, as well as interest, at the rate of four per cent.

Some of the best heads in the United church were kept busy for some time before this plan was completed. One of the safeguards is that the theological faculty shall select the schools at which such candidates are to study. It was evident that the speakers on this subject were strongly opposed to rationalistic tendencies.

Another question of an educational matter also engrossed the closest attention of the meeting for some length of time. The lack of ministers is represented to be almost alarming, and a motion was made to establish a "practical" department at the theological seminary, for students who have not had a regular college training. Strong arguments were fired from both sides on this subject. Rev. Sven Strand, of Wallingford, Iowa, wanted highly educated men for the ministry. "It is bad to have too few ministers, but it is ten times worse to have too many," he said. He also pointed out that if a minister enters some other field of work he is too often a failure. Prof. Bockman, the president of the theological seminary, said that the people were so anxious to get ministers from that particular school because much questionable raw material in the shape of young men was kept out of the school. The motion was voted down, so there will be no "practical" department at the seminary.

A motion to establish a fifth chair of theology was voted down after Treasurer Swenson had explained that the interest from the $120,000 endowment fund would support only four theological professors.

Henceforth the members of the senior class at St. Olaf college will have to pay regular tuition unless they propose to study theology. It was resolved to appoint a general director of the musical department of St. Olaf college.

The United church was invited to hold its next annual meeting at Albert Lea. Winona and also Sioux Falls, and Albert Lea won the battle almost without a struggle. So the next annual meeting will be in Albert Lea, where splendid accommodations were offered.

KITCHI GAMMI BLOCK,
24 Third Avenue West.

Rev. A. Ofstedal reported from the board of trustees of St. Olaf college that the $10,000 granted to the school last year proved insufficient, and the board asked for an appropriation of $12,000 for the coming year.

Just before the close of the session a motion was made to establish a pension system for the benefit of superannuated ministers, but action was deferred. According to a statement made by Rev. R. Anderson, of La Crosse, Wis., about seventy-five per cent of the clergy of the United church are so poor that they must receive aid if they live any length of time after they have become incapacitated for work, and this gloomy outlook, he said, would naturally deter young men from entering the ministry.

Formand Dahl was instructed to appoint a committee of one to wire greetings from the United church to Rev. E. J. Homme, Wittenberg, Wis., who was at the point of death, and Rev. L. M. Blorn, of Zumbrota, Minn., was appointed. The message was adopted by a rising vote.

Iver I. Ellefsen, of Jasper, Minn., conducted the opening services Saturday afternoon.

The Pauli church, Roseau county, Minn., was admitted into the United church.

Rev. N. J. Ellestad, the new president of the United church, presided during the latter part of the afternoon session.

FIFTEEN ORDAINED.

Ministers Receive the Church's Commission to Preach.

The United Church ordination and communion service yesterday forenoon was attended by an audience that completely filled the auditorium of the high school building. Formand Dahl preached the ordination sermon on Luke V, 5: "Nevertheless at thy word I will let down the net." Formand Dahl was assisted by Vice President Ellestad and the Revs. O. H. Melby, Largemo, Octby and Chris Skyberg. Rev. G. Rasmussen had charge of the communion service.

Those ordained and the charges to which they go are:

V. E. Hoe, Hatton, N. D.
O. Gronen, Minot, N. D.
P. P. Hauglum, Marshall county, S. D.
J. J. Hjortaas, Benona, Mich.
O. N. Nelson, Grand Forks county, N. D.

TEMPERANCE RALLY.

Lincoln Park Meeting an Immense Success.

It is no exaggeration to say that the temperance lecture in Lincoln Park yesterday was a tremendous success. The right sort of a meterological combination was there, the speakers were there, and the crowd was there—between two and three thousand people in all.

A. Thoren, the president of the Scandinavian Temperance Union, made a short address of welcome and introduced Rev. N. B. Tivedt of this city, who led in prayer.

The speakers were Rev. A. J. Hulteng, of Grand Forks, Rev. Jens C. Roseland, the secretary of the United church, and B. B. Haugen of Fergus Falls. They are all total abstainers and prohibitionists of the most implacable kind, and it is hard to say which one of them denounced the saloon well in the strongest terms. To Rev. Hulteng it was utterly and everlastingly invonceivable how a man who claims to be a good Christian can support the saloon by his vote. Rev. Roseland simply had no choice, no liberty in the matter; for as surely as he took his baptismal vows seriously, just as severly will he be bound to fight the saloon. Of the three Mr. Haugan was perhaps the most vitrolic in his sarcasim. He enjoyed being on good terms with the crowd, he was fond of the crowd; but when the crowd perverse and runs into all sorts of devilry he must needs step out of it and even fight it.

Rev. A. F. Ellmquist of this city pronounced the benediction and Rev. A. Toren made a few closing remarks.

The immense crowd scattered very slowly, for the terrific onslaught of the speakers had made a profound impression.

BAIL FORFEITED.

Cashier Twining Failed to Appear In Court.

Trenton, N. J., June 22.—In the United States district court Albert C. Twining, cashier of the wrecked First National bank, of Asbury Park, was called upon to plead to an indictment of misappropriating funds of the bank. Twining was not in court and Judge Kirkpatrick ordered forfeited bail in the sum of $2,000, which Twining gave in Jersey City on Saturday night before Commissioner Fagan, for his appearance in court today.

EXPLOSION OF GAS

In Mine Causes Serious Injury to Fourteen.

Tamaqua, Pa., June 22.—By an explosion of gas in the No. 4 mine of the Lehigh Coal & Navigation company late last night, fourteen men were so badly burned that it is thought six of them will die. Daniel Lewis, a miner, succumbed to his injuries today. Two English-Speaking miners and three foreigners are in a critical condition and their recovery is doubtful. The explosion, it is believed, was due to a defective safety lamp.

FENCES MUST COME DOWN.

Government's Ultimatum Is Issued to Cattlemen.

Portland, Ore., June 22.—Edward Dixon, a special agent of the interior department, is now in Eastern Oregon, warning cattlemen and others who have fenced in government lands to tear down the obstructions. Those who fail to obey Mr. Dixon's orders will be prosecuted by civil and criminal proceedings being instituted. Over 500,000 acres of government land will be thrown open to entry by this action of federal officials.

BROTHERS FIGHT

Forbes Brothers Involved In Light Tangle Over Property.

A. A. Forbes Claims His Brother Robert Cheated Him Badly.

The hearing which was to have been held this morning on the order of the court to show cause why an injunction should not be issued against the defendant in the case of A. A. Forbes against his brother, Robert Forbes, and why a receiver should not be appointed for the affairs of Forbes Bros., was postponed until Thursday morning. The postponement was taken at the instance of the defendant, who claims that one of his attorneys, H. J. Grannis, he was fond of the city and will not return before Thursday.

The motion for an injunction and the appointment of a receiver was made in connection with an action which was begun this morning by A. A. Forbes against his brother, Robert Forbes, and Emma Forbes, in which the plaintiff seeks a dissolution of the firm of Forbes Bros., and an accounting. The plaintiff also asks that Emma Forbes be declared trustee of all the property interests of Robert Forbes and of the firm of Forbes Bros, and that she make an accounting of the same.

The plaintiff in the action, fearing that the defendants were about to leave the state, secured a writ of ne exeat last Thursday, issued by Judge Dibell and returnable this morning. Under this writ, which is one not often used in this state, the defendants, Robert Forbes and his wife, Emma Forbes, were compelled to furnish bonds in the amount of $250 or be taken into custody. John Brown and Frank Cox are sureties on the bonds.

When the hearing comes up again Thursday morning, the defendant will argue a motion for a dismissal of the restraining order and the order to show cause, on the ground, among other things, that the orders were issued without authority; that no complaint, petition or other papers were on file in court, and that at the time the order was issued no action had been begun by the plaintiff against the defendant.

None of the papers in the action were filed until this morning.

In the complaint, which is a long one, the plaintiff sets forth, in part, the following allegations:

About April 15, 1859, A. A. Forbes was a practicing physician at Texada Island, B. C., and acting chemist and mining superintendent of the Van Anda Smelter company, earning over $300 per month. He was offered that amount, in addition to what he could make by private practice, to remain in his connection with the smelter company.

About this time his brother, Robert Forbes, urged him to go into a partnership, and as an inducement offered to pool all his own property interests, consisting of mining property, prospects for mines, stocks, etc., with the similar property interests of the plaintiff, the gains and losses of the copartnership to be divided equally. On account of these inducements, A. A. Forbes threw up his situation at Texada Island, and the firm commenced business in Duluth under the name of Forbes Bros. The plaintiff claims he put property interests into the copartnership concern in the value of $50,000, but the defendant, it is alleged, neglected and failed to keep his part of the agreement and did not put any of his interests into the firm account.

At the time the partnership was formed the defendant, Robert Forbes, had large interests in the exact amount unknown to the plaintiff, but there was one item of 1,000,000 shares of promoter's stock of the Parry Sound Copper company, valued at 45 cents per share, that is remembered by the defendant.

The plaintiff in the action alleges, further, that he has complied in every way with the agreement for the copartnership, but that the defendant, Robert Forbes, to escape the execution of judgments by creditors, transferred all his proprty interests over in his wife's name, and that to protect himself, he tried to have her name substituted for his own in the copartnership. Plaintiff claims he never acquiesced in receiving Emma Forbes as a copartner.

Among the items which the plaintiff claims the defendants hold that belong to the firm are deeds to a residence property in Hunter's Park, two farms near Fort Wayne, Ind., or Benton Harbor, Mich., various mortgages on local and out of town properties, and notes against divers persons. It is alleged that all the papers showing these items of assets are locked up in the vault of Forbes Bros., in the Manhattan building.

The plaintiff alleges that he was refused access to the vault, and the fact has developed that a stipulation was made between the plaintiff and defendant, according to the provisions of which the vault and its contents are to remain in possession of the sheriff's office until the court takes action.

Plaintiff alleges that he feared the defendants would destroy the papers relating to the partnership transaction, and he asks the court for an order restraining them from doing so.

The writ of ne exeat was asked after petition by the plaintiff and affidavit by other parties that in their behalf the defendants would leave the state unless an order was issued preventing them trom so doing.

One of the most interesting documents on file in the action is the affidavit of M. Jacoby, sworn and subscribed to June 13, before George F. Davis, notary public. In his affidavit Mr. Jacoby says that he has known Robert Forbes for the past two years and has had business transactions, but that in all his dealings deponent was treated in an underhanded and dishonorable manner and has been cheated and defrauded in his transactions by false representations by Robert Forbes, of the firm of Forbes Bros.

Deponent says his dealings were in reference to Parry Sound Copper Mining company Consolidated Copper company stock. In his affidavit Mr. Jacoby says that he believes Robert Forbes is a person who, if he had the opportunity, would destroy papers in evidence in any other matter that would profit him anything in money, or that would protect him, or his wife, from liability. The affidavit states that the deponent is acquainted with the reputation Robert Forbes bears in the community for truth and veracity and in his business transactions, and that it is bad; that deponent believes Robert Forbes, to avoid the jurisdiction of district court, would secrete himself and property and would disobey any order from the court that could not be absolutely enforced by imprisonment.

Davis & Arnold appeared this morning for the plaintiff. The defendants will be represented by J. A. Keyes and H. J. Grannis. Referring to the attitude of the parties in the action toward each other, thus far in the case, the court remarked to the attorneys this morning he did not believe that either party had been an angel.

Plumbers' Charges.

To the Editor of The Herald:

In your article on Saturday with reference to the charges by plumbers, you have made statements that must be in error. You have a prominent man say he received 40 cents an hour last year and 70 cents this year. This is either incorrect or an unfair statement. Last year journeymen plumbers were paid 50 cents per hour; master plumbers charged 75 cents per hour. This year journeymen plumbers receive 55 cents an hour and master plumbers charge 75 cents an hour. Thus you can see his statement is in error on the face of it. He may have employed his plumbers by the month or year at a fixed salary or wage, work or play, but would not be entitled to figure that by the hour unless he allowed for idle hours, or else the master plumber charged him for two hours' time for every hour worked.

It is unjust to indirectly accuse the plumbers of being the cause of stone advancing from $10 a cord to $18 per cord? Does it not look as if the other contractors were raising a plumbers' dust to conceal the extreme advances in all other materials, etc. Respectfully,

WAUGH, KEALY & CO.

CRICKET MATCHES.

London, June 22.—The Philadelphia cricket team today began a match at Lords, with the Marlebone Cricket club, composed of England's leading cricketers. The Americans batted first, but made a poor showing. C. C. Morris and J. A. Lester were both dismissed for a total of nine runs. The Philadelphians, in their first innings, were all out for sixty-five runs.

DIRECTORS DID NOT MEET.

New York, June 22.—The directors' meeting of the Colorado Fuel and Iron company, scheduled for today, will not be held, according to Chairman Osgood, who arrived here from Denver yesterday. Mr. Osgood declined to discuss the affairs of the company or make a statement concerning its financial condition.

SEIZED THE CIGARS

Revenue Men Take 3000 Sample Tobacco Trust Cigars.

They Are Wrapped In Paper Not Complying With Rules.

The United States government has made itself decidedly unpopular with a certain class of smokers in Duluth.

The revenue department, at the direction of Revenue Collector Fred von Baumbach, has seized 3000 cigars belonging to the Continental Cigar company, the cigar end of the tobacco trust, which were brought here for free distribution.

The cigars were seized because of a technical departure from the letter of the revenue law provisions.

The internal revenue regulations provide that all packages containing cigars shall bear upon them in plain print, besides other things, the number of the district and the name of the factory which made the cigar.

Last week John T. Campbell arrived in Duluth with 3000 cigars and six hustling young men, with a view of working the city and getting away.

At that time Collector von Baumbach came up from St. Paul and made a mysterious visit stopping at the St. Louis hotel. He gave out that he was going up the north shore with his wife.

What he did do was to authorize the local representative to seize the cigars, which were about to be taken out and distributed throughout the city. The agent seized them, and the trust men have been here ever since waiting developments.

Minnesota never was a strong advocate of trusts, and the trusts have had some rather disagreeable experiences in this state; notably the railroad trust.

Mr. Campbell and his men were in Minneapolis just before coming here. While engaged in the benevolent occupation of handing out free cigars, the revenue officials sent a notice to one of the men, saying that the distribution be stopped, because of the omission of the district number and name of the maker. The notification of the revenue collector never reached Mr. Campbell, and the work was carried through.

When the plan of visiting all the large cities of the country and working up the trust's cigar business in this way, was desired, one of the sample cigars was sent to the department at Washington, and the department sent word back saying that it was all right and to go ahead.

It was upon that assurance that Mr. Campbell kept up the work in Minneapolis.

He would have started to work here if the collector had not crippled him by taking away the samples. The party has remained here and the trust offices in New York have taken up the question with the department at Washington. Some word is expected daily.

"The package which is complained of," said Mr. Campbell today, "is a small printed wrapper which is upon every cigar. It contains some information regarding the cigars and matter regarding their sale. These are given away free, and it was through some slip or other that the number of the district in which they were made, and the name of the maker, were left off. Of couse, the company relied upon the ability of the department to pass upon the sample and there was no suggestion of objection until Minneapolis was reached.

"We finished up there and Mr. Von Baumbach probably ascertained where we would be next, and came up and seized the cigars upon the information he had received in Minneapolis.

"Public sympathy is not with the trust, and it is likely some small dealer discovered the omission and reported it."

Whether or not the cigars are returned, the trust men will work in Duluth for a few days with catalogues and printed matter.

INJUNCTION ISSUED

Restraining Action In Bartlett Frazer & Co. Case.

Chicago, June 22.—An injunction was issued today in the superior court restraining Homer Peters and Herman E. Raycrott from taking action for the appointment of a receiver for the brokerage firm of Bartlett, Frazer & Co. According to the application upon which the injunction was issued, the defendants have demanded compensation for an "alleged good will" in the firm. The complainants, William H. Bartlett, Frank P. Frazer and Charles B. Pierce, assert that they fear a receiver will be asked for and the business of the firm thus interfered with.

MRS. SIEGEL HURT.

New York, June 22.—Mrs. Henry Siegel, wife of Henry Siegel, the principal stockholder in the Simpson-Crawford company, was seriously hurt by being thrown from a carriage in a runaway accident at Mamaroneck today. The horses drawing the carriage in which she was riding were frightened by a passing railroad train. Mr. Siegel came to New York from Chicago some years ago.

THE DULUTH JULY FAIR AND CARNIVAL

STEEL MEN HERE

Are Making a Trip Over Both the Minnesota Ranges.

They Were Joined in Duluth by Several Local Officials.

The special train carrying the four general officials of the steel corporation, accompanied by several officials of the local subsidiary companies, left the Iron Range railroad this noon and was transferred to the Missabe road.

The special train will probably arrive in Duluth this evening, it is expected about 9 o'clock.

The trip of inspection has been a rapid one, and the view but casual.

The train stopped at Two Harbors, at Tower and Ely. On the return, Biwabik, Virginia and Eveleth were visited, and this afternoon some of the properties at Hibbing will be looked over, and the Proctorknott terminal and ore docks of the Missabe road may not be inspected until tomorrow, if the party reaches here after dark.

At the offices of the steel corporation it was said that the plans, after the party reaches here have not been promulgated, and the employes are in the dark as to what the officials intend doing.

The special train arrived in Duluth yesterday morning at 8 o'clock from the Menominee range, over the South Shore road, and was turned over immediately to the Iron Range, which hauled the special car and additions made in this city to Two Harbors, where the first stop was made.

There are in the party: First Vice President James Gayley, of the steel corporation, in charge of all transportation; D. M. Clemson, president of the Pittsburg Steamship company; D. G. Kerr, ore agent; C. D. Fraser, secretary of the Oliver and Minnesota Mining companies.

Judge Reed of the Pittsburg, Lake Erie & Bessemer railway, down in Michigan, is with the party, and T. F. Cole, of the mining companies in Minnesota, went to Michigan to meet the visitors. Those who joined the trip at Duluth for the run up and down from the range company were:

L. W. Powell, assistant to the president of the local mining companies; W. J. Olcott, president of the Missabe road; F. S. House, president of the Iron Range road; A. B. Welvin, general manager of the Pittsburg Steamship company; W. J. Jeffrey, head of the auditing department; H. J. Wessenger, of the mechanical department; J. W. Kreitter, superintendent of the Missabe road; W. A. McGonagle, general manager of the Missabe road, and others.

The party will leave Duluth some time tomorrow. It is expected to be back in the Michigan iron country in time to attend the fifteenth anniversary of the formation of the Lake Superior Iron company.

The officials are observing the trackage and railroad properties and docks to ascertain if any improvements are necessary.

The trip is being made very quietly, and nothing of a public nature is connected with the journey.

A NARROW ESCAPE

Five Lives Jeopardized By Capsizing of a Sail Boat.

Clung to Boat's Keel Until Life-Saving Crew Comes.

Five visitors in Duluth narrowly escaped death by drowning this morning in the harbor.

The party, composed of two young men and three women, rented a small sailing skiff from H. S. Patterson and went out for a little trip about the harbor. The young men did not seem to be familiar with the sailing of a small boat and their management was not overly skilful, according to the stories told by witnesses of the accident. When just opposite the Seventh avenue slip, in a line with the life-saving station on the point, a sharp gust of wind caught the man at the tiller unawares and the boat keeled over, throwing the five occupants into the water.

The young men with difficulty succeeded in rescuing the women and getting them to the inturned hull of the skiff, where they clung, making signals for assistance.

A number of people witnessed the accident, including the life-saving crew on the point. In a remarkably short space of time a boat was run out from the life-saving station and the crew succeeded in rescuing the five unfortunates, who were none the worse for their ducking, although the women of the party were badly frightened.

They left without giving their names. They were also unknown to Mr. Patterson, from whom they rented the boat, and it is thought that they were visitors in Duluth who were spending the morning in sightseeing in the harbor.

FINANCIAL CONDITIONS

At All Postoffices Are to Be Made Public.

Washington, June 22.—The postoffice department will make public in the near future a general statement, summarizing the conditions in the offices of cashier, finance clerk, etc., at the various postoffices. MAKERS OF KICKS

Property Owners Plead Poverty Before Board of Review.

Many People Do Not Understand $100 Is Exempted.

Several very wealthy people claiming almost distressing poverty, appeared before the board of review this morning urging a reduction in their taxes.

Few received the reduction, though all got the promise that their complaints would be given full consideration.

It was a busy session for the board, not through any general fault of the assessors, but largely because many people did not understand that there was $100 exemption. A working man whose personal property was assessed for $125 did not understand that he would only be called to pay taxes on $25, and most of the morning was occupied in making explanations of this kind.

The board is composed of Mayor Hugo, City Assessor Olafson and City Comptroller McCermick. All persons aggrieved by the assessment of their personal property this year are entitled to a hearing before this board and the board has full power to decide whether or not the assessor shall revise the assessments.

Mayor Hugo, who is president of the board, says that the assessors performed their work well this year and consequently the work of the board of review will be light. The law requires that the board be in session until the Friday next preceding the first Monday in July.

There are always amusing incidents connected with the sessions of the board. A citizen of Italian birth appeared before the board this morning claiming that $135 was far too high an assessment on his personal property. It was explained that $100 was exempt and he would only have to pay on $35. He said that was too high and went on to tell how he and his family of five lived in a house where there was nothing but a stove, claiming that they did not even have dishes.

FOUR KILLED IN COLLISION

Freight Cars Broke Loose and Crashed Into Train.

Rawlins, Wyo., June 22.—Four men were killed in a freight wreck which occurred four miles east of here early today. The dead:

BRAKEMAN McGRATH, Laramie.

ENGINEER EDWARD BAKER, Laramie.

FIREMAN CHARLES FREZELL, Laramie.

Unknown tramp.

Eight freight cars broke loose in the Rawlins yard and ran down Greenville hill, four miles, where they crashed into a westbound freight. The three trainmen killed were on the engine of the regular train. The track was considerably damaged and traffic somewhat delayed.

INJUNCTION DISSOLVED

The Government May Go Ahead and Launch the Galveston.

Richmond, Va., June 22.—In the chancery court today Judge Grinnan dissolved the injunction restraining the United States government from taking possession of the cruiser Galveston. The federal government stipulates that the ship shall remain the property of the Trigg creditors until the case is determined by the court of highest resort. The Galveston will be launched this week.

THOSE WHO HAVE DIED

Milwaukee, June 22.—A Daily News special from Pewaukee, Wis., says: Professor A. F. North, one of the best-known educators and writers in the state, died today, aged 86 years. Professor North had lived in retirement for several years.

New York, June 22.—Daniel Judson Holden, a member of the law firm of Curtis Bros., is dead at his home at this city. He was stricken very suddenly. Mr. Holden was a member of many leading clubs and an official of several large Southwestern development companies.

New York, June 22.—Maj. James B. Pond, the well-known manager of lecturers and singers, died yesterday at his home in Jersey City, as the result of an operation on June 17, in which his right leg was amputated. Maj. Pond, who had been ill for a month, two weeks ago underwent a slight operation, but the wound failed to heal satisfactorily and it finally became necessary to remove the leg. It was announced at the time that the patient had withstood the shock well; that the surgeons were hopeful of his recovery. Maj. Pond was born at Cuba, N. Y., in 1838.

St. Paul and Return $5.75.

COLOMBIAN ACTION

On the Canal Treaty Still Remains In Great Doubt.

Congress Can Do Nothing Else at Extra Session.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU

Washington, June 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—The congress of the United States of Colombia, which has just convened, was called for the purpose of considering the so-called Panama canal treaty between that republic and the United States of America. Under the terms of the call no other business whatever can be done except to dispose of this treaty. But as it is a new congress, which has just assembled, it must first be organized, and this, it is estimated, will take four days. Then the minister for foreign affairs will present the treaty to the two houses of the congress assembled in joint session. He will explain anything which may be necessary to the assembled members, giving his own views and those of the president of Colombia at the same time. After that the wrangle over the treaty will begin. This special session must adjourn by the 20th of July, upon which date the regular session of the congress will begin.

There are three courses open to the Colombian congress. They may ratify the treaty, reject it or amend it in such a manner as to make it doubtful to the United States. Just what the outcome will be is a problem which the Washington administration is unable to guess. Those who have represented the French company in the negotiations between this republic and the company are not as confident of ratification as they were some months ago, because they say there are three powerful influences at work against them. These influences have money behind them, and will undoubtedly use it liberally. Then, too, they are prepared to prove to the members of the Colombian congress that in the event of the rejection of the treaty the old French company, with new capital, will, within a week, be prepared to proceed with the work of construction, and to proceed more vigorously than ever before.

But, on the other hand, those who are best qualified to judge of the situation on the isthmus are positive that the rejection of the treaty will be followed by the secession of the territory of Panama and the establishment of a new republic there, which republic will, within ten days of its proclamation, send a treaty to Washington almost identical in its terms with the one now pending, but which will give this country more absolute control over the territory traversed by the canal than the Colombian government has ever been prepared to give. Those who are on the inside profess to have reason to believe that in the event of such a secession the United States will promptly recognize the new republic of Panama, and will enter into negotiations with the republic to the end that the canal may be built under American auspices. It is very well understood that there are powerful influences in this country which are represented at the Colombian capital against the interests of the United States, and for their own selfish reasons. The president and Secretary Hay are kept constantly advised of their movements in the South, but they are not prepared to make public the information which has been acquired by the American government.

There are men here who profess to believe that the Panama canal will never be constructed and that the Nicaraguan route will eventually be adopted after all. At the present time there is in this country a representative of Nicaragua, who has come authorized to give the United States even better terms than have heretofore been proposed. That these new proposals will be considered is not believed; at least not until after the Colombian congress shall have taken definite action towards the rejection of the treaty. Should that congress fail to act one way or the other before the 20th of July the treaty will again be presented during the regular session, but it will cause wrangles and delays through the determined opposition of the influences above cited. The French company would, it is asserted, be willing to pay a handsome home for the privilege of backing out of the contract for the sale of the ditch to the United States at the $40,000,000 agreed upon. By accepting this sum the stockholders in the new company, so-called, would receive back the amounts which they have paid in, together with 3½ per cent interest. It stockholders will receive in addition to is asserted that if the treaty falls these their original investments, 5 per cent interest, instead of 3½, and that the directors will have much better berths than they have heretofore enjoyed.

A great deal of wild talk has been indulged in during the past few weeks as to the probability of congress abandoning the whole rural free delivery service, as a result of the postoffice scandals. That such talk is absurd is easy to understand when it is remembered that every member of the house whose district is not confined to a large city is directly interested in the maintenance and growth of the rural free delivery service. It may be true that routes have been established in districts which were not entitled to them when the population and postal business were considered, but on the other hand, all members representing rural populations have been tarred with the same stick. Political lines have never been drawn in the establishment of rural routes, and during the past two years when congress was in session fully 10 per cent of the absentees could have been discovered in the headquarters of the rural free delivery service urging upon the superintendent the necessity for consideration of routes in which each individual was directly interested. Day after day Republicans and Democrats have thronged that office, carrying with them petitions and papers for the establishment of this or that route. An inspector closing up work in a district represented by a Republican today would be ordered to a Democratic district tomorrow, and vice versa. Any attempt to abandon this service which has proved so popular in the country would raise a howl which would be heard from Maine to Texas and from Washington to Florida, and the congressman who should vote for it would undoubtedly be promptly retired to private life by their indignant constituents.

The rural free delivery service has come to stay. It is likely, of course, that extravagances will be lopped off and that a healthier system will be inaugurated under the next regime. It is certain that it will be a long time before wholesale scandals are again uncovered, and because of the discoveries which have been made the total appropriations for the next few years will certainly not increase at the rate which has been the rule in the past few years.

Since the return of President Roosevelt from his long and interesting "swing around the circle" our strenuous chief executive has been paying considerable attention to athletics and has had one of the rooms of the White House fitted up as a department of physical culture. This room, which for more than two generations was used as a sacred council chamber of presidents and their cabinets, has been wholly denuded of everything reflective of the old days, and instead now holds a varied assortment of sporting and athletic goods, including boxing gloves, sword sticks, fencing swords and foils, padded vests and gloves and other implements used to keep the person of the president in "fit" condition. The historic apartment now used as the president's training quarters contains no reminders of Lincoln and his political advisers seated at the cabinet table approving the emancipation proclamation, or of Grant, Hayes, Garfield, Arthur, Cleveland, Harrison, McKinley, or the long line of presidents who had preceded them. Nowhere can be seen a suggestion of the great national problems that have been fought out by the giant intellects in the room in days gone by. On the contrary, the room has an up-to-dateness that is very startling, and yet one cannot help but admire this very much up-to-date president, because he is the living embodiment of the old Latin maxim, "a sound mind in a sound body." It has been generally supposed that what the president calls "the department of physical culture of this administration" was located in the basement in one of the rooms formerly used as a billiard room or laundry. It will therefore be a shock to those sticklers for propriety to know that one of the finest rooms in the White House has been given over to athletic purposes.

Quartermaster Gen. Humphrey, who has just returned from hard campaigning in the far East, has little patience with those who look upon the Japanese in a favorable light. The general tells some very interesting stories of the Chinese campaign, and in which he came in close contact with the Japanese soldiery. Gen. Humphrey is of the opinion that when the clash of arms comes between Russia and Japan the Russians will inflict such punishment upon the Japanese people that they will be a generation in recovering from the attack of the Russian bear. Capt. A. W. Butt, of the quartermaster's department, and a former Washington newspaper man, returned to the states with Gen. Humphrey, and he is now in Washington for the purpose of closing up his accounts. Capt. Butt says that the American people have very erroneous ideas as to the Japanese, and denominates the empire as a toy empire, everything being done along toy lines. He states that the navy of Japan is greatly overestimated, and that the fighting qualities of the Japanese soldier is by no means what they are cracked up to be. Capt. Butt, however, is enthusiastic over the Philippines and believes that they will become one of our most valuable possessions, and he believes the Filipino much superior to the Japanese. It is remarkable how differently returning army officers look upon the Philippine islands. One man has nothing but praise of the climate, and the opportunities afforded to make money. Another officer just as capable and just as discriminating has nothing but condemnation for the islands and the people. It is simply a clear case of paying your money and taking your choice. One thing is certain, however, that the islands will not be disposed of for some years to come, if ever.

HAPPENINGS IN DAKOTAS

Indian Buys Coffin For Live Son to Save Trip.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Chamberlain—While the Indian of this section has rapidly adopted the customs of the whites in the matter of divorce and marriage, the whites have just been gone one better in the matter of death. An Indian in town from Crow Creek agency with his boy, who is in the last stages of consumption, thought he might as well buy a coffin for the young man while in town so as to avoid a necessity for his return. Accordingly the young man was taken to an undertaking establishment and measured for a neat casket. This was thoroughly fitted up, piled into the wagon and the Indian left for home, happy and contented.

Chamberlain will have a second flour mill. J. W. Sanford has ordered the material for a mill of sixty-barrel capacity, and expects to have it in running order in three months. It will be constructed of Washington fir, ordered direct from the coast, will be three and a half stories high, and the motive power will be provided by a sixty-horse power gasoline engine. A 20,000 bushel elevator will also be erected adjoining the mill.

The uncommon sight of seeing a man 100 years of age making final proof on a quarter section of public lands was witnessed in the local United States land office today. The claimant was Commodore Clayton, who in 1890 filed on a claim in the southern part of Lyman county, where he has since been engaged in the business of rasing horses. Clayton was born in Tennessee in 1803, and was a lad in astronomical evolution seem but hours in comparison.

Sturgis—The Commercial club of this city held a meeting to inaugurate the irrigation movement in Meade county. The spur which actuated the meeting was a letter from R. F. Walter, engineer of the United States geological survey, residing at Hot Springs, that he was ready at any time to come here and investigate any reservoir site or water supply to which the citizens might direct his attention. At the meeting several artesian well prospects were discussed, together with suitable sites for water storage. The secretary of the club was instructed to request Walter to come here, and upon his arrival another meeting will be held.

Mitchell—Jack Sully, the alleged cattle thief, has five indictments hanging over his head, but he failed to turn up at the term of circuit court, as he declared he would when he escaped from the Davison county jail last January. Sully has been living with his friends and relatives on the reservation ever since he escaped from jail, going and coming at any time of the day or night when he wished, and no attempt has been made to arrest him. The convictions of a few criminals, it is believed, will have a tendency to put a stop to the lawlessness that exists on the reservation, for the violators have always maintained that no court on the reserve could secure a conviction, due to the fact that the members of any jury would be afraid to convict for fear of the retribution that would follow in the killing of cattle and the stealing of horses from them. Such a procedure has been in force for some time past with the effect that convictions have been scarce. The cattlemen have taken their chances on the future, and, having convicted these seven, they think that it will have a good effect.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Grand Forks—J. G. Fisk sustained the demurrer to the complaint of the case against State Treasurer McMillan brought by the attorney general for the recovery of $50,000 paid by the treasurer two years ago on bonds issued by the agricultural college. The suit was brought to secure a legal declaration as to the power of the board of university and school lands to invest the money of the common school fund institution bonds of which there are now $750,000 awaiting action. The case will be appealed to the supreme court at once, and a final decision is expected in about two weeks.

Jamestown—A sensation was created in Justice Pearson's court when Chris Lindseth, complainant in the case brought against Charles Raney, of Courtenay, for hilling pigging, denounced three men who testified for the defense as perjurers. Lindseth had testified that he had in company with A. Maycard and Anton Clemenson, purchased eight bottles of beer in Raney's place. The defense attempted to show by witnesses that Lindseth and the two others were drunk when they entered Raney's place and it was then that Lindseth denounced them. Raney was held to the district court and bonds were fixed at $100. He furnished the bonds and was released.

Fargo—Edward Knight, of Newham, Canada, and his cousin are here and identified the remains of William Knight, killed by the Northern Pacific recently while attempting to board a moving freight train. The dead man was a brother of the Canadian and left home ten years or more ago. For seven years little had been heard of him, except he was in the employ of the Great Northern at Hibbing, Minn. The brother will secure letters of administration and endeavor to obtain the money said to be on deposit in a Minneapolis bank.

Lieut. Reiss, of the United States recruiting station, reports activity in enlistments. Eight more young men have been added to the service of Uncle Sam, and have been sent to different posts for preliminary training.

The Reeves thresher people are planning the erection of a big warehouse on Northern Pacific avenu.

IS WORLD'S WONDER

Discovery of Radium Is Easily Defined, Say Scientists.

To Comprehend This Revolution In Science Almost Impossible.

London, June 22.—The world's foremost searchers after the ultimate secrets of the universe have at length committed themselves to the stupendous theory, for some time foreshadowed and now apparently substantiated by study, of the new substance, radium.

Prof. Crookes, the other day in Berlin and Professors Lodge and Curie, last week in London, have proclaimed that it is easy to define this great revolution in science in scarcely more than a sentence, but to comprehend it is almost as far beyond the power of the human minds as the idea of eternity or infinite space.

The old theory that the atoms of elements consist of indivisible units of matter now is definitely discarded. Instead, we are now told that each atom is a whole stellar system of infinitely smaller but absolutely identical units, all in a regular orbital motion. An atom consists of 700 such units or ions. The nature or identity of each substance depends upon the number of such ions contained in each atom. Thus 11,200 ions in each atom produces what we know as oxygen, 37,200 of the same ions if combined in a single atom would yield what we regard as good as gold. The nature of these ions is, for want of a better word, electrical. In other words, electricity and matter are one and the same thing.

This theory has been more or less familiar to scientific men for two or three years, but it has been undemonstrable until recently. What Roentgen rays suggested now radium seems to furnish complete. Prof. Curie's examination of radium and other phenomena leads Prof. Lodge and his associates to believe that matter is not stable in its atoms as heretofore supposed. Everybody is familiar with the disintegration or recombination of the elements. Thus water may be separted into oxygen and hydrogen, but it never before was imagined that the atoms themselves were capable of disintegration.

Prof. Lodge suggests this is a notable process of nature, yet it is proceeding at a rate so slow that it baffles the powers of conception of the human mind to estimate the length of time required. In radium alone it proceeds so rapidly that the phenomena is easily observed.

Prof. Curie, the discoverer of radium, in some wonderful experiements at the Royal institution showed that radium spontaneously and continuously disengaged heat so rapidly that it affected photographic plates, even through opaque bodies. It discharged an electroscope when merely brought in its vicinity and gave off emanations similar to itself in constant, even violent, streams or radations. In other words, the 150,000 ions, which composed each atom of radium, rotated so violently that they flew apart into original units. It has been calculated, however, that this efflux from radium is so infinitely small that a square inch of surface would lose only one grain in ten thousand million years. Prof. Lodge surmises that this process of disintegration of atoms may constitute the evolution of the chemical elements.

The lecturer announced that within a few weeks Prof. Rutherford had observed the breakup of the most massive atoms. He found that a few atoms of a radio-active substance seemed to reach a critical stage, at which they fling away small portions of themselves with great violence, the residue having the same properties of radium for some time until ultimately it settles down into a presumably different substance. Changes of this sort in more stable atoms would seem to require millions of millions of centuries—so long, in fact, that the longest periods

Prof. Lodge affirms, however, that these changes seem bound to occur, according to fixed laws. So the state of flux and decay is recognized not only in the stars and planets but in the foundation stones of the universe. The elemental atoms themselves are in process of regeneration. It is impossible to imagine what would occur if the separate ions so aggregated themselves together by their mutual attractions into fresh material. The progress of the research may lead to the discovery of the existence of atoms, some recently formed and others ancient.

It will be seen the whole theory in effect is an astronomical one. One is led to wonder, then, if the earth and the other planets are not mere ions forming a single atom of the higher universe—where, perhaps, they constitute the speck of dust that worries the careful housewife in the world next above us. At all events we clearly are on the verge of the greatest revelations of science yet vouchsafed to mankind—a knowledge so gigantic that it is only limited by the capacity of the human mind to receive it.

SLEUTHS IN ODD POSITION

Seven Inspectors Exposing Postal Frauds Were Illegally Appointed.

Washington, June 22.—By far the most remarkable feature of the postoffice scandal was discovered when it was shown that seven of the inspectors engaged in conducting the investigation were "railroaded" into office in practical violation of the civil service law. More curious still, ex-Representative Loud of California, formerly chairman of the house postoffice committee, and who has been in constant consultation with Postmaster General Payne regarding the conduct of the investigation, apparently is responsible for three of these irregular appointments.

It appears that at the request of former Superintendent Machen, ex-Representative Loud recommended the appointment of Henry A. Machen, brother of the indicted official; James O'Connell, a relative of Loud, and J. W. Brewster.

The four other inspectors "railroaded" into office are: R. N. Fulton, Raleigh Hosford, Isaac L. T. Gregg, and F. H. Thorp. The three men recommended by Loud were first appointed in Bakersfield, a California postoffice, at a small salary, and afterwards transferred to Washington to their present positions, receiving large increases in their pay. Seven days after being appointed requests for "transfers," which is a technical term for the railroading process, were made.

When Machen, just before he was suspended, prior to his recent arrest, read the published interview with former Representative Loud, in which the latter "roasted" the free delivery service in general and Machen in particular, Machen grew purple in the face. After using some strong oaths, he said:

"Loud dare not talk that way about me. I'll put him on the bum. I'm not talking wildly. I've got letters, letters, letters, and if necessary I'll publish them in every paper in the country."

Machen was asked later what he meant by "letters, letters, letters," but he had calmed down in the interval and refused to discuss the matter, saves to say: "That Loud had better be careful."

Friends of A. W. Machen and others involved in the postal scandals are hopeful of escaping punishment. Although the government will prosecute them relentlessly, there appears to be some basis for their hope in view of the escape of those responsible for the star route frauds of 1881 and the scandals of 1884. Persons involved in star route frauds were charged with stealing millions of dollars, on fradulent contracts, yet they were acquitted.

The man charged with frauds in 1884 was not convicted, neither was he acquitted, and he is walking about the streets of Washington today. He is "Col." J. O. P. Burnside. He was custodian of all the money received from the sale of worn out furniture, waste paper, and other property of the department, and he had spent all that he had taken in for several years on high living in Washington.

When brought to trial Burnside's conviction was so certain that he made a plea of insanity, which was known and openly admitted to be a subterfuge. But it was a choice of the penitentiary or the insane asylum and Burnside chose the latter. He was committed to St. Elizabeth's, a government institution across the Potomac, within full sight of the capitol, and there he is today. He is often seen in Washington in the evenings, riding on the street cars, visiting the theaters, or strolling about the streets in the vicinity of his old home.

DIED FROM INJURIES.

Accident to Dr. Vincent of Red Ridge Proved Fatal.

Houghton, Mich., June 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—Dr. John H. Vincent, who was so severely injured by being thrown by his horse while hastening to attend a child that had been bitten by a dog Friday, died of his injuries Saturday. Drs. Moore and Quirk, of Atlantic, who attended him, made the trip to Red Ridge in a special engine which made the trip of nine miles in twelve minutes, a record-breaking run on the Copper Range. Dr. Vincent had been in practice only a year, and his untimely death is a great shock to his many friends.

"Chimes of Normandy."

AT WEST DULUTH

The victorious team, which represented West Duluth Woodmen so successfully at Indianapolis, returned home yesterday afternoon with the third prize for the junior event in its possession.

"There were thirty-eight teams entered in which we competed," said Capt. Salter, in speaking of the trip today. "The West Duluth boys came within 1½ points of first prize. We were handicapped in several ways. Our team was but recently organized, and we had with us several green men. Everybody did his best, but we were competing with teams that had been organized for many years, and the result was as much of a surprise to us as to anyone.

"The reception we received in Indianapolis was royal. The citizens were more than hospitable in their treatment of the Woodmen. They turned out in great numbers to witness the contest, and did everything that was possible for us.

"The contests were very keenly contested and there was a very close rivalry between the teams. Local pride was excited and every team was striving to outdo every other team. In some cases there was a little bitterness between the different teams, but this did not show itself to any great extent.

"Our men enjoyed the trip immensely. Atelegram of congragulation from the local lodge was received at the very moment we were lined up to receive the prize."

The team which represented West Duluth was composed of the following members of the lodge:

Captain, C. C. Salter; sergeant, Frank Hantz; corporals, Frank Mikesch, Frank Richards, J. E. Faubister, A. J. Chapman; privates, George Jacobs, Barney Faughman, William Lester Nellis, Edward Hantz, Ernest Coughlan, Nels Willner, John Connelley, J. C. Ramsbottom, George Govett, Thomas Faubister.

It is likely that the members of the local lodge will give the team a banquet in honor of its success.

ADD NIGHT SHIFTS.

Two Mills Will Increase Their Sawing Forces.

A night shift will be added to two of the West Duluth mills this week.

The St. Louis mill, which has been running with the day shift only for the past month or two, on account of the scarcity of logs, will add the night shift tonight. About 100 extra men will be needed.

The Lesure mill will put on a night shift Wednesday night. It is two or three seasons since the Lesure mill has run with two shifts. Abaut 75 or 100 men will be needed for this work also, making a total of nearly 200 men which will be added to the pay rolls of the West Duluth mills this week.

The Merrill & Ring mill was closed for a few hours today on account of a break down in the shaft on the trimmer. The repairs will be completed, and the mill started before evening.

THEY LOSE A GAME.

The West Duluth nine met defeat at the hands of the Marshall-Wells team yesterday afternoon on the grounds of the former team.

The game was a comedy of errors from the end of the third innings, when the home team scored five runs on a succession of errors on the part of the hardware men. The West Duluth boys returned the compliment later in the game, and handed the winners five or ten runs on bad errors. The score by innings is as follows:

Marshall Wells....	1	0	0	0	4	5	0	1	2	2—15
West Duluth.....	1	0	0	5	0	0	1	1	5	0—13

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

IN LUMBER MARKETS

Several Large Sales For Future Shipment Are Reported.

Manufacturers Said to Be Well Out of Dry Stock.

Conditions in the lumber market are getting better right along. Buyers are again coming into the market and the outlook is much more promising than it was during the last of May and the first part of June. The largest sale in this vicinity of recent date is said to be that of 4,000,000 feet, product of the new Plummer & Ash mill at Virginia, to be shipped to Chicago, via Duluth, this coming fall. A number of trades are reported to be on the verge of closing at the present time.

Alger, Smith & Co. have just closed up the sale of the season's lumber cut of the firm's mill at Grand Marais, Mich., comprising about 30,000,000 feet. The lumber is to go East. The mill at Grand Marais burned down last February, but was replaced in a very short time by a larger and more modern mill moved to that point from Cheboygan, Mich.

Manufacturers of lumber along the great lakes are said to be pretty well cleaned out of dry lumber stocks. Dry lumber on Lake Superior is moving out about as fast as it is in shippin condition, and there have been a number of green lumber shipments. Prices are maintained steadily at full figures paid during the earlier part of the season. In the Chicago market short pine piece stuff is being quoted at $16.50 to $17 per thousand, and other grades are on the same basis.

The John O'Brien Lumber company, of Chicago, which for many years past had been an active factor in the Northern Minnesota pine operations, is about to transfer its activity from white pine manufacture into the hardwood lumber business in the South. Mr. O'Brien has closed a deal for the entire plant and equipment of the Delta Cooperage company at Philipp, Miss., comprising a mill, townsite with buildings, 38,000 acres of timber land containing hardwood estmated at about 380,000,000 feet. The selling concern was formed by two prominent Milwaukee brewing companies.

The John O'Brien Lumber company will complete its logging operations in the Northwest this season, and John O'Brien, Jr., who has had charge of his father's interests in the Lake Superior region, will remove his headquarters to Memphis, Tenn. Mr. O'Brien, Sr., has been identified with the white pine trade in the North for the past forty years.

Rumors are current in lumber circles that A. H. Stange, of Merrill, Wis., who about two years ago bought the 260,000,000 feet white pine tract on the north shore from the Bradley estate, will purchase the remainder of the interests of the same estate and will remove his factory and sawmill from Merrill to Tomahawk, Wis. The proposed chauge is said to be with a view of better railroad facilities. It is claimed that the north shore timber, which Mr. Stange will manufacture within the next two years, can be shipped to Tomahawk more readily than to Merrill.

Lumber manufacturers at the inland mills are complaining of the high wages which they are now compelled to pay for skilled labor. It is claimed that sawyers that earn $6 per day at the mills on the harbor are paid $8 at the interior mills, with their board, and that trimmers who are paid $2.25 per day in Duluth are receiving as high as $3 per day at the country mills. Wages for other classes of labor are said to be proportionately higher than at the Duluth mills.

THE STAGE

A change of opera each night for six nights is what the Wilbur company proposes to give at the Metropolitan this week, opening with "Girofle Girofla" this evening. "Olivette" will be produced tomorrow night, the "Grand Duchess" Wednesday afternoon and evening, "Pinafore" Thursday, "Boccaccio" Friday, "Falka" Saturday afternoon and "Said Pasha" Saturday night. In "Girofle Girofla," which will be the bill tonight, Miss Richardson assumes the role of the twin sisters. The specialties will undergo decided changes. The little Gardner children will sing new songs and dance new dances; Miss Ethel Hunt will appear in recitations, Miss Katherine Goodrich will sing ballads and Relck and Lamar will present new illustrated songs.

* * *

The Northwestern Opera company will open its third week in summer opera at the Lyceum theater this evening, presenting "The Chimes of Normandy," and Manager Walle promises an extraordinarily well-sung and finished production, with staging adequate to set off the excellent company and build up the proper illusionary atmosphere desirable in this picturesque composition.

The production of the "Chimes" tonight may be looked forward to as the best thing that the company has done up to this time, and it is quite evident to the Duluth people that the company is working better together and becoming a stronger organization every day.

There will be a bargain Wednesday matinee, and Thursday night the opera "Fra Diavolo" will be put on for three days and a Saturday matinee.

The regular sale at the box office of the Lyceum has been growing daily, and the regular patronage has increased immensely since the merits of the company have been shown, and have attracted general attention in the city.

Humors

They take possession of the body, and are Lords of Misrule.

They are attended by pimples, boils, the itching tetter, salt rheum, and other cutaneous eruptions; by feelings of weakness, languor, general debility and what not.

They cause more suffering than anything else.

Health, Strength, Peace and Pleasure require their expulsion, and this is positively effected, according to thousands of grateful testimonials, by

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Which radically and permanently drives them out and builds up the whole system.

DIAVOLA THE ONLY ONE

Who Has Successfully Looped the Loop.

Looping the loop on a bicycle is a feat that has been written about, described and illustrated by all the leading newspapers and magazines of the country. The sensational act was first accomplished at Coney Island, New York city, by George M. Vandervoort during the winter of 1901. He was at once secured by the great Adam Forepaugh and Sells Bros.' enormous shows united at a fabulous salary to perform the perilous ride at each performance of the big shows. From that day until the present time he has been with these shows continually, with the exception of three months, which he spent in Berlin, last winter. Vandervoort, better known professionally as Diavolo, is positively the only man who has ever successfully looped the loop on a bicycle, and the Forepaugh-Sells circus is likewise the only amusement institution in the world that has ever presented the marvelous act. In all the history of circuses no single feature has attracted more widespread attention than Diavolo, who will appear here when the big shows exhibit on Monday, June 29.

Other features will be the famous Aurora Zouaves, known as the best-drilled company of soldiers in the world; Minting, the unicycle marvel; a detachment of Roosevelt Rough Riders, Ryan-Zorella troupe of flying aerialists and twenty-four champion equestrians of the world.

Kielley-Booth.

A pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. Kielley Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock, when their daughter, Miss Louise Kielley, and S. H. Booth were married. Rev. J. W. Loughridge of the Second Baptist church officiated. The bride was daintily gowned in a tan colored costume and carried a bouquet of American Beauties. The bridesmaid, Miss Mary Anderson, carried roses, and Charles Anderson acted as best man.

After a wedding supper the happy couple left in a shower of rice to take the 7:30 train for Fergus Falls, of which city Mr. Booth is station agent. Mr. and Mrs. Booth will be at home to their friends after July 1 in Fergus Falls.

Evidence is ample to prove that the most beautiful women in the world are Americans; 90 per cent owe their beauty to the use of Rocky Mountain Tea.

GREATEST IN NORTHWEST

F. W. Kugler & Co. Branch Out Their Business In Moving.

In moving form their old stand, at 127 East Superior street, to 108 West Superior street, in the New Jersey building, F. W. Kugler & Co. plan not only a settlement in the more populous portion of the city, but an important enlargement and branching out in their business.

The aim of the firm is to introduce the most complete, best equipped and safest drug store in the Northwest. The foundation of the drug business, of course, is the prescription department. While all of the other departments pertaining to the drug business are to be kept thoroughly up-to-date and complete, particular attention is to be paid to this department, and for this purpose it has been provided with the only prescription room in the city, a place 14 feet by 22 feet in dimension and equipped with every possible convenience and safeguard. The aim of the firm is to be able to fill any prescription that is presented, and the line of drugs carried for this purpose will be purest and most complete in the Northwest. It will be as thorough as any New York pharmacy. There are several new and valuable features, such as bottle cupboards instead of drawers and a poison cupboard, where the deadly drugs will be kept by themselves so that there will be no possible danger of any prescription clerk picking up the wrong bottle.

A feature that the public will appreciate is the effort that has been made to absolutely prevent any possibility of error in prescriptions. Every prescription will be accompanied by a guarantee that the medicine is absolutely pure and made up exactly according to the doctor's orders. There will also be a system of triple-checking, which will make it impossible for prescriptions to get mixed.

Arrangements will be made so that smaller drug stores in nearby towns can order by telephone any prescription they are not able to fill out of their stocks. Another feature will be a private telephone system connecting with the office of each physician in the New Jersey building.

The next feature of the store will be the soda fountain, which will be kept up to the old standard that has made Kugler's fountain a favorite resort. An ice cream plant has been installed that will make the sort that has become popular. The fountain will be made the most complete in the city.

The cigar, patent medicine, perfume, soap and sundry departments will be fully in keeping. The patent medicine line will include everything imaginable. Handsome show cases, all of glass, have been purchased to house these staples, and besides being a place where everything in its line can be found, it will be a place of beauty as well. In short, in the new store F. W. Kugler & Co. will have the greatest drug store in the Northwest, where patrons can be sure of getting whatever they want in a place where the system will make dangerous mistakes absolutely impossible.

MAJ. H. C. BRADEN DEAD.

Expires Suddenly of Apoplexy In Los Angeles, Cal.

Word has been received in Duluth of the sudden death last Thursday at Los Angeles, Cal., of Herbert C. Braden, formerly of this city. Apoplexy was the cause of death. During his residence here he was major of the Duluth battalion of the Third regiment. At one time he was captain of Company C of the First regiment. He came here from St. Paul. Maj. Braden was a son of W. W. Braden, who for a number of years was auditor of the state of Minnesota. He was about 35 years of age, and since leaving Duluth has been conducting a large fruit farm in California.

BARBER CUT CUSTOMER

Because He Refused to Give Him a Tip.

New York, June 22.—Because John Shannon, a customer, refused to tip Joseph Ferlanto, a barber, slashed him with a razor, it is alleged. According to Shannon's story, as told to Magistrate Zeller, he went into Ferlanto's shop to get a shave. He was a patron of long standing and rarely ever forgot to tip the barber after he was shaved. Last night Shannon forget to tip Ferlanto, and the latter called his attention to the fact.

"Since you have reminded me," said Shannon, "I have no intention of giving it."

"I'll teach you not to forget me in the future," Ferlanto is alleged to have retorted. Shannon says the barber opened a razor and jumped at Shannon, slashed his lips and cut them completely open. Ferlanto was held in $500 bond for examination.

Dissolution Notice.

Notice is hereby given that the partnership heretofore existing between Messrs. Allen and Barns, as Plumbers, was dissolved, June 20, by mutual consent. The business will be carried on by Mr. H. C. Burns.

DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

Peter White, of Marquette, Orders Statue of An Indian.

Marquette—Chevalier Trentanove, the Italian sculptor whose marble statue of Father Marquette stands in statuary hall of the national capitol at Washington and a bronze replica of which is erected on the lake shore at Marquette, has been given a commission by Peter White of this city for a bronze statue of Charles Kaw-Baw-Gam, the Chippewa chief who was living on the site of the city of Marquette when the first white man came there and who died only a few months ago. The statue will be erected in Presque Isle park, where Kaw-Baw-Gam lies buried.

Escanaba—The ten year old son of Peter Nelson of Escanaba met death by drowning. The boy, in company with a number of companions, was playing around the Escanaba Woodenware company's factory yards and was missed in a short time, having strayed from his friends. Search was made for him, and several hours later his body was found in one of the large vats which are used for steaming the maple timber used in the manufacture of butter dishes.

Newberry—Antony Kujansun, a Finlander of Newberry, got into troubel with the law last week through having too many wives. Kujansun has been conducting a tailor shop and living with a woman who was supposed to be his wife. Last week a woman claiming to be wife No 1 arrived from Finland and the warmest kind of a time followed. Wife No. 1 tore out handsful of No. 2's hair and raised particular sheol. Kujansun attempted to skip, but was arrested by the officers at Dollarville. At the examination the fact was brought out that Kujansun had never been married to No. 2, but as wife No. 1 would not enter a complaint against her recalcitrant hubby the case was dropped.

Crystal Falls—When Judge Fleweling of Crystal Falls had passed upon the sanity of Jacob Dattson and had decreed that he be taken to the asylum at Newberry, the man asked to see his wife and children, whom he had left at Amasa about a year previous. Dattson had been at the poor house and had been up a couple of times for his sanity, but he had not before shown symptoms that would warrant sending him to the asylum, so he was detained at the county house. As the officers were to start the following day it was thought best to have the woman come to Crysal Falls with the children and visit him. Accordingly Under Sheriff Jackson called up Amasa and asked the local authorities to hunt up the woman and children and send them down at the county's expense. The officers spent quite a time searching and finally telephoned that the woman and children had left Amasa several months ago with another man.

Menominee—The Menominee chief of police picked up a tramp near the Northwestern depot in that city the other day, and not wishing to take him to jail, thought the proper method of disposing of such characters would be to send him to Marinette. Accordingly he boarded a car with the "Weary Willie," whose fare he paid, and accompanied him as far as the draw on the bridge. There he left the car with instructions to the tramp not to return to Menominee. The motorman of the car, who resides on the Wisconsin side and does not believe in filling the city with tramps, fixed up a transfer for the fellow and put him on the first car that passed going to Menominee with instructions to the other motorman not to let him off on the Marinette side of the river. The vagrant landed safely back in Menominee, and the Marinette people were spared one nuisance.

BIG SURPLUS IS REPORTED

Uncle Sam Is Fifty Million Dollars to the Good.

Washington, June 22.—The treasury surplus for the fiscal year has already passed the $45,000,000 mark set by Secretary Shaw some weeks ago as the probable limit of the excess of receipts over expenditures. There has been no year in the recent history of the country when the influence of the general business condition on the state of the government finances has been so apparent as this year. Twelve or fourteen months ago there were persons who predicted a deficit, or at the best a very small surplus for the then coming fiscal period. But now, with ten days of the fiscal year still left, the probability is that the surplus of revenues over disbursements will not be less than $50,000,000. It is not unlikely, in fact, that the surplus will go as high as $55,000,000.

Last year the treasury surplus was $91,000,000; but at that time war taxes were in operation which brought several million dollars a month into the federal treasury. These taxes were repealed a little more than a year ago, to take effect at the beginning of the fiscal period, July 1, 1902. It was estimated that the changes in the war tax law would cause a falling off in receipts from internal revenue amounting to something like $80,000,000. The increasing prosperity of the country has caused such a great growth in the production of articles upon which internal revenue taxes are levied that the apparent falling off on account of conditions in the schedules will amount to not more than $41,000,000 or $42,000,000.

MUST DO AS AGREED.

Ogdens Not Relieved From Distribution of Millions.

London, June 22.—Lord Chief Justice Alverston today delivered judgment in a test case arising from the agreement made by Ogdens (limited) at the time of the tobacco war to distribute to retailers $1,000,000 annually for four years. Ogdens at that time represented the American Tobacco company. The lord chief justice found that Ogdens was not relieved of these contracts by the sale of its business and its incorporation into the Anglo-American combine.

DECLINE OF THE NATIVE-BORN.

Dr. Frederick A. Busbee, of Boston, has furnished one of the most exhaustive studies on urban population ever presented and which adds much valuable information as to the ethnic factors of large cities. Boston, it appears, ranks second among the six largest cities of the United States in the percentage of its total foreign population. The city contains an unusually large number of British-Americans and of Irish, but a relatively small number of English and Germans. The following table, based on the census returns of 1900, shows the leading nationalities:

Nationality—	Place of Birth.	Parent Nativity.
Massachusetts	286,942	207,028
Other states	78,524
Ireland	70,147	156,450
Canada (English)	47,774	40,470
Russia	14,995	22,264
Italy	13,758	20,144
England	13,170	15,078
Germany	10,527	21,518

In point of vitality the various races differ widely. The rate of natural increase, as measured by the difference between birth-rate and death-rate, is highest among the Russians and the Italians and lowest among the Americans and the negroes. The two latter classes, indeed, are actually declining, their death-rate exceeding their birth-rate. The figures given by Dr. Busbee in this connection exhibit in a striking way the decline of the native-born, which has been widely discussed of late. Here is a table of the birth and death-rates of the chief ethnic groups:

Nationality—	Birth Rate.	Death Rate.	Difference.
Negroes	23	30.8	- 2.8
United States	15.4	17.3	- 0.4
Ireland	45.6	15.2	*29.4
British America	42.4	17.1	*25
England	41	14.7	*26.3
Germany	38	15	*23
Italy	104.6	25.3	*79.3

The decrease of the American stock, it will be noted, is attributable to an extremely low birth-rate; that of the negroes, on the other hand, to an abnormally high death. The birth-rate for the United States as stated in the table is doubtless somewhat too small, but even when due allowance has been made on this score it remains evident that the native Americans are lagging far behind the foreign nationalities in natural growth. Regarding the causes that have retarded the increase of the American stock, Dr. Busbee offers these observations: "The truth is, competition is so keen in our large cities that the maintenance of the American standard of life, including social position, is inconsistent with the rearing of a large family and sometimes even with marriage itself. Moreover, young Americans just starting in life are strongly impelled by the competition of foreigners just below them to practice every economy in order to maintain their superior social position. The fear of falling into the same class with persons of a different social type who themselves may have no social position in this country to lose, is the strongest incentive to young Americans, and results in a practical check upon the second generation of the rural stock, which, we have reason to believe, was in former years a valuable factor in the population of the city. Proof of this may be found in the large lodging-house class of Americans who either never marry or at best marry late in life."

Finally, as regards the question of the probable racial composition of the next generation, Dr. Busbee expresses the opinion that the negroes will contribute nothing and that the influence of the old Americans will be imperceptible. "The rate of natural increase of the Jews and Italians," he continues, "is far ahead of that of any other nationality; but, since they are not nearly as numerous as most of the other nationalities, their actual increase is less. The Irish, as might be expected, have the largest numerical increase for the five years ending with 1895, though they surpass the Russians by a surprisingly small margin. The Russians with a population in 1895 of only 11,979, as against 71,571 Irish, made an actual increase during the previous five years of 3001, as against 3133 for the Irish. So the difference in the rate of increase for the two nationalities just about makes up for a six-fold difference in the numbers of the two groups. The British-Americans, who follow the Irish in point of numbers, come next with a numerical increase of 2810 for the five years. Next to them and ahead of the British come the Italians, a comparatively small group, with 1670. With a population only one-ninth as large as that of the Irish, their natural increase was more than half as large. Of the four racial groups contributing the largest numbers of the growth of the population of the city, three—the Irish, Russians and Italians—represent, next to the negroes, perhaps the poorest social conditions; and in the case of the Irish and Italians the growth is made at the greatest expense of human life. The Russians show the greatest tenacity of life, and they are rapidly surpassing other nationalities in natural increase. Between 1890 and 1895 the Russians grew 178 per cent by immigration and 25 per cent by propagation, and doubtless during the next five they surpassed every other group."

These figures show a condition that has been recognized for some time and greatly deplored. There is one thing certain, Americans must brace up or become lost in racial supremacy in their own country.

Cardinal Vaughan, whose death was announced on Saturday, was the head of the Catholic church in England, and one of the most noted prelates of that faith in the English-speaking world. His family, while not noble in title, is one of the oldest in the British realm, and has been Roman Catholic through all the vicissitudes of the faith since the time of Henry VIII. His death is a severe loss to the Catholic church in England.

RECIPROCITY AND TARIFF REVISION.

The News Tribune is so strongly wedded to its high-protection idols that it cannot conceal its dislike for and contempt of Congressman Bede's attitude in favor of Canadian reciprocity and, incidental thereto, removal of the tariff on wheat. Admitting that the sentiment in Duluth "is overwhelmingly in favor of removing the customs duties on wheat," it expresses the fear—perhaps it would be more correct to describe it as the hope—that the wheat raisers of Minnesota will not agree to the removal of the tariff, and then sneeringly remarks that, "led by the proselytes of Cobden and Bostiat that occupy every editorial tripod in the Twin Cities, the Minnesota press should make a powerful impression on the bucolic section of the party."

The News Tribune is at heart opposed to removing the tariff barriers that now obstruct trade between the United States and Canada. It is one of the tariff Bourbons that would prevent the Republican party taking any step toward the revision of the tariff and the negotiation of reciprocal treaties. It talks vaguely about revision in 1905 or 1906, but declares it is impossible for the coming congress to do anything. Why? Will not the Republican party be in control of both branches of the coming congress?

As far back as 1880, the Republican party was loud in its praise of reciprocity, and its platforms have resounded with ringing demands for reciprocity legislation. James G. Blaine was an ardent protectionist, but he saw that a commercial scheme to include reciprocal trade arrangements between all the countries of the Western Hemisphere would be of tremendous value to the industries of this country. He succeeded in securing reciprocal legislation concerning certain articles, and experience proved the wisdom of Mr. Blaine's contention. His party was able to show the people in 1896 that reciprocity, whether in competitive or non-competitive products, had proved of great value to the farmer and the manufacturer. The Republican party went before the country in 1896 promising to renew reciprocity legislation—repealed by the Wilson law in 1894—if restored to the control of the government by the election of Mr. McKinley, and the people accepted the pledges and promises of the party and elected Mr. McKinley.

But nothing has been done, and the News Tribune and the other "stand-patters" now oppose a modification of the tariff schedules or any reciprocity legislation. The people have been deceived and tricked by the present party leaders, whose record is one of deception, evasion, self-stultification and repudiation of pledges and promises. But there are men in the Republican party who believe that the pledges should be kept and that the benefits of reciprocity should be secured by the enactment of the needed lgislation at this time—not several years hence. Congressman Bede voices the views of these Republicans, and it is hardly likely that he will be swerved from his course by the sneers of the News Tribune and other supporters of the do-nothing policy.

THE TULLOCH CHARGES.

Dispatches from Washington indicate that President Roosevelt and Postmaster General Payne consider the Tulloch incident closed. In other words no attempt will be made to punish former officials who may have profited by their irregularities in the postoffice department. No claim is made that the statutes of limitations apply in the cases, but on the ground that a strenuous effort is being made to ferret out and punish the rascals of today, those who are out of the government now will not be molested. The administration may consider the Tulloch charges, which were thoroughly sustained by the report of Fourth Assistant Postmaster General Bristow, as a closed incident, but the people do not, and this fact is very likely to be demonstrated at the polls at no distant day. Such rascality cannot be countenanced, and no attempt to smooth over the crimes and irregularities will be accepted.

There is another point that is even of more importance than ferreting out the rascals, and that is the absolute necessity of reform in methods of doing business, which will to a large extent remove the opportunities for crooked work by officials. The chief of the division of salaries and allowances, the position from which George W. Beavers was recently removed, has the entire run of the disbursement of a fund for miscellaneous items, which amounts to $250,000. In addition, Beavers had his own way about accounting for the expenditures, which was tolerated by those higher in the department than he. His annual reports for the past five years are examined in vain in an attempt to find out what became of all this money. There is nothing like a detailed statement of disbursements either in the reports of Beavers or in the reports of the auditor for the postoffice department. To be sure, Beavers referred to the matter in a table which accompanied his annual reports. In his last annual report he shows that he received $250,000 for miscellaneous and incidental items, and that out of this fund he expended $240,861, turning back into the treasury about $140. That is all the acounting he made, at least so far as his published report shows.

The closest scrutiny of the reports of Beavers since 1898 fails to reveal any reference to the Brandt Automatic Cashier company or to the machines put out by this company. No one could learn from these reports that such a machine had ever been purchased for the postal service. It was lumped, along with the purchase of other articles about which nothing is known, in one general item at the end of the annual report for each year.

Additional revelations, similar to those in connection with the purchase of the automatic cashiers, may be looked for at any time. For the first time in years the accounts of the various purchasing agents are being gone over by experts with a view to detecting irregularities. The arrest of August W. Machen grew out of discoveries made by a careful and systematic scrutiny of prices paid by him for supplies.

Every day the scandal grows greater and there is no knowing what the end will be. At least reforms in business methods can be made at once, which would show good intentions on the part of the clique, if nothing more.

Marine men will be interested in knowing that the supreme court of Illinois has decided that the street railway companies must lower the tunnels under the Chicago river. They have long been a nuisance to navigation.

The election of Clinton Scollard as president of a railroad company seems to disprove the rule that poets are not practical men. But, then, some people may contend that he is not much of a poet.

A Waukesha clergyman says that women should not wear net waists, or "peek-a-boo" waists, as he calls them. They are not likely to wear them this summer unless the weather changes.

There will not be much sympathy for the French domestic in San Francisco who tried to kill herself because a Chinaman would not marry her.

Again the favorite failed to win the American derby.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

Former Governor George W. Peck, statesman, soldier and humorist, from Milwaukee, came to Duluth yesterday to visit his son, Roy, who resides here. Mrs. Peck accompanied him.

The governor has discarded the small red carnation which for years has been a distinguishing insignia on the streets of Milwaukee, while in the northern country, but will assume his badge upon returning to the Wisconsin metropolis.

The author of "Peck's Bad Boy," and other works about the "boy" and his dad, uncle and grandpa, the crack wit of the Northwest, is taking a few days off from the joke business. While at the Plankinton house in Milwaukee, Governor Peck is the most sought-for person around the place by the newspaper boys, who find him good for a yarn of some kind every day, but he says that while out of Milwaukee he is due for a little vacation.

* * *

For many years, in fact since he was inducted into the office of governor of the state of Wisconsin, Governor Peck has been present at hundreds of public functions, generally the central figure at such functions, and the hands play as they pass his seat in the stand, until he has become so conversant with the air of "Hail to The Chief," and other old standbys that he can whistle them backwards or forwards and also throw in a few drum major movements.

Governor Peck has been going through state and municipal and judicial campaigns since leaving office, and the bands have hailed him for so long that, like an old circus horse, which hears the crack of the whip and the stirring strains of the brassy band, will start to step off a few.

Last evening about 8, the governor was standing in the lobby of the Spalding hotel talking to some friends, when the strains of band music floated in through the door. The governor excused himself absently and walked out to the sidewalk.

His expression of countenance pictured a sudden awakening, as he saw a Salvation army band marching along, attending to business and not looking his way at all.

"Well," exclaimed the governor, dryly, stroking his small white imperial in some astonishment and a sigh of relief, as the little band strode along, "it wasn't me. I knew the steel magnates had left town, but I overlooked the fact that the Almighty exists in this country."

* * *

Governor Peck, among his manifold duties as a public officer, was once a chief of police. It was in the old days down in La Crosse, Wis., the "Brick" Pomeroy days when things hummed, and the genial governor, a beardless youth, was trying to secure three squares, etc., by operating a newspaper.

He used to have a few old standby subscribers, whose nature was that of the fabulous goose with the ability and propensity to lay goldich eggs. When the governor ran short of money he would make out subscription bills and go around collecting. He had everything collected up a year in advance, the first six months and had run out of money.

In those days the governor was handy with the pen, but he wasn't writing "Bad Boy" stories for money, in his fractured periods he would write a few bills, and it narrowed down finally to about a dozen. He would send them a year's bill every few days, and he believes some of them paid up for beyond 1900. He needed the money and couldn't think of anything else to write.

The benevolent spirits became somewhat burdened by the regularity and decided they didn't care to load up their estates for years after their deaths with assets consisting of futurities in newspaper subscriptions, so they had the governor appointed chief of police.

The governor had a great many obligations among the prominent citizens of La Crosse, and they all became hopeful when the appointment was announced.

He took his oath of office and donned his uniform one summer evening after the council meeting. With a light heart he grasped his handy night stick, and sought his way home.

At the first corner he spied down the street a man in a beastly state of intoxication, making for him. He didn't want to make an arrest the first night on duty, but the laws were strict regarding intoxication, and he remembered his oath.

However he tried not to see the man, but the man ran after him, howling and yelling at the top of his voice. Finally the chief turned around, and to his astonishment saw it was one of his close friends.

"Whoop—ee—ee—ee!" yelled the man. "Hurrah for the new chief. Celebratin' old fel'. Whoop—e—e—e."

The governor started to quiet and walk the man. The walk continued for half an hour, and he finally got him to his home.

As he wiped away the perspiration and sighed with relief, and turned to walk toward home, another inebriate worse than the first loomed up and tumbled into him.

It was another celebrating his inauguration as chief of police.

He walked him for half an hour and took him home.

As Mr. Peck left the second friend's house, a third appeared.

He walked again.

LaCrosse was a small town then, but the governor was encountered by about every man of his acquaintance in the place, and he avers he walked in the neighborhood of fifty miles that night.

Besides, the celebraters had made the night hideous, and he knew he would hear of it.

The next morning he turned in his uniform, club and resignation. If it came to a question of not being chief or arresting his friends, he decided not to be chief. And he felt assured that as long as he was chief, the cream of the business interests of the place wouldn't sober up. He saved the city's future by resigning.

In the conflict between love and duty he could blanket his conscience with sentimental excuses, but he didn't like walking and refused to do any more of it.

The truth of this story is borne out by the fact that the governor afterwards enlisted in the civil war as a private in the cavalry, preferring it to a commission with the infantry.

* * *

While Governor Peck has long since passed the stage where appreciation of his writings inspires palpitation of the heart, he will probably be gratified to learn what W. E. Morrow of the auditor's office in the steel corporation, will tell him when he sees him; and further because he will learn of a specific case of comfort he has caused in this great world.

Mr. Morrow was around the Spalding yesterday, and when he heard of the governor's presence in the city told of a little incident of his boyhood, that frequently came back to him.

"It was during the yellow fever epidemic in Memphis," he said, "and we at our house were victims. Three members of th family were fatally attacked, and my brother and I were the only two who recovered. We were convalescing a bit, and I remember of having a copy of 'Peck's Bad Boy' put in my hands. It was at a time of intense sorrow among us, but I read it with a great deal of enjoyment, perhaps hysterical, but it was a wonderful relief. I was so thoroughly impressed with its fun I never forgot, and have often thought some day I would have a change to tell the governor about, and I think I will before he goes away."

Ezra Rust of New York, who owns some mining property up on the range, registered at the Spalding hotel yesterday morning. He did not come up here for that purpose, but he had to do it, and sta ya short time waiting for a special car to take him up the ranges to catch the steel magnates, who never waited for anything when they arrived yesterday morning, but took to the tall timbers as soon as they got into the South Shore yards, on the trip from the Menominee range. Mr. Rust came up here to meet them, but he got here a little late, and being determined to have his trip count for something, decided to go up the range after them.

With Mr. Rust was G. B. Goff, of Saginaw, who was also to have gone on the trip. Mr. Goff claims to be the man who first discovered iron ore on the Missabe range, and says that he made his find near Hibbing in 1882.

Several adult exercisionists who were in the city yesterday, had their hats decorated with sprigs of evergreen, caused a little laughable entertainment in the Spalding lobby, when they appeared each with a wooden ball at the end of an elastic string. They bounced the toy around and danced from the floor, for several minutes, much to the entertainment of the crowd. They finally became conscious of their conspicuousness and put them in their pockets.

THE BIRTH OF THE OPAL.

The Sunbeam loved the Moonbeam,
And followed her low and high;
But the Moonbeam fled and hid her head,
She was so shy—so shy.

The Sunbeam wooed with passion,
Ah! he was a lover bold,
And his heart was afire with mad desire
For the Moonbeam pale and cold.

She fled like a dream before him,
Her hair was a shining sheen;
And oh, that Fate would annihilate
The space that lay between.

Just as the Day lay panting
In the arms of the Twilight dim
The Sunbeam caught the one he sought
And drew her close to him.

But out of his warm arm startled,
And stirred by love's first shock,
She sprang afraid like a trembling maid,
And hid in the niche of a rock.

And the Sunbeam followed and found her,
And led her to love's own feast,
And they were wed on that rockey bed,
And the dying Day was their priest.

And lo! the beautiful Opal,
That rare and wondrous gem,
Where the Moon and Sun blend into one,
Is the child that was born to them.

Songs of the Shipyard.

"Mother, may I go out to combine?"
"Yes, my darling daughter,
Sell your bonds at eighty-nine,
And fill your stocks with water."

Lewis and Charles went up the Street,
With forty millions of water;
The floods swept Lewis off his feet,
And Charles came grumbling after.

Sing a song of sixpence,
Here's the stock to buy
Four and twenty shipyards
Baked in a pie,
When the pie was opened
There was no end of troubles;
Nothing in that pretty dish
But iridescent bubbles.

A Bit of Family History.

White, S. D. Leader: The editor and wife had another square meal Sunday on account of having received an invitation to dine at the hotel. Perk said he was afraid we wouldn't accept, but we did. For the benefit of our lady readers we will state that they had chicken and the stuff that goes with such a layout, and strawberry shortcake and lettuce. Our wife wore her blue and white and looked real dear. Mrs. Perkins had a new skirt and looked too sweet for anything. The editor wore his Sunday, Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, Saturday suit and was sick all night.

THE LOVE THAT ENDURES

By Merwin Shadduck.

(Copyright, 1903, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

He knew her on the instant, although since he had not taken her out to dinner, no one had introduced them. Time, after all, had changed her very little. She was a little paler, perhaps, but a lesser degree of the old-time pink tinting still colored her oval cheek, and the cool, transparent whiteness of her brow and throat was the same as ever. The charms that he missed were the little, flying tendrils of soft hair, golden brown and close-curling, that had used to lie about the nape of her fine throat. The throat was even finer than of old, and the golden brown tresses quite as well arranged and plentiful, but—the dear little tendrils were gone.

Presently, his partner engaged in an animated flirtation with her left-hand neighbor, while her partner manifested interest in his dinner alone, he ventured to address her.

"You have changed very little," he said.

She flashed a pleased glance over her shoulder.

"Oh! Did you really know me? And after all these years!" she exclaimed.

"Know you? Why not? I'd have known you anywhere, any place, any time. But why 'all these years?' Is seven so great a number to you?"

"It is to any woman—when it means years," was her rejoinder. "Seven years is a long, long time to the merriest woman that grows."

"It is a long time to a man, too—especially when he's left his only chance of happiness behind."

Her face hardened ever so little.

"And so you think the years have touched me lightly? You do not find anything missing from the woman you used to know?"

"Yes," he replied quickly. "I miss the little curls on your neck, the curls I used to—"

"Kiss" was the word in his mind, but he dared not utter it. "Pull," he finished, instead.

"Why don't you wear them anymore?" he inquired, after a momentary silence.

"Wear what? What curls?"—with a betraying movement of her hands to the snowy neck. "Those untidy loose hairs that I used to hang about my neck? Oh, I am neater and more careful nowadays. A staid and serious professional woman must be. Those little curls wouldn't do at all in these times. They belonged to the little girl I used to be, not to my present self."

"They were dear little curls," said the man, gently, but with a touch of something like obstinacy in his suppressed manner, "and the girl who wore them was a very dear little girl. I have never met or met anyone who seemed half so dear and sweet to me."

Again the mobile face showed a faint trace of hardening decision.

"And yourself," she made haste to change the topic of conversation. "How have the seven long years found you—and left you?"

"Not happy," he made low answer. "Fairly successful; rich in many of the things ordinarily supposed to bring happiness. I have been a long time, Mary, but—I have known nothing like happiness since you—threw me over like an old glove, to employ the worn and smutched that nothing can improve."

The long lashes flew upward to disclose indignant eyes.

"Since I threw you over!" What a disgustingly unmanly thing to say when you know—the truth! What a—"

"What is 'the truth,' Mary?" His voice very tender and almost pleading. "Sometimes, lately, I have thought that perhaps neither of us have ever known it, that perhaps others deceived us both. Tell me now, Mary, why did you send so cruel an answer to my innocent note?"

"Why did I what? Oh! this is outrageous. I'd never have believed it of you, Arthur. Why did I—well, perhaps," very slowly, "we have both been mistaken. Yes, I'll tell you now, all that I can. The little girl you have just mentioned has been dead so long that I can do so without shame or timidity. I never received any note from you, Arthur. If you mean a note sent about the time of your departure for India. But I—the foolish little girl who died so long ago—did send you a silly, sentimental letter, with a red rose, the day you went away, a letter that was full of foolish, childish references to the past summer, to the love I—thought—you bore me. And you—you sent me back another rose—all faded and withered—and a—a closed book."

"I never did!" he cried with a vehement energy that thrilled through the low whisper like the sound of clanging steel. "I never received either the rose or the letter. I went away broken-hearted because you made no answer to the note I asked your cousin Mary to give you. I had to leave earlier than I had expected, and I gave her the note because I could not wait to deliver it in person, and I would not wait for the mail. She said she would take it to you immediately, and I watched for a reply until—it was too late to receive one. And then—well, the light died from the day and the world, Mary, and it has never shone in the same way since."

Her eyes were like stars as she turned them softly upon him.

"Oh, cousin Mary!" she exclaimed, softly. "Why, it was Mary who brought me the closed book and the withered rose! Well, perhaps—she has been dead some years, Arthur. Now I understand why she asked me so often and so many questions about you, and why, when she was dying they said she so sorely wanted to see me. She—I suppose—she robbed us of our happiness, Arthur, but she knew little of her own, poor soul! Perhaps—"

He leaned toward her, suddenly, with a new hope and glory in his face.

"Let us say, rather, that she postponed our happiness, Mary," he murmured. "Why should we not have it now?"

"It is all so long past; we are so changed, so much older. We have left our youth, our lovetime so very far behind."

"But we can live our youth over," his gaze fell upon the blushing face she turned from him, his hand clasping hers as it lay in her lap.

"Can dead things live again?" she whispered, obeying the signal of the hostess and rising to her feet.

"They can experience a resurrection," was his eager rejoinder, as he held the door for the ladies to pass out.

"I have known of few resurrections on this side of the eternal," her lips framed rather than uttered, as she swept softly by.

And yet—there was that in the eyes of both that belied her doubts and questioning, and when he sought her out, in the drawing room a little later, he was thrilled by a pleasant surprise.

Her back was toward him as he approached her, and the first thing upon which his eyes rested, in half unconscious fashion, was something that brought into actual, living reality the dear little girl she had declared long dead—it was the soft little curling tendril that lay so lovingly close to her stately white neck.

CLAIM THEY ARE LAWFUL

Freight Handlers Deny Charges of Conspiracy.

Appear Before Judge Lochren at St. Paul.

Judge Lochren, of the United States court, is hearing arguments in St. Paul today on the injunction suit of Knudsen & Eden against the local Longshoremen's union, brought to restrain them from hindering the work of the plaintiffs on the ground that the men are engaged in a conspiracy in restraint of commerce. A temporary injunction has been issued, pending the outcome of his hearing, and the men were ordered to appear last Monday and show cause why the injunction should not be made permanent.

The men are represented at the hearing by Clarence B. Miller, of the firm of Adams & Miller, and their claim will be that they are doing nothing contrary to law, and that they have a right to organize for mutual assistance and protection, and to seek to persuade nonunion men not to work for the plaintiffs, providing peaceable means are used. The union disclaims all connection with any acts of violence that may have been perpetrated, and states that these are the acts of individuals and are frowned upon by the union.

The case of the defendants is indicated in an affidavit which has been prepared by Burt Benn and E. Wright, of the Longshoremen's local organization. In effect this affidavit is as follows:

The affiants are president and secretary respectively of the union, whose true name is local lodge No. 64 of the International Longshoremen, Marine and Transport Workers' association. The lodge has been organized some years, and has as its object and purpose those set forth in the preamble of its constitution, as follows:

"The formation of an association for practical purposes and for good ends, usages and indeed its future welfare requires that its object should be well understood and faithfully set forth. The association in session at Detroit Aug. 27, 1892, has deemed it an act of duty which it owes to itself and its prosperity to associate its members together for an association of effort and more extended action in behalf of their own rights and interest. Having proved through experience that the system of loading and unloading boats by individual jobbers is one that robs our labor of its wages, we have determined to use every legitimate means in our power to suppress it and to give every man an equal opportunity to secure work and receive the profits of his labor. We recognize that merit makes the man, and not wealth or social distinction. We recognize no nationality or creed, and for the good of ourselves, our families and our association, we pledge ourselves to carry out the principles of equal rights to all."

The members of the local lodge are known as freight handlers, and have been engaged for from two to twenty years in the business of moving freight at Duluth; that this employment can be had only when boats are in; that the average hours of labor of those engaged in this work do not exceed six hours per day during the season; that for some years past there has been no increase in the wages for said work; that during this time there has been a large increase in the cost of living of said laborers; that during the past two years the wages for such work have been materially advanced at other ports on the great lakes.

At the close of navigation last year the members of the union decided to ask for higher wages for the coming year, and a committee was appointed to take up the matter with the contractors engaged in such work. Several of the contractors acknowledged the justice of this request, and when putting in their bids for the season of 1903, considered this item. The complainants, Knudsen & Eden, who had never been engaged in this work before, secured the contract with the Northern Pacific Railway company for handling all its freight. Thereupon the committee waited upon the complainants and stated that the members of the union were willing to work under the conditions existing during the season of 1902, namely, when a boat was in, to work all day and until 10 o'clock at night, unless the boat could be finished by 12 o'clock, in which case they would work until the boat was finished; but that they desired the wages to be advanced to 40 cents per hour.

Complainants refused to grant the advance in wages, and demanded that the men, when a boat was started, keep at work until it was finished. This demand was not a physical possibility, as it frequently takes forty and often over fifty hours to finish a boat. The union declined to accede to these terms and complainants refused to hire them.

The union and its officers then decided to inform the public generally, and the prospective employes of complainants especially, of the facts above stated and to request such employes not to work for complainants, except upon the terms asked by said union. No design or attempt was made to prevent their working, merely to get them to work only on the terms asked by the said union men. To this end it was specifically enjoined upon members by the said union and its officers to use no force, violence, threats or intimidation of any kind; simply to state the situation and induce by peaceable argument, the employes and prospective employes of complainants to join defendants in asking the conditions of work above stated.

From the inception of the trouble to the present time, it was the specific aim to do no further acts than those above mentioned, and to refrain absolutely from all violence, physical force, threats and intimidation. The members of said union were so instructed. In the furtherance of this object the union passed a resolution to the effect that if any force, threats, violence or unlawful acts were indulged in by the members, they would do so on their own responsibility and must individually defend themselves from the consequences thereof.

The union and its officers have never counseled, advised or sanctioned the use of force, threats, violence, intimidation, or unlawful acts, but have specifically and continuously urged and instructed the members of the union to refrain from them.

Early in April when the trouble began, five members of the union, while crossing the property of the Northern Pacific at the places and in the manner to which they and the public generally had been accustomed for many years last past were arrested for a technical trespass. The union and its officers then instructed the men to keep away entirely from the docks, yards and property of the Northern Pacific. So far as affiants have been able to discover, all members of the union rigidly obeyed these instructions, and generally so far as affiants have knowledge, the instructions of the union and its officers have been literally obeyed in the matter of using threats, violence, intimidation, or coercion, or trespassing upon Northern Pacific property.

For a brief period members of the union stationed themselves as pickets in various parts of the city of Duluth, in furtherance of the purpose of the union to inform the employes and prospective employes of complainants of the existing conditions and requesting them to join in asking for the above-mentioned conditions of labor. These pickets were discontinued more than five weeks prior to the commencement of this action and have not been maintained since, nor is it the intention of the union or its officers to renew them. Affiants ever since the inception of this trouble have been constantly about the city of Duluth, in the affected regions, and to the best of their knowledge all such pickets and officers and members of the union have obeyed the instructions of the union and its officers, and refrained from all threats, violence, physical force, intimidation and unlawful acts whatsoever, except in the instances of technical trespass above mentioned and the unlawful assembling on May 1, at the Garfield avenue viaduct, and these affiants did not see or participate in.

On many occasions affiants accosted in a peaceable manner the employes of complainants, informed them of the trouble existing between the complainants and the union, and requested them to join in asking for the conditions of work above mentioned, but never did affiants go beyond peaceable request and argument. Large numbers of such men, when thus informed, joined the members of the union in the request, and stated that they were informed when they hired out to the complainants, that there was no strike or trouble on. In nearly all instances the men appeared glad to receive this information. When the complainants found their men were thus leaving them, they sought to prevent all intercourse between the members of the union and such employes, and to this end shipped their men into Duluth in locked cars, stationed guards about them and by other means sought to prevent all talking and intercourse between them and the members of said union.

Affiants deny that complainants keep their employes in cars and board them there to protect them from the threats and violence of defendants, and state that complainants started to board their men in these cars within a day or two after work began, and many days before defendants, or any of them, picketed or patrolled at all, or assembled in crowds, or even talked with such employes. The boarding cars were brought in immediately at the commencement of work, and before the members of the union did any acts of any nature to or upon the employes of complainants. For some years complainants have made a business of boarding in such cars the employes of the Northern Pacific at various points, and affiants believe that this boarding was done for profit by the complainants.

Affiants state that the placing of special police by complainants was not done because of any acts done or threatened by members of the union, but that they were sworn in and placed on the very day complainants set men to work, and some days before the members of the union, or any of them, did any acts or threatened any acts, save to refuse to work, except on the conditions before mentioned.

Affiants state that the union, its members or officers, have not conspired, nor do they intend to conspire or combine, to interfere with the free transmission of interstate or foreign commerce or freight, or to prevent complainants from fulfilling their contract. Rather have they urged the fast moving of the boats for the purposes of showing the inferiority and incompetence of the unskilled men complainants were employing. They have not hindered, obstructed, or delayed complainants from performing their contract, except to ask all employes to join in requesting the above-mentioned conditions of labor. They have not hindered, obstructed or delayed interstate or foreign commerce. To the best of affiant's knowledge, information and belief neither the members nor officers of the union, nor any of them, have compelled, or attempted to compel, nor do they intend to compel by threats, intimidation, force or violence, or abusive or violent language, any of complainants' employes to leave complainants' service; nor to so compel any persons desiring to seek employment. Affiants have not, nor to the knowledge, information and belief have any of the officers or members of the union, or their agents, gone to the boarding houses of complainants' employes for the purpose of intimidating or causing any or all of them to leave complainants' employ, nor do they intend so to do.

Affiants deny that they are insolvent, or unable to respond in damages in case of suit against them.

They further state that in the city of Duluth there are five other local lodges of the Longshoremen's association, viz., lodges of the grain trimmers, lumber pilers, lumber shovers, divers and wreckers and licensed tugmen, consisting altogether of some 1500 members. That they all wear badges similar to those worn by members of defendant union.

The defendants, William Cook, Frank Brown, Andrew Sheehan and Vall are not now, and at no time have been, members of the said union, or connected with said union in any way. That affiants do not know any such parties, or anything about them. That defendant, Andrew Sheehan, left Duluth and the state of Minnesota last fall, and has not been back since. Affiants are informed and believe that the said Andrew Sheehan is now in Tennessee, where he has been for some months. Affiant further states that defendants, John Burke, William Brown and Frank Cook left Duluth some time ago in search of work, have not since returned, and affiants have no knowledge as to when they will return, if ever.

The Tyfold Collar

The picture shows how the collar is cut out on each side to allow for adjusting a neck tie without springing the collar open. The collar comes close together in front, it keeps the tie in place and you don't see the cut-out part. Besides the tie is retained just over the button, which is also kept out of sight. Your summer comfort will be increased if you wear one, and you'll thank us for the style. Dealers sell them.

NEW CARRIERS AT POSTOFFICE

Six to Be Added This Week—Two New Clerks Also.

Eight new men will be added to the force at the Duluth postoffice this week. Six of these will be extra carriers and two clerks.

Five substitutes will be placed on regular runs and Charles C. Batts, of 30 Washington avenue, who heads the eligible list will be made a regular carrier, although he has not been in the service as a substitute.

The additions to the local force are the result of the rapid growth of the postoffice business in Duluth and the demands of the outlying districts for a free delivery. Duluth Heights, Park Point and Woodland will be given the free delivery and the West Duluth service will be improved by the addition of one carrier. The beginners will begin routes in the outlying districts of the city and the older men moved into the central part. The names of the six new carriers are: Charles W. Eaden, Olaf Wickland, Charles Gillon, Frank Elmquist, Percy Cole and Charles C. Bates.

The following will be appointed substitutes to take the place of the men who go on the regular force: William Quinlan, Edward Grignon, Charles La Salle, Joseph Wilde, Robert Burke.

Postmaster Fisher has not yet announced the names of the two extra clerks.

WILL GIVE RECEPTION.

New Boat Club House to Be Formally Opened.

The handsome new boathouse of the Duluth Boat club will be formally opened Saturday evening with a reception that promises to be one of the events of the season in local society.

There will be a dance in the beautiful new dancing hall of the club which will be decorated for the occasion.

At a meeting of the directors of the club held Saturday evening a committee composed of B. Murray Peyton, A. W. Peck and W. E. Morrow was appointed to take charge of the affair.

Each member will be given the privilege of inviting two friends, the invitations, however, being made through the committee named.

The dance will be the first of many to be given by the club and local society will avail itself of the opportunity of inspecting the beautifully appointed and elaborately finished apartments of the club.

WILL PREVENT DISORDER.

New York, June 22.—The government is taking active measures to prevent any disorder in connection with the opening of congress, says a Herald dispatch from Lima, Peru. A proclamation has been issued by President Candamo. Apparently the government has insufficient force to maintain order. The government has decided to secure on a three-years' contract a geologist from the United States or Europe to study the fossil formations of Peru.

Hundreds of lives saved every year by having Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil in the house just when it is needed. Cures croup, heals burns, cuts, wounds of every sort.

Duluth Allows Superior the Saturday and Sunday Games.

Team Leaves For West—Many Contests In Amateur Field.

In a contest that bulged with thrills the Bugvilles defeated the Cardinals again yesterday.

If the Duluth team plays every game from now to the end of the season as it played yesterday the management would be put to a little extra expense in erecting a flagpole at Athletic park for pennant flying purposes.

For the first time this season the team played errorlessly. Shaw allowed but five hits—one of the worst kind of a scratch, and he struck out ten men. Duluth outplayed Superior at all stages and lost—this is fate.

Superior scored the winning run in the eighth. Foster hit out a double and the next man sent a fly to short right. Quillan and Cox both started for it and both seeing the other stopped. The ball fell safely when it could very easily have been fielded by Cox. Foster went to third and scored on Lagger's sacrifice. Superior's first run came in the second after Spellicy and Abbot had struck out. Olmstead hit a double and Nehr singled. Duluth's lone run was scored in the third. Shaw singled and Lee Quillan, who is hitting like a fiend, ripped out a pretty triple. He was caught at the plate trying to score on Murphy's hit to Blair.

The fielding feature of this brilliant game was in the ninth. Cox smashed out what seemed to be a triple to left. Nehr, picked it right off the fence. In the fourth Cox rapped out one that was good for a double but Foster made a sensational catch and got the ball back to second in time to catch Shepard in a double play.

"Looie" Kline, the old Duluth catcher, umpired the contest and his work was far above that of the regular staff of league umpires. Not once was a decision questioned either by players or spectators. The score:

Cox gave seven bases on balls, three of which resulted in runs prior to the ninth inning, and that is why Saturday's ragged contest went to Superior.

The Bugvilles mared their victory, however, by dirty playing—in fact, one Superior fan—a man thoroughly prejudiced in favor of his home team and delighted with the victory—says in twenty years he never saw such dirty tactics in professional baseball. The score:

Fargo beat the Champions on Saturday by the score of 4 to 2. Foulkes pitched for Fargo and Bemis for Winnipeg.

* * *

Crookston made it three straight from Grand Forks by winning Saturday 8 to 2. Freeman pitched for Crookston and Slette for Grand Forks.

* * *

The Duluth team left for Crookston last night. Those going on the trip were: Clarke, catcher; Shaw, Mueller, Gehring, McGaughey, Cox, pitchers; Kennally, first base; Quillan, second base; Shepard, short stop; Murphy, third. Outfielders, Glendon, Lambert, McGaughey and Cox.

* * *

McCoy has been suspended for the balance of the season for insubordination.

* * *

Clarke, the new catcher, made his first appearance yesterday and caught a fast game. He is an outfielder of some ability and may be worked in right field as soon as Holmes, the new catcher from Terre Haute joins the team.

* * *

Pitcher McGaughey has the honor of leading the league in batting today. He went into right field in Saturday's game replacing Gehring and out of twice at the bat had two hits.

* * *

Lee Quillan is certainly doing sensational work with the stick. He says he is going after Kennally in leading the team's batting.

* * *

Sullivan, of Winnipeg, leads the league in base stealing, he ing sixteen to his credit. Randal, of the same team has stolen twelve.

* * *

Lambert is the best outfielder in the league, according to a statement issued from league headquarters.

* * *

The strong Freimuth team batted out a rattling victory at Aitkin yesterday. Allen, Stowell, Carroll and Rocklin looming up largely with the stick.

Aitkin not only has a fast team, but the Freimuth players say it is the cleanest bunch it has been against this year. The line-up and score:

Aitkin—	Freimuths—
Krelwitz, pitcher	Lowe
A. Hunold, catcher	Peck
Williams, first base	Lundgren
Cask, second base	Carrol
Robbers, third base	Stowell
Honnold, short stop	Allen

Timely hitting won the game for the Big Duluth Clothing company team at Lake Nebagamon yesterday. Lovell managed to keep his scattered and was given nice support. Lahiss, the Nebagamon twirler, struck out nine men. The score:

Big Duluth	3 0 1 0 2 0 0 0 1—7
Nebagamon	0 0 0 0 0 3 0 0 1—4

Batteries—Lahiss and Muck; Lovell and Campbell. Umpire—Murphy.

The Eagle Clothing company team defeated Duluth Heights yesterday in a game that was very close until the last inning. The line-up and score:

Heights—	Eagle Clothing Co—
MacDougal, pitcher	Gabo
Hudders, catcher	Schaefer
Kool, first base	Sloan
Murphy, second base	Harris
McEwen, third base	O'Brien
Anderson, short stop	Blasing

Coon, center field	Bennett
Jackson, left field	Larson

Duluth Heights	1 0 0 0 3 2 1 1 0—8
Eagle Clothing	5 0 0 1 0 4 0 0 5—15

In a 10-inning game yesterday the Marshall-Wells team defeated West Duluth by a score of 15 to 13. Stockman for the Marshall-Wells aggregation struck out twelve men. Six of the sixteen hits made off Larson, the West Duluth pitcher, were two-baggers. The victors are not the Marshall-Wells team of the city league, and Manager George McCabe says that he is out after the scalps of all fast local amateur teams, the Universal Millers preferred. The score by innings yesterday:

Marshall-Wells	1 0 0 0 4 5 0 1 2 2—15
West Duluth	1 0 0 5 0 0 1 1 5 0—13

In the game that resembled pum-pum-pull-away the Kelley-How-Thomson company team won the only game of the city league played Saturday. The visitors made six home runs, six triplets, three doubles and almost any number of singles. The score:

K.-H.-T.—	M.-W.—
Menelce, pitcher	Treviulon
Campbell, catcher	Van
Davis, first base	Berent
Rombeau, second base	McFarland
Dennis, third base	McCabe
Berelni, short stop	Edner
Lynch, left field	Wing
Bain, right field	Nelson
Eveland, center field	Murtinger

The police department team permitted Lakeside to steal any number of bases in Saturday's game, claiming they could not make arrests unless the bases were stolen from a building in the night time. It is therefore suggested that the next meeting take place in the Armory after dark. The policemen were weakened by the absence of Capt. Resche and the rooting of J. K. Persons. Score:

Barbers of Duluth and Superior gave the biggest shampoo at the head of the lakes yesterday for 10 cents. Their effort at ball playing certainly had whiskers on it and it was a pretty close shave for the Duluth barbers that went to West Superior for the express purpose of massaging the diamond with the Moler graduates over there. The score:

Barbers	2 4 1 1 0 0 3 2 3—17
Barbers	1 2 0 4 0 2 2 1 2—17

THREE-LINK MEN TO MEET

Grand Lodge Session Will Celebrate Its Semi-Centennial.

St. Paul, June 22.—The fifty-first annual session of the grand lodge of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows of Minesota, will open Wednesday, June 24, at 9 o'clock, in the house of representatives, state capitol.

Simultaneously will be held the sixteenth annual session of the Rebekah assembly, I. O. O. F., in the hall of Capital City lodge, corner West Seventh and Walnut streets.

In the evening, Wednesday, June 24, a program will be presented at the Grand Opera house to celebrate the fact that the session of the grand lodge on that day will also be the semi-centennial of the body.

The program will consist of "ten-minute talks," at intervals, interspersed with musical numbers. Everyone is welcome to come and hear the talks of the many "past grands" who will speak. The program, as planned, is as follows:

"Early Days of Odd Fellowship in Minnesota," David Ramaley, P. G. M.; "The Grand Lodge of Minnesota," Ed. A. Stevens, P. G. M.; "The Grand Encampment of Minnesota," C. R. Wilkinson, grand scribe; "The Rebekah Assembly of Minnesota," Eunice Melville, secretary; "The Patriarchs Militant of Minnesota," August Hohenstein, G. S. W.; "Minnesota and the Sovereign Grand Lodge," W. G. Nye, P. G. M.; "The Subordinate Lodges of Minnesota," F. L. Powers, P. G. M.; "The Subordinate Encampments of Minnesota," M. C. Kelsey, P. G. M.; "The Rebekah Lodges of Minnesota," T. W. Hugo, P. G. P.; "The Odd Fellows' Home," G. S. Ives, P. G. M.; "Sentiments," expressed in twenty words or less, by past grand masters, past grand patriarchs and past grand representatives.

Weiland, Duluth.

SARAH BERNHARDT

Soaks Her Head With Wine at Banquet.

Paris, June 22.—Edmond Rostand, the dramatist, after his reception among the immortals of the French academy, gave a dinner party to a few if his worshippers. Sarah Bernhardt sat in the place of honor, attired in a wonderful creation of faintly tinted tulle lace which had been worn during the ceremony in the afternoon. At the dessert when the champagne began to flow, Sarah rose, and a hush fell on the company. Taking a goblet of wine in her hand she raised it to her brow.

"Thus do I pour libations after the ancient custom to the divine poet," she crled and emptied the cup on the crown of her head. She smiled as the wine trickled down her hair and shoulders upon her gossamer robe.

"Your dress will be spoiled," the guests exclaimed.

"It was intended to be worn but on this day," was Sarah's superb reply. After this it was annoying that the impressiveness of the golden voiced Sarah's action should have been marred, but so it was. Rostand's two little sons, aged 6 and 8 years, promptly proceeded to perform religious rites, of which the great actress had set an example and poured libations of champagne diluted with seltzer over their heads with such enthusiastic lavishness and such disastrous results to their lace collars and jackets, that both were soaked with wine and water, and the lads had to be removed and put to bed.

HAD ROBBED POSTOFFICE.

Bellefonte, Pa., June 22.—A gang of robbers arrested in the Seven mountains, had recently committed a postoffice robbery recently. A package they had buried in the old barn, where they were captured, has been found, and in it were postage stamps of all denominations from one to ten cents, aggregating in value $567.41. In the package were two bottles of nitro-glycerine and several other articles. One of the men was shot by the sheriff's posse but probably will recover.

BOOTS AND SHOES

Exports In Fiscal Year About to End Break Record.

Four Million Pairs Valued at Nearly Seven Million Dollars.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, June 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—Exports of boots and shoes in the fiscal year about to end seems likely to exceed those of any preceding year, both in quantity and value. In 1880 the number of pairs of boots and shoes exported was 378,274; in 1890 the number had only increased to 587,108 pairs; by 1900 the number had grown to 3,049,720 pairs, and in 1902 the total was 3,966,766 pairs; and in the fiscal year about to end the total will pass the four million line. The total value of boots and shoes exported has grown from a little over a half million dollars in 1893 to over six millions in 1902. In 1893 the total value of boots and shoes exported was $590,754; by 1895 it had practically doubled, being in that year, $1,040,238; by 1899 it had doubled again, being in that year $2,711,385. Within two years the total again doubled, being in 1901 $5,526,290, and in the fiscal year 1903, which ends ten days hence, the total value of boots and shoes exported will be between six and seven million dollars.

Of the six million dollars' worth of boots and shoes exported in 1902, two million dollars' worth went to the United Kingdom, practically a million dollars' worth to British Australia, over a half million dollars' worth to Mexico, a half million dollars' worth to Cuba, and about an equal sum to Canada. The increase in shipments from the United States to the United Kingdom has been very rapid during the decade, the total value in 1892 being but $2169, and in 1902, $2,013,890. The number of pairs sent to the United Kingdom from the United States was, in 1892, 1567, and in 1902, 1,635,396; while to British Australasia the number of pairs sent in 1892 was 8289, and in 1902, 550,469; to Germany, in 1892, 812, and in 1902, 122,689. The total number of pairs of boots and shoes sent abroad from the United States in 1902 was 3,966,766, and of this number two-thirds went to British territory, distributed as follows: United Kingdom, 1,635,396 pairs; Quebec, Ontario, etc., 269,164 pairs; British West Indies, 289,445 pairs; British Australasia, 550,469 pairs; British Africa, 168,607 pairs; Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, etc., 32,980 pairs; British Columbia, 25,659 pairs; Newfoundland and Labrador, 13,104 pairs; Bermuda, 54,678 pairs; British Honduras, 49,021 pairs; British Guiana, 31,451 pairs; and British East Indies, 12,029 pairs, making a total of 2,530,993 pairs, sent to British territory out of an aggregate exportation of 3,966,766 pairs.

The following table shows the exports of boots and shoes, by quantities, from 1892 to 1902:

Year.	Pairs.
1892	745,112
1893	493,027
1894	647,348
1895	822,412
1896	1,036,235
1897	1,224,484
1898	1,386,421
1899	1,934,277
1900	3,016,750
1901	3,492,041
1902	3,966,766

A DOUBLE TRAGEDY.

A Lovesick Pair Planned to Die Together.

Scranton, Pa., June 22.—A pair of young lovers, Ernest Schmic and Miss Jennie Brennan, both of Greenwood, were the participants in a double tragedy last evening, which has resulted in the former's death and which will probably also prove fatal in the case of the girl. The two had loved each other devotedly for several months, but another woman from Schmic's old home interfered a week ago and sought to hold him to an alleged engagement with her. This led the pair to seek refuge in death, and they apparently planned the affair with much deliberation.

Miss Brennan purchased a bottle of carbolic acid yesterday morning, and shortly afterward both started out for a walk. They strayed to a secluded spot in the midst of a forest and spent the entire afternoon sitting side by side on a rock. They were seen by several other ramblers in the woods, and this led to the search by the girl's cousin, Thomas Cavanaugh, and several of his friends.

When the party came in sight of the place, Miss Brennan put the bottle of acid to her lips and drained it. As she did so Schmic started to run, with several of the party close on his heels. He drew a revolver and fired upon them three times, and then stopping, turned the weapon to his heart and shot himself twice. He fell dead instantly. The girl suffered great agony and her physicians have scant hope for her recovery.

OPERATIVES LOSE STRIKE

Employes of Lowell Mills Vote to Return to Work.

Lowell, Mass., June 22.—The textile council yesterday afternoon declared the strike in the Lowell mills at an end. Every union affiliated with the council was represented and the vote was unanimous. Male spinners and loom fixers were included in this vote, despite statements that they would oppose a return to work. When asked for a statement, President Conroy said:

"We now worship at the altar of defeat, but later we shall rise again and conquer."

Agent William Southworth, secretary of the employers, said: "It will be impossible to start the remainder of the machinery so as to employ at once all who will come back. Running with an incomplete force for three weeks has disturbed the balance that usually exists between stock and prices in the various departments. A mill may have depleted stock in certain kinds of yarn and for that reason be unable to start all of its looms, even if the full complement of help is available. It is for the selling agents and the treasurers to decide, in view of the market, whether we shall attempt to run in full.

The strike began on March 30 and involved 17,000 operatives. The mills were shut down until June 1, when the agents opened the gates and the majority of the operatives went back to work. The strike has cost in wages about $1,300,000. It is understood that the agents will take back all the old help they have room for and will make no discrimination against the leaders of the strike movement.

The high price of cotton precluded any hope of the success of the strikers' campaign for a 10 per cent increase.

BUMPED BY BATTLESHIP.

The Massachusetts In Collision With a Schooner.

Boston, June 22.—The battleship Massachusetts, which left here Saturday afternoon for New York, was in collision Saturday night twenty-seven miles southeast by east of Boston lightship, with the schooner Martha Thomas, of Thomaston, from Apalachicola, with lumber. Capt. Watts, of the Thomas, says the battleship struck his schooner a glancing blow on the starboard side, tearing off the main chain plates, carrying away the rails and damaging some planking about the hull, causing her to leak about two inches per hour. The captain says the weather was clear and he could see four miles away. His vessel, having a fair wind, kept a clear course, thinking the battleship, which was headed out of the bay, would give her the clear way. Immediately after the collision, the Massachusetts put about and followed the schooner into the bay in case she might need assistance. But on reaching the lightship, Capt. Watts decided that it was unnecessary. The Massachusetts then put to sea.

WORST OF EXPERIENCES.

Can anything be worse than to feel that every minute will be your last? Such was the experience of Mrs. S. E. Newson, Decatur, Ala. "For three years" she writes, "I endured insufferable pain from indigestion, stomach and bowel trouble. Death seemed inevitable when doctors and all remedies failed. At length I was induced to try Electric Bitters and the result was miraculous. I improved at once and now I'm completely recovered." For liver, kidney, stomach and bowel troubles Electric Bitters is the only medicine. Only 50c. It's guaranteed by all druggists.

ALLEGED WIFE

And Child of Supposed Bachelor Turn Up.

Seymour, Ind., June 22.—Three weeks ago George W. Lett, a wealthy farmer and a bachelor, as all his relatives believed, died at his home, near Crothersville, in this county. Since then an administrator was appointed and began settling the estate.

Now comes a report from Crothersville that a strange woman and her daughter have arrived from a Western state and claim to be the wife and daughter of George W. Lett. When Lett was a young man he went West, was gone fifteen years, his letters home being infrequent. He traveled over all the Western states and territories, but finally came back and remained until he died.

After his return he said nothing about a wife in the West, and his relatives believed him a single man. They are now ready even now to change their opinion, and state that the alleged wife will have to prove herself Mrs. George W. Lett beyond doubt before she can get any of the estate, which consists of 400 acres of land and a lot of personal property.

EAST IS IN FAVOR

Of Myron Herrick For Second Man Upon National Ticket.

Believed He Possesses Requisites Essential to Presiding Officer.

Philadelphia, June 22.—A New York special to the Press says: With the return of President Roosevelt from the West, harmony established in Ohio and the conferences that have recently taken place here and in Washington, the course of events, political and administrative, for the next twelve months, begins to be indicated. First of all, it may be said that should there be any report that Governor General Taft is to be named as the Republican candidate for vice president or at an early day is to be nominated as the successor of Chief Justice Fuller, no one need pay any heed to gossip of that kind.

If there be no breakdown in health, Governor Taft will undoubtedly be in and of the administration at Washington within a few months, but his services will be at the White House rather than at the capitol end of the avenue.

For if the inclination of the secretary of war, Elihu Root, is unchanged when he returns from his impending mission as a member of the the Alaskan boundary commission, his official public service will then be voluntary and yet personally imperative choice end. Succeeding him as secretary of war will, if the purposes of today he carried on, come Governor Taft, and in that office of higher authority than his present office because of broader scope, still the director, under the president, of the Philippines. And this greater authority will pass through a second appointment and confirmation by the senate into the next administration if President Roosevelt be nominated and elected.

Those who have known of this purpose to broaden Gen. Taft's responsibilities and to attach him to the official family of the president, also speak of the cautious yet now more rapid crystallization of opinion with respect to the vice presidential nomination. For in the selection of that candidate remains the only opportunity for the play of politics, the masking of combination, the measuring of availability that the Republican national convention of 1904 will possess. And today in the vista, still dim and far away, of many of those who are of right in the leadership, possibly in the penetrating vision of the president himself, there seems to be the shaping with more and more distinctiveness of outline the person of Myron Herrick.

Those here who are observers and for whom accurate observation is made possible remember that in a like manner there began early in 1896 to emerge from the mist which veiled the vice presidential availabilities were shrouded the personality of Garrett A. Hobart, defining itself clearer and clearer until it stood revealed as the altogther expedient and wholesome choice to be made of the associate candidate with McKinley upon the presidential ticket. Those who keep the yet unwritten history of presidential convention politics of 1896 know that to McKinley and to Mark Hanna Mr. Hobart was identified as the vice presidential candidate when the marvelously accurate planning and movement of the politics that compassed McKinley's nomination were done.

Here and in Ohio those whose politics were triumphing for McKinley's nomination saw Hobart stepping slowly, surely forward and apart from all others, and in like manner here and in Washington and in Ohio, though not so vividly in his state as here and in Washington, there began to be traced the political outlines of the personality that may hereafter be revealed as the choice for vice president of the Republican leaders.

As it was in 1900, so next year, there is to be no presidential politics, except such as is formal when the concept such as is formal when the convention names Roosevelt. But it has vention names Roosevelt. But it has been pointed out here that in that formality the likeness between presidential nomination politics of 1900 and that of 1904 ends, for it is now clearly seen, even by those in New York who tried to make a convenience in state politics by shifting Governor Roosevelt to the vice presidential nomination, that they planned for smaller state politics was really unwitting playing to the finer impulse of great body of young Republicans east and west of the Alleghanies. These men now in confidence confess that Roosevelt was named for vice president in 1900 to indicate that the magnificent army of young Republicans everywhere had him and no other in mind for the succession, and he was truly nominated for the presidency in 1904 through the vice presidential nomination of 1900.

But next year the vice presidential conditions will be found conventional as in 1896. The leaders and not the masses, will make nominating opinion and ballot. There is in many respects a likeness easily sketched, a similarity of circumstances, career, the building of reputation, the unofficial political life, between Garrett A. Hobart and Myron Herrick, which may almost persuade that of none other can it be so justly said that he is the heir of much that Hobart was and did. And this similarity is all the more strongly defined and profiled if there be also good understanding of the differences in temperament, and if not in intellect, yet in intellectual processes.

HANNA NOT A CANDIDATE.

Would Not Accept Nomination For Vice Presidency.

Cleveland, Ohio, June 22.—In an interview yesterday Senator M. A. Hanna reiterated his recent statement that he is not and will not be a candidate for the vice presidency, and if his nomination was made he would decline to accept it. He said further that his ambitions did not lie in the direction of the White House, and that nothing could induce him to alter his decision in the matter.

Col. Myron T. Herrick, whose name also has been mentioned in connection with the vice presidency, said that his sole political ambition was to be elected governor of Ohio. Col. Herrick thinks that the whole discussion relative to the vice presidential nomination is inopportune. When the action of President Roosevelt towards the vice presidential nomination was cited to him as an instance of how public men sometimes changed their views with regard to political nominations, and that when the sentiment of the people demanded, they might be compelled to accept office.

Senator Hanna said that men in public life who knew him knew very well that nothing can be forced upon him.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

An extra train on the North Shore railway jumped the track one mile south of Point Reyes, Cal., late Sunday afternoon. One coach turned over. Michael Kirk, of San Francisco, was killed. Supreme Court Justice Angellott was hurt. Dr. Wickman, of San Rafael, and Conductor Burrows, are among the injured.

Fountain Land shot and killed his stepson, B. Land, at Lancaster, Ky., Sunday. The younger Land was under the influence of liquor and was advancing on his stepfather with an axe.

The naval hospital transport Solace, under command of Captain Singer, sailed Sunday for Guam and Manila, carrying passengers, a large number of enlisted men of the navy and several hundred tons of supplies. Most of the passengers are naval officers, who are to join vessels now on the Asiatic station.

A destructive hailstorm prevailed in the vicinity of Sedalia, Mo., Sunday afternoon. Stones of unusual size, so large that they stripped orchards and ruined much corn, fell.

M. J. Lesla, of Portland, Ore., who last May went to the home of his divorced wife and shot and killed her father, compelling her a flee with him, has been found guilty of murder in the second degree. Sentence has been deferred. After an exciting chase that lasted three days Lesla and the woman wer found asleep in a barn on the Columbia river, where they had taken temporary refuge in their flight.

SPIRIT OF TECUMSEH

Advised Young Shevlin to Shoot His Attendant.

Buffalo, N. Y., June 22.—James Shevlin, the son of a lumber merchant of Minneapolis, arrived in this city with an attendant yesterday on his way from the Dansville sanitarium to his home. While waiting for a train, Shevlin attempted to shoot the attendant. It is not known how he secured the revolver, but he said the spirit of Tecumseh advised him to kill. Shevlin was locked up as an insane person. He will be sent home under guard.

DROPPED EXPLOSIVE.

Robber Is Badly Hurt By Nitro-Glycerine.

Noblesville, Ind., June 22.—George Marvin, said to be from Chicago, is in the county jail here as a result of an alleged attempt to blow open the safe in a general store at Jolietville. Citizens of the village, who were awakened by a terrific explosion, found Marvin lying unconscious near the store with one arm blown away and his body terribly mangled. When the citizens approached a second man ran away, making his escape. The accidental dropping of a can of nitro-glycerine was the cause of the explosion.

ROW AT BALL PARK.

Constable Who Tries to Stop Game Badly Hurt.

Findlay, O., June 22.—Constable Enoch Johnson was assaulted by George Bell, an oil well driller, yesterday, while attempting to stop a baseball game between the Filigharts of Cleveland, and a local nine. Bell is alleged to have struck Johnson a terrific blow in the face which nearly knocked the constable down and then Bell with the assistance of others, dragged the constable from the grounds, a distance of 200 feet. When Bell had got through with Johnson he surrendered himself to a deputy marshal.

There is much excitement in Findlay over the question of Sunday ball games and those who favor them are said to be as many as those who do not. The ball players were arrested, but were released when their fines were paid.

KILLED HIS SWEETHEART.

Tragedy In the Town of Salisbury, Md.

Laurel, Del., June 22.—Miss Katie Atkins was shot and instantly killed at her home in Salisbury, Md., Saturday night by Elmer Heath, her lover. After killing the young woman, Heath fired three bullets into his head and fell unconscious. He was hurried in an ambulance to jail to prevent a lynching. He may recover. The dead girl and her lover are under 21 and were to have been married last Thursday but Miss Atkins broke the engagement, when she learned that Heath had stolen money from his employer.

VISITORS PREACH

Duluth Pulpits Filled By Ministers Attending Convention.

Officiate at Both English-Speaking and Scandinavian Churches.

Duluth's churches were in the hands of visiting Norwegian Lutheran ministers yesterday. Prominent ministers of that denomination, who are attending the conference of the United Norwegian Lutheran church of America, occupied the pulpits of a number of the Duluth churches yesterday, both in the morning and evening.

At the First Presbyterian church last evening, Rev. E. Lund, professor at the Theological seminary at St. Anthony Park, addressed the audience on "John Wesley From a Presbyterian Standpoint." His sermon was in English.

At the First Methodist church, Rev. J. N. Kildahl, president of St. Olaf's college, Northfield, the largest educational institution of the United Norwegian Lutheran church, addressed a large audience at the morning service on "Know God's Will Through the Scriptures."

At the Second Presbyterian church, Rev. J. C. Roseland spoke at the morning service, and Rev. C. K. Solberg, of Vermilion, S. D., at the evening service.

The visitors also took an active part in the services of the Swedish Evangelical Lutheran church, Rev. C. O. Solberg, of Chicago, preached last evening in English on the subject, "Christ and Him Crucified." Professor Kolste of the Lutheran Theological seminary of Chicago, also delivered an address in Norwegian on "Christ, the Good Shepherd."

At the Bethany Swedish Lutheran church in the morning, Rev. N. C. Peterson, of Lisbon, Ill., occupied the pulpit in the morning, and Rev. Mr. Scheveland, of the same city, preached in the evening.

Rev. K. Hanson, of Quincy, Mass., preached at both services yesterday in the Swedish M. E. church.

At Bethsada Norwegian Lutheran church last evening, Rev. N. G. Peterson, of Lisbon, Ill.; Rev. John P. Bursett, of Fort Dodge, Iowa, and Rev. E. C. Tiller, of Chicago, assisted in the service.

EXORBITANT CHARGES.

Some Duluth People Take Advantage of Excursionists.

If reports are true the avariciousness of certain Duluth people will go a long way toward discouraging excursionists from coming here in the future. An instance of this kind is told by one of the local hotel proprietors to whom complaint was made by visitors, who claimed to have been held up to the extent of $2 each per night for a room in a private house.

Application was first made at the hotel for rooms but, everything had been taken in the way of rooms and cots, and the proprietor, anxious to find accommodations for the people he could not care for himself, referred to a list of names of people who had requested him to send them excursionists, when he had no further facilities for caring for them.

The hotel men sent several people to a private house thinking that they would receive fair treatment, but was surprised to have the visitors come back to the office the next morning with the complaint that they were held up for $2 apiece for their rooms.

The hotel man declares that as fast as he discovers private houses which are going into the hold-up business, simply because belated visitors must have a place to sleep, he will warn excursionists to keep away from them.

CAUSE IS DOUBTFUL.

Douglas County Indian Murdered or Suicided.

Joseph Carrow, an Indian, residing near Gordon, Wis., came to his death Saturday under circumstances which the authorities are at a loss whether to pronounce suicide or murder. Carrow lived with his wife in a small hut at ar. Indian settlement, and last Saturday started to go to Gordon to get some money due him.

While his wife was hitching up the ponies she heard a shot and, returning to the house, found Carrow lying on the floor dead, with a bullet wound in the neck. On the floor beside him was a Winchester rifle. An autopsy showed that the bullet severed the jugular vein and penetrated the base of the brain. Carrow had the reputation of being law-abiding and industrious. The coroner's jury could not determine whether it was a case of murder or suicide.

EIGHT HUNDRED MILLIONS

Of New York Property Exempt From Taxes.

New York, June 22.—In greater New York property assessed at the enormous sum of $733,523,329 is exempt from taxation. This fact was made public by President Wells of the department of taxes and assessments. It means that the city loses $12,000,000 annually by reason of the operation of the exempt provisions of the tax law. The chief beneficiary from this exemption is the city of New York and the United States government, which own vast property interests in the city. Churches and charitable institutions also figure largely in the exempt class. Old soldiers' homes are also factors in the list. Among the churches the Trinity properties are valued at $15,650,000 and pay no taxes.

"If the city were to be paid taxes on these valuations," said Commissioner Wells, "in a few years the city of New York would be as rich as the federal government itself. It would be by far the wealthiest city in the world."

PLEASURE RESORTS

Great Crowds Visit All the Pretty Places Around Duluth.

Fond du Lac and St. Louis River Draw Great Number.

Yesterday was a big day for Fond du Lac and St. Louis river points of attraction. During the day the steamer Newsboy made two trips up the river and carried between 700 and 800 people. While a large part of the crowd was comprised of excursionists from the country, who saw for the first time the beautiful views along the St. Louis river, there was a generous sprinkling of Duluth and Superior people, who picnicked at Fond du Lac all day, returning on the evening boat.

Besides the steamboat facilities, the Northern Pacific company ran excursion trains to Fon du Lac for the Svea club picnic from West Superior.

A number of fishing parties were strung along the river from Spirit Lake to the rapids above Fond du Lac and a number of good catches were reported. Some of the fishermen returning on the Newsboy last evening had big strings of pike, some of which easily weighed over three pounds. One lucky Duluth fisherman caught an eleven and one-half pound catfish in the river just below the falls.

Not a few of the excursionists from the southern part of the state, whose train did not leave until a late hour last evening, after their return from the Fond du Lac trip, stayed on the Newsboy for a two-hour ride around the horn and on the lake.

While boat rides formed a strong attraction to the people from the agricultural districts, who do not often get the opportunity of seeing so large a body as Lake Superior, the other points of attraction in the city received their due consideration. Park Point was fairly overrun with visitors who could hardly get over discussing the oddity of the formation of this popular resort.

The Lakeside street railway line was made to do a heavy service from early morning hours until late in the afternoon. It is estimated that the crowds at Lester Park yesterday were larger than during any previous day thus far this season.

The Seventh avenue west incline did its record-breaking business of the season yesterday and scores of people were compelled to await their turn to take a ride to the hilltop during some hours of the day.

SACK FULL OF RICH NUGGETS

Led By Female Ghost, Old John Willis Strikes Luck.

Pendleton, Ore., June 22.—Old John Willis, a prospector who has been a familiar figure on the streets here for several years, will prospect no more—he has found a gold mine so rich as to place him in the ranks of the millionaires of the country.

Willis has just returned from a long visit in the Blue mountains, and the tale he tells is remarkable, to say the least. With him he brought a sack full of big nuggets, which have been examined by half the assayers here, who pronounced them pure gold, running nearly $22 per ounce.

The aged prospector has interested two of the bankers of this section in his find, and a party of workmen will proceed at once to the claim of Willis in the hills.

Willis has always been a man of mystery. He appeared on the streets here many years ago, but as to his history he always has been silent. That there was a romance in his life he had admitted, but the nature of it he never would disclose.

He has been regarded as eccentric in many ways, and when he announced on his return today that he had named his mine the "Haunted Lucy" he was looked on as mentally deranged.

It is the claim of Willis that he was led to the mine, which he claims is a world-beater, by the ghost of a woman named Lucy. This woman has been with him in the spirit, he says, for more than twenty-five years, and to her he lays his good fortune.

This is the first time that gold has been found in considerable quantity in the Blue mountains.

KILLED HUSBAND WITH AXE.

Pomeroy, Wash., June 22.—Amanda DeLatrugue has confessed that she killed her husband on the night of Sept. 23, 1902, with an axe, and buried the remains in the front yard of their farm near here, where they were found recently. The woman asserts that DeLatrgue came to her bedside while she slept, roused her and threatened her life, that he pursued her into the yard, sheeting at her when she seized an axe and sank it into his head. She buried the body herself the same night. Mrs. DeLatrugue was twenty years older than her husband.

PERSHING TELLS

Of Battle of Bacolod In Letter to a Friend.

One of Best Fights In the Moro Campaign.

Washington, June 22.—Capt. J. J. Pershing, who was in command of the troops at the fight at Lake Lano in the Philippines, has written a letter to a personal friend in the war department describing the battle. It has been shown to Secretary Root, who authorized the publication.

Capt. Pershing says: "Camp Vicars, April 27, 1903.—I suppose your mail dispatches have, or will bring you, a full account of the Bacolod incident, in reality the best fight of the Moro campaigns; not so many Moros killed as at Bayan of Pandapalan, one year ago, but fought according to some sort of system. Of course I have worked on this, as I foresaw long ago that it must come, and the whole thing from the beginning worked out as planned.

"At first we got behind them, much to their surprise, and could post our guns above them and drop projectiles down into their fort, so that the artillery fire in this case was not all noise. We had some work and some fighting to gain this position. Once there it was only a question of sitting down deliberately and waiting to see what the Moros would do. Many got away before the place was invested thoroughly.

"The fight began in a flood of a rain storm that lasted until dark, and reconnoitering was difficult. So we did not find all the avenues of escape until next day, and am glad now we did not, as they had such confidence in this fort that they have been constructing for a year that they took many women and children inside, and these escaped during the night.

"The next day and night we held them fast, however, tried to get them to surrender, had two talks under flag of truce; no, they would fight it out. So there was only to finish it. I called my officers together and gave each one his work. The main obstacle was a deep ditch 35 feet wide and 40 feet deep, to be crossed. It was to be bridged with fallen trees and over all a bamboo bridge was laid. Everything in readiness, the assault began.

"In the face of a heavy Remington fire from the fort the lines advanced against two faces of the fort, putting out of business every Moro that appeared. They could not use their port holes, as we had battered them to pieces, although we could not with our light field artillery damage the earthworks.

"The lines up to within 50 yards, the bridge was completed by two companies detailed for that purpose, the trees having been previously cut and hauled as near as could safely be done. This done, the assaulting infantry swung across and formed line on the Berme and clambered up nearly in line to the top of the parapet. There they were met with Kampilan and Kris, and a bloody hand-to-hand fight occurred. one soldier against two Moros plunging here, another running his bayonet into a fanatic there, Moros plunging headlong into the deep ditch in their impetuosity and impetus.

"It was as a whole a scene never to forget. Too much cannot be said of the valor, the bravery, the courage and coolness and nerve of the American soldier. The majority of those left inside never reached the top of the parapet. It was a relief to me that none of our men were killed. Two will lose an arm each and the rest will recover with honorable scars, but none maimed. It was the proudest day of my life.

"Cholera existed in all that section and we did not examine the interior of the fort until after it was burned and wet thoroughly through for there was all sorts of underground passageways. Some officers in the assaulting line counted sixty dead on one floor and the Morors say there were more than 100 killed inside, while the list outside has been growing ever since the battle so that 150 all told is a conservative estimate.

"I have labored with those Bacolod Moros for a year, through other Moros, some of them near relatives trying to convince them of their foolishness in thinking of fighting us, but they have replied in insulting messages and in fact, the whole Lanao De Lanao has expressed a contempt for us. The lesson, of course, has been a severe one for them. The other Panadurgan (a sort of Moro title, meaning chief counsellor or something of that kind, in this case he had more than the sultan), lost his life and the rest of them that are left have sent word that they want to be friends. We burned nothing but this main cotta and a few smaller ones, from which we were fired upon, and I think the Moros all see that our purpose is to be humane as far as they will permit us.

"To my mind this practically settles the Lake Lanao troubles. We, of course, must explore the eastern portion of the lake for a distance that remains yet unexplored of about ten miles. I anticipate little trouble there, but there may be one or two old dattos who may put up their flags. The matter may now be said to be settled. There will never be again any continued opposition or general opposition. The senseless ones see it is useless and several of the panditas (priests) are preaching the universal brotherhood of man.

"It is needless for me to say to you that I am gratified at the outcome. From Bacolod north to Murahui there were more than forty United States flags displayed in the forts and in racheros than I supposed existed in all this country. I have been here nearly two years right in and about the Moro country and in the islands nearly four, and can but feel that I have accomplished something. I think it is the largest single success made.

"One year ago no one had seen, except myself, the Moro in his native settlement, and had no idea of his forceful, unconquerable nature. Today we have swept the lake and have practically marched around it. Without the support and encouragement of Gen. Davis and Gen. Sumner, I could not have done this. To them, of course, as commanders, belongs the credit. I hope it will not fail of appreciation and that they will be rewarded accordingly. I will end here this hurried description of the Bacolod expedition."

STARTLING EVIDENCE.

Fresh testimony in great quantity is constantly coming in, declaring Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption, coughs and colds to be unequaled. Recent expression from T. J. McFarland, Bartonville, Va., serves as example. He writes: "I had bronchitis for three years and doctored all the times without being benefited. Then I began taking Dr. King's New Discovery, and a few bottles wholly cured me." Equally effective in curing all lung and throat troubles, consumption, pneumonia and grip. Guaranteed by all druggists. Trial bottles free, regular sizes 50c. and $1.00.

SSS THE BEST TONIC

In S. S. S. Nature has provided a tonic suited to every requirement of the system when in a debilitated, run down condition. It contains no strong minerals or drugs, but is a pleasant vegetable preparation. You can find no better remedy for toning up the nerves and bringing refreshing, restful sleep when in a low state of health, or sick and worn out with work or worry.

S. S. S. improves the appetite, aids the digestion and reinforces the system, and its good effects are seen almost from the first dose. It acts promptly in cases of chronic dyspepsia, indigestion and all stomach troubles, and does away with the uncomfortable fullness, nausea, shortness of breath, drowsiness and dizziness that so often come after eating.

S. S. S. is not only the best tonic but possesses alterative or purifying properties, and if there is any taint, humor or poison in the blood it searches it out, and removes it. Many times a low state of health is due to a bad condition of the blood and can only be remedied by a blood purifier and tonic combined, or such a remedy as S. S. S.

If you suffer from debility, insomnia, nervousness, loss of appetite, bad digestion, or any of the symptoms of a disordered blood, nothing will so soon put your blood in good condition, invigorate and tone up the system as S. S. S.

I have no hesitancy in recommending your S. S. S. as the best Spring tonic on the market. I have used many other medicines, but find S. S. S. to be undoubtedly the only tonic that will build up the system. I shall take pleasure in telling all whom I think in need of a good blood tonic of your medicine.

Yours truly, LEWIS S. FIEBER,
Caro Stoll, Hamilton & Co. Lexington, Ky.

FAMELESS COLT

The Picket, Wins Sixteenth and Greatest American Derby.

Canters Under the Wire, With New Time Mark Made.

Chicago, June 22.—Six lengths ahead of a field of eighteen straining, struggling thoroughbreds, The Picket, a plebian colt unknown to fame, untried, and without record, won the sixteenth American Derby in Washington Park Saturday—and his first victory.

Seventy thousand spectators, nineteen colts, a new record for the stakes; the largest crowd, the biggest field and the best time in the history of classic event; first honors won in a canter, and a fierce struggle for minor glories; favorites hopelessly beaten before the final quarter-ter is reached—all that, and the floral saddle for The Picket, is the Derby.

As the winning colt won this, the first victory of his racing career, the Washington Park records for the Derby went to smash, and the new mark of 2:33 was set up in place of the 2:33 4-5 of Robert Waddell in 1901. The distance is 1½ miles.

That Savable, the conquerer in the Futurity and the pride of the Drake stables, and Claude, the winner of three Derbies, and Bernays should pound their way around the track with the heels of an untired horse, digging the dirt far ahead of them, was in strict accordance with what is expected in the American Derby. When it was over it was easily recalled that this is the way it always happens.

Jumping into the lead before the quarter was reached, The Picket saw his competitors no more until they were gathered around him at the judges' stand. Turning slightly on his mount from time to time Jockey Helgesen could see the struggle behind him, but it carried no terrors for the speedy colt of Middleton & Jungbluth.

As he passed the stand the first time around he was in the lead. As the flying bunch reached the first mile he was increasing his lead. When they entered the stretch the race was hopeless for the other eighteen, and as he crossed under the wire it was in a canter. The real struggle was six lengths behind him.

While The Picket was being walked up and down in the cooling blanket a cablegram was on its way to an interior town in Asia Minor. It told the whole story of the day. It put in Kurt Jungbluth, part owner of the fleet son of Falsetto and Voltario, and all it said was:

"Picket wins."

Not a cent of his owner's money did The Picket carry. For them he won the $25,000 representing the net value of the first money and nothing more.

That more people saw the running of this race than have even seen a horse race in the West, if not in the country, is asserted by officials of the Washington Park club.

THE DETAILED STORY.

The Picket first by six lengths, Claude second by a head, Bernays third by a half length, and Savable, the favorite, fourth—and in the record time of 2:33.

Such is the result turf guides of the future will tell of the seventy-first Derby of the American Derby at Washington park in 1903.

Then those who saw the great event will tell how the Middleton & Jungbluth son of Falsetto, the first maiden to win an American Derby, led from flagfall to finish, winning easily from the largest and classiest field which ever went to the post for the 3 year old classic.

So far as the winner was concerned there was no room to doubt his superiority at the day, weights and distance.

Instead of backing up at the far turn, as many expected him to do, this precocious maiden who dared to violate tradition by setting his own pace and yet winning the honors, swung into the stretch with such a margin it seemed an impossibility—as it proved to be—for any of the struggling bunch behind to cut down that long lead which began to increase rather than decrease as The Picket led the van around the homestretch for the final run of a quarter mile to the wire.

Jockey Helgesen stole one hurried look at those behind. It satisfied him, and Helgesen and The Picket came on home an easy winner by the longest margin since Sidney Lucas won in 1900.

When the field started ahead of the stretch those behind The Picket looked hopelessly beaten. Bernays, which had encountered far more than his share of racing hard for his money, failed to squeeze past Savable, already tired but wonderfully game; Claude had made his run between the half and quarter poles, was lucky to retain a place next to the winner; Au Revoir and Gilfain already were tiring of their leg weary chase and were ready to back up, while the others were not worth considering.

Claude, well handled by Daly, son of the colt's owner, had secured a place well up in the trailing bunch around the final bend and skinned through on the inside, and it was this advantage which probably gave second money to the owner of the California, Tennessee and St. Louis derbies, for both Bernays and Savable gained ground on Claude in the stretch run.

Bernays was back in the ninth position, but coming strongly, and here he encountered interference from Savable, which was swerving and acting more tired than his later stretch run indicated.

"Tommy" Knight, on the Respress colt, was fairly frantic as he tried first to pass Savable on one side and then on the other, and shouted to Lester Reiff: "Pull out, Lester, and let me by; you're beaten."

Savable was beaten as far as first money was concerned, but as Bernays brushed past him he hooked on to the latter and the two running down the stretch almost side by side mowed down everything before them except the winner and Claude.

Half a dozen jumps from the wire it seemed as if both would pass Claude, but that tired performer, with his 127 pound burden, the heaviest impost in the race, hung on grimly in those final strides and kept his head in front as the trio flashed under the imaginary wire. Bernays and Savable on the outside.

Savable, Futurity, winner of 1902 and favorite for the race, never could cut down that margin which Bernays had established and was outside the money—a fate not new to derby favorites—by a half length.

Back of this struggling trio by a length was Au Revoir, which had followed in second position the trying early pace and ran a good race—a race above the general expectation in view of his poor showing in recent events and more particularly the St. Louis derby of a week ago.

Behind these came the straggling field, but where was Judge Himes, the horse which probably carried more individual wagers than any other entry in the blue ribbon event? "Lucky Charley" Ellison's luck had deserted him when it should have availed most. Judge Himes was last. Not only last at the finish—hopelessly, absolutely last—but last nearly all the way of that mile and one-half derby journey.

Perhaps Judge Himes' suspected sore heels hurt him; at any rate, he never seemed to get going. This did not surprise Trainer Mayberry, who said neither he nor the owner expected anything after they found that Friday's rain had still left the track hard and fast, and that Gregor K. had won the first race at a mile under 1:40.

But Judge Himes disappointed thousands of bettors who saw him finish a bangup third to Savable and Linguist in the derby trial special.

The Pickett's advantage at the end was so marked it is hardly an event in which there was room for "ifs." Bernays probably had more hard luck than any other of the contenders with the possible exception of Claude, and Lester Reiff, who rode Savable, thought Bernays might have hustled the winner had he seen clear sailing. He admitted the best his own mount could have done would have been to land in second place had Savable been unmolested, for the favorite, too, met his interference—once in the backstretch, where he dropped back sharply, and again between the last two quarter poles, when Reiff tried to move up.

In view of Savable's finish, game and strong, it is not unlikely the swerving which interfered with Bernays was not more the swerving of a possibly tired horse than the uncertainty of where he was wanted to go in view of his jockey's efforts to seek an opening.

Au Revoir, Gilfain, and the others which dropped back and had their chances and failed to make good. They are absolutely eliminated from the "ifs."

All the boys said the crowding at the start and on the turns was the worst in their careers as riders. This could only be expected from the size of the field, the largest in the history of the race.

Just so far as the "ifs" cut little figure in the probable result the same was equally true of the jockeys and jockeyship. While everything else was in the superlative it was generally pronounced the poorest lot of ockeys on the average which ever piloted American derby aspirants.

No one boy stood out in ability over the others, and none was much below the average. Arthur Helgesen, who rode the winner, has never been accounted in the first rank of artists, but he had the best horse and was not called upon to show what he could have done in a desperate finish.

Little Daly on Claude cleverly found an opening after leaving the backstretch and it was not his fault that Claude happened to be right behind Gilfain when the latter tired and fairly sunk back at the head of the stretch, or that Claude was bumped by The Picket at the start, losing many lengths. These interferences also should be considered to Claude's credit when comparing his race to that of Bernays and Savable, allowing for their interference.

For the sake of the American Derby it is to be hoped The Picket will show by later races that his victory was not of the fluke variety or due to lighter weight, for he certainly gave those behind him more than a twelve pound beating. It is to be hoped he will live up to his Derby reputation, as did Sidney Lucas and Robert Waddell, but as Wyeth has not as yet.

At 3:55 o'clock the cordon of twelve buglers with their leader sounded the blast which called the field to the post, and the long line filed out of the paddock gate, up past the clubhouse, and then turned and moved slowly in front of the stand. The cries for favorites were lost in one loud roar of applause.

About the middle of the stand the riders lost their dignified idea of a slow pace and a majority cantered their mounts over to the half mile post, where Starter "Dick" Dwyer, gray fedora hat in hand and wearing a light suit with a pink carnation in a buttonhole, stood holding the red flag which was to fall as the field of nineteen began their long journey.

Savable, Claude, and Bernays were modest at the post. Gold Bell tried a few dilatory tactics and Dominick once or twice appeared to seek an advantage at the start, but as a whole it was a well behaved field, considering the number. And when Dwyer did spring the barrier the field was in almost perfect alignment, although there were of necessity some who did not fare well in the first scramble for position.

Savable was well up and in good position, but Bernays and Judge Himes were at the rear flight.

Within the first half dozen strides Helgesen, who had got his mount off well, shot The Picket to the lead, with the others closely bunched. It was a position which The Picket never relinquished.

Coming past the stand the first time The Picket had a margin of a half length over Au Revoir, with Gilfain third and Linguist fourth. Savable was fighting for his head in sixth position on the outside, probably to avoid interference at the clubhouse turn. Bernays was still in the rear flight, with Judge Himes last and already beginning to show signs of being a disappointment after his spanking race of last Wednesday.

Around the bend The Picket had increased his lead to a length and a half, with Au Revoir still trailing second, while Gilfain had temporarily been displaced in third place by Linguist. "Johnny" Schorr's Gold Bell was fifth at this stage, with Bad News sixth and Savable seventh.

Claude was just back of Drake's colt with J. Daly apparently watching an opportunity to make a move. This he was unable to do, but was in fine position to send his mount forward in the scramble at the far turn, where the jockeys who had been nursing their mounts through the fast early pace, which had caused old horsemen to shake their heads, were ready to sound their mounts before the final struggle. Savable dropped back a couple of notches after passing the far turn and did not seem able to find a clear opening.

Already Corrigan's trio, Fore and Aft, Sinner Simon, and High Chancellor, as well as Judge Himes, were out of the contention, while Gilfain and Gold Bell were showing signs of having had enough. Flocarlon, the Tichenor filly, began to carry hopes to her backers, but it was premature and shortlived.

Meantime The Picket was swinging along easily in the lead with no thought of stopping. With two furlongs of the journey yet to go the Falsetto colt was two open lengths in front and running so easily many presaged richly when they said: "They'll never, never catch him."

For a second it seemed as if the field might close on The Picket—it was high time for an unlooked for candidate to appear—then Helgesen turned his mount loose, took one hurried look behind, and the race was over so far as the winner was concerned. He was never even threatened in that last furlong. Claude, Bernays, and Savable fought it out for the places, as recorded, and so ended the running of the Derby of 1903.

Judge Himes, Claude, Savable, and other choices were forgotten in the greeting to the winner as he cantered back to the wire. Without friends a week ago, and without friends on the day of the race save as his sensational workout had gained him admirers, The Picket was welcomed for his gameness and his feat of setting the pace and carrying such a flight of speed the full journey of a mile and a half.

Upon the horse's back was placed the floral saddle of victory. The colt took his honors modestly, suffered the floral tribute to be placed upon his back without careening, and then was lead down the track toward the east and past the stand, his delighted trainer, Carroll Reid, by a deft twisting of the bridle, keeping the horse's head with its white marking on the forehead turned toward the crowd.

Old Pa Time get's weary wrestling with Satin-Skin Cream. It beats him; keeps old faces young. 25c.

WHEAT IS HIGHER

Weather News Causes Strong Opening and It Advances Further.

Flax Goes Below Dollar Mark, First Time In Years.

Duluth Board of Trade, June 22.—Dry weather in the Northwest and rains in the Southwest caused a strong opening to the wheat market and prices in all markets in this country were higher. The Liverpool market was dragging and a cable from there reported the weakness due to better weather and large shipments to that country.

The markets are out of line for export business and exporters here could work nothing.

The close at Liverpool was ½d lower, at Paris ½c lower and at Antwerp unchanged.

The world's shipments of wheat last week were 9,880,000 bus, against 11,032,000 bus., the previous week, and 7,476,000 bus. last year. Of the shipments last week America furnished 3,617,000 bus., Russia, 2,856,000 bus., Argentine 1,776,000 bus., the Danubian provinces 40,000 bus., and India 1,462,000 bus. The amount on passage decreased 2,136,000 bus.

The visible supply decreased 1,544,000 bus. last week, and the total is now 18,490,000 bus., against 21,035,000 bus. a year ago.

Primary receipts of wheat were 469,000 bus., last year 530,000 bus. Shipments 387,000 bus., last year 375,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour were 333,000 bus.

Receipts of wheat at Duluth and Minneapolis 221 cars, and at Chicago 19, a total of 240 cars, against 457 last week and 452 last year.

The world's shipments of corn last week were 7,350,000 bus., against 3,626,000 bus., the previous week and 5,223,000 bus., last year. The amount on passage increased 3,328,000 bus. The visible supply of corn increased 629,000 bus., last week and is now 5,447,000 bus. against 5,189,000 bus. last year.

Primary receipts of corn were 683,000 bus. last year 454,000 bus. Shipments 831,000 bus., last year 217,000 bus. Clearances were 78,000 bus.

On the Duluth board there was fairly active trading. September opened ⅛c up at 75c, sold at 75⅝c at 9:20, fell to 75¼c at 9:55 and rallied to 75¾c at 10:15. It continued its upward course from there selling to 76c at 12:15 and then fell off slightly, closing at 75¾c. This was an advance of ⅝c. During most of the morning July was stronger than September but the close was at the same advance. In Chicago July closed 1⅝@1⅝c higher and September 1¼c higher. Minneapolis July was up 1¾c and September 1¼@1⅝c. St. Louis advanced ⅝c for July and ⅞c for September. New York advanced 1¼c for July and 1⅛@⅜c for September.

Cash sales were active aggregating 75,000 bushels at July price for No. 1 northern and 1¾c under for No. 2.

Flax was very active and liquidation was very heavy carrying the price off heavily. July sold 3¼c off to 98c, the first time flax has gone below the dollar mark in several years. From that it rallied somewhat and closed at 99¾c. The decline was 1½c. September lost the same amount. October 1¼c and November 1½c. The break allowed some export business to be done in flax, the total being about four loads.

Following are the closing prices:

Wheat—No. 1 hard, 85c; No. 1 northern, 83½c; No. 2 northern, 82c; July, 83¼c; September, 75¾c; December, 73½c. Flax in store, 99¾c; to arrive, 99¾c; on track 99¾c; July, 96¾c; September, $1.01½; October $1.01½; November, $1.02¼. Oats to arrive, 37½@38c; on track, 37½@38c. Rye to arrive, 54c; on track, 54c. Barley, 33@60c.

Cars inspected: Wheat, 61; last year, 25; oats, 4; rye, 2; flax, 16; last year, 4.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Market Rules Strong on Weather Conditions.

Chicago, June 22.—Heavy rains in the Southwest with a lack of moisture in the Northwest combined to create a strong tone in wheat at the start. July opening ½@⅝c higher, at 77c to 77⅛c, and September ⅝@⅝c to 1⅛@⅛c higher at 75½c to 75⅝c. The local crowd was bullish and bought freely and with rather light offerings the market advanced still further. July selling up to 77⅞c and September to 77⅝c. Minneapolis and Duluth reported receipts of 291 cars, which with local receipts of 15 cars, one of contract grade, made total receipts for the three points of 410 cars, against 457 cars last week and 452 cars a year ago.

The pit crowd and large commission houses as well as the Northwest, were active buyers the latter part of the day and prices advanced materially, July selling up to 78⅜c and September to 76¾c. The former closed with a gain of 1⅝c to 1⅝c at 78⅛c, while September was up 1c to 1⅜c at 76⅝.

Corn opened strong on unfavorable weather, July being ½@⅝c up at 59¼@59⅝c, and September ½@⅝c higher at 50⅛@50⅜c. Later in the session there was some realizing on the advance and considerable selling on the easier cables, which resulted in a little easier tone. Local receipts were 71 cars with 8 of contract grade.

The market continued strong the remainder of the session, July closing ½c higher at 59⅜c and September ⅝c higher at 50¾c.

Oats opened strong along with the strength in other grains with July ⅛@⅜c higher at 40¼@40⅝c while September was ⅛c higher at 32⅝c. Unfavorable crop advices brought out a good demand early in the session and July advanced to 40⅞c and steadying at 40½c, a September sold up to 34c, but later reacted to 33⅜c. Local receipts were 210 cars.

Liberal receipts of hogs and lower prices at the yards caused an easier tone in provisions at the start and with a dull trade prices ruled about unchanged. September pork opened unchanged at $16.90, September lard was 2½@5c to 5@7½c lower, at $8.85@8.87½ with ribs unchanged at $9.57½.

GRAIN GOSSIP.

Chicago Record-Herald: "We have a 40c July oats price now," says Charles Counselman, "because we lost the Iowa crop last year. You cannot lose a supply of that sort without the price feeling it. But I consider the present oats crop prospects better than last year's. The straw is short, but carries the grain. Last year there was a towering stem, and the result was a share of the crop fell over in the mud. We are having a good deal of exaggeration in the way of crop loss experiences. We are hearing from the man who has had poor luck and everyone is forgetting about the farmer who is satisfied. I am convinced there is a great deal of corn luck in the country; and I also think we will make a corn crop. As to the 50c price I do not feel it is so much out of the way. It is not likely to be a year of very low grain prices. There is every prospect of an active summer for the speculator. With the corn crop somewhat late there will be the opportunity from now until harvest for pessimistic talk. While I am not a bear on grain prices, I am not a believer in these present claims of crop disaster."

A leading house at Liverpool writes Lohrke June 10: "There is nothing very fresh to report of wheat except the continuance of pressing offers from India at very reasonable prices. These do not indicate a very large crop; but the Indian growers are evidently satisfied with present prices. Much will now depend on the monsoon, and should there be a delay there will probably be a serious curtailment of offerings. The trade has pretty well made up its mind the duty will be removed July 1, and most flour buyers are pursuing a hand-to-mouth following. The River Plate wheat is in smaller compass, and the quality commands as high prices as ever. Owing to freer arrivals of American wheat, the price here is below an import basis, and millers are buying the fine spring freely. There is no indication of continental countries having overbought. No offers of resale of wheat on the way come before us. On the contrary, there is a persistent demand at every decline. Our reports from both France and Germany show some improvement. But the weather is not forcing, and ideas of an early harvest have been abandoned. We understand your California crop is quite poor. Under these circumstances, when we consider the damage done by the recent floods it appears hardly likely the 90,000,000 bus. crop will be realized. If it falls much short of this, we shall not have sufficient to meet our requirements during the coming cereal year at present level of prices."

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—The market was fairly active and higher. The general tone continues unmistakably strong, and prices in all markets in this country seem tending higher. Foreign markets are so far slow to respond, but they usually are under like conditions. There is not much talk about cash demand, and export business is small at the present position is, we think, not a weak one. With export business our already small stocks are being rapidly decreased. With continued large amount in sight, and to Europe, the amount in and afloat for Europe again decreased more than 2,000,000 bus last week. Only a large consumptive demand can explain these conditions. Caution as regards the old crop is, therefore, we think, a strong one. In respect of the new crop, the tendency of advices is unfavorable. The Northwestern crop reports are needed is without any material relief and the winter wheat country, where rain is not wanted, is getting too much of it. In addition to prospects we have similar reports from other sections, there are complaints from Nebraska today of damage by rust. On the whole, we think the chances are in favor of the bull side of wheat. We see nothing to make materially lower prices at this time, and the market may easily go much higher.

Corn—The market is firm and fractionally higher. The continued cold, wet tendency over the corn belt is the principal cause. Farmers are still small and reluctant sellers of corn. But enough have been sufficient the past week to increase the visible supply to a small extent. The general character of advices from the crop are that except for its backwardness the crop generally looks well. Locally the market has lost the support of some of the best recent holders, but with the small stocks there is not much selling pressure. It is so high that we do not feel like advising its purchase.

Prussian crop report: Broomhall's canbles of the crop report: Present condition of wheat of 72, against 80 last year; rye, 78, vs. 84 last year.

Frazier, of Chicago: Think September wheat a purchase. I don't know where we are going to get contract wheat from. There is not any way to get spring wheat here and St. Louis is away over us on winter and our present contract stocks are very low.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, June 22.—The cotton market opened unchanged to an advance of 4 points, which was better than expected, in view of the poor showing made by Liverpool, which was offset, however, by poorer crop news in general and a particularly bad weather map, leading shorts to cover and investments to broaden until towards noon there was a net rise of 5@9 points on the near months and 5@7 points on the new crop months, with the local contingent at that time chiefly in control. Later cables came better and assisted the upward movement that followed the opening call.

At noon the market was firm on a covering and bulling movement with prices at best level of the forenoon, a net gain of 6 to 17 points.

Spot, steady; middlings uplands, 12.50; mid gulf, 12.75. Estimated receipts at the ports today, 2800 bales against 1477 last week and 5690 last year. For the week 16,000 bales against 17,645 last week and 12,960 last year. Today's receipts at New Orleans were 1704 bales, against 1538 last year and at Houston 25 bales against 333 last year.

Cotton spot closed steady, 10 points higher. Mid ups, 12.50; mid gulf, 12.75. Sales, 163 bales. Cotton futures closed steady: June, 12.23; July, 12.29; August, 11.80; September, 11.05; October, 10.10; November, 9.90; December, 9.85; January, 9.85.

NEW YORK MONEY.

New York, June 22.—Close: Money on call, steady, at 1¾@2½, closing 1½@2; time money steady, 60 days, 4 per cent; 90 days, 4¼ per cent; six months, 5 per cent; prime mercantile paper, 5@5½. Sterling exchange steady at the decline at $4.85.65@4.87.75 for demand and $4.85.05@4.85.15 for 60 days; posted rates $4.85½@4.86 and $4.88½; commercial bills, $4.84⅞. Bar silver, 53c; Mexican dollars, 41c. Government bonds steady; railroad bonds weak.

DECLINE IN STOCKS

Market Was Exceedingly Dull and Prices Dropped Off.

Closing Was Dull and Easy at the Lowest Point.

New York, June 22.—The depression in the London market this morning was reflected at some points here at the opening, but resistance was offered and recoveries followed. In other stocks opening prices were higher, the advance in Atchison reaching ⅝. The market was exceedingly dull.

St. Paul rose to 151¼, but its effect on the market was soon offset by sales of the coalers. Pennsylvania, Reading, Baltimore & Ohio, Erie and Delaware & Hudson fell off ⅜ to ⅝, the latter amount in Pennsylvania. Reactions later in the grangers and Pacifics reached a good traction, when gold shipments were announced and trading became spiritless. Realty pfd., Metropolitan Street Railway and Hocking Coal declined 1; Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburg, 3, and Bag pfd, 3⅜. Lackawanna gained 2, and Kansas & Texas pfd and Pacific Mail, 1.

Prices sank gradually on light offerings, but the volume of dealings grew with the decline. The engagement of $1,500,000 in gold for export tomorrow and the possibility of advances as well as weather map unfavorable for crops were the causes for selling. Metropolitan securities dropped 3⅜, the street railway stocks, 1¾; Consolidated Gas, Leather pfd, Wheeling and Lake Erie, first pfd, 2, and Illinois Central, 1 point. Railroads at noon were a sharp fraction under Saturday's close. National Biscuit pfd one-quarter. Bonds were dull and heavy at noon.

Heavy selling of Colorado Fuel forced it down 2¼ and the convertible bonds also dropped sharply. Brooklyn Transit declined about as much and some other specialties also reached a lower level. The railroad list was dull and neglected. Diamond Match sold 5 points below the last preceding sale.

Trading was without feature during the afternoon, aside from the virtual stagnation of the market. Prices dropped away for various industrial shares, but the railroad list was not appreciably lower than in the forenoon. Leather preferred lost 3 points and Linseed Oil, 1¾. Iron and Dressed Steel Car and Reading 1. Colorado Fuel recovered 1¼ and Brooklyn Transit 1.

Prices sold to a slightly lower level during the final hour. Brooklyn Transit reacted to below the former low prices. Consolidated Gas lost 3. Realty preferred 1⅝ and Lead preferred 1¼. Colorado Fuel recovered all but ¼ of its loss. Pennsylvania ran off to a point below last night and the close was dull and easy at the lowest.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Ridgley to W. H. Laidley & Co.: There is no great selling pressure. Unless liquidation comes more freely, declines will be limited. Stocks like C. F. I. which had no break two weeks ago, might be hammered down a few points. If market rallies it will probably have some reaction Tuesday. If it sells off today stocks will be a buy this afternoon or tomorrow morning.

Waldorf to Coe Commission Co.: It is the consensus of opinion that the position of the market had been strengthened by the principal events of the week just closed, and sentiment therefore is bullish. The best houses advising the purchase of stocks on reactions. The influence which contributed most to the better speculative feeling are the reduction in the London bank rate, the renewal of the steel schedule of prices without reductions, easy money and indications of a settlement of the labor trouble in the building trade. There is no question but that these considerations have led to a change of heart on the part of many speculators who have been pessimistic but who now believe that the factors making for improvement are more potent than those which have done so much to unsettle confidence, such is the stock and the disclosures in the U. S. Shipbuilding affairs. Of course, the problem of the autumn months market is still ahead. It is conceded that there is to be he usual demand setting in autumn and lasting until December for funds to move the crops and that the associated clearing house banks will be called on in that period for $35,000,000 or $40,000,000 to finance the harvest.

It is this basis which moves banking interests who are bullish on the general situation for the long pull, but it is quite possible that financial prospects will be much improved by a call for an extra session of congress. It is no secret that only Wall street bankers, but men prominent in general business will bring strong pressure to bear in favor of an extra session not later than September 1. It is argued by these observers that the calling of congress together in October or November will not avert serious stringency in money, and that with a presidential campaign on his hands will heed any suggestion looking to the welfare of general business. A financial panic might mean hard times and hard times in a presidential year are invariably detrimental to the generally expected. Some critics feel that it ought to be called for June 15, but that if the date is made for the first of September, the effect in the meanwhile will be wholesome. Brokers are talking of a traders' market for the week, and stocks ought to be taken on moderate declines. Poor earnings caused by the floods and resultant cessations of traffic are expected to be an adverse feature temporarily and may cause some weakness in the shares affected, but it is believed this will be succeeded by increased strength, imparted by the gradual return of normal conditions in the world of labor, and by the fact that the railroads as a rule continue to earn much more than the dividends they pay. As illustrative of this excessive earning power, Louisville & Nashville may be cited. On this 5 per cent stock a little over 9 per cent was earned last year. In the nine months of the present fiscal year nearly 10½ per cent has been earned and chances are that over 11 per cent will be earned before the full year. All this may explain why J. P. Morgan paid John W. Gates and why Gates was able to exact from the financier his $150 per share.

* * *

Dow-Jones to W. H. Laidley & Co.: The market is in the dumps. The situation of the international mercantile market is not good. The way stocks are pressed for sale shows liquidation is not completed. We advise sales on all rallies.

TROUBLE AT DETROIT.

Action of Seamen's Union Agent Causes Row.

Trouble has arisen between the Lake Seamen's union and the owners of the steamer B. W. Blanchard and the schooner Anna P. Grover. Charles W. Kotcher, a wealthy lumber dealer of Detroit.

Harvey L. Jester, the agent of the Lake Seamen's union at Detroit, has been attempting to place a number of his men on the Blanchard for the past few days, but he was refused admittance to the vessel and to the dock. Later the steamer took a union crew.

Mr. Jester also attempted to gain admittance to the schooner Grover and obtained a boat for the purpose. He obtained permission from the captain to talk to the crew, whom Jester claims are non-union and in spite of the fact that the owner is a member of the Lake Carriers' association, which is under contract to carry union men only, when Mr. Kotcher appeared and ordered Jester off the boat. The agent left at once.

Mr. Koch

BLOCKS UP STREET

New Grand Avenue Street Car Track Makes Trouble.

The Rails Are Built Several Inches Above Street Level.

It is claimed that the extension of street railway service on Grand avenue is making that street useless as a thoroughfare between Thirty-ninth and Sixty-third avenues west.

The surface of the avenue is not up to the established grade and in some instances the new track is eight and nine inches above the street surface, thus making it almost impossible for vehicles to cross from one side of the street to the other.

Mayor Hugo will call the council's attention to the situation this evening and urge immediate steps to remedy the difficulty. Grand avenue being the main street for driving purposes between the city and West Duluth.

It is said that the street railway is not entirely to blame in the difficulty. The street was macadamized many years ago before the street macadamizing business had reached the point of perfection it has since attained.

The macadam settled and continued to settle and wore off by constant heavy traffic and no repair, until the surface is not very far below the established grade as shown in the grade plat of Grand avenue on file in the city engineer's office.

When the street railway company began its Grand avenue extension, as ordered by the courts, permission was asked to lay the tracks up to the established grade, irrespective of surface conditions, the street car company intending to make the improvement of a permanent nature and not caring to go to the additional expense, in a few years, of taking up and relaying the tracks when the street should be properly repaired and the surface raised to the proper level.

City Engineer Patton informed the company that the city would expect it to put the rails down conforming with the present street surface as nearly as possible and paying no attention to the street level. Whether the company has conformed to this or not will probably be investigated by a committee from the council.

BAD BLAZE NIPPED

Firemen Do Good Work at Duluth Shoe Company's Building.

Building Badly Threatened —Loss Estimated From $10,000 to $20,000.

Fire originating from electric light wires resulted in an expensive blaze in the Duluth Shoe company building at 14 and 16 East Michigan street at 5 o'clock yesterday morning.

The flames were discovered by a police officer, who promptly turned in a general alarm. Within a few moments afterward the fire was bursting through the light shaft from the fourth floor to the roof. A determined fight by the firemen resulted in saving the building and most of the stock of valuable goods and high-class machinery.

There are conflicting reports as to the extent of the damage, one report from an apparently authentic source fixing the damage on stock at $20,000, machinery $5000 and building $1300, making a total of $26,300, while from other sources it is claimed that the aggregate damage will be less than $10,000. The insurance adjusters' examination will be made within a few days.

Whatever the damage, insurance will cover it, the Duluth Shoe company carrying over $50,000 on stock and contents, aside from machinery, and $5000 on the machinery. The insurance was carried as follows:

Continental	$5000
German American	5000
American of Philadelphia	5000
Concordia	5000
Commercial	5000
Milwaukee Mechanics	5000
Security Fire	5000
Allemania	2500
Columbina Fire	5000
Svea	2500
Western Fire	5000
Pennsylvania Fire	5000

Practically all of this insurance was written through the Davidson & McRae agency of this city.

The fire will not interfere with the filling of orders now on hand, and the damage will soon be repaired.

The salvage corps, maintained by insurance underwriters, had a busy time. The flames were on the roof and top floor, making it necessary for the firemen to begin throwing water there the first thing. Owing to the large amount of floor space to cover and the necessity for quick action with the water, the salvage companies did not have sufficient time to get everything covered before the water began dropping through from above.

Assistant Chief Randall, who had charge during the absence of Chief Black from the city, watched the fire very closely, and the moment a stream of water could be dispensed with on the top floor and roof he had it shut off.

INDICTED FIVE

Federal Grand Jury Returns Bills Against Postoffice Conspirators.

Charges Against Machen, Groffs and Mr. and Mrs. Lorenz.

Washington, June 22.—The grand jury which has been investigating postal affairs, today returned an indictment against August W. Machen, Diller B. Groff, Samuel A. Groff, George E. Lorenz and Martha J. Lorenz, the two latter being residents of Toledo, Ohio. As previously sthated in these dispatches, the specific charge is conspiracy to defraud the government. The indictment is based on section 5440 of the revised statutes, which provides a penalty of $10,0000 or two years' imprisonment, or both, in the discretion of the court.

There are twelve counts to the indictments, eleven of which are substantially the same as those found previously against Machen and the Groffs. The first count of the present indictment, which relates to the conspiracy charge, sets forth that on June 24, 1900, in the District of Columbia, Lorenz, Mrs. Lorenz, Machen and the Groff Brothers, "conspired, combined, confederated and agreed to defraud the United States government of its moneys" by the following arrangement:

Machen should advise and recommend to the first assistant postmaster general the purchase of a large number of the Groff fasteners for mail boxes, at $1.25 each, and should procure payment thereof, upon which the Groff Bros. should retain 60 per cent of such payment, or 75 cents for each fastener, and the Groff Bros. should then pay to Mr. and Mrs. Lorenz either, or both, the remaining 40 per cent, which was to be "converted, appropriated and applied to the use" of Mr. and Mrs. Lorenz and Machen.

The indictment says this agreement was carried out by Machen on June 30, recommending the purchase of 6000 of the fasteners at the price mentioned; that the Groff Bros, on the same date, prestned a bill for these 6000 fasteners at the price mentioned; that on Sept. 13, of the same year, Machen recommended to the first assistant postmaster general the payment of that bill, and that the Groff Bros. "having thereafter, and on Sept. 22, of that year, received from the United States $7500 in payment of the bill. Diller B. Groff, on Oct. 20, same year, paid $3000 to George E. and Martha J. Lorenz. The testimony on which the indictment was found was given by Postoffice Inspector Walter S. Mayer, Paul T. Williams and Joseph F. Farrell and Theodore W. Warner and William R. Lewis, the two latter being bank men. The Groff Bros. and their counsel and the counsel for Machen were in court when the indictment was returned. Machen was not present.

It was announced that neither Machen nor the Groffs would be rearrested, also that there would not be required to give a new bond.

Assistant District Attorney Taggert, announced that the investigation into postal affairs by the grand jury will continue, but that the indictment presented today completes the work of his office, so far as the grand jury has acted.

RUNAWAY TRAIN

Dashed Through Center of Spokane Causing Death and Destruction.

Four Killed and Debris Piled Up Fifty Feet High.

Spokane, Wash., June 22.—On the Spokane Falls & Northern railroad, a part of the Great Northern system, early today, a short distance from the center of the city, a runaway train of sixty loaded coal cars, without an engine, rushed four miles down grade, throug town, demolishing a dwelling house, wrecking the Crystal laundry, killing at least four people, injuring eight others and piling up a tangled mass of debris nearly fifty feet high. The dead:

WILL THOMAS, a workingman.
ELMER SLEE, aged 9.
Two unidentified men.

The train began to slip and soon had gained a terrific speed. An empty box car, in which Will Thomas and an unknown tramp were sleeping, was first struck and demolished. Then the train crossed the street, ran over a rock pile and crashed into a six-room dwelling 300 feet from the end of the track, occupied by the families of John Slee and Mrs. Meyer. The house was smashed into kindling. Two hundred feet further on, the frame building occupied by the Crystal laundry, was struck and wrecked. Nine people were sleeping in the Slee home. James Slee, father, was pulled out of the ruins uninjured. The dead body of his son, Elmer, was found nearby. Another son, Clarence, and the baby, were taken to the hospital. Of the three children of Mrs. Meyer, who were sleeping in the house, only one, Trene, was injured.

EXPRESS PACKAGES.

Auction Sale of Unclaimed One to Be Held.

About 800 unclaimed packages will be auctioned of tomorrow by the United States Express company at 7-9 East Superior street.

These sales are always highly amusing and pretty much of a lottery. At the last held in this city a neat-looking trunk was offered for auction. A Hermanitown farmer, pronounced woman-hater and bachelor of many years' standing, bid it in and found it full of fluffy unmentionables that were evidently intended for some girl attending boarding school.

About a year ago a Duluth girl contemplating a summer at the sea snore was on her way down town to purchase a leather bag for the trip. She stopped in at the auction of express packages and bid in a handsome leather bag offered for sale, and found that it contained the outfit of a trapeze performer.

MINOR COUP D'ETAT.

Effected at Malta By Abrogation of Constitution.

London, June 22.—According to a dispatch from Valetta, Malta, a minor coup d'etat has been effected, thereby the abrogation of the constitution of 1887 and the re-establishment of the constitution of 1845. Some such action had been expected in consequence of the trouble about the language question. The elected members objected to the predominance of the English language in the schools. On June 17 the lieutenant governor desired to reintroduce the appropriation bill, but the elected members refused him permission to do so. Under the new conditions the government will control the legislative council.

MACCABEES WIN.

Verdict For $50,000 Against Port Huron Bank.

Port Huron, Mich., June 22.—The supreme tent Knights of the Maccabees, was today given a verdict of $50,000 and interest against the Port Huron Savings bank. The court held that Charles D. Thompson, former finance keeper of the order, who has admitted embezzling $50,000 of the order's money, used the Maccabee funds to pay his shortage at the bank, where he was assistant cashier in 1900. It is alleged defalcation was not discovered until 1901.

RACING AT DOVER.

Dover, Eng., June 22.—Eight yachts started today in the annual race for the Emperor William cup, from Dover to Heligoland, 320 miles. A light breeze was blowing. The schooner yacht Cicely, owned by Cecil Quentin and designed by Fife, speedily assumed the lead.

POSTMISTRESS REMANDED.

Baltimore, June 22.—Miss Dora Campbell, the former postmistress of Maysville, Ga., who was arrested here last Friday, charged with embezzling funds from the postoffice at Mayesville, was given a hearing before United States Commissioner Rogers today and was remanded by him for the action of the federal grand jury.

KENTUCKIAN LIKED MUSIC.

"When I was with Remenyi," said a Washingtonian, who many years ago was the press agent forthe eminent Hungarian violin virtuoso, to the Washington Post, "I used often to be diverted by the amazing surprises he was fond of springing on persons, who, not being aware of his identity, were of course unfamiliar with his almost incredible proficiency with his instrument. Remenyi was very fond of America and Americans, had a remarkable knowledge of American history for a man of his activity and training, and liked to visit American spots of historic interest.

"One afternoon down in Kentucky we drove to visit Ashland, Henry Clay's old home. Remenyi had no engagement to play that evening, and so we made the return trip an easy drive. Along toward dark we passed a little tumble-down cabin, in front of which, seated on a rough-hewn bench, a gaunt man was 'fiddlin'—I say 'fiddlin' advisedly.

"'Pull up,' said Remenyi to me—I was driving—'and we'll listen.'

"So I stopped the pair in the road in front of the cabin, and Remenyi cocked his head sidewise so as to catch the 'music.' a queer smile of amusement flickering around the corners of his mouth. The gaunt man didn't appear to take any notice whatever of our stopping in front of his cabin, but went right ahead with his weird rendition of 'Old Zip Coon.'

"'That is a first-rate instrument he is playing on,' said Remenyi to me, in his peculiar Magyar accent, 'but the music', and he chuckled quietly.

"After playing 'Old Zip Coon' about fifteen times without once stopping, the gaunt man let the bench swung into 'Little Brown Jug,' which he performed about the same number of times, to the enormous delight of the six young ones, all apparently of the same approximate age, and his corncob-smoking wife, who emerged from the cabin and gathered around the bench as he sawed away.

"When he had finally wound up his 'Little Brown Jug' performance and rested the violin and bow on his knee Remenyi climbed out of the carriage and advanced toward the cabin, and, hitching the horses to a roadside tree, I followed him.

"Remenyi had been cordially received by the gaunt man, and was examining the violin when I reached the cabin.

"'This violin is a genuine Jacobus Steiner, and a good one,' Remenyi was saying to the owner of the instrument. 'Have you had it long?'

"'It's been kickin' 'round these yere pahts fr nigh onto a hundred years, I reckon, stranger,' was the gaunt man's reply. 'My great granddad, I know he all had it an' played on it, an' I don't know who all done had it 'fore my great granddad. Middlin' good fiddle, I reckon, stranger.'

"'A beautiful instrument,' replied Remenyi, enthusiastically, as he thrummed the strings.

"'Yo' all do any fiddlin'?' inquired the gaunt man.

"'Occasionally I play some,' replied Remenyi, and he adjusted the instrument under his chubby chin, picked up the bow and swept the strings with a noble, crashing chord. Then he started in to play a Hungarian rhapsody, filled with weird minor czarda movements, of dazzling difficulty and beauty.

"The gaunt man gazed at the short, stocky Hungarian with an expression of utter, overwhelming amazement in his eyes for a moment. Then he leaned back on the bench, crossed his legs, and, with a drooping jaw and closed eyes, he listened. The wife knocked the ashes out of her corncob and plumped herself on the ground, cross-legged. The young ones, with their fingers in their mouths, leaned against saplings beside the cabin, their bright eyes filled with wonder. After a tremendous finale to the Hungarian rhapsody Remenyi—who wasn't aware of much that was going on around him when he got into the spirit of performance—glided into a tender little Swiss 'Berceuse' that sounded like the murmur of a distant cascade. The gaunt man still leaned back on the rough-hewn bench, with closed eyes. Remenyi played three or four more pieces, all of them marked by his phenomenal technique and tone, and then he removed the violin from beneath his chin and gaze about him with a queer smile, as of a man awakening.

"The music had ceased for fully half a minute before the gaunt man opened his eyes. Then, without a word, he got up from the bench and went into the cabin, in a moment he emerged from the cabin, carrying in his hands an old, bell-crowned beaver hat of the vintage of the thirties and forties. He placed the old bell-crowned beaver on the ground, brim downward, right in front of the puzzled Remenyi, and then he stood up, cleared his throat, looked squarely at Remenyi and said:

"'Stranger, times hev bin some middlin' hahd with me fo' some yeahs back, an' as yo' all kin see, I hain't got much. I hain't got ary thing that 'mounts to anything' 'ceptin' that ol' high hat, yo' all see on th' yearth in front o' yo'. That hat used t' be worn on th' haid o' Henry Clay, an' my folks hev owned an' treasured an' cherished that hat fr a good many year. But, stranger, and here the man's voice became hoarse with feeling, 'yo' all, suh, kin take yo' two feet an' jes' jump on that hat that once revered th' haid o' Henry Clay, an' yo' all's as welcome t' do it as th' day is long, suh!'

IMITATED A ROOSTER.

I made a little experiment the other morning which shows how strong the force of habit is," said the night barkeeper to the New York Commercial, "and I had a world of fun out of it, and met a serious business emergency at the same time. The night before the reunion opened up a great many strangers who had not made arrangements in advance were forced to lodge anywhere the ycould get foot room for the night. I had probably a dozen countrymen in my place. It was all right. We didn't mind it at all. But when the time rolled around to clean up, along abotu the time that the east was getting gray, I was confronted by a problem. All the old fellows were asleep. They were sleeping on chairs, on kegs, and any other old place they could find. I had to wake them up in some way. I knew they were all from the country. I knew what would rouse them. I am pretty good when it comes to imitating the sounds of fowls of several kinds. I can convince aym countryman on earth that daylight has come by flapping my wings and crowing like a rooster. That's exactly what I did. It was amusing to watch the old fellows stir, stretch their limbs, rub their eyes, get up, walk to the door and look toward the east. My experiment was a success and I have been crowing every morning since that time, because five or six of the old fellows slept in my place every night while the city wa scrowded. I never had to crow but two or three times to wake them up. Of course I would conceal myself so they couldn't get on to the deception, and one of the fellows actually complimented me on the faithufiness of my rooster. 'Durn'd 'f he don't beat these city clocks all hollow,' he said to me while I was mixing his mornings' toddy for him."

E. F. KRELWITZ HAS RETURNED

He Submits Himself to Government and Gives a Bond.

Edmund F. Krelwitz, who, together with Sven Olson, G. C. Swallow, L. J. Hopkins and A. L. Agatin was indicted at the recent sitting of the federal grand jury on a charge of conspiracy to defraud the government from titles to certain valuable lands in Northern Minnesota, returned Sunday from Canada where he was at the time the indictment was found against him and where he has been since that time.

He appeared before Captain T. H. Pressnell, clerk of the United States district court, this morning, and submitted himself. He gave bonds to the amount of $250 for his appearance at the fall term of the United States district court, when the case will come up for trial.

His bondsmen are Robert B. Whitesides and R. H. Palmer.

All of the parties under indictment have now furnished bonds for their appearance at the fall term of court, when the cases will probably come up for trial before Judge Morris.

TAKES OATH OF OFFICE

Henry F. Greene Is Now Civil Service Commissioner—Leaves July 1.

"I, Henry F. Greene, do solemnly swear to support and defend the constitution of the United States against all enemies, foreign and domestic, that I will bear true faith and allegiance to the same; that I take this obligation freely and without mental reservation or purpose of evasion; that I will well and faithfully discharge the duties of the office on which I am about to enter; so help me God."

The above oath of office was administered to Mr. Greene Saturday evening by T. H. Pressnell, clerk of the United States district and circuit courts, and he now enters into the office of United States civil service commissioner, to which he was recently appointed by the president to succeed James A. Garfield.

The oath marks the commencement of his tenure of office and he will take up his active duties as soon as he can complete arrangements for his departure. This will be about July 1.

CLOSES THURSDAY.

Commercial Club Phrase Contest Near the End.

The Commercial club contest for a phrase typical of the city of Duluth will close Thursday, June 25, and all persons who have ideas for a phrase which will advertise the city or be typical of it, should send them in to Secretary Eva before that date. Up to the present time there have been some fifteen or twenty phrases sent in. The committee appointed to decide the contest will select what it deems the best phrase and its originator will receive the $5 prize offered by the club.

Entries for the best kept lawn contest will close July 1, so that but a short time remains for those Duluthians who are figuring on landing one of the prizes offered by the Commercial club, the Woman's council and various nursery companies. The number of entries up to the present time is not nearly as large as had been expected.

GRAIN MEN QUARREL

Over Ownership of Ruined Grain at Kansas City.

Kansas City, June 22.—The controversy among the grain men over the ownership of grain that was ruined by the flood was taken into court today through injunction proceedings brought by the Moffatt Commission company to restrain the directors of the board of trade from suspending or expelling them for refusing to pay for grain concerning which the ownership is involved. The directors of the board of trade have decided that the cases are not a subject for arbitration and have ordered payment. Many members of the board have declared that they will submit to expulsion rather than permit the cases to be settled arbitrarily.

CONCEIVED IN INIQUITY MAINTAINED BY FRAUD

So Attorneys Talk About Shipbuilding Trust.

Arguments For Receiver Are Now Being Made.

Newark, N. J., June 23.—Argument of counsel in the suit for the appointment of a receiver for United States Shipbuilding company was heard today before United Stated Circuit Court Judge Andrew Kirkpatrick. The hearing in Trenton yesterday disposed of all the affidavits and formal papers in the case and each side was allotted three hours for final argument. Samuel Untermeyer of New York opened for the complainant and Charles L. Corbin followed for the defense. R. V. Lindabury will close the case this afternoon after Attorney General Robert McCarter has presented argument for the defense. Mr. Untermeyer had barely risen when Mr. McCarter asked leave to present the affidavits of holders of $20,000 of the reorganization bonds, all of whom he said, desired to join in the defense under the reorganization plan. Both Mr. Untermeyer and Mr. Lindabury objected to the introduction of the affidavits. Judge Kirkpatrick, however, held that the addition of $20,000 of bonds to the $20,000,000 already represented by Mr. Shelton, as chairman of the reorganization committee, would make no especial difference and admitted the new documents.

Mr. Untermeyer declared that he would show the court that he corporation was insolvent.

"It was conceived in iniquity, maintained by fraud and is ending in crime," he said.

The facts, counsel said, made out an overwhelming case, warranting the appointment of a receiver. As an alternative plan, Mr. Untermeyer declared if the insolvency was not shown to the satisfaction of the court, the complainants would claim that the plan of reorganization was a definite plan to wreck the corporation and that the complainant had the right to have the court interfere to preserve their holdings. Mr. Untermeyer maintained that the directors purposely misinformed the listing committee of the New York stock exchange by presenting the official statement of the corporations affairs so that the bonds could be sold to the public.

Taking up the purchase by Charles M. Schwab of the Bethlehem Steel company and the subsequent execution of the $16,000,000 mortgage, as a collateral security on the stock, and purchase of that property to the defendant corporaton, Mr. Untermeyer declared that it was picturesque a proceeding as any of those made by the directors of the Sixth national bank, who bought and sold the stock of their own corporation.

SCANDAL IN PAINT

Jury Investigates Contract For Aluminum on Letter Boxes.

Postoffice Inspectors Make Important Discoveries In Relation Thereto.

Washington, June 23.—Having returned indictments against the parties concerned in the transactions of the Groff Bros., involving street letter box fasteners, the grand jury has begun the investigation of other contracts with the general delivery service. It is said the postoffice department, through its inspectors, who have been working on the case for some time, has made some discoveries which made it imperative that the grand jury take the matter up. The contracts referred to pertain to the use of aluminum paint on street letter boxes throughout the country.

WORK OF A STUDENT

Papal Bull, Known as "Laudibiliter" Is Entirely Worthless.

Professor Thatcher Settles Controversy Waged For Centuries.

Chicago, June 23.—The papal bull known as "Laudibiliter," over which controversies between historians have been waged for seven centuries, is not genuine, according to the announcement of Professor Oliver J. Thatcher, of the university of Chicago, in a paper entitled "Studies Concerning Adrian IV," just published from the university press.

This conclusion is the result of a trip to Europe, a study in the vatican library and the reading of innumerable Latin documents.

The Laudibiliter, so called from the occurrence of the Latin word in the salutation, has long been supposed to be a grant made by Pope Adrian IV, conferring on Henry II of England the island of Ireland to hold in fief. Concerning its genuineness or falsity historians have long been in dispute.

Professor Thatcher shows that the question of the offering of Ireland to Henry as a fief, and the question of the genuineness of the bull are not the same.

"'Laudibiliter' could not have been written," says Professor Thatcher, "by one who knew what was essential to such a document. It is merely a Latin theme of some twelfth century student, who was practicing in the art of composition and for this purpose chose to impersonate Adrian IV.

"It must be rejected as entirely worthless."

PEOPLE OF DELAWARE APPROVE AWFUL CRIME

JUDGES ARE TO BLAME

For the Burning of Negro, Says Wilmington Clergyman.

Would Not Call Court and Give White a Trial.

Wilmington, Del., June 23.—Rev. Robert A. Elwood, pastor of the Olivet Presbyterian church, preached a sensational sermon on the probable lynching of White last Sunday evening. He took his text from Corinthians v, 13: "Therefore put away from among ourselves that wicked person."

In referring to a speedy trial for the Negro, Rev. Elwood said:

"I call your especial attention to that part of my text found in the constitution which says: 'In all criminal prosecutions the accused shall enjoy the right to a speedy and public trial.'

"On the day of this terrible crime, the officers arrested a man, supposed to be guilty. He was taken before a magistrate and held without bail. Today he is in jail with armed guards parading about for his protection, waiting until the middle of September. Is that speeedy; is that even constitutional?

"Oh, honorable judges, call the court, establish a precedent, and the girls of this state, the wives of the homes and mothers of our firesides and our beloved sisters will not be sorry, and neither will you.

"And, honorable judges," he continued, "if you do not hear and heed these appeals, and that prisoner should be taken out and lynched, then let me say to you, with a full realization of the responsibility of my words, even as Nathan said to King David of old, after his soldiers had killed Uriah, 'Thou art the man,' so I would say to you. The responsibility for lynching would be yours for delaying the execution of the law.

"Should the murderer of Miss Bishop be lynched? Yes, but only under one condition, and that is this—if his trial shall be delayed until September, and then, though he be proven guilty, through some technicality, flaw or any undue influence upon either judges or jury, he should not be given capital punishment, then the citizens should arise in their might and execute the criminal and thus uphold the majesty of the law."

No Attempt to Punish the Lynchers of Negro.

Thrilling Story of Burning of Black Fiend.

Wilmington, Del., June 23. The natural and interesting question today is whether the authorities will take action looking toward the arrest and punishment of those who were prominent in the lynching of George White early this morning. That many of them are known cannot be doubted, for they were seen by the thousands who witnessed the affair. It is also known that the arrangements for the lynching were talked of in advance, and that men were invited to participate and given notice of when and where to assemble. It was this fact that gave publicity to the lynching, for the news that it was to occur last night was circulated around Wilmington yesterday with the result that the thousands who went out last night did so with the knowledge that the affair would come off according to arrangements. It is a fact that public sentiment so generally approves the lynching that it would be hard to secure the conviction of a lyncher even if arrests are made, which seems doubtful.

During the day thousands of persons went to the scene of the lynching, many of them intent upon securing ghastly relics. In this, however, they met with little success, as the burning had been so effectual as to destroy almost every vestige of the victim's body.

Judge Grubb of the county court today made a public statement, in which he deplores the lynching of White, and its consequent reflection upon the good name of Delaware. Judge Grubb also explained the action of the court in refusing to call a special session of the grand jury for the indictment of Miss Bishop's murderer. He says the trial would have been attended by such public clamor and prejudice that a fair trial would have been impossible, and the court would have been compelled to grant the motion of the prisoner's counsel for a change of venue. Once the prisoner was moved to the insecure jail of Kent county, or Sussex county, he might have escaped.

Wilmington, Del., June 23.—All is quiet in this community today, following the horrible lynching of George White, Helen Bishop's confessed slayer, at an early hour this morning. Of the mob of nearly 5000 that overpowered the authorities, stormed the Newcastle county workhouse and dragged from a cell the trembling wretch and burned him at the stake, the identity of only one is publicly known. That person is little Peter Smith, 12 years old, who fell when the work house guards fired a volley into the ranks of the attacking mob. The lad was struck by a bullet which entered his back, and is thought to have penetrated his kidneys. At the homeopathic hospital, where the injured boy was taken, the physicians stated, at 9 o'clock this morning, that he is in a serious condition. After the mob had completed its awful work of vengeance, the body of the Negro ravisher and murderer was left chained to the stake with the fire burning all around it, and the members of the lynching party went home. A rain, which began falling later, extinguished the fire, and at daylight the charred body still hung limp in plain sight of passersby.

Public sentiment here, so far as expressed, appears to approve the lynching of White, and it is not believed there will be any arrests.

White's confession, made just before the torch was applied to the pile of oil-soaked brushes around him, was an admission of everything, and more than had been charged against him. He is stated to have said:

"I was sent by Mr. Woodward to the cornfield to try some corn. I saw Mr. Woodward's daughter and intended to assault her, but a couple of men came along and I did not disturb her. Then I saw the Bishop girl, and I followed her. I seized her and asked her if she had any money she would give me to let her go. She gave me 60 cents. Then I again seized her and she cried: "Please, don't hurt me." I choked her and accomplished my purpose. When I asked her if she was going to tell on me, she said she was. I gave her a hack in the throat with my knife, and asked again if she was going to inform on me. She said she was, and then I cut her throat twice again and left her. After that I went back to Mr. Woodward and told him there was no good water to drink down there, and he sent me somewhere else. I went back to the house and put on a white hat instead of the cap that I wore. You would not do this if I was a white man and did that."

The negro's confession rendered the already incensed crowd even more desperate, and some wanted to tear him limb from limb before they reached the scene of his execution. The negro begged piteously not to be burned, but no mercy was shown the culprit, and although his sufferings were terrible, White remained conscious and rational to the last.

While at times during the night there were at least 5000 people around the workhouse, the men who actually took part in the lynching did not number over 500. The leader was a man who said his name was Baker, and that he was from Virginia. His face was familiar to most of the people, and it is believed he is a resident of Wilmington, although some say he had been imported for the purpose of leading the mob.

The lynching is believed to have been the result of a plot which was concocted several days ago and was to have been put into execution Saturday night, but on that occasion there was a misunderstanding and the attempt failed. Early yesterday morning word was passed around that the attack was to be made on the prison at

YALE WINS ANNUAL COCK FIGHT

New London, Conn., June 23.—Yale and Harvard oarsmen and their camp followers have met in the woods back of Gales ferry to witness their annual cocking main. There were two fights and Yale won both, to the great delight of her rowing men, especially the superstitious ones, who believe it to be an omen of victory in the two big races between the 8-oared shells. An agent of the S. P. C. A. arrived a few minutes too late to interfere. The birds brought to the pit by the crimson men had journeyed all the way from Boston, but the victors were purchased by the Yale freshmen from a farmer.

AIRSHIP NO. 9 A GREAT SUCCESS

Paris, June 2.—Santos Dumont made his first appearance today in airship No. 9, over the center of Paris. He started from Long Champs, going in the direction of the palace De L'Etoile, made a tour of the Arc De Triomphe, and turning down the Champs Elysee, brought his airship down at the door of his house. Later he returned to Long Champs. There was little wind. The ship maintained an altitude of about 100 feet and answered her helm perfectly. No. 9 is the smallest airship Santos Dumont has yet built. She measures about 8300 cubic feet, has a 3-horse power engine and resembles an elongated egg.

AN EXCITING UPTURN IN COTTON

New York, June 23.—One of the most exciting upturns of the season in the cotton market occurred right after midday. The weekly crop report from Washington had just been read and received a bearish interpretation resulting a moderate declines. Almost immediately buying orders were received here from New Orleans and July was rushed up to 12.75; August, 12.79 and September 11.89, all of these prices being new high records for the season. The new crop positions responded only partially to the strength in the months said to be controlled by the bull pool.

EWEN WILL HIDE UNTIL TRIALS

Lexington, Ky., June 23.—B. J. Ewen left here today for Louisville, from which point he will hide away until the trial of Jett and White at Cynthiana or the meeting of a grand jury in Breathitt county July 20. On the same train Governor Beckham and State Inspector Hines, who had a consultation here last night with Judge Redwine and Commonwealth Attorney Byrd, left for Frankfort. Governor Beckham said the men behind the assassinations of Breathitt county would be punished. After a conference today between Jailer Wallace and Deputies Ahearn and Thornton, it was decided not to allow any more meals sent to Jett and White from restaurants.

PHYSICIAN'S STRANGE PARALYSIS

New York, June 23.—A strange form of paralysis, believed by specialists to have been induced by some food or other poison acting on the brain, has robbed Dr. William J. Greanelle, of the faculty of the university of New York, of the power of speech and the use of both legs, and has seriously influenced all the vital organs. The disease first appeared in April. Leading specialists who have been treating the patient have been unable to check its progress. The attack came the day after Dr. Greanelle attended a church festival at which he ate a light repast.

WITHDRAWAL OF CUNARDS

Would Precipitate a Serious Transatlantic Rate War.

London, June 23.—In spite of rumors circulating here and statements made by the Cunard Line officials in New York, no authoritative announcement has yet been made here regarding the withdrawal of the Cunard Line from the Atlantic steamship combine. The papers generally accept the report and hold that the action will precipitate a serious war of rates.

SPREADING RAILS

Caused Wabash Express Train to Leave Track.

Peru, Ind., June 23.—Wabash mail and express No. 6 left the local track in the yards just before noon today while running at the rate of 45 miles an hour. Engineer Knoll and Fireman Meredith stuck to the engine and were the only persons injured. Their injuries are not serious. The mail car was left standing crosswise on the track. The accident was caused by the trucks spreading.

THE TELLER ARRESTED.

Rutland, Vt., June 23.—Howard J. Hill, of Bristol, formerly teller in the Farmers' National bank of Vergennes, which was wrecked two years ago by Cashier Lewis, has been arrested on a charge of abstracting funds from the bank. Lewis and his clerk are now serving sentences in states prison.

POSTMASTER A PRISONER

While a Gang of Robbers Dynamited the Safe.

Liberty, Ind., June 23.—A gang of robbers dynamited the safe in the postoffice here early this morning and escaped with $50. The robbers placed a guard over Postmaster Groves, who lives next door, and compelled him to remain in his house while they were cracking the safe. He was a prisoner three hours.

A WARSHIP NECESSARY.

The Hague, June 23.—During the debate on the naval estimates in the second chamber of the states general today, the minister of marine explained that the government considered it necessary to station a warship in the West Indies as the projected Isthmian canal would increase the political importance of Dutch Guiana and the Island of Curacao.

KNAPP TRIAL BEGINS.

Hamilton, O., June 23.—The trial of Alfred Knapp, for the murder of his wife opened at 9:45 o'clock today. Knapp, dressed in black and looked very well groomed, was brought into the courtroom by two deputies. He wore crepe on account of his father's recent death. The preliminary questioning of jurors continued throughout the day.

POSTOFFICE INVESTIGATION WILL BE PUSHED TO THE END

Statement Again Made After a Meeting of the Cabinet. Postmaster General Payne Has a Long Talk With President After Session.

Washington, June 23.—The cabinet meeting today was of a routine character, the principal part of the time being consumed by Secretary Wilson, who submitted an elaborate set of plans for the new building for the department of agriculture. Considerable modification of the plans submitted will be necessary in order to bring them within the cost proposed by congress.

Secretary Hay referred briefly to the pending treaty looking to the acquisition of naval stations in Cuba and the settlement of a title to the Isle of Pines. As to the naval stations it appears that the treaty will be framed as to permit of the acquisition of the land in advance of payment therefor, the question of price to be settled hereafter. This is necessitated by the fact that the Cuban government proposes to acquire title from individual holders and transfer the land to the United States and it is unable at this time to exactly estimate the value of the property required.

Some consideration was given to affairs in the postoffice department, but it is understood no definite action was taken. The investigation, it was said again today, would be pressed until no trace of suspicion attached to the department. While absolute confirmation of the statement is withheld, it is reasonably certain that Hon. Holmes Conrad, former solicitor general of the department of justice, and Charles Bonaparte have been selected by the department of justice to assist the district attorney in the prosecution of the postoffice cases.

Postmaster General Payne remained with the president some time after the other members of the cabinet left the White House, but when he left he said that his conference related wholly to appointments of postmasters which he and the president desired to go over. He said also that no action had been taken looking to the reopening of the case of James T. Metcalfe, the dismissed chief of the money order bureau.

WILL BE DEPORTED.

Embezzler and Female Companion to Be Sent Back.

San Francisco, June 23.—Julius Anton Jorgensen, charged with embezzlement, and his companion, Miss Johan Moeller, will be deported to Copenhagen, Denmark, on July 19, if the necessary papers shall have arrived by that time. Jorgensen, it is alleged, stole 40,000 francs from the bank of Copenhagen and eloped with Miss Moeller, a clerk in the same bank. He took with him his two children, aged 9 and 11.

AN ALLEGED FORGER.

American Named Ashton Is Arrested In London.

London, June 23.—W. E. Ashtan, describing himself as an American journalist and author, was remanded at the Guild hall police court today on the charge of forging checks for $2600 on the London and County bank, in the name of Laird, Schober & Co., of Philadelphia. The police believe he is a member of a skillful gang of forgers now operating in Europe.

SHOT BY CONVICT.

Hotel Proprietor Was Probably Killed By Pierce.

Bufford, N. D., June 23.—Proprietor Kubelik, of the Belfast hotel, was shot in the street, it is supposed by Pierce, who escaped from the Glasgow jail with William Hardee. Pierce is known to be in the vicinity of Bufford, and there seems to be little doubt that he was recognized by Kubelik, and shot him to prevent being apprehended. A large posse is in pursuit of Pierce.

A MANDARIN EXECUTED.

Victoria, B. C., June 23.—Mail advices from South China tell of the execution of a mandarin at Lin Chow for high treason, he having supplied arms and ammunition to the Kwang Si rebels, whom he was sent to subdue. He was in charge of one of three columns against the rebels and was reported to be making successful headway, but the rebels only simulated defeat and when he pursued them into their camps he laid down the arms and ammunition.

BUT THERE WILL BE ANOTHER GATE TO PASS.

AMERICAN WARSHIPS ARE WARMLY WELCOMED AT KIEL

Vessels of the European Squadron of the United States Dropped Anchor at Noon at Germany's Greatest Seapower Stronghold.

Kiel, June 23.—The United States European squadron, Rear Admiral Cotton in command, reached its anchorage opposite the Yacht club house at noon today. The fleet, commanded by Admiral Prince Henry of Prussia, consisting of eight battleships and six cruisers, saluted the Amerigan vessels, and the band of the German flagship played "America." Some hundreds of the townspeople gathered on the piers and slopes of the narrow bay and gave detached, irregular cheers as the squadron arrived. Prince Henry sent his navigating officers and the captain of the port down the bay early in the morning to meet the Americans. They met the latter at Orlateau, as the squadron was firing its first salute off the fort of Friederichsort.

The flagship Kearsarge swung into her moorings next to the Hohenzollern, followed by the San Francisco, Chicago and Machias, all the German ships being dressed in the visitor's honor and flying the Stars and Stripes.

The commanders of the American ships then called on Prince Henry, who immediately returned their calls. The Stars and Stripes were also raised over the yacht club and on the hotels in the vicinity.

Rear Admiral Cotton and Capt. Joseph N. Hemphall, commander of the Kearsarge, and all the other American commanders, also called on the eight eGrman admirals and vice admirals stationed in this, the greatest stronghold of German sea power, and afterwards received the return calls. Most of the afternoon was spent in calling and receiving calls.

TRAINS CRASH TOGETHER IN CUT

Albuquerque, N. M., June 23.—A Santa Fe fast freight train, east bound, crashed head-on into a work train in a deep cut three miles west of Los Cerrillos, instantly killing Fireman J. Englehart, of Las Vegas and probably fatally injuring Fireman Redding, of Las Vegas. All the other men in the two crews were badly shaken up and bruised, but none is believed to be fatally hurt. The extra was running at a high rate of speed and met on a sharp curve near the entrance to the cut. Both trains are completely wrecked and the wreckage is piled fifty feet high in the cut.

WRECKAGE NEARLY ALL REMOVED

Heppner, Ore., June 23.—The result of organized work in a systematic manner is evident on all sides and soon all wreckage caused by the flood will have been removed. The sanitary conditions of the town at present are far better than had been hoped for, but every precaution is being taken to guard against an epidemic. Dr. Smith, who represents the state board of health, ordered alkali from the hills to be spread upon the streets, and that work is now being accomplished. Four bodies were recovered yesterday. They were those of Charles M. Peterson, a traveling man from Chicago; Iva Ashbaugh, Mrs. Frank Harriman, one unidentified man.

One hundred and seventy seven bodies have been recovered and thirty-five persons missing. The relief fund has reached $20,000.

WAR ARTIST TO LONDON "BLACK AND WHITE"

Found Pe-ru-na of Benefit in the Climatic and Nervous Strain of War and Travel.

[The accompanying picture shows Mr. Manley in the uniform he wore during the late Chinese uprising in China, where he was acting as Assistant War Artist to London "Black and White" and "Collier's Weekly."]

MR. H. B. MANLEY, care "Black and White," 988 Craig St., Montreal, Canada, writes:

"When a man travels in extreme hot or cold climates, he realizes how valuable a friend he has if he carries a bottle of Peruna. I know of no article in my traveling outfit which I have learned to praise higher.

"If you are suffering with the extreme heat Peruna restores you, or if you are afflicted with a cold, la grippe, or bronchitis, Peruna restores you in a short time. Or, if you suffer with sleeplessness or if your appetite is poor, again Peruna acts as a good, true friend and is the tonic needed.

"I have tried it for months and am only too glad to acknowledge it as a true loyal standby in times of trouble. I do not hesitate to recommend it to all."—H. B. Manley.

PERUNA PREVENTS SEA SICKNESS.

Travelers Should Use Peruna.

People going on a journey, either by rail or steamboat, should take with them a bottle of Peruna. It is an excellent remedy to prevent railroad sickness or sea sickness, to guard against catching cold, or acquiring contagious diseases.

The exigencies of travel, to most people, are hard to bear. Change of water, change of diet, change of climate, exposure to unventilated staterooms, crowded coaches, all bids create new environment. A large number of people are made sick in this way. A bottle of Peruna is worth ten times its weight in gold to a person under such circumstances. It prevents the ill effects of bad water. It produces refreshing sleep under adverse circumstances. It keeps the appetite vigorous and the digestion normal. A multitude of people have already made this discovery, and they never think of taking a journey, either by land or sea, without having with them a bottle of Peruna.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, O.

AT WEST DULUTH

Joseph La Croix, a farmer living a few miles to the west of the city, on the road to New Duluth and Fond du Lac, was in the city this morning and was telling of a peculiar accident which happened to him last week, narrowly missing having fatal results.

La Croix was attempting to break a young colt and had the animal saddled and bridled in the barn yard. No sooner had he mounted it than it turned and ran at full speed for the stable door. La Croix was swept from the colt's back by its head striking the top of the doorway. He was unconscious for a few moments, but soon recovered sufficiently to walk to the house. His forehead was badly cut but otherwise he escaped more the worse for his fall.

The colt is a powerful young animal, and had never before had a saddle or bridle placed upon it. Mr. La Croix says that in future he will conduct his colt-breaking experiments in an open field.

HOME FROM WEDDING.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Abbott have returned from their wedding trip to take up their residence in West Duluth. Mr. and Mrs. Abbot were recently married in Butte, Mont., the bride going from West Duluth to meet her future husband. Mr. Abbott had been called to the coast on business, and telegraphed his future bride, who was Miss Lulu Laflity, to meet him in Butte on his return. The wedding ceremony was performed at the home of the groom's uncle in Butte, and the young couple returned to West Duluth on their wedding trip.

Miss Laflity was formerly a teacher in one of the West Duluth schools and was very well known in this part of the city.

The groom is in the employ of the Northern Pacific railroad, and is a very popular young man in West Duluth.

Mr. and Mrs. Abbott will hold a reception for their friends this evening.

FEARS HE IS ILL.

Mrs. Nels Hanson, of 5505 Wadena street, has applied to the police for assistance in gaining news of her husband, whom she fears is seriously ill at Ballard, a small town in the state of Washington.

The last letter received by her was dated three weeks ago and was written from Ballard. In it Mr. Hanson stated that he was ill, and the lack of any news since that time has given rise to fears concerning him.

Mr. and Mrs. Hanson came to West Duluth about a year ago from Wisconsin. Mr. Hanson left last April for the West to take up a timber claim, and since that time has written regularly each week until the last letter, three weeks ago, announcing his illness. The police department has communicated with the authorities in Ballard, asking for news concerning Mr. Hanson.

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

Patterson, undertaker. 'Phones, 3070.

Harry Ross has returned from a trip to Lake City, where he has been for the past few days.

William Rosenfield, of Milwaukee, is in West Duluth today on a business trip. He is stopping at the Phillips hotel.

Alec Kerwack will leave tomorrow afternoon for Idaho, where he expects to spend the remainder of the summer.

Harry Smith, who for the past two or three years has been employed in the offices of the D. M. & N. railway at Proctorknott, will leave this afternoon for the coast, where he expects to reside in future.

Mrs. Sidney Hanchette will entertain a number of her friends at a card party this afternoon at her home on Fifty-second avenue.

Thomas Walsh, of Tower, was in West Duluth yesterday on a business trip. He will return today.

W. H. Rieckhoff, of New Duluth, was in West Duluth yesterday on a business trip.

A son was born this morning to Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Roeller, of Fifty-seventh avenue and Cody street.

Rev. C. A. Aldeen, of the Swedish Baptist church, returned yesterday from a three-weeks' visit in Nebraska and Iowa.

A free festival will be given Thursday evening in the Swedish Baptist church.

Children's shoes at Lauermann's.

The new tracks of the street railway on Grand avenue have been laid as far as the bridge at Fiftieth avenue west, and the traction company is now waiting for the city to complete necessary repairs to the bridge before completing the laying of the track. Cars will be running to Sixtieth avenue west before fall.

A second party of land seekers is being organized in West Duluth to go to California for the purpose of taking up timber claims. The success met with by the members of the first party has tempted others to try their luck, and a party of ten or twelve will probably leave West Duluth during the latter part of this week for San Francisco.

Ladies' shoes at Lauermann's.

POVERTY PLEA

Property Owners Make Poor Mouth Before Board of Review.

Board Is Hearing Complaints That Are Sometimes Funny.

Dazzlingly gowned in a stunning creation of gorgeous color, a pretty young matron appeared before the board of equalization this morning, protesting vigorously against a personal property assessment necessitating an expenditure of $1.50 in taxes.

"You surely do not object to paying $1.50 in taxes, do you?" asked Mayor Hugo.

"Indeed I do."

"That's not much."

"Well, it's too much."

"Has your husband a watch?" ventured Comptroller McCormick.

"Yes, he has!"

"Well that's—w—"

"And he says if you assess it he'll come down here and smash it right before your faces."

"We would have him arrested for malicious destruction of property," replied Mayor Hugo, gravely.

"Well he wouldn't care if you did. He's just that kind of a fellow and I want you to know it!"

It was finally agreed that the board should take the matter more fully under consideration.

* * *

"It's a wonder to me how some of our millionaires ever manage to struggle along and pay their grocery bills," said a member of the board.

"The most annoying complaints we have here for a reduction in taxes come from a class of our citizens that are reputed to be very wealthy. In reckoning their complaints some of them do not take the trouble to be overly civil to the board as a whole or to the individual members of the board.

"There was a man in here yesterday, considered a millionaire, who informed us that he did not have $50 in the bank and that he was in such straitened circumstances that he had to borrow money with which to pay the taxes on what little real estate he had."

* * *

Yesterday a woman appeared before the board to complain that she had been assessed too much on personal property and incidentally to impart the information that her sister-in-law was not assessed high enough.

She objected to paying $3.50 taxes on furniture which she said was fifteen years old and not very valuable while her sister-in-law's furniture was new, worth three times as much as hers and only assessed for one-third as much.

* * *

The complaints today were rather few and far between and the board expects to clear up its business pretty well by tomorrow or the next day.

Fitzgerald Taken Away.

Robert Fitzgerald, who pleaded guilty to assault in the second degree, was taken to the state penitentiary at Stillwater yesterday to commence upon his term of two years' imprisonment. Fitzgerald is the cokee who, while intoxicated, drew a revolver and attempted to clean out a saloon on Sixth avenue west. When the trouble was quieted, Fitzgerald was found on the floor badly beaten up with a broken leg. In the struggle for the revolver one man was shot through the fleshy part of the hand.

SOLDIERS RETURN

Duluth Guardsmen Are Back From Lake City Camp.

Five Duluth Marksmen Get Places With the Sharpshooters.

With the appearance of bronzed veterans returning from active service the Duluth national guardsmen returned from the annual tour of camp duty at Lake City this morning.

Commissioned officers and enlisted men are unanimous in pronouncing it one of the healthiest, most instructive and generally satisfactory encampments in the history of the Third regiment.

Duluth got five of the fifteen members of the regiment that qualified as sharpshooters. The list of regimental sharpshooters and their scores are as follows:

Major P. E. Jeffrey, staff	191
Corporal E. G. Simpson, band	187
Lieutenant H. B. Whittaker, Co. A	187
Sergeant Emil Kjall, Co. A	195
Sergeant Colwell, Co. B	187
Sergeant L. C. Bird, Co. B	210
Sergeant B. Hunter, Co. B	195
Musician E. E. Price, Co. B	205
Sergeant C. Anderson, Co. C	191
Sergeant L. D. Ward, Co. D	180
Corporal John Seibert, Co. F	195
Fred L. Britton, Co. F	195
Artificer F. J. Britton, Co. F	206
Private F. J. Britton, Co. F	206
Private William Nelson, Co. F	201

Each sharpshooter will have an opportunity to compete for a place on the regimental rifle team of twelve men, which will be selected from among the best shots of the three regimental teams a state team will be selected which will challenge the state team of Illinois for the Washburn trophy now held by the soldiers of the Sucker state.

The returning guardsmen were quite confident that Duluth would get a representative on the state team and that local men would cut quite a figure on the regimental team in the contest with the First and Second regiments for the gold medal.

Each company was issued five Krag-Jorgensen rifles with which candidates for the regimental teams will practice. The entire brigade will be armed with Krags between now and autumn.

Lawrence Berger, of the Third regiment band, was not among those feeling jaunty as the returning soldiers marched down Superior street from the Union depot to the Armory, he having sustained a broken collar bone in a game of baseball Sunday.

The First battalion of the Twenty-first United States infantry followed the Third regiment into camp and will remain until July 6, when the First regiment of the Minnesota National Guard goes into camp. The First will be followed by the Second.

ACTION CRITICISED.

Marleybone Cricket Players Introduced Professionals.

London, June 23.—The cricket match between the visiting Philadelphians and the Marleybone cricket eleven, which began at Lords grounds yesterday, was resumed today with more favorable weather.

The action of the Marleybone club in introducing three professionals against the Philadelphians, is considerably criticized as the original arrangement contemplated the participation of only gentlemen members of the club. The visitors had little better luck in their second innings, having to face England's best professional bowlers, Mead, Trott and Hearne. The Philadelphians were all out for ninety-three runs in their second inning.

The Marleybone players won by five wickets.

ZIEGLER EXPEDITION SAILSt

The Armenica Leaves Trondhjem For Franz Josefland.

Trondhjem, Norway, June 23.—The Ziegler polar expedition sailed today on the steam whaler America for Franz Josefland, where the America will pass the winter and whence expeditions will be sent out with dog sledges. Material for the construction of winter quarters was taken on board. All the members of the expedition were in good health and spirits.

TAMING A TIGER.

Princess Delaware's Dangerous Task—At Carnival.

One of the most dangerous feats ever undertaken by a woman is to be attempted in the great trained wild animal arena of the mammoth Ferari Bros.' carnival aggregation, which is to be the amusing feature of the coming July fair and carnival in this city. It is to be the training of a young royal Bengal tiger, and Princess Delaware, the daring young French lady trainer of the great show, is the intrepid female who has attempted the dangerous task. There is no more savage or blood-thirsty beast on earth than a young Bengal tiger. In India, where they are caught, they devour thousands of natives annually and at times whole villages have been devastated by them. They are the dread of everyone in that country, and even the bravest of the natives are always in fear of them and will flee at the mere mention of a tiger being in the locality. The beast in question is one of the man-eating variety, and having tasted human blood and flesh, is far more ferocious than if he had never done so. He was captured in a pitfall just after he had killed and partly devoured a luckless native, and during the struggle that ensued in getting him into the cage two more Hindoos met their fate.

He was purchased for $1000 from the rajah of Bengalore by one of the Ferari Bros.' agents and brought to this country. Princess Delaware's attempt to subjugate and educate this fierce beast is regarded as most daring; but strange to say, she exhibits a wonderful power over the great stripped creature, and thus far has escaped serious injury, although she has been clawed and bitten several times by her untractable pupil. She hopes to make a fine performing animal of him. She will be seen educating him when the great carnival aggregation comes here July 6 to 11 inclusive.

DYNAMITED SAFE.

DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

Tug Master Develops Smallpox After Exposing Several People.

Gladstone—Peter Jordan, master of the tug at this point, was found sick with smallpox and taken to the pesthouse. He had spent the day and night with his family of six children before being aware of the nature of the disease.

Hancock—Representatives of out-of-town breweries doing business in Hancock, will be compelled to pay the state tax of $500 required by a law passed last winter.

The Warren District Development company, limited, has been organized by business men to take over and develop the Clark group of claims in the Warren district in Arizona.

Marquette—A fact of general interest is that Rev. Dr. Robert E. Coyle, of Denver, who was elected moderator of the Presbyterian general assembly at its recent meeting at San Francisco, joined the church at Marquette, wa shere led to devote his life to the ministry and entered Wabash college with the assistance of Marquette men to begin his studies for the career in which he has attained such prominence.

Peter Rasmussen, a saloonkeeper, married and having grown-up children, is missing. He was under bonds to answer to a charge of criminal assault, the complainant being a 14-year old girl and failed to appear for hearing. His bonds have been declared forfeited. A mortgage on his property secures his sureties.

Lake Linden—At an informal meeting of representativesc of the various village councils last week, it was decided to organize a Houghton County Municipal league and a general meeting will soon be called. The league will embrace the councils of Houghton, Hancock, Lake Linden, Red Jacket and Laurium.

Houghton—All the various villages of the county have now granted franchises to the Houghton County Gas company, which is backed by Calumet men, and the work of constructing the system will be started in a few weeks. The gas plant will be located either on Torch or Portage lakes, several sites being in contemplation.

Ishpeming—What is believed to be an exceedingly valuable asbestos property is being developed near Humboldt. The asbestos-bearing formation has already been traced for a distance of 300 feet, the serpentine carrying the mineral fiber being about sivty feet in width. The asbestos is of a superior grade.

PROSECUTION OF SWINDLERS

Of "Get Rich Quick" Order Recommended By Wall Street.

New York, June 23.—Plans have been discussed at a meeting of several members of the New York Stock exchange and the Consolidated exchange for the inauguration of a vigorous campaign against "get rich quick" concerns pretending to center about Wall street. This is the outline of the campaign:

Promotion of legislation looking to an alteration in the law affecting the incorporation of companies.

The prosecuton of all "get rich quick" swindlers whenever evidence can be found against them sufficient to warrant an arrest.

The ferreting out and exposure of bogus mercantile agencies which supply references for these companies.

The exposure and prosecution of Wall street newspapers, which, for a financial consideration, supply these concerns with favorable reports and accept their advertisements.

SCAFFOLDING GAVE WAY.

Rome, June 23.—The scaffolding of a bridge in the course of construction at Palestrina, gave way today, with the result that five men were killed and twenty injured.

RUBBED TOO HARD.

Woman Explodes Flashligh. Powder, Causing Her Death.

Chicago, June 23.—The explosion of ninety pounds of flashlight powder in the basement of a residence at Berwyn has caused the death of Mrs. Mary Wilson, wrecked the house and created a panic among the children of the Irving school an adjoining property.

Mrs. Willson was working in the basement forming the powder into cones, ready for a supply house in Chicago.

The powder had become caked from dampness and Mrs. Willson was rubbing it vigorously between her hands to reduce it and this friction, it is believed, caused the powder to explode.

CHANGE OF VENUE HEARING.

Columbia, S. C., June 23.—The application for a change of venue for James H. Tillman, charged with the murder of N. G. Gonzales, was continued today. The morning session of court was devoted to the reading of affidavits of the prosecution. The defense will present several affidavits tomorrow in rebuttal. Tillman appeared in court today.

NO REASON TO WALK

Saturday's Excursionists Could Easily Have Obtained Rooms.

Commercial Club Made Unsual Plans For Quartering Them.

Exceptions have been taken by the Commercial club with reference to statements made recently by County Auditor O. Halden criticizing the methods or lack of methods of the club in caring for excursionists in the city. The public affairs committee has thoroughly investigated the matter and today Secretary Eva was authorized by the officials of the club to make the following statement:

"An article purporting to come from the lips of Auditor Halden, appeared in the Sunday morning issue of the News Tribune, June 21, criticizing the Commercial club for laxity in the matter of entertaining the excursionists who were in the city on that day.

"The Commercial club has done and will continue to do everything in its power to bring excursionists to the city of Duluth and to direct, entertain and care for them to the utmost of its ability.

"Mr. Halden is quoted as saying: 'At the depot the people were not met by any one in authority. Not a badge, nor even a policeman was to be seen. The excursionists were just shot out into the streets and left to their own devices. No one was on hand to direct these total strangers which way to turn. Not a word of welcome was given them. They were left to find their way to hotels or to stray into the perils of the Bowery, without a word or direction of or warning.'

"These statements are false in every particular. The excursion trains were boarded at Superior by boys in the employ of the Commercial club of Duluth, each wearing a badge with the inscription 'Commercial Club Excursion Headquarters,' who distributed among the excursionists printed circulars.

"These circulars set forth in detail the many points of interest about Duluth, and the way to reach them, also a conspicuous announcement as to where excursionists could obtain information about rooms.

"Further, the police force of the city worked cheerfully, hand in hand, with members of the Commercial club having the entertainment of visitors in charge, attending to their comfort and convenience. The Commercial club arranged with the White Line Transportation company to place, and had placed, at the disposal of visitors, state rooms to the number of forty or fifty, on some of its boats.

"The Commercial club arranged with the railroad companies to place, and had placed, at the disposal of the excursionists, ten tourist sleeping cars, which would accommodate from 400 to 500 people.

"As a matter of fact all the visitors were cared for by the hotels, and rooms in private houses secured before their arrival by the Commercial club. If any one of them walked the streets at night he did so from choice and not because of any lack of accommodations."

GOT LEFT AT MACKINAC.

Two North West Passengers Come Here By Train.

C. E. Pickard, who, with Mrs. Pickard, were passengers on the Northern Steamship company's North West, arrived here this morning about twelve hours ahead of the schedule time of the boat.

They registered at the Spalding hotel, and said that they missed their boat at Mackinac, while on a shore leave for a few minutes.

Mr. Pickard says that the master of the vessel told him the boat would sound a whistle before leaving, and would be there for quite a time.

Mr. and Mrs. Pickard went ashore and walked a block or two, and when they turned around to come back they saw the North West sailing along under full steam and on her way to Duluth.

They went to the docks and asked the man, who told them the boats were not allowed to whistle at Mackinac. None of the Duluth navigators appear to know of any such rule, and people who have come through the islands say the boats whistle as loud as they please.

One or two veteran captains said this noon that they had never heard of such a regulation, and said they would whistle all the way through the locality on their down trips to see whether or not they get into trouble.

Mr. Pickard was much put out about being left, but he is especially exasperated to find out that the story of the rule on whistling meets with some doubtful signs. He says that the captain instructed them to go walking if they wished, as they had time.

MORE ARE COMING

Near Future Will See Several Large Excursions To Duluth.

Railroad Anxious That Duluth Shall Take All of Them.

The railroads are trying to stimulate interest among the Duluth people in securing better quartering for the excursionists who come here in large numbers this summer.

The railroads are beginning to make preparations for excursions this week and next, which will be almost as large as last week.

Between 700 and 1000 people will come to Duluth at the end of this week, for a stay over Sunday. They will come from a short distance, Evansville being the farthest point reached by the excursion.

The train will leave that place at 6 o'clock a. m. and reach here shortly after 1 o'clock Saturday. There will be no other railroad excursions into Duluth on that day, and it will be a comparatively easy matter for the city to care for the people.

Two weeks' hence the Northern Pacific will bring in a big excursion from Dakota. It will probably be the record excursion for numbers for the season, and it permits people at Jamestown, S. D., to ride 700 miles for $2.50. At about one-ninth of the regular fare in this part of the country, the Northern Pacific will bald the Dakota people a chance to get into Duluth and see what manner their wheat is handled in, and also to see the gateway that accommodates the immense business coming in and going out of the country.

The Jamestown excursion will probably be the star performance of this season, and the local representatives of the Northern Pacific road will try and see that some arrangements are made to put in systematic machinery for the use of the visitors who are anxious to get accommodations.

Besides the railroad excursions, the best excursions are beginning, aside from the regular trips of the big liners. Steamboat lines are beginning to announce the coming of Sunday excursions from nearby ports, and they will start to pile in beginning with next Sunday.

Like'y to Continue.

William B. Dixon, the chief booster for the Pioneer Limited, the "palatial" St. Paul-Chicago train, was in the city today, in his capacity as northwestern agent of the Milwaukee road.

"The rate war has not changed from the situation of last week," said he, "when the price of passage was cut to $8 by the Wisconsin Central. We followed the cut, and now have the same rate.

"It looks as if that rate would continue all summer, though there is no telling what reductions may be made by the other roads. We will come down to any rates made, but are not taking the initiative in rate cutting."

RAILROAD NOTES.

G. W. Weden, of the Pennsylvania lines, was up to Duluth from St. Paul, where his headquarters are, today, and is looking for passenger business East.

A. J. Donald, of Milwaukee, traveling freight agent for the Monon route, was in the city today circulating among the commercial agents and freight men.

PASTOR WHO WANTS A WIFE

Finds Good Women Scarce and Relates His Experience.

Reading, Pa., June 23.—The Rev. G. W. Brownback, the minister who advertised for a wife, officially announces that he cannot find his ideal, and he related his experiences to a large audience at the Black Bear camp meeting. He said:

"I had great experience in searching for my ideal, and I failed to find her. I traveled between 5000 and 8000 miles, going as far East as Augusta, Me., as far North as Montreal, Can., South as far as Gloucester Point, Va., and West as far as Kankakee, Ill.

"I am sorry to say one wealthy woman became so wrapped up in me she threatened to do herself bodily harm. She was weak-minded and I soon left.

"I found a number of my correspondents ignorant of the common household duties. I met some women who could not sew a button on. They did no know the first thing about boiling an egg, they could not make a fire, and were careless in their habits. They positively refused a scrubbing brush, and I noticed it would be even necessary for a husband to use a scrubbing brush on them.

"If I had to pay for all the free advertising I received at the hands of the devil I would have been financially embarrassed a long time ago. My trip cost me considerably over $1000, and I know more than I ever knew before, that this world is made up chiefly of vain women, and a good Christian wife is at a premium."

DEMANDS DAMAGES

From Couple For Loss of His Wife.

Kansas City, Mo., June 23.—A strange lawsuit for $5000 damages is that of Church Knox against Paul Lovie and his wife Katie. Mr. and Mrs. Lovie are jointly accused of alienating the affections of Mrs. Knox from her husband.

In his petition Knox says that he was married in 1899; that on April 5, 1903, Mr. and Mrs. Lovie took Mrs. Knox with them to Chicago. He followed in a few days, but he says that on many occasions the Lovies abused him in his wife's presence, telling her that he was not good enough for her; that she had better remain in Chicago, and begged and entreated Alice to remain away from him, which she finally consented to do.

New York, June 23.—Louis Ingwersen, former agent in New York of the German immigration society and later of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe and New York Central railroads, is dead at his home in Yonkers, aged 56 years. He was one of the founders of the improved order of Red Men and supreme vice commander of the order.

PIG IN A POKE

Amusing Scenes at Sale of Unclaimed Express Packages.

Some Get Their Money's Worth and Some Do Not.

The love of average humanity for a game of chance was shown today at the annual sale of unclaimed express packages by the United States Express company, at 7 and 9 East Superior street.

An accumulation of uncalled for express packages, in the original wrappers, was put up for sale to the highest bidder.

It was a game of sight unseen as in most cases the packages were well wrapped up, leaving nothing but outlines to indicate their contents. Sometimes these outlines were uncompromising rectangles of boxes, but sometimes there were mysterious knobs and lumps and projections of various sizes and shapes that stimulated the curiosity and therefore the acquisitiveness of the buyers.

Usually the prices obtained were small, running from 10 cents to half a dollar, but sometimes a spirit of competition arose, either from the suggestive shape of the package or because everybody thought everybody else wanted it, and then the prices ran up so as to make the average a good deal better.

There were boxes and parcels, flat, oblong, formless, all shapes and sizes. There were satchels and telescope bags. These latter were mostly of a manifestly humble origin, and some of them were of such an appearance that the idiom of the auctioneer in wearing gloves was plain.

Yet none there were so poor as to go without bidders. There were buyers for everything. Outfits that were clearly the dunnage of lumberjacks went for 25 to 50 cents.

The most fun came at the opening of the packages. This was not during the sale, because it would disturb the bidding, and for other obvious reasons, but every buyer was given a receipt that entitled him to the package he had bought at the close of the morning or afternoon auctions.

Some of the buyers got prizes, others drew blanks. There were some articles of jewelry, and of these a few were valuable and others were of the prize-package order. Many of the packages turned out to contain samples of hardware and other goods. Some of them contained catalogues of wholesale houses, very much out of date. Some of the buyers paid a dime for a last year's calendar. Others got new clothing and articles of merchandise of more or less value.

There was plenty of amusement both for buyers and on-lookers. Exclamations of envy as the prize-winners produced their prizes, and laughter as those that got left pulled out their worthless purchases, were common.

THE CASS LAKE LAND OFFICE

Will Be Located In Land Company's New Building.

Washington, June 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—The acting commissioner general of the land office has accepted the proposal of Heber Hartley, secretary of the Cass Lake Land company, for the rental of their new building at Cass Lake for the quarters of the register and receiver of the new land office. The Cass Lake Land company will rent to the government the entire second floor of the brick and stone building on lots 1 and 2 of the original plat of the town, having a floor space of 1200 feet in area, to be subdivided into rooms as may be required, furnish electric light, heat and fire-proof vault, at a rental of $50 per month. Pending the completion of the brick structure, the Cass Lake Land company will supply temporary quarters for the new land office in the frame building adjoining, at $25 per month.

SCHWAB TO RESIGN.

Some Credit New Rumor From Wall Street.

New York, June 23.—The Evening Post says: It was reported in Wall street this afternoon, that the resignation of Charles M. Schwab as president of the United States Steel corporation would probably be announced tomorrow or before the end of the week. The story was credited in some quarters where excellent information is sometimes obtained, but the rumor could not be confirmed.

CARS RUN WITH TROUBLE.

Richmond, Va., June 23.—Street cars were run with considerable trouble today. Obstructions were placed on the tracks and missiles hurled at the cars. A number of strike-breakers arrived today and the company now has about 400 men.

This afternoon there has been more or less rioting and brick-throwing at various points.

THE DULUTH JULY FAIR AND CARNIVAL

FORESTRY SCHOOL

To Be Opened at Metford, Pa., For the Summer Season.

School Is on the Estate of Gifford Pinchot's Father.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, June 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—In view of the ravages of forest fires in New York and New England, the extraordinary floods which have recently prevailed in the Central Western states, and the cloudbursts, cyclones, etc., which have lately been tearing things up in various parts of the United States from the gulf states to the northwest Pacific slope, much interest attaches to the opening of the summer school of forestry at Milford, Pa., on July 1. All these subjects will be treated on incidentally at the school, as it is well known that the destruction of the forests has a most important bearing upon meteorological conditions and the value of scientific forestry in conserving the trees which protect the snows on the mountain slopes is too well recognized to need comment. The school is conducted under the auspices of the Yale forest school and Professor J. W. Toumey, professor of forestry at Yale, was in the city last week conferring with Gifford Pinchot, chief of the bureau of forestry of the department of agriculture, and other officials of the bureau, arranging for lectures on special subjects. Professor Toumey and Mr. Pinchot expect that the coming sessions will do much toward a more general diffusion of knowledge concerning the subject.

The school is located at Milford, Pike county, Pa., in a part of the Keystone state heavily timbered, and while it has been cut for many centuries, it still contains many fine specimens of trees indigenous to that locality. Nearby are found specimens of trees not native, but which have been successfully cultivated, there being about 140 species which can be studied in their natural state at this school. Landing at Port Jervis, on the Erie line, Milford is about six miles by stage. The school is on the estate of J. W. Pinchot, the father of Gifford Pinchot, who, himself, takes a great interest in the subject, and who, with his son, and other members of his family, some years ago, endowed the Yale forest school. The geological formation is largely shale and as the numerous streams flow down the mountains they cut the shaley soil and form many beautiful waterfalls. Back from the Delaware river lakes are found at frequent intervals and altogether the scenery is very picturesque. Mr. Pinchot's estate comprises much of this beautiful territory with an abundance of woodland, and among other features, the famous Sawkill falls of the Sawkill river. On the wooded slope leading to the Sawkill river are pitched tents where the students and professors live during the eight weeks of the sessions. As much outdoor life is ejoyed as possible, but for comfort and health the tents are floored. Each tent is well, but modestly furnished, and the meals are served in first class mess tents with a kitchen attached, over which a chef presides. During the two summers that sessions have been held, the school having been organized in 1901, there has been no sickness among the scholars but, on the contrary, the average gain to each has been from sixteen to seventeen pounds. Every morning the professors lead the students to the Sawkill river for a plunge and on Saturday evening excursions are made into the surrounding territory where the students, wrapped in their blankets, sleep under the arching boughs of the trees they are taught to love. The women students, for the school is open to both men and women, usually board in the village nearby, where there are numerous and excellent boarding houses, Milford being quite a summer resort. Class distinction is not known at this school, for the courses are so arranged that the young woman from the normal school, who expects to lead her scholars of tender years into closer communication with nature, the professors of botany at well-known colleges and universities, the wealthy student from Yale, Hardvard, Princeton or elsewhere, who will some day apply the knowledge so acquired to the estate which he will acquire by inheritance; the young man who looks forward to engaging in lumbering, the student who hopes either to teach forestry or to become a forester or ranger and the farmer boy whose knowledge of scientific farming is thus increased, can all find courses adapted to their special needs and inclinations and all be benefited thereby.

The primary object of the school is to furnish as much field work as possible and the lecture is quite as often given under the leafy boughs of the trees, concerning which the lecturer is treating, as in the school building. This structure is of stone and quite spacious, and contains a good working library. It is equipped with ample apparatus for inside and outside work. As far as possible the lecturer in the morning delivers his lecture in the class room and then takes the class to view specimens which he has discussed to give them ocular demonstration of the scientific points brought out in the lecture. In the afternoon another lecturer takes a class and follows the same courre. Forest botany, forest measurements and silviculture are the principal topics of study.

Several courses are provided, the first including an introduction to forestry, in which the purpose and scope of forestry is explained; the Direct and Indirect Uses of the Forest, and the Forest Policy of the United States. The second course is illustrated with lantern slides, by means of which the salient characteristics of different trees are pointed out, the types of forest trees, the mixture in growing and the operations of lumbering as practiced in different parts of the United States. Roy L. Marston, instructor in forestry at Yale, will be in charge of the school and lecture on "Silviculture, Forest Protection and Forest Regions," assisted by Mr. Graves, an assistant at the Yale school, in charge of the laboratory work, who will also lecture on "Forest Botany." In addition there will be a number of lectures on special subjects relating to forestry, delivered by men eminent in this profession. Mr. Pinchot will give a course of lectures on the "Forest Policy of the United States." Professor Brewer, who has been so many years connected with Yale university, will lecture on "Forest Meteorology," a subject in which so much interest is manifested at the present time. J. B. Sudworth, of the forestry division of the department of agriculture, and Edward A. Bowers, of the Yale forest school, and other scientists will lecture on special problems, Mr. Sudworth speaking on the turpentine and other industries and Mr. Bowers on forest law. Professor Toumey will organize the school and lecture on tree seeds and seedlings, and Mr. Merrill, instructor at Yale forest school, will lecture on forest measurements. Under forest protection, special attention will be paid to the agencies by which forests are injured, and the ways by which these injuries can be lessened or obviated will be pointed out. Excursions will be made into the forests of Mr. Pinchot's estate, the Pennsylvania state forest reserve, which is nearby, and into New Jersey, to study this subject. The principal sources of injury to forests include forest fires, grazing, parasatic fungi and insects. Under forest measurements will be taught the methods of determining the volume of single trees and whole stands of trees, together with valuation surveys, so that the student will be able to measure and value single trees and tracts. The course in silviculture will take up the effect of environment on the trees, including soil, shade, moisture, etc.

The total expense in connection with the courses is within $100, and students come from all parts of the United States, especially east of the Mississippi river, for the sessions of the school.

"A new invention relating to rapid telegraphy is undergoing a practical test, the results of which should receive due consideration in the United States," says Dean B. Mason, vice and deputy United States consul general at Berlin, in a communication written to the state department.

"The system is known as the Pollak-Virag rapid telegraph," says Mr. Mason, "and after careful examination at the Polytechnic institute, at Chalottenburg, it was shown to the emperor and empress of Germany, about the middle of last February. It was decided at this visit by the chief of the German postal system and other influential persons that the new system would be given a practical test on the line between Berlin and Konigsberg, which is some 710 kilometers (447½ miles) long. The results obtained with the ne wsystem are considered most satisfactory, as it has been demonstrated that 40,000 words per hour can be transmitted under the most varying conditions. The imperial telegraph service has decided to introduce the system on the busy line between Berlin and Frankfort.

"A special writing machine, which is worked in the usual way, perforates a strip of paper which is drawn over a roller under metallic brushes with great rapidity. The interruptions of the current move the membranes of two telephones at the receiving station, which write the msessages by means of a small mirror. In scientific circles the new system has created a great deal of interest, and some of the technical journals in Germany have given descriptions of it. Of these, one of the best appeared in the Zeitung des Vereins Deutscher Eisenbahn-Verwaltungen of Nov. 19 and 26, 1902."

MOTION LOST.

Chaplin Stood No Chance With Grain Amendment.

London, June 23.—When the house of commons went into committee yesterday on the budget bill, Henry Chaplin (Conservative, former president of the board of agriculture), moved the rejection of the clause providing for the repeal of the grain tax. After a protracted discussion, the motion was defeated, 65 to 32.

Explaining the recent coup d'etat in the island of Malta, Colonial Secretary Chamberlain said the government was determined to give the Maltese the right to choose whether their children should be taught Italian or English. The elected members wanted to make it compulsory, hence the deadlock on the education estimates, which necessitated a reversion to the former constitution.

NO GUNS FOR FINNS.

St. Petersburg, June 23.—A new edict, sanctioned by the czar, prhibiting the sale in Finland of guns, ammunition or explosives of any sort except under the most severe restrictions, have been issued. Violations of the provisions are punished by a heavy fine or imprisonment.

The edict is regarded to be a long step towards the complete disarmament of the Finns.

INJUNCTION IS ORDERED

Judge Lochren Decides Against Longshoremen.

Enjoins Them From Bothering Knudsen & Eden.

The longshoremen lost the first round in their case before United States Judge Lochren yesterday afternoon in St. Paul.

After hearing the arguments, which consumed most of the day, he immediately held that the strikers were engaged in a conspiracy in restraint of interstate commerce, and ordered a writ of preliminary injunction along the same lines as the temporary restraining order issued a couple of weeks ago.

The only change from the restraining order is that the words "or persistent interviews" were stricken out from the injunction against various means of influencing the employes of Knudsen & Eden, the Northern Pacific freight handling contractors.

The temporary injunction is binding until the action is determined, and it cannot come up before the October term. In the meantime the union is enjoined from interfering with the workmen in any way, and from all unlawful acts.

H. J. Grannis appeared for the complainants and Clarence B. Miller for the union. Besides the complaint a number of affidavits were read on both sides. A particularly interesting one is that of Fred Hardwick, in behalf of the plaintiffs, who joined the local longshoremen's union under the name of F. B. Harding.

His story is in part as follows: He is personally acquainted with a number of the defendants, having become acquainted with them in April and May. He came to Duluth about April 15, and found that local lodge No. 64 was conducting a strike against Knudsen & Eden, and he understood from the men that they wanted 40 cents an hour instead of 30 cents; that they wanted none but union men employed, and that they should not be compelled to work later than 10 o'clock at night. He says he heard some of the defendants state that if Knudsen & Eden did not accede to these demands the strikers would compel them to throw up their contract.

Hardwick got a working card in the union May 6 under the name of F. B. Harding, and attended the meetings thereafter. He kept a memorandum showing his movements and the leading events of the strike. He was present when twenty members of the lodge on April 21 intercepted a car of non-union workmen and succeeded in inducing several of them to quit work. He names a number of the defendants who were there.

He details the talk in the lodge rooms, when the strike was discussed, and it was decided to meet cars that were bringing non-union men. He heard some talk about breaking the car doors and using force if it were necessary. On April 26 he was told that a number of the members of the lodge had arranged to meet one Lavell, who had taken a position as foreman, and give him a good beating when he came from his work.

Hardwick says that one Callahan told him that he had chased a lot of non-union workmen out of a car with a club, and that W. L. McLaughlin and Callahan told him they gave two "scabs" a severe beating under the Lake avenue viaduct. He details a number of stories of this nature, giving the names of his informants and the assailants. He also details the boycott against the Knudsen-Ferguson Fruit company, and says that spotters were placed to report the names of retail grocers that traded there. He says the fines of the men who were arrested were paid by the lodge.

James M. Baker, special policeman and watchman over the work of the non-union men, also made an affidavit about is troubles with the strikers, detailing a number of alleged acts of violence, alleging that men were induced to quit on several occasions by threats of death.

Harry Nordley, a clerk for Knudsen & Eden, gave a similar affidavit stating that when he went to Minneapolis to hire men, he found the secretary of the union endeavoring to prevent them from coming.

J. A. McGindley, another special policeman, also told of alleged acts of violence, while Thomas Ottum, a non-union workman, told of being knocked off a sidewalk by a striker. Patrick Buckley, another non-union workman, told of being severely beaten by seven or eight men under the Sixth avenue viaduct and of being threatened with death if he did not leave town. Paul Proulx, Walter Hayes, William Lindsay, H. LeFebvre, Albert Recktenwald and George Lindberg, the first four being non-union workmen and the latter two being special policemen, told similar stories.

The defendants also had a number of affidavits, including that of Burt Benn and E. Wright, given yesterday by The Herald. The other affidavits were along similar lines, disclaiming acts of violence and alleging that the strikers proceeded by legal and peaceable means.

Murdock McDonald, one of the pickets, said that all that had been done was to talk to the strikers in a peaceable manner and explain the situation to them and that he knew of no case where members of the union used violence.

Ole Ness, frequently referred to in the charges made in the affidavits for the plaintiffs, said that he had been working as a laborer for a building contractor during all of the strike, and had nothing to do with it whatever. He says that when he was president of the union he and the other officers at all times counselled peaceable means and freedom from violence.

Frank Callahan, another union man accused of violence, made an affidavit to the effect that he was one of the pickets, that he was instructed to use no violence and that he used none.

J. D. Miller, Thomas Doran, A. M. Reandon, Frank Bodine, Fred Bixby, H. Pomeroy, David Wright, W. M. McLaughlin, James Doyle, Harry Raymond and Michael Morrissey made similar affidavits. All of them denied violence of any sort, and said that all that had been done was to induce some of the non-union men to leave by explaining the circumstances to them. A number of them gave their version of the attack on a car May 1 on Garfield avenue, and all of them said that the only violence was in shaking the closed door of the car a little to attract attention of the non-union men so they could be talked to.

In signing the order of injunction Judge Lochren said that acts of violence had been shown, and he referred specifically to the fact that a number of the men had pleaded guilty in district court to unlawful assemblage, which amounted to a confession. He also spoke of the fact that acts of violence had been committed since the injunction was issued a couple of weeks ago.

THE STAGE

"The Chimes of Normandy" was finely sung last evening at the Lyceum and delighted the audience.

This tuneful opera is well adapted to the ability of the Northwestern company and the rendition given it was brilliant.

Miss Bertha Hayden, as Serpolette, captured the audience by her winning manner and effective solo work. Her specialty song brought her several recalls.

Miss Eleanor Jenkins was in good voice and made a very charming Germaine. Her solo work in the second act was especially good.

Charles H. Drew as Gaspard, the miser, made a decided hit with the audience and was given a round of applause for his dramatic work in the second act.

George Lyding, the popular tenor of the company, made all that was possible of the role of Jean Grenicheux, but the part is not as congenial to him as others that he has filled.

Sylvan Langlois as the Marquis was in good voice and rendered several difficult solos in a very acceptable manner.

Stanley Felch as the Bailiff and Dan Young as the notary kept the house in continual merriment by their clever local hits and comedy work.

The chorus outdid itself last evening and reflected great credit upon H. C. Hoffman, the musical director.

The staging and dressing of the opera were remarkably fine and showed both the expensive scale on which the company is organized and the resourcefulness of the Lyceum's scenic stock.

The "Chimes" will be repeated tonight and tomorrow night with a matinee tomorrow.

* * *

The Wilburs sang "Giraffe-Giroffa" last evening at the Metropolitan. Miss Richardson appearing in the double role and making a good impression. The audience was apparently well satisfied with the production and the specialties as usual gave satisfaction. Tonight the company will sing "Olivette" and there will be a change of bill every night.

Tonight at O-at-ka beach auditorium, on Park Point, a fine concert and a little hop afterward with music furnished by La Brosse are promised to those who visit this popular summer resort.

This is the first of a series of concerts being introduced by the management and will be given by the Orpheus male quartet, assisted by Elsie Tibel, a young and talented violinist and Laura Frankenfield, reader. There will be tenor solos by Milton B. Griffith and a baritone solo by Claude H. Hare.

The concert is under direction of Mr. Griffith. The weather being fine for Park Pointers, a large audience is expected.

* * *

The sale of seats for the concert to be given next Sunday afternoon to introduce the musical artists who will be in the companies managed during the coming season by Alfred Davies of Minneapolis, will open tomorrow morning at the Lyceum. Duluth people are showing much interest in the concert, especially as three of the local singers are to be in Mr. Davies' companies.

EXPLORERS' BUOY FOUND.

Copenhagen, June 23.—A buoy thrown out by the Baldwin-Ziegler Polar expedition at Franz Joseph land, June 11, 1902, was picked up at Vopna Fiord, (a bay on the northeast coast of Iceland), May 2, of the present year.

HAPPENINGS IN DAKOTAS

One Hundred Mining Claims Staked In Kidder County.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Bismarck—A hundred mining claims have been staked out in Kidder county on the site of the discovery of gold last week, north of Steele. The gold was brought up in sand taken out of an excavation for a well, and assays made at the University of Minnesota pronounce the discovery to be gold-bearing sand. How rich the deposit is cannot be told until a further assay is made of a larger sample of the sand.

It is not likely that any of the contemplated buildings at state institutions can be erected this season, even if a favorable decision is handed down by the supreme court on the bond matter. The case cannot be argued except at a special term, as the spring term has been adjourned. Twenty days notice is necessary, and it will be some time before a decision will be made.

Grand Forks—Judge J. C. Fisk sustained the demurrer to the complaint in the case against State Treasurer McMillan, brought by the attorney general for the recovery of $50,000 paid by the treasurer two years ago on bonds, to secure a legal declaration as to the power of the board of university and school lands to invest the money of the common school fund in institutions bonds, of which there are $750,000 awaiting action. The case will be appealed to the supreme court.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Belle Fourche—S. H. Neal, an attorney who has been in Belle Fourche several years, is in jail, awaiting the action of the Butte county insanity board. His trouble is thought to be due to domestic troubles of long standing. He was found wandering in the vicinity of Belle Fourche. He appeared at several houses and said the soldiers were after him. When finally taken into custody he was almost famished.

Clay, Robinson and company and A. H. Marble have purchased the Stockgrower's National bank at Cheyenne, Wyo., the largest bank in Wyoming. They own the Butte county bank of which W. B. Penfold has been elected assistant cashier.

Spearfish—Rev. D. W. Tracy has tendered his resignation as pastor of the Methodist church to take effect next September.

Sioux Falls—Mark Scott, editor of the Sioux Falls Journal, was assaulted by William L. Carr, son of C. S. Carr, a well-known citizen. After several blows had been struck, young Carr's father interfered and stopped the fight. The editor afterwards had his assailant arrested. Young Carr alleges that Scott's paper has been printing insulting paragraphs about him.

The state board of regents has been organized by the re-election of I. W. Goodner, of Pierre, as president, and Irving D. Aldrich, of B. J. Stone, as secretary. The board adopted a motion by which the office of the secretary was located at the statehouse at Pierre.

Sheriff J. R. Pickett, of Lyman county, and two deputies have arrived here with one of the largest bunches of prisoners ever brought to the penitentiary at one time. The three men brought in a total of eight prisoners, six Indians and two white men.

Articles of incorporation have been drawn up for a company composed of local and eastern capitalists, whose purpose it is to establish an auto-coach line in this city. If the plans do not miscarry, it is believed this unique system of passenger transportation can be placed in operation by July 15. Those behind the enterprise say it also is purposed to operate a regular auto-coach line from Sioux Falls to Canton, Dell Rapids and other towns.

Huron—The annual picnic of the old settlers' association of Broadland was held in the Broadland grove, and was attended by a large crowd of people. The address was delivered by A. B. Fairbank of this city. Games of baseball were played by the Hitchcock Juniorse and the Wolsey team, resulting in a victory for the former. An exciting contest was the game between the Huron team and the Hitchcock team, the score being 5 to 4 in favor of Hitchcock.

Fort Meade—Bids were opened for the construction of a new post exchange and gymnasium and an addition to the hospital. The hospital annex is to be built in as complete a manner as the main building.

Miller—The Chicago & North-Western railway is making substantial improvements here of a permanent nature, chief of which are two more new stockyards and sheds, a large well and tank and additional sidetracks.

Pierre—The executive committee of the state historical society selected Fordin and J. Goodfellow of Brookings curator of the society, a position provided by the last legislative session.

Flandreau—Mrs. Thomas Monson committed suicide by hanging. She was insane.

Maccabees to Meet.

State Commander I. N. Chellew of St. Paul will be in the city tomorrow to attend a district meeting of the Knights of the Maccabees, which will be held in Maccabee hall in the afternoon.

It is expected that the meeting will be well attended by local and outside knights. It will be followed by a banquet and smoker, and elaborate arrangements have been made by Commander Harry Milnes of Duluth tent No. 1 for an interesting program.

Receives a Degree.

Princeton university has conferred a degree of Master of Arts upon William A. Cleland, of this city as the result of a thesis he prepared on "Railway Transportation."

Mr. Cleland is a son of Dr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Cleland. He graduated from Princeton three years ago and is now employed in the local offices of the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic.

CRUISER WILL BE SOLD

By the Sheriff Unless Claims Are Paid.

New York, June 23.—A legal advertisement, published in an Elizabeth, N. J., paper gives notice that the cruiser Chattanooga will be sold by the sheriff within three months for the payment of claims against her, unless these are liquidated. A deputy sheriff, who captured the cruiser a few days ago, is still in command, but work is proceeding.

PLYMOUTH ROCK

May Be Sent on Tour of the Country.

Plymouth, Mass., June 23.—As a result of the visit of the liberty bell to Massachusetts, a movement has been started to send Plymouth rock on a tour of the country, to visit all the large cities. The idea has been enthusiastically received by the guardians of the rock in this town and plans are being made to carry out the suggestion.

EARTHQUAKE AT ECUADOR.

Guayaquil, Ecuador, June 23.—A slight earthquake was felt here Sunday night. Ashes from the volcano San Guay has been falling during the last few days. Six French priests belonging to the Redemptionist order who arrived here a fortnight ago have been expelled.

PEOPLE OF DELAWARE APPROVE AWFUL CRIME

10 o'clock last night, and that the men with owers to participate in it were to meet at Price's corner half an hour before that time. The report gained wide circulation, but most people who were not actually concerned in the plot were of the opinion that the plan would not be carried out. As a result of the reports, however, people flocked toward the workhouse early in the evening, but the majority of these were there out of curiosity, although after they reached the prison many joined the attacking party.

The police department was advised during the day of the contemplated attack and thirty policemen in charge of Chief Black and Capts. Evans and Kane went to the workhouse. This was at 8 o'clock last night. There were several thousand persons at the prison at the time, and the officers were powerless against such large numbers, so they entered the building to assist the guards in an effort to protect the prisoner. During one of the rushes made by the mob several shots were exchanged, and Peter Smith, a boy of 12 years, of Wilmington, was shot in the back and so seriously injured that he will die. He is now in a hospital in this city.

The shooting did not have any effect on the crowd other than to frighten a few of the lawn surrounding the workhouse, but they returned with reinforcements and aided those who were striving to get to the negro's cell.

Upon arriving at the workhouse the mob lost no time in preliminary preparation. The crowd advanced into the front vestibule or reception hall and demanded admittance to the jail. Their demand was refused by the guards and they were deluged by a stream of water from the fire-fighting equipment of the institution. This did not lessen the eagerness of the besiegers, who immediately began an assault upon the iron doors. Chief of Police Black shouted to the crowd: "The first man that comes into this corridor will be killed."

A man, said to be from the South, grasped one of the heavy sledge hammers, and as he attacked the steel grating, cried: "Then you had better kill me for the first one."

In addition to Peter Smith, a youth, name not known, was slightly wounded during the fusillade.

While about 300 men and boys were storming the jail, several thousands of sympathizers were lined up outside, but took no part in the attack, but were plainly in favor of lynching White.

The leaders told Chief Black and Warden Meservey that they intended to get the negro if they had to break every steel door in the place, and argued that it was a useless expense to the county to have unnecessary damage done to property. The officials saw the strength of this argument and informed the leaders that White was in cell No. 13 on the front row, third story. This was enough, and the door to this row of cells was at once attacked. While this door was being cut, another party with sledges and chisels attacked the large steel box containing the levers that opened and closed the cell doors. It was 12:22 o'clock when the yelling and cursing mob rushed into the corridor past the cell doors of the frightened prisoners to the cell occupied by White. Here more trouble was encountered, for in smashing the lever box the mechanism was damaged and the door to the cell of White could not be opened.

Warden Meservey then rushed into the cell corridor to prevent the mob from taking the wrong man. He saw that the men with hammers were about to demolish the cell door and told them how to disconnect the door so it could be operated. As soon as the door to White's cell slid open, there was a deafening cheer and cries of "Don't hurt him, hang him, don't hit him. Burn him at the stake. Take him to the place where he murdered Miss Bishop for we have driven a stake there and will burn him."

White fought desperately for his life and knocked down the first man who approached him. One of the leaders protected the frightened wretch. The narrow corridor was so tightly packed by the mob that it was impossible to get the prisoner out. After much difficulty the crowd was persuaded to retreat from the building. White, in the custody of two men, brought up in the rear. The lawn in front of the prison was a sea of faces. White's custodians became convinced that unless strategy was used, there would be little chance of getting their man to the spot on Price's road, where it was planned that he should be burned to death. An order was given to extinguish lanterns. In the darkness there was a confused rush and after this no one seemed to know where the prisoner was. On the way to the place of execution White begged to be allowed to say a few words to the crowd before he was killed and the promise was made to him that he should be allowed to make a statement.

The Negro confessed to having committed the deed, and did not spare himself in telling of it. He again confessed as he was standing near a hedge, a few feet from where the outrage was committed, he prayed fervently to God to forgive his sins, and seemed anxious to do as much talking as possible in the few minutes he had to live.

While White was praying and confessing, and the crowd was struggling to form a circle, three or four men began splitting rails with which to burn the wretch. It took so long to get the fuel ready that the crowd impatiently cried to the leader to proceed with the execution. The mob numbered from 5000 to 6000 persons, who surged back and forth, crowding and pushing to gain or retain a good position from which to see the burning.

When everything seemed about ready a man on a horse rose to a nearby farm house, and in a short time reappeared with two bundles of straw. The straw was piled around the stake and White was brought, bareheaded, into the circle. His nerve seemed good, and he held his head up while he addressed the crowd. He made another confession and appealed to God for mercy. A strong rope was then brought, and the Negro was wrapped in its coils from shoulder to feet. His lips were moving while this was going on, and he seemed to be trying to finish his statement. The crowd was in a hurry to get through with its work and called out for the executioners to hasten. After the rope had been adjusted the Negro was fastened to the stake and the torch was applied to the straw.

(Earlier report of lynching on page 9.)

EWEN LEAVES LEXINGTON.

Lexington, Ky., June 23.—Capt. B. J. Ewen, the leading witness in the trial of Jett and White, for the murder of J. R. Marcum at Jackson, left here yesterday afternoon for a secret destination. This action was taken on the advice of friends after Captain Ewen had been informed by a man who came from Jackson today of the existence of a plot to assassinate him. All sorts of rumors are in circulation concerning efforts to interfere with the course of justice in the Marcum case. Capt. Ewen not only felt that he was in danger constantly but that his presence here might endanger his friends.

RACE DECLARED OFF.

New York, June 23.—The $10,000 match race between Lord Derby, 2.05¾ and Major Delmar, 2.05¼, which was to have been brought off at the Empire City track July 4, has been declared off. Lord Derby has gone lame in his training at Hartford, Conn., but is expected to recover in a short time.

VISITORS CHOSEN

Norwegian Lutherans Elect Officials Corresponding to Presiding Elders.

Prof. Lund of Theological Seminary Requested to Withdraw Resignation.

The United Norwegian Lutheran church convention this morning elected the following district visitors or presiding elders:

Atlantic district, Rev. Jacob Tanner, Gunder, Iowa.

Canton district, Rev. S. I. Nummedal, Jasper, Minn.

Eau Claire district, Rev. J. Granskon, Stanley, Wis.

Kansas district, Rev. H. L. Berg, Riverton, Neb.

Moorhead district, Rev. N. Lund, Halstad, Minn.

Sisseton district, Rev. L. E. Hammer, Roslyn, N. D.

The resignation of Professor E. G. Lund, D. D., as professor of theology, caused a protracted discussion. It had been known for some time that he had resigned, but comparatively few members of the United church had known his reasons for taking such a step. Two committees reported on that matter, but it took some pressure to bring the whole truth before the meeting.

It was chiefly a sarcastic address by Rev. A. Hulting that simply made it impossible to accept the resignation and drop the matter for good. First, one of the committees having this matter in charge gave a review of the difficulties causing the resignation, and finally Professor Lund himself gave a fuller account of the affair. From the speech of Rev. A. Hulting many members who were not familiar with the facts, got the impression that there was something ugly behind the scenes. But the explanations given by one of the committees and by Professor Lud himself amply proved that the difficulties leading to the resignation were of a purely practical nature. Professor Laird was originally called to have charge of the English work at the divinity school, but for ten years past his main branch has been history of the church. He is not satisfied with this arrangement, but since there are only four professors at the school, the faculty, as well as the board of school directors, seem to think that the work cannot well be distributed in such a manner as to satisfy the demands of Professor Lund.

Some of the speakers, however, did not look upon the difficulty as unsurmountable, and they appealed to Professor Lund to withdraw his resignation. Dr. Schmidt, one of Professor Lund's co-laborers, held that the reasons given for the resignation were not strong enough to warrant such an important step.

Rev. H. Realtvam voiced the sentiment of the audience when he stated that he was very happy to find out that the difficulty was of such a trifling nature.

Some speakers censured Professor Lund for handing in his resignation instead of referring the difficulty to this meeting. Professor E. T. Johnsen stated that Professor Lund is preparing an English history of the church.

The audience was highly gratified to hear all the other theological professors state that they had endeavored to induce Professor Lund to remain at the school. A motion was made that Professor Lund be requested to withdraw his resignation, on condition that an assistant instructor in English be added to the faculty at once, and that a fifth chair be established later on. The impression made by every member of the theological faculty on this occasion was exceedingly agreeable, and no one wondered when the motion was passed without a dissenting vote.

Professor Lund promised to hand in his answer tomorrow.

The Zion church of West Duluth will have a steamboat excursion this evening, starting from the Fifth avenue dock at 5:30.

Rev. O. Guldseth will preach a pastoral sermon this evening, and a collection will be taken up for the benefit of the organist, Professor Rydning.

The morning devotionals were conducted by Rev. C. S. Thompson, Cresco, Iowa. The ministers' octette sang, "Our Father."

Methel church, in Roberts county, S. D., was admitted into the United church.

NEW METHOD SUGGESTED.

Another Plan For Conferring With the Synod.

At the afternoon session of the United Norwegian Lutheran church convention yesterday afternoon, the question of negotiating with the Norwegian synod for the purpose of paving the way for a union between the United church and that body, was taken up in earnest. Professor Schmidt is always bound to be referred to in this connection.

Professor Bockman held that Professor Schmidt made a mistake when he published a report of the proceedings of the negotiating committee, but he also stamped the synod negotiations as "unreasonable" when they claimed that they were compelled by their "consciences" to stop the negotiations on account of that mistake.

Rev. S. Strand thought the telegram sent by the United church to the synod the other day was silly. The final upshot of this discussion was a resolution to the effect that in case the synod does not want to continue the negotiations along the old lines, that is, between the presidents and the theological faculties of the two associations, the United church will endeavor to bring the two bodies closer together by means of public conferences, where the public will have a chance to hear what is going on, and where anyone may have a chance to express his views.

The discussion of the motion with regard to two ministers who had dropped out of the United church was resumed late in the afternoon. As was mentioned yesterday, one of them was O. E. Loe, of Beloit, Wis., who is far from being a Lutheran, but whose character is unimpeachable. The other man had run away from his family in company with another woman. His name is Holmson. In the disputed motion they are placed on an equal footing, though no names are mentioned. The motion had been changed somewhat by the committee but the change did not touch the real point at issue, because the two men were still bunched together.

Professor Bockman made an interesting speech in support of the motion. The devil, he said, had led both of them astray, and to that extent they were on an equal footing. Their faults were not of the same kind, but both faults led to perdition, to that extent they also were alike. But Mr. Loe's sin was more dangerous both to himself and to others. Few people would be tempted to follow Mr. Holmson, but many may follow Mr. Loe. It also stands to reason that Mr. Holmson may return as a penitent publican to the Savior, while Mr. Loe is apt to pursue his wayward course. Professor Bockman said that Mr. Loe believes that the unregenerated soul will die with the body; that it will rise from the dead and have another chance for repentance, but that if it does not repent in that second life, it will die for good; it will perish utterly and forever. It is plain that Mr. Loe no longer believes in eternal punishment under any circumstances, and this was mentioned as a particularly strong point against him.

Rev. Belsheim thought it was "shameless" to bunch the two men together in that manner, and Rev. Siljan proposed to make a distinction between the two men by adding "one of them on account of immoral conduct, the other on account of erroneous doctrines." This amendment at once struck a responsive chord in the audience, and even Professor Bockman said he would endorse the amendment. The motion as amended was passed against one solitary vote.

There are about twenty ministers in the United church who are unable to support themselves, and the treasurer of the aid committee, Rev. M. Gulbrandsen, Westby, Wis., reported that the receipts were only $1300. This amount is too small, and Rev. A. Wright improved the opportunity to give his fellow-clergymen a strong dose of censure because they had done so little for the care of superannuated ministers. In order to break the edge of his rugged remarks he added that he had been scolding that way until his "beard had turned white and his hair black."

It was resolved that Rev. A. Wright's lecture on "Genuine and Spurious Revivals" be printed in the minutes of the meeting.

Vice President Ellestad occupied the chair during the latter part of the afternoon session.

A vote of thanks was extended to Harold Thorson, of Elbow Lake, Minn., for the $8000 property which he donated to the United church a few days ago.

ENGLISH CONFERENCE.

That Branch of the United Church Meets.

The English conference of the United church held a meeting last night. As the name indicates, this body is an organization within the United church. It goes without saying that the English language was used.

Rev. Kildahl, of Chicago, occupied the chair. Rev. O. G. Beisheim, of Grand Meadow, conducted the devotionals. Rev. G. Stearns, of Milwaukee, read the minutes of the previous meeting, and Rev. C. K. Solberg read the treasurer's report.

Professor J. N. Kildahl lectured on the subject, "What the English Conference Stands For." He handled the subject in a masterly manner. The English language is gradually and irresistibly crowding out the Norwegian language. The United church must be prepared to meet the growing demand for English preaching, and to this very purpose the English conference came into existence.

Rev. C. K. Hellard, of Thorsby, Ala., loved the English language above all other languages because he had been born into it, but the Lutheran religion had not slipped away from him, and he would devote his whole strength to the preaching of it.

Professor Kildahl thought too many have been too timid about using the English language. If that language is needed, the preacher should go right in and do his best.

Rev. Hygh, Chicago, who uses classical English, had found that the transition is not so rapid as some people seem to think. The fourth generation is apt to forget the Norwegian, especially in the large cities. But even in Chicago he had met many young people who would rather have him preach in Norwegian than in English. He for one would "make haste slowly."

In substituting English for Norwegian.

Vice President Ellestad explained that he thinks and feels and speaks in Norwegian, and he would be glad to have everybody else do the same. But the circumstances must be taken as they are. English is needed, and he wished the English conference God-speed.

Hon. Oley Nelson, of Slater, Iowa, would also have the ministers preach in English even if they happen to make a few mistakes.

Professor O. Lokensgaard warned against fetching and confirming young people in English and failing to provide English preaching for them after they became young men and women, such a course tending to prepare them for joining non-Lutheran churches using the English language.

Rev. E. H. Rasmussen was elected president, Rev. R. Bogstad vice president, Rev. J. A. Aasgaard secretary and Rev. H. M. Solem treasurer.

RACE MEET FOR FOURTH

Races and Lacrosse Game at County Fair Grounds.

The Fourth will not go wholly unrecognized in Duluth.

The principal celebration will be at the fair grounds, where there will be a racing matinee and a lacrosse game.

Of course there will be the usual holiday for most employes, which means picnics and fishing trips and such things, which are really more fun than parades and speeches and fireworks and incessant walking about on dusty streets and going to bed at night dead tired. These are the usual things.

Those who like sports of that nature will have a chance to put in a whole afternoon full at the fair grounds, for there will be a series of three races, with the lacrosse game between the heats.

There will be a free-for-all, a 2:40 and a 3-minute race, and the lacrosse game will be between the Duluth and Fort William teams.

While lacrosse is a familiar game to many of Canadian birth, to thousands of others that were born on this side of the line it is a new thing altogether, and many will no doubt go out to see it merely for curiosity.

The entries in the races will be mostly local horses. There are twenty-two horses now working on the track, getting ready for the fall circuit of country fairs and other races, and a number of them will enter the different events.

Then there will be a ball game, too, in the afternoon, at Athletic park, so that a large proportion of the population will be found out in the West End on the afternoon of the nation's birthday.

The American District Telegraph Company Gave Alarm

At 9:05 last evening a fire alarm was turned in from the Omaha freight depot from the box of the A. D. T. company. The signal, which is received at the main office of the district company, repeats five times. After the first or second signal is completed, a switch is thrown, turning the remaining signals direct to fire headquarters. The alarm was responded to promptly by the department, which reached the scene in time to prevent any serious damage.

MUTUAL INSURANCE SCHEME.

In the line of municipal advancement and ownership, the city of London will put in operation a plan for mutual fire insurance, by which a large saving is anticipated and a more satisfactory insurance. Seventeen boroughs have agreed to come in, and delegates from these boroughs will compose the board and will be registered without capital or shares, only a mutual agreement being concurred in. According to Municipal Journal and Engineer these municipalities of London have combined in a mutual insurance scheme and have taken $15,000,000 worth of insurance at premiums amounting to about $15,000 a year. The company is to carry out, without capital or shares, this scheme, a mutual agreement of the contracting parties to undertake the payment of losses incurred by any member being the basis on which the insurance is to be paid. While fire insurance will be the only thing at present undertaken, other risks will be added in the future. Each party agrees to continue insuring for five years, the premiums to be increased or decreased as the results show, together with a safe margin to ensure reimbursement in case of unusually heavy losses.

Underwriting arrangements have been made with underwriters having a capital of over $27,500,000 and, as the board has decided not to place more than $25,000 on any one property, the greatest possible loss would not take more than two years' premiums to pay. Large profits are allowed the board by its underwriters and it is calculated that one-half the premiums will be available for a reserve fund, the growth of which will allow of premiums being reduced. The reserve funds will be invested in municipal bonds. Each municipal authority insuring over $50,000 will have the appointment of one of the trustees to manage the board. They will serve without pay and can appoint a few managing trustees and, at general meetings, each policy-holder representing $50,000 of insurance can have a vote for each $50,000 and each authority is to be on equal terms with the others. No dividend or profit is to be paid to any member of the board, the object being a gradual reduction of premiums until the minimum is found—supposed to be 8 cents on the $500 insured. No liability is incurred by any trustee except a possible $50 in case the board is abolished to cover the expense of it.

This plan will be watched with interest by other cities, and if it proves satisfactory it will undoubtedly be adopted by American municipalities.

BACHELORS AND LONGEVITY.

The fact has been disclosed by the suicide statistics recently compiled by Professor Bailey of Yale that the number of suicides among married men in the United States is considerably greater than among bachelors. This would seem to upset the theory that matrimony is conducive to longevity, but statistics have been prepared by Dr. Farr, which show that out every given 1000 men between the ages of 20 and 30, 14.07 bachelors died annually, while among married men between the same ages, the death rate was only 7.24 in the 1000. These statistics in conjunction with his own researches lead the learned Dr. Stark to the conclusion that "bachelorhood is more destructive to life than the most unwholesome trades or than residence in an unwholesome house or district where there has never been the most distant attempt at sanitary improvements."

This statement indicates that the good doctor looks upon bachelorhood as a more dangerous disorder than diphtheria. Yet another investigator, equally wise and learned, explains that the mortality among bachelors is "due to the elimination of imperfect types under the law of natural selection." In other words, the bachelors who die are so unfit for matrimony that no one will select them, and when they die it is because they are neither fit to marry nor to live. But, despite these statistics and sage conclusions, there will probably be as many bachelors in proportion to the total male population in the world ten years hence as there are now.

The last of the squalid tenements at Five Points, New York, is being pulled down, to make way for another small park, which will be but a short distance from the newly created parks known as Paradise and Mulberry Bend. In a few years New York will be dotted with pretty breathing spots in its down-town districts. This is an improvement needed in many cities.

King Edward having awarded a medal to the American architect who remodelled the White House, the Boston Globe thinks the least we can do in return is to offer a vote of thinks to the gardener who is keeping the grounds around Windsor castle in good order.

Mr. Payne's extraordinary genius for ineptitude is generally recognized as having been fully established in the opinion of the country by his remark that the Tulloch charges were "an attack on President McKinley." That was the climax, as the Springfield Republican says.

Miss May Appleton, of Atchison recently changed her name to "Mae," and the local paper in recording her movements says that "Mae will leave Fridae to spend two daes with friends in Hollidae."

If the disinfecting of Citizen George Train has cleansed him of all his peculiar notions, it will at least have one good result.

Sir Thomas Lipton may capture the cup of disappointment.

MAIL CONTRACT COMBINE.

The mail contract combine, which has flourished so long and profitably under the old system of letting contracts, will get a knock-out blow in the letting of routes soon to be made. Under the old system it has been able to bag about nine-tenths of the contracts, but it will find things different now. The department, during the next few months, will have to make new contracts for 5000 or 6000 routes of various sorts, including star routes, steamboat routes, wagon and railroad routes. They are all in the Southern states, chiefly east of the Mississippi. The contracts are to run for four years, and in the aggregate will involve the expenditure of about $15,000,000. The declaration that will carry dismay to the contract syndicate that has been operating so successfully for many years past, is to the effect that hereafter the bidder must live in the district, or contiguous thereto, to be served with mail. This will knock out the trust and give to the individual bidders a chance to get contracts.

The business of this contract syndicate started from a modest beginning many years ago, but gradually assumed tremendous proportions. The fact that there are at the present time over 71,000 of these mail routes in different parts of the country, involving an annual expenditure of almost $60,000,000 indicates that there was a good field for speculators. The entire country is divided into four sections, and the mail contracts for one of the sections is let every year. These contracts run for four years.

Lately two or three syndicates have captured practically all of these contracts, or at least all of the desirable ones. Their methods of operation were simple. An agent would be sent into the field to make an estimate on the probable cost of serving the mail, and also to find out for what money the contract could be sublet. The whole field would be covered in this way, and bids would be turned in by the wholesale.

The syndicate was usually able to outbid individuals and when the question of security came up the trust always won out. As soon as a contract was secured an agent would be dispatched to the field to find someone willing to take it up at a profit to the trust. The opportunities for making extra money by carrying on side lines of business over the route would be glowingly set forth and sooner or later a sub-contractor would be found at figures considerably below those named in the original agreement with the department.

The department had no special objection to these operations, but later developments invariably caused trouble for the government. The sub-contractor could usually be depended upon to skip deliveries and collections, so that complaints would come into the department from irate people. Then the sub-contractor would find all sorts of fines were being levied on him, of a kind to which no reference was made by the agent of the first contractor. In some instances these fines took up practically all of the money that was coming to the sub-contractor. He had no redress, inasmuch as his agreement was with the original agent, and the syndicate was always careful to draw the contract in such a way that there would be no escape for the unfortunate sub-contractor, who in many cases had been lied to concerning his contract by the agents. It is well that a change is to be made. The old system has existed too long.

THE RICHES OF ALASKA.

As the years roll by and the output of Alaska steadily increases, it grows more and more evident that Secretary of State Seward made a remarkably good investment when in 1867 he purchased that territory from Russia. At that time critics averred that the money was ill-spent, in fact wasted, and the secretary was ridiculed far and wide. It was claimed that the country would never be of any value excepting for its furs. But while the northern part of Alaska is in the polar zone, a great portion is in the north temperate regions. This is of small importance in face of the fact that the once despised territory is extremely rich in gold. Of course, this gold has greatly stimulated the populating and development of the country, and now its trade is very important. The returns as shown by the figures of the United States bureau of statistics give out that the commerce of Alaska during the fiscal year which ends with this month seems likely to aggregate over $20,000,000, exclusive of gold.

According to the returns, it is quite apparent that the total shipments to Alaska during this first fiscal year, in which their value is measured, will aggregate between $10,000,000 and $12,000,000. A similar statement of the shipments from Alaska to the United States, which is also published, shows the total value for ten months to be $10,101,060 of merchandise. In addition to this, the shipments of gold ore from Alaska, produced in United States territory, amounted to $4,369,496. The shipments of "foreign" gold ore from Alaska during the period, by which is meant that from the Klondike (Canadian) territory, reaching the United States through Alaska, aggregates for the same period $10,972,545.

By far the most important of the articles shipped from Alaska to the United States is canned salmon, the value of which, during the ten months ending with April, 1903, was $8,401,124, or more in the ten months in question than the entire sum paid for Alaska in 1867, the sum paid for the territory having been $7,200,000. The next largest items in the shipments from Alaska are: Other fish and fish products, $751,984; furs and fur skins, $394,590; whalebone, $115,994; and copper, $100,513.

The shipments to Alaska are naturally of an extremely varied character, including provisions, clothing and materials for use of mines and those engaged in the canning industry. The largest single item is manufactures of iron and steel, $1,616,604, of which $730,618 is tin plates and sheets, chiefly for use in manufacturing cans for the salmon canneries. Next in order are: Provisions, $718,273 (of which $162,950 was butter); manufactures of wood, including lumber, $562,454; manufactures of tin, $440,011; breadstuffs, $298,292; wines and liquors, $238,665; tobacco, and manufactures of, $188,330; coal, $172,032; fruits and nuts, $171,601; cotton manufactures, $129,192; and eggs, $128,347.

No mistake was made in the purchase of Alaska. It is destined to be one of the most valuable territories of the United States.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

Fred von Baumbach, collector of internal revenues from St. Paul, arrived in the city this morning from a trip along the north shore of Lake Superior, where he has been with Mrs. von Baumbach for the past week.

"It was my first trip to Duluth and vicinity," said Mr. von Baumbach, this morning at the St. Louis hotel, "though I have been a resident of the state long. I would like to take the trip when it was a little warmer, the temperature out on the lake being rather too chilly for comfort.

"The scenery and picturesque forests and bluffs, especially, were a great attraction for me, and I do not know where in the world more glorious landscapes can be seen."

Collector von Baumbach spoke of the seizure of the cigars belonging to the trust, and said that he was acting under instructions from the commissioner of the bureau, when he ordered the seizure made. The local revenue agent confiscated 3000 cigars done up in small wrappers for sample purposes last week.

"There was an irregularity," he said, "in the wording of the matter on the wrapper, and complaints were becoming numerous. The cigarmakers of Minneapolis started the agitation against the permitting of the faultily packed cigars to be given away there. They had to live up to the word of the law, and they felt that even the trust, which is doing its best to crush them out, should be called upon to do the same.

"The bureau was informed, and word came back to seize the cigars. We did so. The whole matter is now with the department, and a decision is expected most any time.

"I understand that thousands of cigars wrapped in the same manner are distributed in a great many cities of the country. The bureau may compromise with the trust people, or it may keep the cigars. I do not know what will be done."

Major S. M. Campbell, accompanied by Mrs. Campbell, Mr. Campbell's secretary, R. G. Rodman, and the latter's mother, arrived at the St. Louis hotel this morning from a trip along the north shore. Mr. Campbell, who is the Indian agent at Ashland, while on the trip, visited the members of the tribes he came in contact with, and reports that he found everything lovely, and very quiet. He says he did not find a single thing worthy of comment on his trip. The party will go on to Ashland this afternoon.

O. W. Blodgett, the boat owner, is in the city again. He is stopping at the Spalding hotel.

The Spalding has just issued a ticket system for the American plan dining room, and many of the old and steady guests at the house can't remember without an effort of the way things are going.

Mr. Blodgett is one of them.

He is so well known that when he walked into the dining room this morning, busy thinking of where several dozens of his boats might be, he didn't show any ticket.

The man at the door sent word down to the clerk to have one made out for the absent minded guest. And this is the reply to the note.

"I have given that gentleman two tickets already, and Im d—— if I give him any more."

Mr. Blodgett will probably find the whole collection around his clothes in a day or two and turn them in.

A prominent young insurance man who frequents the Spalding hotel nearly lost his life the other day while on a double headed trip which was intended for a fishing trip.

He, for some unknown reason, carried a revolver with him, a single action, 42-caliber affair, and had on a heavy woolen shirt to protect him from the sun.

He walked several miles till he came to the creek where he judged his fishing was and threw down his traps, jointed his pole, and cast out into the brook.

He had no sooner splashed the hook into the water, than he heard a noise a way above him on the creek, and saw a deer standing on the edge, drinking. He pulled his revolver quickly, and aimed at the deer. He cocked the weapon, and was holding the rod in the other hand.

He aimed steadily for a second, and just as he was about to pull, a fish bit on his hook, and he had something to occupy his mind and other hand. He thought he would rather have the fish, so he started to poke the revolver down into his shirt front.

He poked several times, yanking and pulling at the rod with the other hand, when suddenly he happened to regain consciousness, and looking down saw the cocked and loaded revolver.

The young man turned sick. He dropped the fishing rod and pointed the revolver from him and threw it down. He then lay down and panted.

He was very badly scared. He emptied the shells from the revolver, lost his fishing rod, and dragged himself along to where he thought his horse and buggy were. He missed the way in the excitement and didn't reach it till 2 o'clock in the morning, and now he has sworn off going fishing or hunting again. In his whole life.

Just Watch Them!

Chicago Chronicle: When we consider that there is $10,000,000 involved in the Panama canal route concession we may dismiss as absurd the talk that Colombian legislators will reject the American proposition. Unless Colombian statesmen are entirely different from our own their nostrils are acutely sensitive to the fragrant odor of frying pork, and it is obvious that $10,000,000 will furnish much sausage, spare ribs and chitterlings.

Morgan Outclassed.

Chicago Tribune: John Bull's recent merger of 100,000 square miles in northern Nigeria was accomplished with a smoothness and celerity that must have made Mr. Morgan almost envious.

THE WEATHER.

United States Agricultural Department Weather Bureau, Duluth, Synopsis of weather conditions for the twenty-four hours ending at 7 a. m., (central time), June 23.—The low pressure areas central Monday morning over the Ohio valley and British Columbia have moved to the northeastern lake region and Eastern Montana, respectively, the former causing showers in all districts east of the Mississippi river, and the latter causing rains in Montana, Washington, Oregon and Alberta. It is a little warmer in the Ohio valley and lake region. In the latter district the winds are from northwesterly. The barometer is high off the North Pacific coast and to the northward of Manitoba.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: There are exactly as many different ways of being fooled by a woman as there are women in the world.

It seems a pity that about the only way for a man to learn what kind of woman he ought to marry is to marry her.

The harder a man has to work to keep secrets about himself from his wife the easier it is for her to hide hers from him.

Generally the devil calls on the same day that the man of the house has gone down town mad because his breakfast was spoiled by the weak coffee.

When you come right down to it, a woman's way of showing her superiority over some other woman is being able to spend more money than she does.

Is Conscience Stifled?

New York Tribune: "All quiet at Belgrade," say the dispatches. Yes. "Paris is tranquil" was the report just after Louis Napoleon's coup d-etat. "Order reigns in Warsaw" was also announced on a memorable occasion. Certainly the last of the Obrenovitch dynasty is quiet enough, for all time. Whether the voice of conscience is heard in Belgrade is doubtful. If not, so much the worse for Servia.

There Was Something Doing.

Washington Post: The Servian tragedy was brewing for a long time, but the conspirators did not think the occasion ripe for action until Richard Harding Davis had called his paper that there was nothing doing and had started for home.

A WEEK OF PLAY

By Emma Seckle Marshall.

(Copyright, 1903, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

"And so you think we did better—" "Don't say the word you were going to. It sound harsh and—I think we can arrange matters without using such terms."

"But you say there is no use for us to try to live together longer."

"Yes, because we are so—so—incompatible. Don't think this decision has been reached without much pain and anxious thought. We made a mistake like hundreds, yes, thousands of others, that is all. The world is full of mismated married people."

"Don't let us prolong the agony, Albert. When I am gone your club, golf, the track, will absorb you, as usual, and you will not miss me after the first few days."

"Oh, will I not?"

"Of course not. We will close the house; I will give out that I have taken advantage of Marian's intended visit to Europe to accompany her, and you can move your things down to the club. It will be more convenient for you. There need be no publicity. After awhile, in a year or so, when Marian returns, maybe she will take the house and then you can come back here. That would be pleasant for you. If not, you can sell it."

"And you?"

"I shall travel with Marian as long as she cares to roam, and when she returns to America I shall settle down in Paris."

"Humph! To study music?"

"That will be as good an excuse to give the world as another. Yes, to study music. I am sorry you have always disliked music, Albert."

"I have not always disliked it."

"Well, you have always censured me—oh, I know not in words, but in actions, and that is worse. If it hadn't been for my music I don't know what I would have done during the hours you were at the club and the links, and especially lately, since you have become so infatuated with horses."

"I would never have gone to the club and the links—at least, not so often, if your time had not been so fully accupied with concerts and musicians."

There is no use for us to thresh that subject over again. We are not compatible. I am a drag on your recreations."

"Indeed you are not."

"Well, I would be if I did not efface myself, and you—"

"Are an obstacle in the way of your advancement."

"No, not that, Albert, only you do not understand my love for music."

"I guess I don't. And so we must say goodby—give up our home," he glanced around the dainty apartment which her taste had furnished, "I, to take to the race track or any old place, while you wander over the face of the earth. A pleasant prospect, truly." He laughed bitterly.

"It is too late for heroics, Albert. I simply cannot live this way any longer."

"Do you want a—a—divorce?"

"A divorce? Gracious, no."

"But think of the years, the future stretching away into—loneliness."

A look of horror crept into her eyes, then tears, that did not fall, blurred all expression out of them.

"If," she began, hesitatingly, "if the time comes when you want your freedom, when you have seen someone you—you wish to put in my place—"

"Margaret!" His voice was stern and anger blazed in his eyes.

"You might, you know, though not now, of course, but in the years to come. I would not want to stand in your way, to condemn you to a life of—"

"That will do, Margaret. I shall never ask nor desire to be free. Should the day come, however, when you prefer such a request I shall, of course, make no opposition."

"I? Oh, Albert!" the tone was not angry and the tears which fell now in a perfect torrent betokened how deep was the wound his words had given.

"Margaret." The tenderness in his voice almost won her, but the thought of the long hours she had spent alone, the miles she had traversed while pacing the floor waiting for him to return from his pleasures, intruded itself, and she walked to the window without noticing the outstretched hands. He shrugged his shoulders, flicked a piece of dust from his sleeve and said, in a matter-of-fact way:

"You have made the decision. When do you intend to start for Europe?"

"A week from today, but I thought I would leave tonight for Boston that I might spend the interim with mother."

"I will order the carriage. Shall we say goodby now?"

She noted his flushed cheeks and the reckless glitter of his eyes and hesitated.

"Not now," she answered, gently. "I don't leave until 8 o'clock. Will you not have dinner with me here at home. We can say goodby afterwards."

"As you will," he said, and left the room without looking at her.

She sat in the chair by the window, into which she had dropped when he left the house, until she heard his latchkey in the door just before the dinner hour. Then she flew to her dressing room.

Dinner was an ordeal for them both. It is a difficult matter to laugh and discuss ordinary things when the heart is breaking. But the hardest moment for him was after they had repaired to the drawing-room and he knew the hour had come to part.

"It is time," he said, and held out his hand.

Margaret came forward and stood before him looking into his eyes.

"A week is such a little while," she said, "when compared to the years that are to come. I have a proposition to make. Perhaps you will think it a strange one under the circumstances; anyway, don't hesitate to refuse if you feel the least desire to do so."

"I shall have no desire to refuse."

"We were happy, Albert, the first year of our married life. You did not spend so much time away then, and you cared for me. No, don't say anything yet, please. I did not give so much time to music, either, nor did I until—well, never mind that now. My proposition is this: Now don't laugh; it is too serious."

"Why, Margaret, you know I could not laugh at anything you did or said."

"Thank you. I wish, instead of going to mother's, to stay here, with you, and for that short time to play we were spending our honeymoon again. Is it asking too much?"

"Margaret!" there was a whole volume in his tone, if she had not been too much occupied with her proposition to read it.

"Just a little week. I think you will not miss it, and, because you used to love me, and caress me, and be tender to me, I think, perhaps, it will not be hard for you to do it again, just for a few days. Then we will forget that we played at being lovers and we will take up life where we left it off before that, and say goodby—forever."

She was looking at him anxiously; too anxiously to note that he was trembling and making a mighty effort to control himself. She only wondered why he hesitated before he said gently:

"Shall we begin now?"

"If you please," she answered.

"Sweetheart!" he murmured, as he folded her in an embrace that almost crushed her. She laid her arms about his neck, wondering how it was that he could be so good an actor, and gave herself up to his caresses.

After breakfast a week later Margaret beckoned her husband into the drawing room. A strange sadness had pervaded her since her waking moment and Albert regarded her anxiously.

"The week is up," she said, without preface.

"Well, suppose it is," he answered.

"We must say goodby now."

"Has it been a pleasant week to you, Margaret?"

"Yes. She was afraid to say more.

"Then I have a proposition to make," he cried, exultantly. She looked at him breathlessly. "Let us keep on living that way, sweetheart, always, forever. Shall we?"

"Oh, if we could only," she breathed, rather than spoke, so fearful was she that the scene was not real.

"We will," he said, earnestly. "I think we have both learned the value of life and love."

In the Boodle Set.

St. Paul Pioneer Press: No state would appear to be entitled to recognition, just now, as belonging to the fashionable set, unless it can produce a case of legislative boodling, or at least announce that one has been scented and is under investigation. Massachusetts and Florida are the latest to show their title clear.

Perils of Inquisitiveness.

Baltimore American: Women immigrant inspectors have been dropped. It was charged against them that they inspected with all the zeal of feminine curiosity backed by official authority, and the combination proved too much for some of the women inspected, who complained with all the fervor of feminine rage backed by the power of tempestuous tongues.

Extravagance in College Sports.

New York Tribune: Official figures confirm the general impression that this is an era of extravagance in the management of college sports. Plain living and hard work should be the guiding principle for undergraduate gladiators. They ought not expect to be treated like princes or prima donnas.

Awful Record of Disaster.

Cincinnati Tribune: Eight hundred and ninety lives lost by floods and cloudbursts, 65,000 people homeless and property of the value of $36,000,000 completely destroyed is the record of Kansas, Iowa, Missouri, Oregon, Georgia and South Caroline within the past four weeks. And the Breathitt and the Servian horrors are to be added to it.

Assuming Great Risk.

Chicago Record-Herald: The new king of Servia became greatly excited when he was informed of his election. We can't blame him. Being elected king of Servia is no laughing matter.

Indianapolis News: Now that "Fighting Bob" Evans has called on the dowager empress and that lady has had a good, square look at this epitome of the United States navy, perhaps China will be good for a while.

The jolliest little vision of fluff and fripperies that ever danced before the Lyceum footlights wishes to forsake the stage for professional baseball. She has made formal application for an outfield position on the Duluth team.

This actress with professional athletic ambitions is Miss Olive Cook, premiere dansuese of the Northwestern Opera company. She came from the Sunny South and the glint of that golden land still lingers in her smile and disposition.

Incidentally Miss Cook has been attending all the games at the head of the lakes this season frequently taking flnes for missing rehearsals rather than miss a game.

She is an expert oarsman and all-around athlete. Her training in this line of strenuous endeavor was obtained while a student in a seminary at Yonkers, N. Y. Her application for a position on the Duluth team reads as follows:

"Manager A. L. Van Praagh, Duluth Baseball Team:

"Dear Sir: Having been an interested spectator at all the games your team has participated in, at home, this season, I have become sensitive to the professional baeball fever and would like very much to become a member of the Cardinals, assuring you that I would make good in any outfield position.

"For three years I led my seminary team in batting and playing and I have also played some professional ball. It occurs to me that your team is hitting sufficiently hard to win more games, but is somewhat deficient in base running. In this department I think I would make good, having a record in a 100-yard dash of 11 3-5 seconds.

"The reason I make this proposition is that I need outdoor exercise, my present position in the chorus not giving sufficient time for active athletic work, and I have not the means to follow it as a pastime though very much in love with professional baseball. Don't you think the addition of a lady to your team of Cardinals would prove an attraction that would justify the expense you would incur in giving me a trial.

"I will gladly submit terms if you answer, addressing me in care of the Northwestern Opera company. Yours respectfully. MISS OLIVE COOK."

Duluth made fourteen hits off Martin at Crookston yesterday and yet lost the game by a score of 8 to 5. Slow base running seems to have been the prime cause of defeat. The score by innings:

Crookston	0	0	1	1	4	2	1	0	8
Duluth	0	1	0	2	0	0	0	1	5

Nordin, a left-hand twirler, said to be the leading pitcher of the Southern league, says the warm weather of the South is too much for him and he desires to play with Duluth. Manager Van Praagh has wired him transportation.

Grand Forks got busy with Superior yesterday and won by a score of 18 to 5. It was a wild and woolly exhibition all around. Hall was knocked out of the box in the second inning. The score:

	R.	H.	E.
Superior	2	0	1	0	0	2	0	0	0	—5	7	6
Grand Forks	0	6	3	0	0	2	1	3	*	—18	11	3

Pitchers—Hall and Foote; Sessions.

According to the Crookston papers the Grand Forks pitchers had a scheme to stop the action of Umpire Bray's heart that made the recent assassination of the king of Servia resemble an operation for appendicitis. It was simply to let Mr. Bray get back of the plate and call balls and strikes, and the pitcher was to send in an unusually swift ball which the catcher would dodge, giving the umpire the privilege of stopping it with his solar plexus. Bray was wise, however, and umpired the game from the field.

Holmes, the catcher recently signed, has failed to report and is badly needed at Crookston.

A MACHINE SHOP.

Drake & Stratton Company to Build One at Hibbing.

The Drake & Stratton company, the largest stripping and contracting concern on the range, is going to build a large machine shop at Hibbing, which is its headquarters for the Mesaba range.

The company has purchased a block of land immediately east of the ball park, between Cedar and South streets, and has begun the erection of the buildings, which will include machine shop, warehouse and blacksmith shop.

The warehouse will be 30 by 50 feet, the blacksmith shop 32 by 50 feet, and the machine shop 32 by 60 feet. The latter will be equipped with a complete modern outfit of working materials, including lathes, steam hammers, drill presses, etc. The Hibbing office of the company will be moved to the new site. All of the men that can be handled conveniently will be employed on the work in order that the buildings may be ready for use in the shortest possible time.

The company, whose Minnesota interests are represented by Senator E. B. Hawkins, has large stripping contracts, and has been the leading figure in the development of the Mesaba range.

EXTRA SESSION OF CONGRESS

For First Week In November, Says the Next Speaker.

Washington, June 22.—Speaker-elect Joseph G. Cannon is authority for the statement that there will be an extra session of the Fifty-eighth congress, and it will be called for Nov. 9.

The Cuban reciprocity treaty will come up for consideration in the house of representatives, inasmuch as it has been decided that both houses of congress must take action. It is understood that there will be no further opposition to the Cuban treaty. Members of congress who vigorously opposed it before, claim that they have been vindicated and that the treaty, as it comes from the senate, is far different in line and purpose than was the original Payne bill, over which there was one of the greatest congressional fights of a decade, and which produced what was known as the insurgent element in congress.

The insurgents are still intact, but they will not oppose the Cuban proposition. They will, however, take occasion to point out that Cuba neither starved or suffered over the failure of congress to act during two years ago, but, on the contrary, is enjoying prosperity.

The Cuban treaty will be used as a basis for tariff revision. It is a distinct modification of the Dingley schedules, which Eastern leaders say must not be molested next session.

Judge Page Morris, who was one of the leaders in opposing the Cuban concessions, speaking of the future outlook, said: "The Cuban proposition is now on a strictly business basis. There is no sentiment or sympathy in it. And we must treat with other countries on a similar basis. In dealing with Cuba congress must be honest with the American consumer."

THEIR FOOD WAS POOR

Only Three of Dr. Wiley's Original Borax Boarders Remain.

Washington, June 22.—Dr. Wiley's borax boarders, who won the strike several days ago, which will relieve them from their diet of drugs during the heated term, will cease eating chemical food on June 30, and on that date the borax boarding house will close its doors for the summer. Experiments with the preservatives will be taken up again on Oct. 1. A report on the result to date will be made public on July 30.

Dr. Wiley has made a statement showing how far the experiments had progressed and how much has been accomplished. He said:

"It is not true that several preservatives have been tested. The only preservatives so far used in the tests have been borax and baracic acid. The report will show nothing except the facts in regard to borax alone. It has been my intention to close the work with borax at the end of this month. This will wind up the borax tests. The young men who have been subject to the investigation will be given their vacations. As I have mapped the work out now, the experiments will begin again on Oct. 1, and will continue for about nine months.

"When the times comes to begin the experiments in October," continued Dr. Wiley, "preference will be given to young men who have previously taken the tests."

He intimated that a number of "new boarders" would be pressed into the beef eating service in the interests of science.

It has been stated upon good authority that a number of Dr. Wiley's boarders could not stand the chemically treated food, and that they were obliged to retire from the experiments on this account. This rumor is borne out by facts to a large degree. When the tests were started November last, Dr. Wiley's young men numbered an even dozen. They have now dwindled down to seven, and only three of these were original "boarders."

CUBANS ARE DISGUSTED

With the Renewed Opposition to the Reciprocity Treaty.

Havana, June 22.—News received here of renewed opposition by the protectionists in the United States to the confirmation of the Cuban reciprocity treaty is particularly unwelcome in Cuba at this juncture, as it has been hoped that the Cuban senate before the adjournment of the present session, would ratify all the treaties pending with the United States. Although Cuba is bound under the Platt amendment, to carry out all the other pending treaties, it is feared that some senators may make the additional difficulties that the reciprocity treaty is encountering at Washington an excuse for letting the ratification of the treaties go over until the winter session of the Cuban congress.

The treaty covering the leases of naval and coaling stations to the United States, the signing of which is expected to take place today, provides that the United States shall advance any moneys necessary for the acquirement by Cuba of such private lands as are necessary for the purposes of the stations, the same to be deducted from the thousand dollars annual rental due to Cuba.

ARE MUCH ALIKE

Andrew D. White Compares the Kaiser and President Roosevelt.

William II Is Hardest Working Man In His Empire.

New York June 22.—Andrew D. White, former United States minister at St. Petersburg and more recently United States ambassador at Berlin, and who returned from Germany only last week, says that Emperor William and President Roosevelt have many points of resemblance. He says:

"The Kaiser is as much like President Roosevelt as a German could be, and the president is as much like Emperor William as an American could be. The differences between them are national rather than temperamental.

"They are alike in many things," he continued. "There's a certain physical resemblance, to begin with. Both are vigorous, strong men. Both are fond of hunting. Both are honest and aggressive. Each is patriotic according to his lights. Each has a tremendous faith in his own country, and both are what is called strenuous."

During his residence in Germany Mr. White had many opportunities to study the emperor at close range. He says of him:

"Emperor William is probably the hardest working man in Germany. Few people are out of bed in Berlin when he takes up his day's tasks, and many have gone to bed before he has finished his work. He has a wonderfully well trained mind and never wastes a moment. That accounts for the vast amount of work he has accomplished.

"Notwithstanding the great gains of the social democrats in Germany in the election this week, I think the emperor's personal popularity is gaining. I have traveled extensively in Germany. I have talked with all classes of people, and it may be that I have gained a wider knowledge of the conditions of that country than many Germans themselves. I think that the great bulk of the people believe in their kaiser.

"They have faith in his honesty and in his sincerity, although they may not all believe in his policy. They believe he is studying national problems as earnestly as the reformers.

"Of course, there is some bitterness, some complaint, but personal feeling against the kaiser is not bitter. He has great consideration for the workingman. He has a wide and accurate knowledge of their conditions. In fact, he has a wonderful knowledge of everything that is going on in his empire. He travels about a great deal and has great capacity for absorbing information and remembering it.

"Not long ago he said to a disguised American:

"'No matter what other nations may do, I do not propose that my workingmen shall be squeezed dry like a lemon and then tossed aside.'

"Was it to Mr. Morgan that Emperor William referred when he made this remark?" Mr. White was asked.

"I did not mention the name," he replied gravely, then continued:

"The Kaiser takes himself seriously. Indeed, in public he is always the emperor. He never forgets to pose for a moment. He is a great stickler for the dignity of his rank. In private life he is a charming and lovable man, natural and unaffected. He has a fine sense of humor, and his laugh is particularly infectious.

"After dinner and over the cigars he is a delightful companion. He has a vast fund of information and imparts it most entertainingly. I remember when Prince Henry was over here he sent me another a recipe for a Hohenzollern punch that had been invented in honor of the prince. It must have been a deadly concoction and the emperor studied it with a fine appreciation of the mixture, laughing about it like a schoolboy when he showed it to me.

"Every one who meets Emperor William is astonished at the wide range and accuracy of his information.

"One of our military attaches told me he was amazed at the emperor's knowledge of his army. He seemed to know it as well as a colonel knows his regiment. He said that the kaiser not only knew every ship in his own navy, from the newest battleship to the oldest gunboat, and just what are its points of strength or weakness, but knew all about the principal ships of every other navy in the world.

"I once asked the emperor how he found time to do so much reading, because it seemed to me every moment of his time was occupied. He told me he did most of his reading when traveling about the country, and that, when on his hunting trips, he never wastes a moment.

"Those who think the kaiser is a flyaway are sadly mistaken. He is really a careful man, and, considering his youth, he has made few mistakes.

"Germany has no frontier. A glance at the map shows how her boundaries wind in and out, making her vulnerable. She has no oceans to protect her; no geographical protection. Germany must depend upon her army.

"They talk about the kaiser being selfish and thinking of himself at all times. That is true in a sense. He thinks of himself as representing his country. Of course, he is for Germany, as we are for the United States, and for Germany all the time.

"I do not suppose that he has any great love for the United States, any more than we have any great love for Germany. We want our country to get ahead, and he wants his country to get ahead, and none of us is wasting any sympathy on other countries.

"The emperor is perfectly friendly toward the United States. He showed that during the Spanish-American war, when he did all we asked him to do. I don't think he cared any more about Spain than he did about us. He was for Germany. He is always for Germany, and he has a deep sense of his personal responsibility to his empire and of its responsibility to him."

MAY BE SHEARN'S MURDERER.

New Rochelle, N. Y., June 22.—An Italian has been found at Tuckahoe, who answers the description of the murderer of Special Officer Shearn. He is badly battered up, his face showing signs of a severe beating such as that Ahearn administered to his assailant. He was in such condition that a priest was summoned to the police station.

Hints To Advertisers

People are noticing more and more every day that it is the high price stores which do not advertise.

Printer's Ink: You may do a man one hundred good turns and he will forget it; but do him one little injury and he will remember it as long as he lives. Likewise one little misrepresentation made in your ad will be remembered by a customer long after one hundred correct statements have faded from his memory.

Mahin's Magazine: Twenty-five years ago advertising lacked the elements of certainty. It was a hit-or-miss, money-hazard proposition. Today no business venture is surer of success than advertising which is systematically and judiciously done.

Tell your story simply, forcibly, and be sure that the merchandise you offer backs your assertions.

For more than twenty years The Herald has remained ahead of all other Head of the Lake newspapers.

Jed Scarboro: When the ad talks one way and the salesman another, the prospective customer is apt to halt between the two opinions and turn his patronage to the place where stories hitch.

Slow business is made prosperous by advertising in the Duluth Evening Herald.

To insure insertions in the Iron Range editions of The Herald, copy must be in the day before that of the issue in which the ad appears.

St. Paul Trade: Brevity is one of the cardinal virtues of advertising. Make one point—make it short and sharp and pound it in, is a safe rule to follow. The plea personal letter style of advertisement is having a revival just now. Some of the examples, though good in other respects contain about three times too much matter. Quality rather than quantity in advertising will draw the biggest crowd. This must not be understood as an argument against large advertisements. The bigger the advertisement the more certain it is of attracting attention. It is the long, intricate sentences, the multiplicity of words that I object to. Ideas can be expressed as well or better, in fewer words, and stands a much better chance of catching the eye of the busy reading public. Answer the question that would be asked if you were selling goods over the counter. One thing, however, must not be overlooked. It is that a large ad carries prestige by its size. You never see a small concern with a page or half-page space. Big bargains and big stores mean big ads, and this you will find to be universal. It will apply, as a rule, to every advertisement you may find, and is a feature of the American style.

The Coming 4th of July.

As this popular holiday approaches it brings to mind the terrible struggle of the Colonists for their freedom, recalls heroes of the past and inspires patriotism for the future. Every true American will accordingly assist in making the day's celebration one that will surpass all others. The first essential, however, for a proper celebration is good health. If you are weak and run down and in need of a tonic, we urge you to try Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, because it is universally acknowledged to be the best health restorer in existence. It will restore the appetite, purify the blood, strengthen the nerves and cure sour stomach, heartburn, belching, nausea, indigestion, dyspepsia and malaria. Women will also find it beneficial as a regulator and strength-giver.

A HURRIED TRIP

Steel Corporation Officials Spend Little Time In Duluth.

Quick Trip From Range and Leave Soon For Michigan.

The members of the party of general officials of the steel corporation, who made the trip over the two ranges Sunday and yesterday, left at 9 o'clock last night for Ishpeming, over the South Shore road.

James Gayley, first president of the corporation, who was the spokesman in theory for the party, refused to be interviewed for publication, and simply said:

"We have had a nice trip over the iron ranges and there is nothing that I can say regarding it excepting that it proved instructive. Further than that I have nothing to say for publication."

Mr. Gayley reconsidered, however, and a little later made a statement confirming a report from Chicago last week, which asserted that the price for steel had been made for 1904, or practically so, steel rails remaining at $28, as it is now, and other steel products demanding the same prices as this year.

Mr. Gayley said that the report was correct as published, in his opinion, and that steel would remain at the present price. This was decided upon, according to the report, by the independent companies and steel corporation at Chicago, and is correct, which means the continued stability of the iron and steel market and the prosperity of Duluth and this part of the state especially.

Mr. Gayley and Mr. Kerr walked down to the train, which lay at the west end of the sheds at the Union station last evening, just before 9 o'clock. The first vice president, a spare, kindly man, who wears gold-rimmed glasses and a small white fedora hat, with pleasant personality, received his observations of Duluth on this trip by two walks from Third to Fifth avenues West.

JAMES GAYLEY.
First Vice President of United States Steel Corporation.

The train from the range arrived in the city shortly before 4 o'clock. The party made its last inspection of property at Hibbing, and the train hurried through to Duluth without any stop at the ore docks or terminal at Proctorknott, the officials desiring time, and were late at that, for it was the effort of those in charge of the train to try and get it in Duluth shortly after noon.

After the members of the party left the train, they walked to the Wolvin building, where the general officials, Mr. Kerr, Mr. Clemson and Mr. Fraser were in close consultation with Mr. Cole and other members of the local mining companies until dark. Lunch was taken at the club and the conference resumed until about time for the train to pull out, when the people who were to make up the party for the Michigan country walked down to the train.

The South Shore special pulled out at 9 o'clock sharp and on it was a large number of the local steel company officials, most of whom were on the trip up the range. The party will attend the celebration at Ishpeming, and will return in a day or two.

Mr. Gayley and the other officials expressed themselves as highly satisfied with the trip before they left the city.

The trip up the range road, which started early Sunday morning, was rushed as much as possible and still permit the officials to see what was considered essential, and a large map was carried up, so they might locate themselves at the stops along the route.

Stops were made at Ely to visit the Pioneer, Chandler, Sibley, Savoy and Zenith mines; at Soudan, where the Minnesota mine group was looked over, and then down to the Missabe range, where the Stephens mine, which has become a shipper within a week and bids fair to be one of the large producing open pit mines of the range, was looked over. At Evelcth the Fayal, the Adams, Cloquet and Spruce mines were visited and the group of mines around Hibbing received the last attention.

The inspection was not a close scrutiny by any means, and apparently was mostly for the purposes of fixing locations.

President of Pittsburg Steamship Company.

GIRL FEIGNED SICKNESS.

Kept Out of School For Four Years.

Beatrice, Neb., June 23.—An unusual case of long practiced and successful deception has come to light here. The deceiver is a 16-year-old girl, the daughter of a well known family, and the deceived are her foster parents and several members of the medical fraternity.

The deception lasted for four years and it is worthy of mention that if it was practiced by a woman it was also discovered and exposed by one of her own sex. The deception was feigned sickness for the purpose of avoiding attendance at school.

The young woman not only complained of severe pains, but at times a slight discoloration of the face was observed. When a physician was called, the girl would not allow him to touch her face, saying she could not bear the pain. Blisters came upon the girl's arms and mouth, and she appeared to vomit blood.

Finally she was taken to a woman physician who, after a struggle, washed her face. The long existing discoloration came off, and the girl broke down and confessed.

MEYER GOES TO KIEL.

Rome, June 23.—Ambassador Meyer and his family started today for Kiel, Emperor William has invited Mr. Meyer to be present at the regatta. The ambassador will be one of the guests at Ambassador Tower's dinner, June 26, in honor of the emperor.

No Summer Bowel Troubles

Not for me! I'm safe from all of them and happy. The heat of summer causes organic matter everywhere to decay. All dead vegetable or animal matter rots if not kept on ice. All undigested food in the human body will ferment a hundred times as quickly in summer as in winter. Consequence—stomach, liver, bowels poisoned, thrown out of order—sour stomach, gases, colic, diarrhoea, dysentery, cholera, appendicitis, and in some regions yellow fever and the plague. Little children suffer terribly everywhere. What does good sense tell you to do? You can't keep the human body on ice, and the drinking of ice-cold drinks does more harm than good because it stops digestion and chills the internal organs. The proper thing is to keep all impure and unnecessary matter out of the body every day, not give it a chance to sour and decay in the stomach and bowels, and poison the blood and the whole body. In this way you will stop all hot, feverish conditions, and keep your insides cool and healthy. To do it, use a medicine that is not offensive to the taste and not harsh and violent in its action. There is only one safe system-cleaner to take in the summer time, because it will not cause diarrhoea or griping, and that is

WILL STOP WORK

Retaliation Is Proposed Against Combine of Cement Walks.

Attorney's Opinion on Maintenance of Viaducts.

The city council last night:

Considered proposition of cement walk building, but postponed action.

Received the city attorney's opinion on city's rights to compel railway company to maintain Lake avenue and Sixth avenue viaducts.

Heard and discussed Alderman Wing's proposed new plumbing ordinance.

Directed city engineer to prepare plans and specifications for repair of Lake avenue viaduct.

Ordered canal pier lights lighted as soon as government completes wiring.

Directed plans and estimates for better sewer outlet at Twenty-second avenue west.

Ordered Seventeenth avenue east macadamized.

* * *

Sentiment was strong in the city council last evening for retaliatory action against the contractors who are said to have combined and raised the prices of material for cement walks. A resolution was introduced that all proceedings heretofore instituted for the construction of cement walks in the cement walk district be discontinued, but at the suggestion of Alderman Moore the resolution went over until the next meeting.

There was some warm argument in favor of the resolution by various aldermen, however, before the vote to postpone action was taken. The discussion developed the fact that the council will, if convinced that the contractors' combine intends to force prices too high, to simply shut off cement walk building for the rest of the year.

Alderman Sang said that certain contractors are taking advantage of the council's order for new cement walks and are going among the property owners and seeking to force them into contracts at exorbitant figures. He thought it was time for the city to call a halt.

Alderman Moore thought the resolution was a rather drastic measure and wanted it to go over a week for further investigation into the alleged combine to raise prices of material for the walks.

City Attorney Oscar Mitchell reported to the council with reference to the power of the city to require the railway companies to maintain the viaducts on Lake and Sixth avenue west, also as to whether the city can recover from the railroad companies the amounts already expended for their maintenance.

The city attorney says that the city cannot recover the money already expended, that the viaducts were constructed under contracts with the railway companies, which contracts require maintenance by the city for the time they have been maintained, at any rate.

The city attorney held that the contracts cannot now be repudiated, whether they are or are not valid, because they have been recognized by the parties and fulfilled.

Mr. Mitchell reserves his opinion with reference to the Sixth avenue west viaduct, as he had not completed his investigation, but as to the Lake avenue viaduct, he is of the opinion that the railway companies can be required to maintain the structure. He said the viaduct was built in 1891 under a contract between the old St. Paul & Duluth road and the city, the company paying $50,000 toward the expense, which sum the city agreed to be in full of all the benefits accruing to the railway company by reason of the structure. The city agreed to maintain that portion of the viaduct over the right-of-way for a period of fifteen years and the balance of the structure perpetually.

In order to compel the railway company to maintain the structure, Mr. Mitchell claims that the city must repudiate that agreement; that whatever may be said of the moral position of the city, in his opinion the city is not legally bound by the agreement and can repudiate it, requiring the railway company to erect and maintain the viaduct.

The report was referred to the committee on bridges and viaducts.

Alderman Moore, by request of parties interested, introduced a resolution directing the city engineer to estimate the cost of building a city dock at the foot of Sixty-third avenue west.

Alderman Sang was instrumental, however, in having action on the resolution postponed for a week. Mr. Sang says there is now going the rounds a petition for a city dock at the foot of Sixty-first avenue west, that the location is much more desirable in every way for a dock by the people living in that vicinity.

* * *

A resolution was passed directing the city engineer to prepare plans, specifications and estimates for the paving of the Lake avenue viaduct and approaches, from Superior street to Sutphin streets. Also plans and specifications of all necessary repairs to the viaduct and approaches.

* * *

The city engineer was directed by resolution, introduced by Alderman Haven, to prepare plans for a sewer outlet at Twenty-second avenue west that will successfully carry off the sewerage from the sewer connections on that avenue, also to get estimates of the cost of the work. The measure is backed up by the West Enders, who have been complaining some time of insufficient sewerage outlet, due to backwater in the pipes.

Mayor Hugo sent to the council last evening two communications of interest. One called attention to the fact that the street railway tracks on Grand avenue are, in some places, as high as eight inches above the roadway. He asked that the matter be investigated with a view of effecting some remedy.

In the other communication, Mayor Hugo urged that Michigan street be extended from Second avenue east to Fifth avenue east, instead of Fourth avenue east, as is proposed. In giving his reasons for the extension, the mayor says that Fourth avenue is not opened to Superior street, and Fifth avenue will relieve Superior street from much of the heavy traffic by teams and give them an easy grade eastward.

The mayor reviews the situation to some extent relative to negotiations between the city and railway officials, and says that in order to put the street through, it will be necessary for the city to acquire fifteen feet of the southerly end of two lots, between Third and Fifth avenues east, that the railway company claims ownership, to a 30-foot strip, and if it gave up fifteen feet it would still own fifteen feet in width between the two blocks.

Mayor Hugo suggests that in view of the importance of such an otulet that the proper steps be taken to open it. His communication was referred to the committee on streets, alleys and sidewalks.

Alderman Wing introduced for the first reading his plumbing ordinance, which is proposed to repeal and supplant the McEwen ordinance, now operative. The ordinance is a long one, comprising about fifty sections, some thirty of which are identical, or nearly so, with the provisions of the old ordinance. Action toward the publication of the proposed ordinance was postponed for one week to give the city clerk an opportunity to compare the sections with those of the old ordinance, and arrange to have those sections differing brought in as an amendment to the old ordinance, with a view of economizing on the printing bill.

The Duluth Carnival and Amusement company was given permission to put cloth signs on the poles along through the business portion of the city until July 11, none of the signs to go up east of Eighth avenue east.

* * *

The offer of Clow & Nicholson to transport free of charge in the steamer Newsboy, from Duluth to Fond du Lac, all the material that the city will need for its new dock, was accepted with a vote of thanks.

* * *

William Berg, of 2328 West Sixth street, sent in a communication to the council asking that negotiations be opened with a view of compromising his claim against the city for injuries received because of alleged rotten planks in the bridge at the intersection of Second avenue east and Sixth street. Mr. Berg claims that he was driving on the bridge when his horse broke through. He says that while trying to get the animal extricated it fell on him, causing serious injuries to his spine, stomach and kidneys, from which he has never recovered.

* * *

The Omaha Railway company asked for permission to move the present frame part of its warehouse on Fifth avenue west to the rear end of the brick addition, in order to permit of the construction of a brick warehouse with offices in the present location of the frame building.

* * *

The board of public works was directed by resolution to cause the canal pier lights to be lighted until Sept. 15, at a cost not to exceed $4.23 per day, providing the government will complete the wiring of the pier lights. The paving of Seventeenth avenue east with macadam, from Superior street to Second street, was ordered, also the improvement of the alley between Superior and First street between Fourth and Fifth avenues west.

* * *

An estimate of $569.91 was submitted for the plumbing of the new No. 4 fire hall.

* * *

John Wilson's appointment as poundmaster on Duluth Heights was confirmed.

* * *

The claim of G. W. Bergtold of $75 for a horse that stepped into an open gas trap and was so injured that it had to be shot, was denied by the council.

* * *

The city's police and fire alarm wires were ordered placed under ground.

At times my back was so lame and sore that I could scarcely straighten. The kidney secretions were irregular, unnatural in appearance and I was also troubled a great deal with dull persistent headaches. I was induced to go to W. A. Abbett's drug store and get a box of Doan's Kidney Pills from seeing them so highly recommended. I did not take them long before I felt better and less than one box sufficed to remove the trouble. Doan's Kidney Pills are a splendid remedy and well worth a trial by any one in need of such a preparation."

Diseases Cured!

PAY NO MONEY IN ADVANCE.

Many sick people have suffered so much from unskilled and unscrupulous specialists that they have lost all faith in doctors. Many have paid large fees and have taken medicine for years for no benefit. They want to get well and are willing to pay a good price to be cured, but they very justly object to paying a large fee in advance. They want a trial treatment. To all such I make this—

REMARKABLE OFFER:

Simply write me, giving your name and address and stating as clearly as possible your trouble. When I have made a careful examination and diagnosis of your case and entered it in my case book, I will send you one package of medicine on trial, which you can take at my risk. If it gives any relief the cost will be $5. If it fails to help you it costs you nothing, and you shall be the judge.

ALL THE RISK IS MINE.

Can anything be fairer than this? I am making an offer which no other physician will make. They can't afford to. I refer to any bank in Duluth as to my financial standing and responsibility. This offer proves that I have great faith in my remedies. I KNOW they will cure, otherwise I wouldn't dare make this offer. It would ruin me, as I ship a hundred packages every day. I have tested this system for twenty years and I know that nine people out of ten are willing to pay where they get any benefit.

NO CURE, NO PAY.

is my motto. I do this to convince you who hesitate—who doubt all men's claims. I carry a line of specific medicines which cannot be had anywhere else in the state. Their power to cure disease is simply marvelous.

Syphilis, Gonorrhoea, Gleet, Stricture, Skin Affections, Disease of the Kidneys, Stomach, Liver and Bowels, Nervous Troubles, Sexual Weakness, Varicocele and Throat and Lung Troubles cured as if by magic.

THIRD IN FIELD

New Company to Operate In Itasca County Coal District.

All Companies to Operate Actively—One Claims Fine Vein.

The coal lands of Itasca county are attracting increasing attention from Duluth capitalists. It was learned yesterday that a third company has been recently formed for the purpose of exploiting this region, although the names of those interested have not been made public.

There are now three companies in the field, the Quodenaw Development company, the first to be organized, the Willow River company and the recently organized company, the articles of incorporation of which have not yet been filed.

"The action of the state in reducing the royalties on coal to 7½ cents a ton is very satisfactory to us," said Mr. McDonald, secretary of the Quodenaw company. "The law further allows us all the screenings which will pass through an inch screen, which reduces the royalties to about 4 cents per ton. As the state at first asked for 25 cents a ton, which is the same as is paid on iron, we feel that we have been very generously treated.

"We have been awaiting the action of the state in the matter of royalties and have as yet made but little progress in developing our property. We expect to have a diamond drill on the land within two weeks, however, and will then soon learn the extent of the deposit. With a hand drill we struck coal at a depth of 60 feet. This was, as far as we could go with the hand drill and the extent of the seam has not yet been determined."

The Willow River company has a drill on its property and has struck a five-foot seam of coal at a depth of 85 feet. This is amply sufficient to warrant the expense of developing as seams as narrow as 3 feet are worked in the eastern coal mining region.

The coal on all of the land in this vicinity is said to be an excellent grade of bituminous and expert chemists who have analyzed it pronounce it to be capable of producing a high grade of coke.

The coal district lies southwest of Grand Rapids, Minn., about 29 miles distant from the town. The property of the Willow River company is the farthest south of the three properties and that of the Quodenaw Development company in the centre, the newly organized company owning land to the north.

MORE FRAUD DISCOVERED

California Company Has Robbed Postoffice Department of Thousands.

Washington, June 23.—The Post says that among the matters which Fourth Assistant Postmaster General Bristow is investigating is the purchase from a California company, the Postal Device and Improvement company, of some 15,000 letter devices for indicating the hours of collection of mails. The invention is that of the postmaster at San Francisco, it is said.

It is also said that 7000 of these devices originally were ordered at a cost of $4 or more each, or a profit of 100 per cent on cost, and the allegation is made that a further order for 10,000 was placed, notwithstanding the original 7000 devices were not used, but were reposing in storehouses.

The company controlling the device was largely made up of California postal employes, and the Post says that it is informed that former Representative Loud of California, formerly chairman of the house postoffice committee, took an active part in their behalf and wrote several letters urging the device upon the department, and in one of the letters said it would be an accommodation to him if the matter was attended to.

After the company had difficulty in securing its money for the devices, Mr. Loud, the Post says, appeared at the department in its behalf, but specifically disclaimed any interest in the company other than it was composed of his constituents. He took the ground that whatever the necessity, or lack of necessity, for the device, constituents of his had declared the contract and furnished the articles called for. Therefore, he believed they should be paid as the government had stipulated to pay them.

During his recent visit to Washington Mr. Loud, on certain of his visits to the department, took up several of theses unpaid bills, making it plain, however, that he appeared only in behalf of his constituents and not as one financially interested in the company. The allegation was made, the Post says, that $4500 of the deficiency of $105,000 in the free delivery service, with which Mr. Machen is charged, was due to purchases of the device in question, but at the postoffice this was denied, and the statement made that the matter was under investigation. Complaints had also been made, it was also said, that at the instance of Mr. Loud, the rolls at the Presidio had been padded with postal employes, but at the postoffice department they were without any knowledge.

An effort was made to get a statement from Mr. Machen on the subject, but he declined to either affirm or deny the reports.

A. O. U. W. GRAND LODGE

Concludes Sessions After Readjusting Assessment Rates.

St. Paul, Minn., June 23.—The supreme lodge, A. O. U. W., adjourned late yesterday afternoon its thirty-fourth annual convention, which commenced June 9, at the state capitol.

It was the longest and most important gathering that the order has yet held, and the legislation enacted during its three weeks' session is expected to be of permanent value to the fraternity.

The readjustment of the assessment rate was the most important feature of the meeting. It provides for an increase in death benefit assessments beginning at the age of 24. At the age of 35 a much heavier increase will be made, but there will be no increase between the ages of 18 and 24. The new plan is altogether equitable and satisfactory, according to opinions expressed by prominent workmen.

The supreme lodge amended its laws so as to allow the supreme officers to change the choice of a meeting place if in their judgment it was best, without consulting the delegates.

The office of consulting actuary was created and M. M. Dawson, New York city, elected to fill it.

Employes Tender Him Banquet Costing Over $3000.

New York, June 23.—Employes of the Interurban Street Railway company have tendered to President Herbert H. Vreeland, prior to his departure for Europe, a dinner costing more than $3000. In front of Mr. Vreeland's plate was a silver loving cup, nearly two feet in height and a foot in diameter, presented him by the employes.

The dinner marked the president's tenth anniversary as head of the New York traction service and he assured his fellow workmen that he has no intention of severing his connection with the company.

There were 250 men at the banquet. They represented 13,000 employes in every branch and grade of the service.

BURNED AT STAKE

Delaware Mob Takes Awful Vengeance on Negro Ravisher.

Victim Was George White Who Assaulted Minister's Daughter.

Wilmington, Del., June 23.—A mob, led by a Virginian, burned a negro at the stake last night within a few miles of the Mason and Dixon line. The victim was George F. White, a negro just out of the workhouse, who was accused of having feloniously assaulted and stabbed to death Miss Helen Bishop, the 17-year-old daughter of the Rev. E. A. Bishop. The crime was committed Monday afternoon last, and ever since then there have been mutterings of lynching the man.

An effort was made Sunday night to get White, but it failed. Last night, however, as a result of the law's slowness and much agitation of those who cried for vengeance, a mob that was estimated at 4000 men and boys gathered in the neighborhood of Price's corner, four miles from here. They came from everywhere, including Wilmington and the smaller towns to the south of Price's corner. Sunday night's lack of a leader was supplied by a Virginian, whose identity in the confusion could not be learned. The police of Wilmington and the constables tried to disperse the growing crowd, but without avail. It was evident that hundreds came from mere curiosity, but once in the mob they became inflamed with the spirit pervading the throng and then actively joined it. The real leaders were few in number, but they did their work well. It was after 10 o'clock when the march to the workhouse, a mile away, was taken up. The chief warden of the workhouse and his associates, who have been on almost constant duty since the negro was landed in the prison, had been warned of the coming of the mob and had prepared to defend the man at all costs.

Armed with pistols, shotguns and other weapons, the mob reached the jail. A battery of railroad ties soon carried away the great outer doors of the workhouse. Then the would-be lynchers were momentarily halted by a hail of bullets from the inside. A great howl went up from the leaders, but they were pressed forward by those in the rear. More shooting was heard and there was a scramble to get out. In the fusillade that followed four persons fell, all members of the mob. They were quickly carried to the rear and attended by those who were not brave enough to be at the front. Three of the wounded were men and the other was a boy. None of them in the confusion could be identified except the boy, who is said to be Peter Smith, aged 17 years. It was evident that the warden did not wish to slaughter the mob in the prison corridor, so he directed that the fire hose be turned on the crown. This also held the mob for a time, but not long. The general rush was made, the guards were brushed aside and a man hunt of the jail was made for the negro.

There were many negroes confined in the prison, but with the aid of a man who knew White he was quickly found.

His cell door was battered down and the cowering accused man, begging for mercy, was dragged from the cell and the prison. When the crowd outside heard that success had crowned the efforts of the lynchers, a great cheer was sent up. Attempts were made to shoot White on the spot, but the leaders of the crowd would have nothing but his life at the stake. Resistance on the part of the negro was useless, and he was marched, bound, to the place of execution.

It then became evident that a plan of execution had previously been arranged, but who planned it is not known. With torches to show the way, the negro was led to the road and to almost the very spot where the assault took place. White was given a last chance to speak and he confessed to the murder of the girl. A stake had been erected in advance and to it White was quickly chained to the post and the dry underbrush, soaked with oil, was ignited, and the horrible execution was on. White, suffering intense agony, fainted and his body hung limp. Shots were fired into his body and the victim of the mob was soon dead.

The crime for which White was lynched was one of the most revolting in the criminal annals of Delaware.

The victim, Miss Helen Bishop, daughter of the Rev. E. A. Bishop, would have been 18 years old in October. She was a student at the Wilmington high school and was on her way home from the school last Monday afternoon when she was attacked. The school is four miles from here and is about three-quarters of a mile from Price's corner, where the girl usually left the trolley car when she came from school. Late Monday afternoon a farmer saw a young woman stagger and fall down. She got up and fell again and then she tried to crawl. The farmer and his sons went to her assistance, but when they reached the girl she was lying unconscious in the road. They found her to be Miss Bishop. She had three ugly gashes in her throat, her body was badly scratched and her clothing was torn in many places. In one hand she clutched a small penknife, which she used at school in sharpening pencils. There was every evidence that Miss Bishop had made a desperate resistance in defence of her honor and her life. The wounded girl was taken home and died the next afternoon without regaining consciousness.

The entire neighborhood was almost instantly aroused and a man hunt was immediately instituted. Suspicion was soon fastened on George F. White, a negro just out of the workhouse and who was engaged as a laborer on the farm of Edward Woodward, near the scene of the assault. White was found in bed that night and when taken into custody denied all knowledge of the crime. He was identified by several persons who said they saw him in the vicinity of the scene of the crime. A knife which Mrs. Woodward said belonged to him, was found where the girl was assaulted. White was brought to Wilmington but later was transferred to the county workhouse where the officials thought he would be safe from mob violence.

IS A HARD FIGHTER.

Georgia Woman Moonshiner Tries to Kill Officer.

Columbus, Ga., June 2.—While making a raid in Harris county, United States Deputy Marshal Charles Williams and Deputy Sheriff Henderson, who was assisting him, narrowly escaped being murdered by Samantha Stokes, a negress, charged with illicit distilling.

The officers entered the woman's home and commanded her to surrender. She threw up her hands and they dropped their guns. She then turned to a drawer to get her bonnet, she told them, but from it she pulled a pistol, which she leveled at Williams and snapped twice. Only the failure of the cap to explode saved the officer's life.

Samantha is a madcap, and, having begun a fight, she made it lively for the two officers before they were able to quell her. When thy finally got her bound, Williams' face was badly scratched, and Henderson's right arm, in which the furious woman had implanted her teeth, was severely lacerated.

While on their way here, though shackled, the woman jumped from the buggy, and both officers were given all they could do to get her back into the conveyance. Samantha will be the first woman to be tried here on a "moonshine" charge. In addition to answering for illicit distilling, she will be charged with having made a murderous assault on United States officers.

ALMOST LOST TROUSSEAU.

Governor Bailey's Wife Has a Narrow Escape.

Topeka, Kans., June 23.—Mrs. W. J. Bailey nearly lost some of her wedding clothes, which she had sent from her old home in Kansas City to the executive mansion.

The clothes were in an ordinary packing case and were addressed to Governor W. J. Bailey, Topeka, Kans. This is the way the clothing for the flood sufferers had been sent and the governor ordered the box taken to the Auditorium.

Mrs. Bailey discovered in time that it was her own property and recovered it.

MADE FACES AT HIM.

Priest Reproved Choir and Congregation Walked Out.

Milwaukee, Wis., June 23.—Father Kebelker, priest of St. Veneyslaus Roman Catholic church, Sunday, at early mass, reproved his congregation and the members of the choir for improper behavior during church service. Every person in the congregation, as well as the choir, walked out.

The priest complained that members of the choir had been making faces at him while he was conducting service. For that offense he announced that he had removed two members of the choir, one of them being the young woman who played the organ.

Without a word the choir filed out of the organ loft. The 300 worshippers of the congregation followed in the footsteps of the choir, and the priest was left alone in an empty church. When the congregation gathered again for the forenoon services the doors were locked. No services were held, and none will be, the priest says, until penance has been done.

JOKE ON A SENATOR.

Amusing Incident at Commencement of Iowa "U."

Iowa City, Iowa, June 23.—Senator Hoar was the unconscious hero of an incident which marked the commencement exercises at the State university of Iowa. The senator delivered his address in a tent and his manuscript threatened to blow away.

Col. George R. Burnett of the United States army borrowed a knife from Rev. Dr. George L. Cady, chaplain of the university. This, as an improvised paper-weight the colonel placed upon Senator Hoar's manuscript. At the close of a particularly eloquent period Senator Hoar's hand came in contact with the knife, and he thrust it into his trousers pocket. The audience, having noticed the incident, burst into laughter. The speaker said something about the "jester never seeing the point of a joke," and proceeded with his addresss.

Later the senator was reproached by Dr. Cyrus Northrop, president of the University of Minnesota, for "preaching honesty to the boys of Iowa and the setting them such an example of misappropriation."

Then the affair was explained and Senator Hoar drew forth the "borrowed" knife and a knife case as well. The latter contained an exact duplicate of the instrument he had taken.

Senator Hoar had carried the duplicate of the borrowed knife continuously ever since he received it, forty years ago, from his wife.

Read what one of the GREATEST NEWSPAPERS IN AMERICA has to say on this subject:

"The manufacturers of Castoria have been compelled to spend hundreds of thousands of dollars to familiarize the public with the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. This has been necessitated by reason of pirates counterfeiting the Castoria trademark. This counterfeiting is a crime not only against the proprietors of Castoria, but against the growing generation. All persons should be careful to see that Castoria bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher, if they would guard the health of their children. Parents, and mothers in particular, ought to carefully examine the Castoria advertisements which have been appearing in this paper, and to remember that the wrapper of every bottle of genuine Castoria bears the fac-simile signature of Chas. H. Fletcher, under whose supervision it has been manufactured continuously for over thirty years."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Declines to Quit Ball Playing For $3000 a Year.

New York, June 23.—Playing ball and preaching to his Westchester flock is contentment compared to $3000 a year and black frocked dignity all the week around in Troy, to the mind of Rev. William D. Griffin of the Westchester Methodist Episcopal church.

Mr. Griffin relieved the anxious minds of his parishioners yesterday by announcing from his pulpit that the offer of a big flock in the upstart town at more than double his present salary would be refused. When the services closed and the happy deacons pressed around him to shake his hand and tell him how he had relieved their anxiety of the thought they were going to lose him, Rev. Mr. Griffin unfolded several of the reasons for his forbearance.

"Why, when they sent for me and told me they wanted me at $3000, I told them I wanted to think it over. I told them I played first base, pitched well, rode a bicycle, played tennis, and said I wasn't treating the cloth with lack of dignity if I continued at the manly sports.

"But the deacons up there shook their heads and said, 'No, no,' very firmly. They told me to think it over and I did. I sent them word this week that I would rather stay here and play ball at $1200 than go up there and not play ball at $3000. That was final and here I am."

Rev. Mr. Griffin is 29 years old, tall, broad shouldered and an all-round athlete.

RUSSO-CHINA AGREEMENT

Submitted, Which Seems Satisfactory to Both Countries

London, June 22.—According to the Pekin correspondent of the Times, Prince Ching, president of the foreign board, admits having submitted to M. Lessar, lately Russian charge d'affaires at Pekin a memorandum of an agreement between Russia and China regarding Manchuria and New Chwang which is now being discussed at St. Petersburg. He declines to intimate what the character of the Russo-China agreement is to the ministers of the other powers but there seems small doubt that the agreement is satisfactory to both China and Russia.

GO AHEAD WITH PARK.

Judge Lewis Refuses Baseball Opponents an Injunction.

St. Paul, June 23.—Judge Lewis in the district court yesterday dismissed the order to show cause and denied without prejudice the application for a temporary injunction to prevent the construction of a down town baseball park. The court held that the erection and maintenance of a ball park is not necessarily a nuisance, as alleged by the petitioners, and the latter may ask for an injunction later if they are able to prove any illegal disturbance by those attending games.

Work on the new park will be pushed and the first game there probably will be July 3.

BRITISH OFFICERS SAFE.

London, June 23.—An Aden dispatch to the Daily Telegraph says it is reported there that Gen. Manning, commanding the Somaliland expedition against the Mad Mullah and Col. Cobbe, who it was feared had been cut off near Damol have succeeded in joining their forces and reached Boholle in safety.

CLAUDE WINS RACE.

Easily Takes the Frontier Stakes at Detroit.

Detroit, Mich., June 23.—The Highland Park club's meeting opened with rain and mud yesterday but the attendance was very flattering and the club section was well filled. Claude, which finished second in the American derby, won the feature event, the Frontier stakes, in a common gallop. He was an even money favorite and indulged Sir Gallant with the lead to the middle of the home turn and then ran over him and won as he pleased by five lengths. Bank Street, carrying the colors of R. F. Meyers, finished third and there was only one behind. Reservation, Claude's conqueror in the International derby. The stake was valued at $2000.

POTATOES RUINED.

London, June 23.—Reports from the west of Ireland, Lancashire and other points state that thousands of acres of potatoes have been ruined by the present frost and rain. It is feared that the failure of the Irish potato crop will entail much hardship on the peasants.

STRIKE AT CIENFUEGOS.

Havana, June 23.—The shipping traffic at Cienfuegos is tied up by a strike of lightermen for higher wages. Heavy rains have caused overflows in some sections of the country. The cessation of cane grinding is everywhere complete.

PARKS RE-ELECTED.

New York, June 23.—Samuel Parks, who is under criminal charges in connection with the Heclo Iron works and other strikes, has been re-elected as one of the four walking delegates of the Housesmiths' and Bridgemen's union, according to the final count tonight, by the second largest vote polled in the balloting for delegates. President Neidig, who has fought Parks, was re-elected, but ran 250 votes behind Parks.

RESPONSE FEEBLE

Wheat Market Does Not Closely Follow Southwestern Lead.

St. Louis Has Sharp Bulge—Flax Has Considerable Reaction.

Duluth Board of Trade, June 23.—St. Louis was again actively bullish this morning and under the leadership of that market higher prices were made after an easy opening. The advance in other markets was moderate, however, and in St. Louis the bullish sentiment affected the July option almost altogether, the advance in that being 1½c, while in September it was only ½-¾c. In Chicago, July was ¾c higher and September ¼c lower. The Northwestern markets, Duluth and Minneapolis were rather indifferent to the Southwestern influence. Duluth July was unchanged and September ¾c lower, while Minneapolis July was ¾c up and September ⅛-¼c lower. In New York the advance in July was ¾c and in September there was a decline of ¼c.

During the morning some bullish feeling developed over the weekly crop summary of Illinois, which reported harvesting in progress in southern districts and yields disappointing not being more than from one-four to one-half a crop. It developed later, however, that these reports are the same that have been coming and in a way prior. The weather in foreign parts was reported fine. St. Louis reported heavy rain, but generally speaking the weather was good.

The Liverpool market closed 3d higher, Paris ¼c lower and Antwerp unchanged.

Primary receipts of wheat were 398,000 bus, last year 422,000 bus. Shipments 283,000 bus, last year 294,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour were 280,000 bus. Bradstreet reported a decrease of 3,065,000 bus in the world's visible supply of wheat.

Corn in the Liverpool market was ½@¾c higher and in Chicago July corn was off ⅜c. July oats declined ⅛c. Primary receipts of corn were 860,000 bus, last year 467,000 bus. Shipments 735,000 bus, last year 171,000 bus. Clearances were 413,000 bus. Bradstreet reported an increase of 1,520,000 bus in the world's visible supply of corn.

Trading in wheat was light on the Duluth board. September opened ¼c off 75⅝c, sold at 76c at 10:53 and settled back to 75¾c three minutes later. After bidding steady there for some time it fell off to 75¾c at 12:40, rallied to 75⅞c and closed at 75¾c. This was ⅜c off. July closed unchanged at 83¼c and sold as high as 83⅝c.

Cash sales were 25,000 bus at July price for No. 1 northern and 1¼c under for No. 2.

A little flax is being sold for export every day. Today it amounted to about three loads. If the break in flax had continued a considerable amount could have been worked, but there was an advance of 2c in the July option during the morning, it selling to $1.13¾ after an unchanged opening at 92c. The close was at $1.01½, which was 1⅝c off. October and November declined the same, but September was only off 1¼c.

There was an advance of ¼c in oats.

Following are the closing prices:

Wheat to arrive: No. 1 hard, 85c; No. 1 northern, 83¾c; No. 2 northern, 82c; July, 83¼c; September, 75¾c; December, 75½c. THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Considerable Liquidation In Wheat on Improved Weather.

Chicago, June 23.—There was considerable liquidation in wheat today early in the session on improved harvesting weather in the Southwest, predictions of rains in the Northwest and on the indifferent cables, and opening prices were easier, July being ¾c to ⅞c lower at 77¾c to 78c with September ¼c to ⅝c lower at 75⅜c to 75⅝c. The market was 1.51 particularly active, the only feature being a fair demand for July from shorts, which caused a firmer feeling in that option, but other months were steady. Duluth and Minneapolis reported receipts of 321 cars, which with local receipts of 48 cars, one of contract grade, made total receipts for the three points of 369 cars, against 258 cars last week and 284 cars a year ago.

There was a firm undertone in the market throughout the day on buying by the Southwest and Northwest, as well as by local traders. July sold up to 78⅝c, declined again to 77⅝c, but closed firm at 78¼c.

Corn opened easier on liberal receipts and improved weather, July being ⅞c to ⅞c lower at 46¾c to 46⅞c, and September ⅝c to ¾c lower, at 49¾c to 49⅝c. Trading was quiet and prices showed little change the first hour. Local receipts were 357 cars, with 137 of contract grade.

The close was steady with July ⅛c lower at 46⅝c, and September unchanged at 50⅛c.

With the exception of the July delivery oats opened easier in sympathy with the weakness in other grains and on more favorable weather and larger receipts. Shorts were good buyers of July, which caused that option to open unchanged to ⅛c up at 40⅜c to 40⅝c, but September was ⅛c to ¼@⅜c lower, at 29@29⅝c. Trading was very dull and prices held steady the early part of the day. Local receipts were 423 cars.

Trading in provisions was practically at a standstill with prices steady, the September products opening unchanged at $16.57½ for pork, $8.85 for lard and $9.25 for ribs.

Close: Wheat—July, 78¼c; old, 79c; September, 75¾c; old, 76½c; December, 75½c; old, 75¾c. Corn, June, 49¾c; July, 50¼c; September, 50⅛c; December, 48⅝@48¾c. May, 48¼c. Oats, June, 40⅛c; July, 40⅝c; September, 33⅜c; December, 32¼@32⅝c. Pork, July, $16.50; September, $16.70. Lard, July, $8.57½; September, $8.70; October, $8.82½. GRAIN GOSSIP.

Chicago Record-Herald: The sentiment in wheat continues very susceptible to whatever relates to the crop condition. The speculator's memory recurs to the wet harvest of last summer, and the spectacular floods of early June this year in the Southwest keep his fears acute. The market responds to about every claim of crop trouble, no matter from what direction and without much regard to its character. The Southwestern bulls continued last week their narrative of winter wheat losses, and there were claims from the Northwest of threatening dry weather. Advances of 1c to 2c resulted. That there is about the same mental condition among the speculators everywhere is evidenced by the simultaneous advances in all the markets. The Northwestern dry weather talk moved the Minneapolis and Duluth markets a little faster than this, although there was the assurance from most of the Northwestern people there was little basis as yet for any dry weather fears. But the grain speculator has been made emotional by his recent weather experiences.

The movement of the new wheat market is just at hand. The winter wheat Southwest has had a week of harvesting with the conditions very favorable. The territory which contributes the first grain to market has a good deal more than one thing last. Texas and Oklahoma have doubled last year's yield, and these two wheat raisers and Kansas will have about 40,000,000 bus in excess of last year. A fortnight of fine weather for the harvester and shipper should put a great deal of winter wheat on the move. The 5c advance within the past month will make the marketing freer. The existence of the July corner at St. Louis is another incentive for prompt movement. There is another incentive for prompt movement. There is now almost 80c for the Southwestern wheat man who can get No. 2 red to that market. There was new winter wheat received in this market last year on June 23. That was just before the heavy rains began, and the new grain began coming here freely by July 1. With good weather St. Louis should have new wheat this week. The harvest conditions in the Southwest are now the important factor. The Sunday map showed rains in the spring wheat states with more promise by the predictions.

The speculative market is a commission traders' affair, with no leadership. The big interests act as if they expected some concession in prices during the movement, but are apparently doing nothing except scalping or changing. The Southwest has led in the bull efforts, and the money has been made during June by those who took the St. Louis advance and accepted its crop reports.

* * *

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—The market has been rather quieter, and closed a little easier than yesterday. Rain is predicted in the Northwest and this caused quite a little scattered liquidation. The general undertone of the market is not, however, weak, we think. Cash wheat and the nearby options still maintain a strong tone and the whole market is still without selling pressure of any moment. The Illinois state crop report gives a very discouraging condition in the southern part of the state, not over one-half or one-quarter crop, and intimates that the general crop will be much lower than expectations. We are inclined to expect the same results from a good part of Ohio and from Indiana, Kentucky, Tennessee and Missouri. Broomhall cables that the weather is very unsatisfactory both in the United Kingdom and France, and, in fact, in general throughout Europe. With these conditions the Northwest situation is by no means the whole thing. Should ample rains come in that section, any material decline, we think, is unlikely and its effect is only momentary. We should advise buying wheat on soft spots.

Corn—The market is quiet and steady. There were no speculative operations of interest, but only a moderate general trade. The cash conditions remain unchanged. Temperatures continue lower over the corn belt, but the general trend of the reports is that the backwardness of the crop will improve. As long as the weather keeps cool and farmers' deliveries small, it may be too soon to sell corn, but it is too high for us to advise its purchase.

Oats—The same conditions in oats that prevail in corn. The weather is favorable for the crop and its general appearance is good. On any weakening in the cash position we would sell December and September oats.

New York wires that Ridgley says a good many shrewd people are predicting still higher prices for wheat and corn. The world's visible supply of wheat is probably without exception the smallest ever known. The foreign crop outlook is not promising. Our wheat crop will be of average size, price of wheat will go higher, over 80, possibly 90c a bushel.

Liverpool: The following is a condensation of the foreign crop situation as published today by Broomhall:

United Kingdom—Crops are looking good but are backward and continued fine weather is absolutely necessary to maintain present condition.

France—The past week has been very unfavorable for wheat and it is feared cool weather will cause a reduced yield. Farmers deliveries are small.

Germany—Wheat is progressing slowly owing to unseasonable cool weather.

Russia and Roumania—Heavy rains fell last week but stopped in time to prevent serious damage. Prospects are still good, but further rains are most undesirable.

Italy and Spain—The outlook continues generally favorable.

Australia—Conditions of newly planted wheat is good acreage is smaller than last year.

APATHY IN TRADING

Caused a Sagging Tendency In New York Stock Market.

Sharp Advance In the Last Hour Was Not Held.

New York, June 23.—Metropolitan Securities jumped 4 points at the opening on the court's refusal to dissolve the lease of the Metropolitan Street Railway to the Interurban company. Metropolitan Street Railway rose ¾. The opening movement of prices generally was sluggish and irregular and dealings were on an insignificant scale.

The market showed some disposition to harden, but the movement did not extend beyond a good fraction in St. Paul and Reading. Some buying of other stocks helped them, but the general movement was hardly noticeable. Metropolitan Street Railway rose to 124 and Metropolitan Securities to 82, while Virginia-Carolina Chemical preferred declined ¼ and Sugar and Continental Tobacco preferred 1.

The market was practically stagnant. The buying was attributed to reports of better weather for the crops, but the movement was insignificant and gave way to a sagging tendency, due to the apathy of the trading. St. Louis Southwestern preferred lost 1¾, Minneapolis, St. Paul & Soo 1½ and the preferred 1¼. Bonds were irregular and very dull at noon.

But little of interest developed in the way of price fluctuations after midday except for a 2-point gain in Colorado Fuel. Lackawanna advanced a point and Virginia-Carolina Chemical pfd fully rallied as much. Railway Investment pfd declined.

Colorado Fuel continued on its upward course and touched 65⅞, a rise of 3⅝. The convertible 5s made a similar gain. Chicago & Alton advanced a point. Otherwise the tendency was drooping, some large sales of Pennsylvania inverting it 2 below yesterday's close and depressed the list in sympathy. Metropolitan Securities reacted 1½. American Hide & Leather pfd. lost 1¼, and Reading first pfd. 1.

The violence of the fluctuations in Colorado Fuel indicated a distressed short interest. The stock rose at 64¼, reacted over 1 point, soared by ½-point intervals to 65¾, an extreme rise of 3⅝. The list stiffened in sympathy after Pennsylvania had sold below 124. Tennessee Coal rose 2¾. Gas & Electric Bag 1¾. Prices rose to the best of the day, pulling St. Paul, Union Pacific, Missouri Pacific, Canadian Pacific, Atchison, the Wabashes, Reading, Amalgamated Copper and Realty pfd. 1 to 1½ over last night. The market showed more animation than at any other time during the day. The advances were not held and the closing was dull and heavy.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Waldorf to Coe Commission Co.: There are indications that the Weil clique and Gates gang have renewed their attacks on the market, being inspired by the disappointing bank statement, the engagement of $2,500,000 gold for export and the fact that speculation is stagnant. Good fact that speculation is stagnant. Good houses, however, continue bullish for the pull and advise the purchase of standard stocks on reactions. They argue that the favorable factors in the situation outweigh the unfavorable ones. The former consist of improved crop conditions, signs that the labor situation is becoming normal and the non-fulfilment of pessimistic prediction as to the effects of the floods on the earnings of the roads. Losses in the latter are proving less than expected. Indeed, the fact that the western corn deliveries by rail for the week just closed were 795,000 bushels more than in the preceding week and 100,000 bushels more than corresponding week last year more than corresponding week last year more than compensate for the loss of current earnings. The low bank reserves and the gold exports lead to the belief that the secretary of the treasury before the summer is over will issue a call for bonds. Speculators for a decline are devoting their efforts to the traction stocks selecting Metropolitan and Brooklyn Rapid Transit. Conservative sentiment on these stocks is conflicting, bearish on the former but bullish on the latter. The recent testimony of President Vreeland, of the Metropolitan company, has evidently given holders of Metropolitan thought with the result that investment is dribbled out whenever the market will take. Mr. Vreeland's statement that the greatest surface traction system in the world had failed to earn dividends by a wide margin and disappointing current earnings are influences which will, it is believed, carry the Metropolitan shares down to par. Apropos of earnings much adverse has been evolved by the fact that the company's statement for quarter due five weeks ago has not yet been published. Brooklyn Rapid Transit is being bought on a scale by the interest represented by Flower & Co., its experience as to earnings in the reverse of th Metropolitan for it is understood increases being made both in net and gross despite unseasonable weather. Comment is made that this drive at traction stocks failed to unsettle the railroad list, which encourage the belief that in such stocks as St. Paul, Pennsylvania, New York Central, Missouri Pacific, Baltimore & Ohio, United Pacific, Wabash, Reading and Erie the market liquidation has spent its force.

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market is closing strong and higher. The early dullness and the efforts of the bears the last few days have succeeded in creating no liquidation of long stocks. Except for the pressure of short selling, the market is being subjected to considerable investment buying and we would buy on the breaks for moderate profits.

Ridgley to W. H. Laidley & Co.: A good many predict higher prices for wheat and corn. The visible supply of the world is probably smallest ever known for wheat. The foreign crop outlook is not promising. Our wheat crop will be at least of average size and no doubt there will be a good market for it probably above the average. This is surely no bear argument, although the pessimists would have us believe so. An advance in wheat would be due to forget ahead and not to crop damage. I should look on it rather as a bull factor. A period of dullness, followed by activity toward the end of the week and up to July 3 with higher prices. Yesterday on top of a disappointing bank statement bad crop news and gold exports there was little pressure to sell. The one thing I do not like is that newspapers are too bullish, just as they have been for months past. As a rule the press gets bearish at bull campaigns. Market will doubtless have its rallies and reactions, but no decided upward movement until more is known about the crops.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, June 23.—The cotton market opened easy at an advance of 5 points to a decline of 4 points and subsequently showed unimportant variations, pending the weekly crop report from Washington, due at noon. The volume of business was small, cables coming about as expected and the weather cheap and general crop news being of a conflicting character, which led to hesitation in grading in either side of the account. There was some realizing and bear pressure on the new crop positions, but at best it was a tame market throughout the forenoon.

Cotton spot closed quiet, 40 points higher; middling uplands, 12.50; middling gulf, 13.15; sales, none. Cotton futures closed firm; June, 12.79; July, 12.84; August, 12.49; September, 11.38; October, 10.32; November, 9.99; December, 9.93; January, 9.90.

IN MARINE CIRCLES

Tug O. W. Cheney Sunk By the Propeller Chemung.

Captain, Steward and Fireman of Tug Were Drowned.

Buffalo, June 23.—The Great Lakes tug O. W. Cheney was run down by the propeller Chemung early today about seven miles up the lake. Three members of the tug's crew were drowned, as follows:

CAPT. JOHN WHELAN.
ANDY SHAFER, Steward.
EDDIE DUGAN, fireman.

The engineer, James T. Byers and the other fireman, were picked up by the tug Frank S. Butler and brought to this city.

The Cheney had gone up to the lake to meet the Chemung and tow her into port. As the tug neared the propeller and drew close to take the line she ran under the bow of the Chemung. The propeller's bow hit the tug amidships, capsizing and sinking it.

RECORD'S CLOSE CALL.

Tug Nearly Has Another Serious Accident.

The tug Record of the Great Lakes fleet is said to have narrowly escaped sinking for the fourth time in her history at the Mesaba ore dock last night.

According to the story told by the tugmen the Record had just backed away from the West side of No. 1 dock when a loaded ore car came over the end of the dock striking the water at a spot where the Record had been but a moment before. Had the tug been a moment later it is likely that she would now be resting at the bottom of the bay together with the bodies of her entire crew. The accident occurred about midnight.

The Record has been very unfortunate in her career as a tug, having been sunk three times and had the ore car done the trick again last night it would probably have settled the staunch little tug for good.

REPAIRING EXCELSIOR.

Repairs are being made to the tug Excelsior which was recently damaged by being hurled under a falling lumber pile. The pilot house which was totally demolished in being rebuilt.

It is expected that the repairs will be completed before the end of the week.

The tug Zenith has come out of the "boxes" after being thoroughly overhauled and repainted.

NOT MUCH CHARTERING.

Chicago, June 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—Business was fairly well cleaned up with yesterday's heavy chartering, and not much was done today in the grain trade. Vesselmen greatly regret that they are unable to advance rates, but there seems to be no chance now of doing that until the receipts of grain are more than doubled.

David Frankfort Makes Tearful Promises For the Future.

His Manifest Repentance Gets Him Off With a Fine.

Standing before Judge Dibell in district court this morning, with tears running down his cheeks, David Frankfort, a young man convicted of swindling a woodsman out of his watch, made a strong plea to the court for mercy. It was a scene of most dramatic interest, so earnest was the defendant in his plea and his promises to live honestly and uprightly henceforth.

After he completed his plea to the court, Judge Dibell sentenced him to pay a fine of $400, in default of which he is to be imprisoned in the county jail at hard labor for a period not to exceed six months. In passing sentence the court remarked that while the fine was not nearly so heavy a punishment as might be inflicted for the offense for which Frankfort stood convicted, yet to a young man in his circumstances it would be heavy enough. The court said that for every day the defendant spends in the county jail he will be credited $1.50 on the amount of his fine.

"It may not be in my province to give you advice, Mr. Frankfort," said the court, after sentence was passed, "but when you are through with this trouble, take the advice of your friends, many of whom have come to see me, and attend to a strictly legitimate line of work, one which will not lay any grounds for suspicion against you."

Frankfort's case has some peculiar features. He was indicted and convicted of switching a "phony" watch on a woodsman through some sleight-of-hand trick while the latter was purchasing a watch chain in the store where Frankfort was employed as a clerk.

Some time before Frankfort got into the present trouble he caused the arrest of a young man by the name of David Fosner, on the charge of trying to pass a forged check. The check turned out to be genuine and Fosner brought an action for damages against Frankfort and the police department for the wounds given his feelings. The jury found a verdict for the department against the plaintiff, but rendered a verdict of $25 in his favor against Frankfort.

Frankfort was also the state's witness in a case of forgery against Charles Harris. The latter pleaded guilty to the charge, avoiding the expense of a trial, and was given a reformatory sentence.

A number of young men, friends of young Frankfort, were in court this morning when he received sentence and discussed among themselves the prospect of raising the amount of his fine, but up to this afternoon the outlook was that he would serve out his time.

O. HALDEN DID IT

Settles Controversy Over Reducing Northern Pacific's Assessment.

Refuses to Approve the Action of the County Board.

That reduction of $50,000 in Northern Pacific taxes recently granted by the board of county commissioners will not be approved by County Auditor Halden, and the incident is therefore closed without the fight contemplated by the city administration in opposition to the county board's action.

The city officers interested in opposing this reduction of taxes were not aware of the position or the authority of the county auditor in this matter until this morning. City Attorney Mitchell had even gone to St. Paul for the purpose of arranging a date upon which the city's objections could be heard before the state auditor before the final step should be taken in reducing the railway corporation's taxes.

Mayor Hugo says that information obtained today places the matter in an entirely different light, and that the fight against reduction is practically won, through Mr. Halden's action, without the city so much as lifting a finger. It is a closed incident, and the Northern Pacific will have to pay taxes on the full amount of the assessment.

In petitioning the county board for a reduction in taxes on property located along the Duluth water front, the Northern Pacific company claimed that the city was not dealing fairly with the railway corporation in that it was assessing Northern Pacific property much higher than similar property owned by others.

In reply to these charges the city, through Assessor Watson, placed a list of comparative assessments with the county board showing a number of instances where Northern Pacific water front property was assessed at less than some other property in the same neighborhood. For instance submerged lots in block 1, Bay Front division, owned by the Northern Pacific, were assessed for $750 while submerged lots directly across the slip owned by others was assessed at $2750. In a letter from the city assessor's office to the county auditor, on May 16, the following statement was made:

"We can see no good reason why the assessment on Northern Pacific property should be reduced. The statements made in the Northern Pacific petition that the property of that corporation is assessed higher in proportion to actual value than property in general throughout the city, is erroneous and misleading.

"The fact that the Northern Pacific is now and has been making extensive improvements on and about the property which it asks a reduction in taxes on should be considered sufficient proof that this property is constantly improving in value."

CANADIAN CASHIER HELD.

New York, June 23.—Hamilton C. Wallace formerly cashier of the Canadian Banks of Commerce, at Sarnia, Canada, was held in $1000 bail today upon his confession that he was wanted on a charge of absconding with $55S belonging to a Sarnia bank. He surrendered voluntarily.

WILL HAVE FIRST TERM

Cook County Will Have a District Court Term.

Cook county will begin to feel next Thursday that it is indeed growing.

It will then have the first term of district court in its history.

Judge Cant will leave tomorrow morning for Grand Marais to open the term, which will probably be short. There is no necessity of convening a grand jury, as Cook county citizens have refrained from crimes of a nature serious enough to warrant a session, and it is not likely that the entire term will last more than half a day.

This term is held under a new law, passed at the last legislature, giving Lake county two terms instead of one, and giving Cook county a term to be held on the last Thursday in June of each year.

LIEUT. CURRIE IS VERY ILL

Is Now In St. Paul—May Be Brought to Duluth.

Lieut. John N. Currie, an old Duluth boy who has won his shoulder straps and civil distinction in the Philippines, may be brought to Duluth today or in the near future from St. Paul, where he lies seriously sick in one of the hospitals. Relatives from this city have gone to St. Paul with the express purpose of bringing him to Duluth if he is in condition to be moved.

It was known here several weeks ago that Lieut. Currie and Mrs. Currie, a Duluth young lady formerly known as Miss Florence Rackle, were on their way back to the states from Northern Luzon, where the lieutenant has been treasurer of a province. It was not known until he reached this country, even by his relatives, that his old wound and the Philippine climate had combined to shatter the health of Duluth's popular soldier. He has been granted a year's leave of absence and intended, had he been able, to have gone to his old home near Ottawa, Canada, where his parents still reside.

Lieut. Currie was formerly employed at the local branch house of the Hammond Packing company. At the outbreak of the Spanish American war he enlisted as a private under Capt. George Gibson of this city, and was sent to the Philippines. Here he gradually won distinction by valiant and able service, and climbed up in the ranks until he gained the shoulder straps. Some time ago he was appointed to the position of treasurer of one of the Philippine provinces, a position carrying both civil distinction and a lucrative salary.

MOOSE AT GOLF CLUB.

Two of Them Take a Turn on the Links.

The lack of cold weather has caused a scarcity of wolves in Duluth, so two moose endeavored to preserve Duluth's reputation as a zoo garden this morning.

They were fashionable moose and appeared on the golf links of the North Land Golf club, at Fortieth avenue east.

Donald Ross, who is in charge of the grounds and acts as instructor for beginners, thought he had a new line of players, but when he saw them cleek across the sward and go into the "7" and "4" holes with such precision that it injured the flags, he figured it would be no use to attempt to teach them anything.

The animals, Mr. Ross says, had no antlers. They appeared over the brow of the hill, walking slowly, and came down the whole length of the grounds, running into one or two flags which had just been put out.

The animals, after making due inspection, gracefully jumped the fence, skipped across the road and went down on the lake shore.

Mr. Ross did not disturb the morning constitutional of the animals, and sat down and watched them as they went over the course, and then afterwards went out and smoothed over the turf they had kicked up.

MINISTERS LEAVE

Representatives of England, France, Holland and Turkey Depart.

Will Not Be In Belgrade When King Peter Arrives.

Belgrade, June 23.—The British minister to Servia left here this morning for London.

It is understood that the first bill to be submitted to King Peter will be one prepared by the minister of justice granting amnesty for all political offenses.

In accordance with instructions from their governments, the ministers of France, Holland and Turkey left Belgrade this afternoon. King Peter's train, which left Geneva yesterday evening, passed through Innesbruick, Austria, this afternoon. The king was enthusiastically welcomed there by the Servian and Croatian students. The king will arrive here at 10 o'clock to morrow morning. The foreign ministers who remain here intend going to the railroad station informally in frock coats instead of uniforms.

Paris, June 23.—Although the French minister at Belgrade was not given specific orders to withdraw, the officials here say that the instructions sent gave him full liberty to adopt such a course if the majority of his diplomatic colleagues left the Servian capital.

Reports received here from other capitals showed there was a strong tendency to make an emphatic expression of abhorrence at Servia's tragedies.

A prominent French official said the action of the powers would have added significance, coming at the moment when King Peter was assuming authority.

Commenting on the Belgrade reports that Servia was in a defiant mood, the official declared that Servia's position would soon become untenable if the power act together.

The Hague, June 23.—The minister of the Netherlands at Belgrade has been instructed to leave that city before the arrival of King Peter at the Servian capital.

CASE RESPONDS

To Detroit Mayor's Welcome to Waterworks Association.

Detroit, June 23.—Nearly 300 members of the American Waterworks association are attending the twenty-second annual convention of the association which is in session at the Hotel Cadillac here. At the first session, L. N. Case, of Duluth, Minn., vice president of the association, responded to Mayor Maybury's speech of welcome. President C. H. Campbell, of Charlotte, N. C., then made his annual address, followed by the report of Secretary-Treasurer J. M. Diven, of Elmira, N. Y. This showed that the association has a total membership of 349, an increase of seventy-two over last year. The finances are in satisfactory shape. The reports of several committees were also made. This afternoon special papers on technical subjects were delivered.

POWERFUL.

A Pure Food Drink Has Great Sustaining Power.

The sustaining power of Postum Coffee when properly cooked is greater than most people imagine, and it is well illustrated in the story told by a young Texas woman, who says: "I almost lived on Postum Cereal Coffee for over a month, and there was over a week I did not eat anything at all, but just drank the food drink Postum, and yet I grew stronger and gained weight.

"Our family physician examined Postum and decided to use it altogether in place of coffee. We all think it has no equal as a nourishment for the sick, for besides being pleasant to the taste, it is so strengthening. My father and mother have always been coffee drinkers and suffered all kinds of troubles from the coffee until about a year ago a neighbor was praising Postum and mother decided to try it.

"They improved at once and have drank Postum ever since, and mother, who used to be bothered with nervousness and sleeplessness particularly, is in splendid health now. She says the change came entirely from drinking Postum and leaving off coffee." Name given by Postum company, Battle Creek, Mich.

PAID FOR HELP.

Deal Over Iron Lands Is Recorded.

An agreement, dated May 15, 1903, made between A. M. Bevier, of West Superior, Wis., and John and Friederike Bader, was filed with the county register of deeds this morning. In consideration of the efforts which have already been made by Mr. Bevier in selling certain lands belonging to the other parties in the agreement, the former is given the exclusive control of the south half of the northeast quarter of section 20, 61-14, until Aug. 15, 1904, to either buy it himself for $25,000, or to make a sale to any other person or persons to whom a sufficient warranty deed will be issued. The tract contains 120 acres, and is said to contain iron ore.

REACH AGREEMENT.

Assessment For Lake Avenue Paving Will Proceed.

The hearing in the injunctional proceedings of certain Lake avenue property owners against the city, which was scheduled for yesterday afternoon in district court, did not materialize. The city is about to make an assessment on the Lake avenue property owners to pay for the paving of the avenue from Superior street to the canal.

The property owners started proceedings to stop the assessment on the ground that the railroads should be compelled to pay the cost of paving the avenue from Superior to Sutphin street because of the viaduct.

The hearing did not come up because an agreement was reached by the plaintiffs and the city that the latter should go ahead and make the assessment to cover the cost of paving the avenue from Sutphin street to the canal, and then bring mandamus proceedings to compel the railroad company to pay for the expense of paving from Superior street to Sutphin street. The property owners were represented by J. B. Richards and M. Douglas.

FROM RAINY LAKE.

Inspectors Monaghan and Chalk Return Home.

Capt. Monaghan and M. F. Chalk, the local officials of the United States steamboat inspection service, will return today from a trip to the Rainy Lake district.

It was expected that the officials of the Dubuque office would take the trip to Rainy Lake this year as the supervising inspector of the district is in Washington attending the special meeting of the board and could not take the place of the local officials during their absence, but the Dubuque officials were unable to go and the local inspectors left last Tuesday.

During their absence they have inspected a large number of boats of Rainy lake, Rainy river and adjoining bodies of water. The trip is an annual one taken each summer.

Not Known Here.

A dispatch from Glendive, Mont., says that D. Miller, of Duluth, died yesterday afternoon on the Northern Pacific westbound passenger train No. 3, near Sentilen Butte, N. D.

The dispatch also says that he was enroute to Seattle for the benefit of his health and was accompanied by his daughter, Mrs. Charles Leonard, wife of a fireman running between Duluth and Staples. The body was taken off the train at Glendive and will be brought here for interment.

The local directory does not contain the name of either Mr. Miller or Mrs. Leonard and the local Northern Pacific officials do not know any further particulars of the death.

OPPOSITION WITHDRAWN.

Irish Land Bill Will Be Speedily Passed.

London, June 23.—A compromise was reached today between the nationalist landlords and the government whereby serious opposition to the Irish land bill is withdrawn, and unless unexpected difficulties arise the measure, which comes up again in the house of commons tomorrow, is likely to be speedily passed. The compromise consists in the landlords' acceptance of an amendment to clause one, enlarging the purchasing rights of tenants.

SOME ARE READY.

Other Crews Have Much Yet to Do.

Poughkeepsie, June 23.—There was another steady, cold rain today, but excepting Cornell's eight, it did not prevent the practice of the college crews. Coach Courtney says the Cornells are as ready to race now as they ever will be. The same may be said of the Columbia and Pennsylvania varsity eights, and both of the Wisconsin crews, but Columbia's newly boated freshmen, Pennsylvania freshmen, Georgetown's varsity and both of the Syracuse eights will be worked assiduously up to the very last minute.

ATTACKED BY STRIKERS.

Three Men Arrested For Assaulting a Foreman.

Chicago, June 23.—J. F. Turney, foreman of the Kellogg Switchboard company, was attacked by three men, said to be strikers, while on his way to work today, and severely beaten. George Simonds, Samuel Johnson and William Kochler were later arrested and identified by the victim. They were held for a hearing, June 30. The defendants are said to be former employes of the company, but for several weeks have been on a strike.

CLARK HOWELL

Sees Danger to Party In Grover's Ambition.

Atlanta, Ga., June 23.—Clark Howell, Democratic national committeeman and editor of the Constitution, sees in Grover Cleveland's denial of the Bailey interview, evidence that the former president is a candidate for a third term. Mr. Howell says:

"Either he is a receptive candidate for a fourth nomination and is confident that he could be chosen for a third time to the presidency or he is not. The interview said he was not. Mr. Cleveland says the interview was full of falsehood. Mr. Cleveland has not effaced himself from the candidatorial list, and is indignant that any one else should report him as thus self-effaced.

"With Mr. Cleveland thus revealed the problems most perilous to the party remain open, and its leaders must withdraw their attention from the common enemy and devote their skill to preventing the wrong of a third-term endeavor by Mr. Cleveland's behalf that would bring upon the party greater odium and defeat than any it has suffered in all its history."

IOWA DEMOCRATS LIKELY TO KNOCK OUT ANY SILVER PLANK

Silverities Will Fight the Proposition Hard.

Chairman Quick Talks on Public Ownership.

Des Moines, June 24.—With the delegates evenly divided upon the reaffirmation of the Kansas City platform, the state Democratic convention was called to order at 11 o'clock this morning in the new auditorium by A. E. Jackson, of Tama, chairman of the state central committee. A conference was held this morning by the followers of the silver idea, and it was decided to fight to the end any desire to keep out of the platform to be adopted reference to the Kansas City plank. S. C. Brewster, of Ottumwa, is the leader of the silverites, while Judge Van Wagenen, of Sioux City, is looked upon as leading the anti-silver crowd. But two candidates are in the field for the nomination of governor—J. B. Sullivan, of Creston, and Judge Adam Van Wagenen of Sioux City. J. H. Quick, of Sioux City, was introduced as temporary chairman, and in addressing the convention, spoke as follows:

This convention is evidence that its members are not entirely satisfied with the prevailing conditions in state and nation. We are both protesting against things which we condemn and demanding remedies. Unless there are governmental conditions deserving of our denunciation we might better have remained at home, and joined in the paean of prosperity so loudly sung by the Republican press and platform. Our presence here is proof that there are wrongs of which we know. Such being the case, unless we can offer to the people remedies, our deliberations will end in failure; for, however useful may be the office of the physician who points out diseases, that of the healer who brings cure is the only one which a great political party should emulate. The party which lays bare its opponent's mistakes does less than half its duty. It must be for things as well as against things, if it would be called to power or retained in it.

Within the past few years we have all become conscious of a great and ominous change in the conditions under which we live, a change which fills every thoughtful man with regret and foreboding, a change which has crept across

THE GLUTTON: "I WILL NOT LEAVE MY MEAL TO HELP ANYONE."

KING PETER ARRIVES AT SERVIAN CAPITAL

Is Enthusiastically Received By People.

But Two Foreign Diplomats Remained In City.

Belgrade, Servia, June 24.—King Peter arrived here at 10 o'clock this morning. He was received with great enthusiasm.

The ministers, government officials, judges, municipal and military authorities and leading citizens were assembled on the platform of the railroad station, which was profusely decorated. The only foreign representatives who participated in the reception of the king were the Russian minister, M. Karatoff, and the Austrian minister, Herr Dumba, with the members of their respective legations. A guard of honor, with a band, saluted as King Peter descended from his car and greeted the cabinet ministers. The premier, M. Avakuovics, introduced the Russian minister to the king and the Russian presented the Austrian minister.

A procession was then formed and the king proceeded to the cathedral. The streets were lined with troops and crowded with people, who had been pouring into Belgrade from the provinces during the last day or two.

After the celebration of mass, which was attended by all the splendor of the Eastern church, King Peter drove in state to the new palace.

Although the king's entry into Belgrade was disinguished by a diplomatic boycott, his reception by the people was everywhere marked by heartiness, which approached genuine enthusiasm, in which all classes participated. The officials were in uniform and wore all their decorations.

Workmen were engaged all night long in finishing the erection of Venetian masts and triumphal arches and some of the latter were only completed as the firing of guns announced King Peter's entry into his realm, when the train traversed the bridge connecting Servia with Austria.

In the procession to the cathedral the king occupied a state coach. He was accompanied by Premier Avakumovics. Along the entire route were deputations from various Servian towns and bodies of students. The occupants of the windows and balconies threw bouquets at the king's carriage. The number of peasants in the street was remarkable. Many of them came from far distant provinces to attend the festivities and enjoy the free entertainments provided by the government.

The ceremony at the cathedral lasted half an hour. The edifice was crowded. One portion of it was set apart for the military and another was allotted to the civilians. Only a few women were present.

Just previous to the arrival of the king the doors of the high altar were closed and not a single priest was visible. Suddenly, from the outside of the cathedral came the sound of cheering, signalling the approach of King Peter. The doors of the high altar were then opened and a solemn procession of gorgeously robed priests and members of the choir emerged, preceded by incense bearers and followed by the venerable metropolitan in brilliant apparel. The procession halted at the main entrance of the cathedral, while the soldiers drawn up in front of the building at a word of command greeted the king with loud cheers.

The king's arrival has awakened the people out of their attitude of indifference which they had assumed since the assassination of King Alexander and Queen Draga. From the moment King Peter left the train the band welcomed him with playing the Servian national anthem, his progress was followed by prolonged cheers and exultant shouts of "Long live Peter the first!" wherever he appeared. The premier made a speech before the king's departure from the railroad station, welcoming his majesty, who, in a brief reply, expressed his appreciation of his election to the throne. The king then exchanged greetings with the cabinet ministers, including Col. Machin, minister of public works, who took a leading part in the assassinations, and interchanged compliments with the Russian and Austrian ministers.

During the ceremony at the cathedral the metropolitan delivered a short address and prayed God to help the Servian people.

On leaving the cathedral King Peter was again welcomed with shouts of "Long live the king!" After his arrival at the new palace, the king received an address of welcome from the skupshtina.

Washington, June 24.—It is learned at the state department that United States Minister Jackson has left Belgrade on his return to Athens, to which capital he is also accredited, via Constantinople. He has not presented his credentials to King Peter—in fact, they have not yet been prepared at the state department—and his course will be in line with that adopted by the diplomatic representatives of Great Britain, Germany, France and other countries which have, up to date, refused to recognize the new Servian government.

LAKE SUPERIOR IRON COMPANY'S CELEBRATION IS POSTPONED

On Account of the Inclement Weather at Ishpeming —Drilling and Wrestling Contests, Speeches, Barbecue and Log Burling Contest on Program.

Ishpeming, Mich., June 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Lake Superior Iron company's celebration of the semi-centennial of the Lake Superior iron ore industry has been postponed until Thursday or Friday, owing to the inclement weather which prevails today. Great preparations have been made for the event, and the postponement has caused considerable disappointment. Prominent iron men are here from Duluth and other points, including James Gayley, first vice president of the United States Steel corporation; Thomas F. Cole, general manager of the Steel corporation's iron mines, and others, and it was said that 10,000 people would take part in the exercises and festivities arranged for today. Bad weather, however, has made a short postponement necessary. All the mines were closed down last night, and the banks and business houses had agreed to close for the day.

The main festivities will take pace at Lake Superior grove, and the company has expended a good-sized sum in getting the grounds in good condition. The festivities will begin at 9 o'clock, when the drillers and wrestlers will start their work. The speeches and other exercises at the stand will start at 10 o'clock. They included introductory remarks by James Gayley, a historical sketch of the Lake Superior Iron company by Hon. Peter White. Addresses by H. O. Young, Thomas F. Cole and W. H. Johnston, and presentation of service certificates to employes of the Lake Superior company. When these exercises are finished there will be a grand barbecue. For the afternoon a log burling contest on Lake Bancroft will be the chief attraction.

SPECIAL ATTORNEYS WILL PROSECUTE P. O. OFFICIALS

Under Instructions From President, Attorney General Knox Names Two to Assist In the Cases Against Dishonest Government Officials.

Washington, June 24.—The president has sent the following letter to the attorney general:

White House, Washington, June 22, 1903.

Sir:—As you know the charges in connection with the postoffice department are now being investigated by Fourth Assistant Postmaster-General Bristow, who has had placed at his disposal by the postmaster general every resource of the department, including the services of Mr. Rolb, whom you detailed from the department of justice to the postoffice department immediately after the removal of Mr. Tyner. As a result of this investigation a number of indictments have already been held and it is probable that other indictments will hereafter be asked for. There can be no greater offense against the government than a breach of trust on the part of a public official, or the dishonest management of his office, and, of course, every effort must be exerted to bring such offenders to punishment by the utmost rigor of the law. The district attorneys of the District of Columbia has faithfully and zealously seconded the efforts of the postoffice department in this matter, but the amount of work in the office is such as to make it difficult without neglecting other important public duties, to devote all the time necessary to the prosecution of these cases.

I therefore suggest that if you cannot detail some of your present staff, you appoint special assistants in these postoffice cases, not only to take up the cases in which indictments have been found or hereafter may be found, but to examine into all charges that have been made against officials in the postal service, with a view to the removal and prosecution of all guilty men in the service and the prosecution of guilty men whether in the service or not, where the cases are not barred by the statute of limitations.

Sincerely yours,

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

To Hon. P. C. Knox, Attorney General:

Carrying out the president's suggestion, Attorney General Knox has appointed Charles J. Bonaparte of Baltimore a special attorney to assist in these prosecutions, and upon his return here this afternoon Holmes Conrad, former solicitor general, will be tendered a like appointment.

M'COOLE IS ACQUITTED OF MURDER

Decatur, Ill., June 24.—The jury in the case of Finley McCoole, charged with the murder of William G. McNier, on May 4, found a verdict of not guilty. The trial lasted ten days. McCoole and McNier and their wives lived in the same house. When McNier went into the house at 10 o'clock at night, he was fatally shot by McCoole. McCoole, on the stand, said that he and his wife had left the house and he had gone back that night to get some clothing. He was looking for a match when McNier came in and thinking McNier was drawing a revolver, McCoole shot him. A loaded revolver was found in McNier's pocket. McCoole was acquitted on the ground of self defense.

TROOPS RUSHED TO RICHMOND

Richmond, Va., June 24.—A thousand troops are under arms here this morning and detachments are distributed at the various power houses and barns within the city limits. Cars will be run with four soldiers on each. One of the barns of the company being located in the county, and the sheriff having refused to ask military aid, claiming he could give ample protection, County Judge Wickham has called for troops over his head. All was quiet early this morning, and barring the tearing up of a short stretch of track in the lower part of the city, the night passed comparatively without trouble.

While troops were attempting this morning to move the cars from the East End barns, a mob assembled and torpedoed the track and Captain Skip, with company C, Seventy-first regiment, was shot in the leg. There was no return fire. More troops are being hurried to the scene.

BOROUGH IN DARKNESS.

Richmond Has Failed to Pay Its Gas Bill.

New York, June 24.—Richmond Borough, on Staten Island, is in trouble with the gas company over unpaid bills and the supply to all municipal buildings has been shut off. The only inconvenience resulting was at the police station. At the main station in Stapleton the sergeants had to do their work by the light of lanterns, and the men on reserve slept in their clothing, fearing that if they undressed in the dark they might be called suddenly and would be unable to find their clothing.

BURNED TO DEATH.

Proprietor of South Dakota Hotel Loses Life.

Sioux Falls, S. D., June 24.—Early this morning the Western house at Dell Rapids, this county, was destroyed by fire. Albert Fulmer, the proprietor, was burned to death. All of the guests escaped.

MINER IS DEAD.

Anton Chop of Trimountain Succumbs to Injuries.

Houghton, Mich., June 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—Anton Chop, a miner at Trimountain, died today of injuries received yesterday by the fall of a hanging rock.

FRENCH COURTS

Have Jurisdiction In Breckenridge Lunacy Case.

Paris, June 24.—Judge Ditte, president of the tribunal of first instance, today handed down a decision to the effect that the French courts have jurisdiction in the question of the lunacy of John C. Breckenridge, son of Mrs. Frederick Sharon, of California, who recently applied to the courts here to have him declared of unsound mind, but postponed his determination of the merits of the case. It is understood that if Mr. Breckenridge is held to be of unsound mind, Consul General Gowdy will be appointed his guardian.

DEGREES PRESENTED

To Members of Graduating Class at Yale.

New Haven, Conn., June 24.—The presentation of degrees to the members of the graduating class in all the departments of the university, and the conferring of honorary degrees by President Hadley, formed the chief function of the closing day of Yale's commencement week. The Cobden club medal for proficiency in political economy was awarded to M. B. Terrell, Dechner, Texas, of the academic senior class, while the John A. Porter university prize was won by Richard Webb, of Durham, N. C., a graduate school student, for an essay on "Sidney Lanier."

The honorary degree, doctor of laws, was conferred upon George Gray, judge of the United States circuit court of Delaware, and William Dale, Alexander, surveyor general of the Hawaiian islands; doctor of divinity upon the Rev. Lyman Abbott and master of arts upon Herbert W. Bowen, United States minister to Venezuela.

NEW POSTMASTER.

Washington, June 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mathias Butala has been appointed postmaster at Birch Lake, Todd county, Minn., vice David E. Bennett, removed.

"PITTSBURG PHIL" WILL FIGHT CLUB STEWARDS TO A FINISH

He Says That Their Refusal to Accept Entries of His Horses to Jockey Club Track Is a Disgrace Which He Resents.

New York, June 24.—George E. Smith, known among turfmen everywhere as "Pittsburg Phil," the entry of whose horses has been ordered to be refused by the Jockey club stewards, says in regard to the affair:

"I am so surprised that I hardly know what to say. It is not that this blow has fallen unexpectedly, but I feel that a mean advantange has been taken. I was at Sheepshead bay for the purpose of giving to the racing officials an opportunity of questioning me if they desired to do so. I was not asked a question and I received no intimation of the action they were about to take. And now I am told that they have ordered that my entries shall not be accepted. This is a disgrace to me which I shall not accept in any meek manner. Two of the men who have passed judgment upon me are my personal enemies.

"My honor is at stake. I am willing to spend my money to clear myself. I will take this matter to the highest court I can reach.

"I was toldlast year that I was betting too much money. The same message was given to others. I sent back word that I was ready to quit. And I did quit as a plunger. My wagers this year have been small compared with those of former years. I have not bet as much in five days as I bet on a single race last year.

"I have been criticised for winning. When I lost, nothing has been said."

ANCIENT CITY IS MOST PRIMITIVE

Chicago, June 24.—A dispatch to the Tribune from Mexico City, Mex., says: The recent discovery of an ancient city of pyramids in a dense forest in a remote part of the state of Puebla has been found to be of the greatest archaeological importance. The federal government has commissioned the subdirector of the national museum, Senor F. Rodriguez, to visit the ruins. Nicholas Leon, an archaeologist and ethnologist, accompanied the sub-director to the ruins. Mr. Leon reports that the ruins are such as never before have been known to the world of science, and the most primitive are discovered in Mexico; in fact, so ancient as to require a great deal of time and study to learn in which epoch they were built as well as by what people.

NEW YORK DOGS MUST BE MUZZLED

New York, June 24.—Hereafter it shall be unlawful to permit any dog to go abroad at large in any of the streets, highways or public places, in the city of New York, unless such dog shall be securely muzzled so that it will be impossible for it to bite or otherwise wound with the teeth any human being or other animal. These are the terms of an ordinance which has been adopted by the board of aldermen and which is applicable to the entire territory of greater New York. The enforcement of the new law devolves upon the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, the agents of which are authorized to pick up unmuzzled dogs and to hold them until redeemed by the payment of a penalty of $3, or failing that, to put them to death.

NEGROES ADVISED TO BUY GUNS

Chicago, June 24.—At a gathering of colored people held last night to protest against the lynching of the negro, David T. Wyatt, at Belleville, Ill., recently, Rev. Thomas, one of the speakers advised his hearers that they should, if the hanging and burning of colored men is not stopped by the regular authorities, sell their coats and buy guns with which to defend themselves. Other speakers expressed similar sentiments and before the meeting had adjourned the negroes present were worked up to a high pitch of excitement. Mrs. Ida Wells Barnett informed the men present that they must organize to fight their own battles, saying that they never could expect the white man to fight for them until they had shown themselves capable of fighting their own battles.

LORENZ DEMANDS A HEARING

Toledo, June 24.—George E. Lorenz and his wife Martha, who were indicted by the federal grand jury at Washington a few days ago in connection with the scandal in the postoffice department, were arrested at their home in Madison avenue here this morning at 8 o'clock by Deputy United States Marshal Winders. They were taken before United States Commissioner Brough, where their attorney, John F. Kumler, demanded the right to a preliminary hearing. This has been set for 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, but it is not believed that the federal authorities will be ready for a hearing at that time, and the case will probably be continued to a later date. Mr. and Mrs. Lorenz each gave bond in the sum of $5000.

Attorney Kumler, for the Lorenzes, contends that he has a right to go into the merits of the case on a preliminary hearing. This is denied by the government, and it is expected that there will be an interesting fight on this point.

BLOODHOUND DECLINES TO IDENTIFY MAN AS MURDERER

Placed In the Cell With an Italian Suspected of Killing Policeman Ahearn, Dog Fails to Smell Anything Suspicious and Walks Out.

New Rocrelle, N. Y., June 24.—Detectives who are trying to run down the assassins of Policeman Ahearn, who was killed Saturday morning in a battle with a man supposed to have been a burglar, have taken part in a midnight hunt for the murdrer with a bloodnound.

The chase, which was novel to the residents of New Rochelle, was witnessed by a score of wealthy men and public officials, who followed the bloodhounds and police at a safe distance.

After covering a twenty-mile course in the darkness, without running the murderer to cover, the hound was taken to police headquarters, where he was turned loose in the cell of Frank Peffo, an Italian suspected of the crime. The man grew pale as death and trembled with fear as the animal was smelling of his clothing.

After spending a few minutes in the cell, the hound gave up the scent and returned to the corridor, which leads the police to believe that if Peffo killed Ahearn he has since washed all traces from his clothing.

CORNELL WILL BE ARRAIGNED FOR MURDER OF NEGRO WHITE

Thus Far He Is the Only One Arrested For Complicity In the Burning of the Negro—Other Arrests May Be Made.

Wilmington, Del., June 24.—The arrest of Arthur Corwell, who was taken into custody last night on suspicion of being implicated in the lynching of George White, the negro murderer of Miss Bishop, is the only one made thus far. The arrest was made at the instance of Attorney Generad Ward. Corwell will be arraigned for a preliminary hearing on a charge of murder as soon as the state authorities can make the necessary arrangements. It is reported that other arrests will follow, but the attorney general said today that no additional warrants had been issued and he did not know whether any more would be sworn out.

Peter Smith, the boy who was shot during the assault by the mob on the county workhouse on Monday night, is still alive, but the physicians at the hospital say there is not the slightest hope of his recovery.

PRINCE SEES UNITED STATES INCOG

New York, June 24.—Prince George of Bavaria, grandson of the emperor Franz Josef of Austria, has been seeing the United States and has sailed for home. Under the title "Count of Wurtemburg," he successfully hid his identity here until a few hours before sailing. "We have heard much in Europe of your American invasion but," he said, "I had not realized what tremendous resources there are in this country. It is marvelous, especially the energy one sees everywhere. Bavaria, I believe, supplies the United States with more musicians than commercial products, but we hope in time to remedy that."

What might have proved a serious accident was averted last night by a spectator on the Eighth avenue west dock. While the Northwest was being made fast to the dock one of the forward lines parted and struck a number of the spectators, who were on the dock. One man was knocked down with the force and had it not been for the prompt action of a man beside him, who caught him, would have fallen into the slip between the dock and the big steamer.

Some of the members of the party of local steel corporation officials who went down to Ishpeming to participate in the inspection trip of the general officers of the corporation, and in the celebration of the mining company anniversary, are expected home tomorrow morning. Others will not be along for a week, and will probably go away to New York with the men who were visitors here Sunday and Monday.

The marriage of Charles S. Prosser, the hay and feed dealer, and Miss Stella Edna Albright, a former teacher in the Duluth schools, is to take place this evening.

The sale of seats for the concert to be given Sunday afternoon at the Lyceum by the artists who will compose the Alfred Davies concert companies during the coming season opened this morning at the Lyceum and the interest shown promises a fine house. Three Duluth singers, Mrs. James McAuliffe, Miss Elizabeth Bailey and Miss Antoinette West, are to sing with Mr. Davies' companies and will take part.

DETECTIVE KILLED.

Peoria Mob Tries In Vain to Secure Negro Murderer.

Peoria, Ill., June 24.—Detective William E. Murphy was killed by "Billy" McRay, a negro desperado, whom he was attempting to arrest here last night. Murphy, armed with a warrant for McRay on the charge of burglary, approached the negro, who was standing on a street corner, and informed him that he was under arrest. Without a moment's warning, McRay drew a revolver and shot the officer in the breast. He then attempted to make his escape, but was caught by Detective Chadwick. Murphy was taken to the hospital, where he died within twenty minutes. McRay was hurried to the city jail and in less than an hour a mob, numbering at least 1000 men and boys, had assembled and made a demand on the chief of police for the prisoner. The chief refused to surrender him.

McRay was hurriedly taken to the county jail. In a short time the mob formed in front of the county jail. The entire police force of the city was called out to guard the jail.

At midnight the jail was surrounded and there were rumors that the lower end of the city, where the dead officer resided, that another mob was gathering with the intention of lynching the negro. It was finally dispersed without getting the prisoner.

STRIKING IT RICH.

Calumet & Pittsburg Said to Be Finding Fine Ore.

Advices have been received from private sources, said to be reliable, that the Calumet & Pittsburg Copper company has made a very rich strike in its property at Bisbee, Ariz., in the Cochise county mining district. The company is reported to have two pumps working and handling all the water from the shaft. Drifting operations are claimed to have been going on for two weeks in a rich body of ore that has been cut at the 700 and 950-foot levels. One of the most prominent copper mining men at the Bisbee operations is reported to have passed his opinion that the strike is one of the prettiest and richest that he has seen for some time.

BURNED TONS OF POWDER.

American and German Fleets Fire Many Salutes.

Kiel, June 24.—The combined American and German fleets burned several more tons of powder this morning during the hurried calls of the captains to one another's ships and the ceremonial visits of Ambassador Tower and some of the behted higher German officials to Rear Admiral Cotton. Then Mr. Tower, Admiral Coton, the American commanders and naval attaches lunched with Prince and Princess Henry of Prussia and the German admirals and captains.

The arrivals here include the American steam yacht Margarita, with James H. Smith and a party of friends; Oliver Harriman's Mirage, with the marquis of Ormond, commodore of the British royal yacht squadron, on board, and the North Star, which is here to meet Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt.

PREPARING REPORTS

Government Officials Are Drawing Up Statements For Fiscal Year.

Duluth Offices Show Large Increases—The Land Office Transfer.

Officials in the various government offices in the federal building are working on their yearly reports. The fiscal year in the different government offices ends on July 1, and all reports for the year have to be in shortly after that date.

It is expected that all of the offices will show very large increases over the business of last year. The land office has had the largest business in its history, as shown by the monthly reports, and it is likely that the yearly report will show an increase of nearly 100 per cent over the business of last year.

The postoffice receipts from month to month have been about 25 per cent in advance of those of last year. These receipts form one of the best means of judging of the growth of the city, and the report of the office will be watched for by all who are interested in the growth of the city. It is likely that the total increase will be in the neighborhood of 20 or 25 per cent. If such is the case, it will not be many years before the Duluth postoffice will come within the first class, which includes all of those cities containing over 75,000 inhabitants.

The local customs house has also had an extremely busy year and the report will doubtless show a substantial increase.

In addition to the work of preparing the yearly report the land office officials are busy completing arrangements for handing over the records to the new office at Cass Lake. This transfer will take place July 1, and involves an immense amount of work on the part of the clerks and officials.

THE RATE WAR.

Further Demoralization By the Wisconsin Central.

Chicago, June 24.—Further demoralization in the Western passenger rate situation developed today when the Wisconsin Central announced its intention of making the $8 rate now in effect between Chicago and St. Paul the basis of computing all excursion rates. The action of the Wisconsin Central will have the effect of reducing all excursion rates from St. Paul to Chicago by $3.50.

SANKEY'S CASE HOPELESS.

Optic Nerves of Eye Are Entirely Destroyed.

New York, June 24.—Ira D. Sankey, the evangelist, is now hopelessly blind. Mrs. I. Allan Sankey, his daughter-in-law, said today: "The best eye specialists we could obtain agree that his case is hopeless. The optic nerves have been entirely destroyed."

Mr. Sankey's trouble had been growing on him for the last two years as a result of an attack of trachoma.

SCULPTORS INQUIRE

For Specifications For the McKinley Memorial.

Canton, Ohio, June 24.—Sculptors and art critics have begun a flood of inquiries to the local land office of the National McKinley Memorial association, asking for specifications. Each one will be answered by Assistant Secretary Hartsell, with a cut of the site of the monument at West Lawn cemetery, and a blue print showing the dimensions of land, elevations, etc.

The work of soliciting funds through postmasters is to be continued, the smaller offices to receive attention now. The local office will also handle the correspondence with members of the Carnation league.

PROMPTLY LYNCHED.

Assailant of Little Girl Is Strung Up.

Elk Valley, Tenn., June 24.—Case Jones, the negro accused of criminal assault on 12-year-old Margaret Bruce yesterday, was caught during the night and immediately taken before his little victim, who identified him. Jones broke down then and confessed his crime. He was promptly strung up at daylight this morning and his body riddled with bullets.

THOSE WHO HAVE DIED

New York, June 24.—Timothy Gleason, who was prominent in the Fenian uprising in 1867, and was a brother of the late Patrick Gleason, the "battle-ax mayor" of Long Island City, has been found dead in a furnished room in Brooklyn. He was the last of seven brothers. When he took part in the Fenian uprising he was imprisoned three months. Then he came to America. One of his brothers was Gen. Joseph Gleason, who served in the civil war. Twin brothers died in California, and others in the South.

New York, June 24.—The Rev. Brother Anselm, director of the LaSalle academy of the Christian Brothers in this city, is dead, after an operation for acute kidney trouble from which he had suffered for two years. Known in the world as George Stafford, he was one of the most prominent members of the order of Christian Brothers. He was born in Albany, N. Y., thirty-seven years ago.

DEGREES BY HARVARD

Ten Hundred Ninety-eight Conferred By President Eliot.

Cambridge, Mass., June 24.—With an attendance almost equal to that of last year, when President Roosevelt, of the class of 1880, received a degree from his alma mater, Harvard today held her 267th commencement. The day was cold and cloudy. The commencement procession had to be restricted because of the large number of graduates, who each year try to gain admittance to Sander's theater. This year only graduates of at least twenty years' standing were admitted.

Following the bestowal of the regular degrees, which were received by 1098 men, President Eliot conferred the honorary degrees.

Among the recipients of the honorary degree of doctor of laws were Charlton Thomas Lewis, Yale bachelor of arts, Latin lexicographer and insurance expert; Heinrich Angst, organizer and first director of the Swiss national museum; Winthrop Murray Crane, former governor of Massachusetts, and Edwin Charles Pickering, astronomical discoverer. The degree of master of art was bestowed upon Edwin Wilber Rice, Jr., expert electrical engineer and Edwin Farnsworth Atkins, Cuba, promoter of applied botany.

EXPECTS A GOOD SEASON

Howard James Looks For North West to Do Good Business.

President Howard James of the Northern Steamship company is at the Spalding hotel and will remain here for today, probably catching the North West, which left here last night at 11 o'clock at the Sault tomorrow morning, to return to Buffalo.

Mr. James is pleased over the result of the first trip of the North West to this port, and prophesies a big season for the boat running into Lake Superior. There were ninety passengers on the craft when she came in last evening, and fifty more were taken on here.

The Eastern people who were making the round trip did not have much time or opportunity to see Duluth, as it was about dark when the boat arrived, and she left again shortly afterwards.

There were but few of the passengers who stopped at Duluth, the hotel registers showing not more than fifteen or twenty. The excursionists, for the most part, returned with the ship.

Mr. James, in speaking of his line this morning, said:

"The Northern steamships have undergone a great deal of improvement during last winter. There has been spent on them during the past winter $200,000, and they have been overhauled, new boilers have been put in and the stacks cut down by one.

"The promenade deck cabin has been extended forty feet, fifty-five new parlors have been added, and the boat can now accommodate in sleeping quarters 512 people. The steamship line is a wonder, and it is fair to say that had it been anyone but James J. Hill who planned and carried out the scheme it would have gone to pieces long ago.

"The reservations for the summer at Buffalo show that the season will be a big one for the boats, and that Duluth will reap many benefits from it. While it is only for two months, or a little over that the boats run, they carry a large number of passengers, but the long idleness makes them expensive.

"I noticed we got a little free advertising about some people who were left at Mackinac. They reported to me here, also. It seems impossible not to lose a passenger or two there now and then, for they always overstay the time limit, and the stop is a very short one.

"The time of arriving and leaving Duluth is not as convenient as it might be, either, but it is governed by the schedules which commence at Buffalo."

Mr. James was formerly of Duluth, and spent this morning visiting around among acquaintances.

Berlin, June 24.—Germany's foreign trade for May is reported as follows: Imports, 4,138,088 tons, an increase over the coresponding month last year of 267,018 tons. Exports, 3,233,970 tons, an increase of 442,436 tons.

DEED OF INSANE FARMER.

Bloomington, Ill., June 24.—After vainly trying to murder his wife's four children, Frederick Schultz, a wealthy farmer, near Gridley, killed himself with a shot gun last night. His family had a narrow escape. His is supposed to have gone insane.

INNUMERABLE DIFFICULTIES

Would Arise From Appointment of Receiver, Says Counsel.

Newark, N. J., June 24.—When counsel representing the various interests in the action to obtain a receiver for the United States Shipbuilding company reassembled today before Circuit Judge Andrew Kirkpatrick it was the general belief that the court might reach a decision late this afternoon.

Chas. L. Corbin, of Jersey City, resuming the argument for the defense, declared that the reorganization plan recommended by the committee of which George R. Sheldon is chairman, was the only loophole of safety in the present condition of the corporation's financial affairs. Addressing himself to the question of insolvency Mr. Corbin declared that the allegations contained in the bill and the statements of opposing counsel purporting to prove the inability of the corporation to pay its maturing liabilities were based on hearsay evidence. He insisted that the corporation was solvent within the meaning of the statutes and said that under federal laws the court could have no jurisdiction unless it found incontrovertible evidence of both fraud and insolvency. Insolvency without fraud removed jurisdiction into the state courts. As to the possibility of carrying on present contract under a receiver, Mr. Corbin contended, innumerable difficulties would arise, any one of which would result in great financial loss. He was very insistent that government contracts now in hand should be completed without interference.

LAND BILL IS SAVED

Amendment Relating to Minimum Price Unanimously Passed.

London, June 24.—As forecasted in these dispatches yesterday the resumption of the debate in the house of commons today on the Irish land bill was marked by the introduction by Mr. Wyndham, chief secretary for Ireland, of an amendment designed to remove the difficulty in regard to the retention in clause one of a provision for a minimum price at which tenants may purchase their holdings and permitting bargains to be made outside of the judicial zones.

The agreement is hailed on all sides as being a great concession. John Redmond, the Irish leader, declared Mr. Wyndham had saved the bill and the amendment was agreed to amid cheers and general congratulations. Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, the liberal leader, joining in the congratulations on the spirit of conciliation prevailing, said the dangerous clause of the bill was adopted without a division.

Later Mr. Wyndham agreed to an extension of the limit of the advances to be made to purchasers of agricultural farms from $25,000 to $35,000.

LINEMAN FELL,

Severely Injuring Three People on the Ground.

Hartford, Conn., June 24.—Falling a distance of thirty-five feet from the cross bar of a telephone pole to the ground today, Albert Larkum, a lineman, struck and injured three other persons, one perhaps fatally. Larkum himself is apparently suffering from internal injuries and his legs are paralyzed. Standing beneath the pole when he fell were Mrs. Mary E. Brewster, of Minneapolis; her daughter Nancy, aged 11 years, and Mrs. Charles Edwards, wife of Professor Edwards of Trinity college. Most of Larkum's weight, nearly 250 pounds, fell upon the child, though both the women were struck and bruised severely. The girl's right leg was broken and she was terribly crushed.

RELEASE OF M'HUGH

Was Accomplished Through Intercession of King.

Dublin, June 24.—The release of P. A. McHugh, M. P., from Sligo jail June 20, where he had been confined since June 6, for contempt of court in connection with the political comments of his paper the Sligo Champion, appears to have been due to the initiative of King Edward, the lord lieutenant of Ireland, the Earl of Dudley, having first fruitlessly interceded with Judge Ross. The private secretary, Lord Knollys, later wrote to the judge, expressing the kings wishes in the matter.

DRIGGS INDICTED.

Federal Grand Jury Finds Against Congressman.

New York, June 24.—Former Congressman Driggs was indicted by the federal grand jury at Brooklyn today. He appeared before Judge Thomas and gave bail. The indictment grew out of the investigation into postoffice affairs made by the grand jury.

HE HAD TOO MUCH METHOD.

"Method's all very well in its way," remarked uncle, to the New York Sun, "but there's such a thing as overdoin' it. Take Old Caleb Snitcher. He was too durned methodical. Went daft over it.

"Caleb wus one uv them fellers as had a time an' place fur mos' everything. If a couple uv buttons, same size an' color, ripped off his coat, he wus jest as like as not t' get an idee that his wife had sewed th' wrong one opposite th' wrong buttonhole, an' make her change 'em all 'round again.

"Once his wife found him breshin' his hair with th' whiskbroom an' asked him, 'What on earth!'

"'Taln't th' whiskbroom,' says Caleb. 'Can't be. 'Twas hangin' on th' hair brush nail.' An' his wife knew that that settled it.

"Pedge Morton's old stone house was th' thing that finally sent Caleb daft. Th' Jedge wanted t' build a better one, an', knowin' that Caleb wusn't over prosperous at th' time, gave 'im th' job.

"Caleb started en a-rippin' off th' roof an' throwin' it down t' th' ground. Then he began prvin' the stones off th' walls an' heavin' them over.

"At th' end us th' first day he had th' whole top story down. 'Twas then we begun t' notice th' most surprisin' thing y'e ever heard uv.

"You'll scarcely believe it, but as sure as I'm tellin' ye, every single piece uv tin, stone an' wood that Caleb had thrown off that house had stuck th' ground in its exact position, only upside down. How's thet fur bein' methodical?

"Why, when the job was finished people came from all over th' state t' see th' house that Caleb had built, or unbuilt, or whatever y' wanted call it. No one had ever seen th' likes uv it.

"There it stood. Stone fur stone, like it always stood, but with th' roof on th' ground an' th' cellar an' front door on th' roof. Except fur th' fact that th' carpets didn't fit th' ceilin's very well y' almost might have thought it had been built that way a purpose.

"At first we thought it wus jest his methodical habits made him toss th' stones down that way, but when we caught him diggin' a hole in th' ground so's t' make th' chimney fit better we felt 'twas high time t' have his insanity tested into.

"He's up t' th' state asylum now, an' he ain't happy there neither. It seems th' dandylines this spring didn't come up in 'xactly th' same places on th' lawn as thew did last year, an' Caleb took t' broodin' over it consider'bly."

MUMOR UNDER FIRE.

"I can appreciate the force of what you say," remarked a Confederate veteran who was under arms from Manassas to the surrender to the New Orleans Times-Democrat. "I have witnessed many humorous things even under fire and while my comrades were falling thick and fast around me. On more than one occasion I have laughed at some trivial thing while the groans of dying soldiers were ringing in my ears. A soldier, of course, is not supposed to cry when he is on the firing line. He must have his nerve and grit with him and retain himself. It is different, however, as to the humorous things. If a soldier laughs when the enemy is peppering him with lead it is a good omen, or it is so considered. In other words, if a laughing command charged a position held by a crying command the laughter would blot out the tears of the other side. When I enlisted my mother sent a slave out with me. His name was William, the same as mine, and he was born the day after I made my advent into this world. Mother told William to follow me, and if I got sick or was wounded to care for me. His forte was foraging. I ate chickens frequently when my comrades were eating parched corn. My servant was looking after me and himself also. I never missed William until a battle started, and then I would see no more of him until it was over. Then he would show up with some sort of peace offering, expecting a scolding. I told him once that his mistress had sent him out to care for me, and his place was by my side. 'Marse Will,' he said, 'ef I gits up dar whar you is and gits kilt how's I gwine care for you like yo' ma tole me.' I was determined to try William's pluck. I did not doubt his loyalty. One day I made him stay with me, knowing that we were going into battle in a few hours. I deceived him, however. Pretty soon the battle opened, the artillery starting the action. Shells began to whistle and explode around us and were spreading havoc. My command was ordered forward. I looked around. There was no William. He had stood the ring of musketry, but the detonations of cannon was too much for him. The next day he appeared, smiling somewhat sickly. I rebuked him for his cowardice, telling him that I had several narrow escapes and needed water several times. 'Well, Marse Will,' he said, 'fwhen dem big things got to shoutin' William whar-z's yer, whar-z's yer. I jes lit out, but I cudn't run fas' cause my feet was so heavy.' The boys laughed at William, and in a few hours we were in for it again. Every now and then some of the boys would shout: 'Don't get light feet.'"

THE DULUTH JULY FAIR AND CARNIVAL

The selling of fine Wash Fabrics, white and colors continues!

50c to $2.00 Women's Straw Sailors 25c each.

A small lot to clean up—complete sizes.

Not a jumbling together of "riff raff" from jobbing houses who desired to get rid of their unsaleable stuff, but clean, new goods, in choice and desirable patterns and colorings. The fact that women who shop around in stores where stuffs are being sold at from "one cent to nine cents a yard"! come back here and buy is sufficient proof that our prices for choice and desirable kinds are lower than many so-called great bargains about town.

Dress Goods.

Tweeds at 39c—would be splendid value at 65c—42 inches wide—good weight, and attractive colorings in brown, green and blue mixed with white.

Fancy Nub Suitings $1, reduced from $1.75—Also tweeds and checks in tans, blues, greens, browns and black grounds—all at $1.00 the yard.

Fancy Twines and Cords at $1.50—reduced from $2.00—These are the most fashionable fabrics of the season, and are reduced because we are nearly sold out of the popular-priced lines, and therefore have to make a concession on the higher-priced ones.

A Clearance of Laces—A half and a third off.

Oriental Laces, in white, cream and ecru—from 3 to 9 inches wide, and ranging in prices from 35c to $1.00 a yard—all at 25c a yard.

Cambric Embroideries—from ½ to 2 inches wide, at 5c a yard.

Cambric and Nainsook embroideries—1 to 3 inches wide—at 10c a yard.

75c Anderson's Oxfords 50c—One of the most popular waistings to be had, heavy weave with colored stripes and brocaded figures.

75c Grenadines, 50c—This line includes the finest washable materials in black and white, blues, green, tan, pink, etc., and are the correct thing for evening wear.

25c and 35c Dress Materials 11c—These are fabrics other stores are making a big bluster over at quite an advance over our price. They are very sheer and dainty and desirable for street wear, and the patterns are very desirable.

$1.25 Hopsackings, 85c—An all-linen imported fabric, very closely woven and extremely fashionable for shirt waist suits.

$1.00 and $1.25 Mercerized Vestings, 85c—For fine shirt waists and suits—they are in stripes, dots and basket weaves, and have a very rich finish.

85c Latonia Waistings 59c—An exclusive novelty not shown in any other house at the head of the lakes, white ground with small two-colored embroidered figures.

50c Mercerized Canvas 33c—It comes in plain colors and very highly mercerized, suitable for Shirt Waists or Suits.

15c Lawns, Batistes and Oxfords 7½c a yard—neat and desirable patterns.

20c Dimities at 11c a yard—All neat, pretty patterns, splendid for women's or children's wear.

25c Basket Oxfords 12½c a yd—splendid for shirt waist suits—washes splendidly.

35c Dotted Muslins, 18c a yd—half silk—washes well—a very pretty dainty thing for party or street wear.

RICH MEN FRIDAY

Board of Review to Give Them Special Hearing Then.

Assessors Got $500,000 In Stocks and Bonds This Year.

Penniless men of money perplexed by personal property assessments will be given a special hearing before the city board of review on Friday.

The rich men of the city are objecting vigorously because of an unexpected and unprecedented move on the part of the personal property assessors in listing nearly $500,000 worth of stocks, bonds and credits for taxation purposes.

In the past it has been almost impossible to list this wealth in the personal property assessment because the assessors had no means of acquiring information as to the ownership of securities when the owners failed to include this invisible property in the sworn list, but by some secret process which the city authorities will not reveal, the assessors got onto several lists of stocks, bonds and other credits held by local men of wealth and assessed them.

A number of these surprised in this way aided in getting the assessment right, while men agreeing to assessments of $10,000 higher than they were originally put down for, but a majority of those offered are objecting strenuously, some threatening to move out of the city and others saying they will bring suit to have the assessment set aside if the board of equalization does not agree to an abatement. Others have turned the matter over to their attorneys.

It is this fight on the part of the men of wealth that furnished the inspiration for Mayor Hugo's rapidly becoming famous saying: "I never realized the distressing poverty of a millionaire before.

It is no wonder Andrew Carnegie wants to die poor."

On Friday all these men will be given a fair and impartial hearing and the members of the board say that wherever it is shown that the assessments on stocks, bonds and credits are too nigh the mistake will be remedied without delay.

HE OBJECTS TO INSINUATIONS

Judge Windom Stops Reflections on Red-Haired People.

"What! A red headed man like yourself wouldn't' strike a woman when angry. Why the fact that your hair is red is a sign of hot temp——"

"Hold on, there," interrupted Judge Windom, in an assault case, "some people say my hair is red and I don't want any insinuations made in cross-examination that would reflect upon this court."

This humorous incident occurred this morning when James Freeborn was placed on trial as the result of a warrant sworn out by his mother-in-law, charging him with assaulting his wife.

Mr. Freeborn's hair, while not like an inflamed sunset, is sufficiently tinted to be called red, and an attorney was trying to show that red hair was a sign of an uncontrollable temper, when the court interfered with his line of argument.

The jury that heard the evidence of the mother-in-law decided Freeborn was not guilty. The wife, however, was informed that she must either pay the sum of $19 or go to the county jail for thirty days, she having been arrested for contempt of court several days ago.

It seems that the mother-in-law did not fully consult her daughter before having her husband arrested, and when the matter was set for a hearing last week, Mrs. Freeborn preferred staying at Hibbing to coming to Duluth to give evidence. When she did appear, an attachment was issued for her arrest and she was brought here by a deputy sheriff. The $19 she was asked to pay this morning is simply the costs resulting from this little caprice. Late this afternoon she paid up and thus saved herself from imprisonment.

ASPHALT TEST

One Horse Ruins Asphalt on East Superior Street.

His Hoofs Make Prints In Asphalt Two Weeks Old.

Having read some weeks ago that East Superior street asphalt paving could be used within twenty-four hours after it was first put down, some confiding person carelessly permitted a horse to walk over the new paving yesterday, between Fifteenth and Sixteenth avenues. As a result an entire block of paving will have to be torn up and replaced.

This paving has been down two weeks and has had ample time to harden. The horse's caulks cut into it like knives and the asphalt is pronounced the rankest kind of a failure. Even those that have been opposing it from the beginning imagined it of sufficient durability to uphold the weight of one horse.

Property owners discovered the damage to the new paving last evening and promptly called it to the attention of the city engineer. At first Mr. Patton thought it might be an act of vandalism, but closer examination showed clearly that it was simply the weight of one horse that had ruined the asphalt.

He immediately notified the Barber Asphalt company that the city would not accept the paving, and advised against laying any more until a mixture could be hit upon that would be durable.

Today the company is putting down more asphalt, but it is said the combination has been changed, and that it will prove more satisfactory.

Complaints were fairly showered into the city hall offices when the property owners discovered the failure of the paving yesterday. To all these complaints the same stereotyped reply was given: "The city will not accept the paving unless it stands the test. While the city officers have been opposed to asphalt as a paving unfit for use in Duluth, the property owners petioned for it and under the charter at that time the city had nothing to do but give them asphalt. We will endeavor to give the best asphalt that can be obtained, but—"

The Barber company is up against more trouble. A steam roller was permitted to stand beneath some fine shade trees near Fifteenth avenue east and the trees are dying as a result.

The contract for the paving provides that the company shall be liable in an instance of this kind, but recognizing that shade trees are hard to get in this city, the city engineer has issued an order prohibiting the paving concern from permitting the steamer from standing within danger distance of any shade trees while steam is in the boiler.

Boy With the "Elephant Foot" Is Here.

"Little Billy" Austin, the boy with the "elephant foot," is in Duluth, spending a few days with his sister at 24 East First street, while waiting for the Forepaugh-Sells circus to come, which he will join as a freak.

"Little Billy" is a colored boy. He was born at Boston, 32 years ago, and is small of stature and regularly formed, excepting for this immense foot.

He gives the dimensions of it as 14 inches long, 9 inches wide, 7 inches thick and it weighs 32 pounds. He carries it around in a gunny sack.

"Billy" is proud of his foot, and displays it with some pride.

The foot is perfectly formed, with cuticle very thick. He says he frequently steps on a tack or a piece of glass, and doesn't find it out for a week or ten days, when he happens to be looking over the member.

"Billy" has a contract to appear in the side show of the Forepaugh-Sells show, and has made arrangements to wait for it here, spending a few days with his sister, and joining the show here next Monday.

THEY RAN FAST.

Sports Forced Racers to Run or Beat Bullets.

"I have just returned from Webb City," said the old sport, "and the people down there are still talking about the Boatwright gang of foot racing fakers. I was told that in less than a year's time the gang cleaned up over $300,000 on 'fixed' races. That appears to be a large sum in that part of Missouri, but from my point of view it is a small amount—too small, in fact, to brag about. Twenty years ago the Pacific states and territories were golden fields for the foot-race men. Only a few of the races were on the square, but every one was a bank deposit creator for the men who promoted them. At that time Harry Bellume was the acknowledged tape champion of the country. He could sprint 100 yards in less than 10 seconds at any time, in condition or out of condition. Gibbons and Ryan, other fast cinder path men, were also much in the public eye. Harry Downey, of Tombstone, was another fast 'un. Then there was Pete Musgrove, a Carson City bartender, who was the champion of the sage brush country for several years. I never could get the proper edge on Bethune. If he was crooked he never displayed any signs of it in public. He traveled from the British Columbia line to the Mexican border, and from the Rockies to the ocean, for several years. His winnings amounted to more than half a million dollars. His backers probably made three times as much. Gibson and Ryan were also ready money makers, but, like Bethune, they were fast spenders. When I last heard of the bunch all were on their uppers and doing the Micawber act."

"It was in Tombstone, Ariz., that I first saw Gibson and Ryan race," continued the old sport. "Gibson looked like a young colt fresh from college, and Ryan would have passed for a divinity student anywhere. Ryan broke into the camp first. He came as a book agent. Money was plentiful in the great chloride camp in those days, and the sport germ was in everybody's blood. Two weeks after Ryan appeared in Tombstone, Gibson arrived at Tuscon, only 70 miles distant. The two daily newspapers took him up and made sarcastic remarks about Tombstone's lack of racing talent. Then Ryan disclosed his identity to several of the boss faro dealers of the camp. He was tried out and he made good. Virgil Earp, then the marshal of the camp; Morgan Earp, Wyatt Earp, 'Doc' Holliday, Leslie Blackburn, all noted gun and card men, were admitted to the Ryan syndicate. A formal challenge was sent to Gibson, who had organized a syndicate of Tuscon sports, among them Jake Levy, Bob Chieholm, Harry Duking and Dan Tuttle. After a parley it was decided to run the race in Tombstone. The distance was fixed at 100 yards and it was agreed to transform Third street, from Allen to Fremont, into a cinder path. Gibson and his backers arrived in Tombstone three days before the race day. The runners were formally introduced. Both acted as if they had never met before. The men kept on training and both appeared to be in the pink of condition. The Tuscon men placed their pile on Gibson and the Tombstone sports were already planning how they would spend their winnings. Mike Joyce, the proprietor of the Oriental saloon, was the stakeholder. His big safe was filled with the money the sports had wagered. No one in the camp suspected that Gibson and Ryan were in collusion. The rival syndicates were composed of honest men, although gamblers by profession. The night before the time set for the race a sport from El Paso reached the camp. He had heard of the proposed race and had gone to Tombstone to play his money. He caught a glimpse of Ryan and he immediately turned to a chance acquaintance and said, quietly: 'I'll bet an even thousand that I can describe the other fellow.' The remark caused comment and an explanation was demanded. 'I lost ten thousand on a foot race in Silver City three months ago,' he said, 'and I didn't get a square deal.' Then he describes the 'other fellow.' His description fitted Gibson to a T.

"Late that night a conference of sports was held in the faro room of Campbell & Hatch's saloon on Allen street. All the members of the two syndicates and the El Paso sport were present. It was first decided that the race should be run as scheduled. The foot racers were to be permitted to remain in ignorance of the presence of the man from El Paso. It was also decided that all bets should 'stand just as they lay' and that the best man should win the race. At the appointed hour the next morning Gibson and Ryan, attired in racing harness, appeared at the head of the course. The conditions of the race were read to them. They were told to toe the scratch. 'When I fire my gun you're off,' said the master of ceremonies. 'This race is to be run on its merits.' Then, raising his voice, the master of ceremonies said: 'Boys, get ready.' Two dozen men shifted the revolvers in their belts. 'Take your places,' was the second command. Two rows of determined-looking men marched down the cinder path and took positions about 20 feet apart. Turning to the mystified foot racers, the master of ceremonies then said, in a tone that carried conviction with it: 'We don't know whether you fellows are crooked or not, and we don't care. We bet our money on a foot race. You fellows have got to make good. If either of you fakes or throws the race he will be buried with full camp honors tomorrow. There are 30 men in this square-deal party and we have 300 bullets to waste. Now, get ready. The best man wins, remember, and his part of the pool will be paid to him.'

"Then the master of ceremonies raised his firing arm and the next moment the runners were off. It was the prettiest sprinting you ever saw. The get-away was clean, the struggle for the lead superb and the dash for the tape the most exciting wind-up I ever saw. The gun men forgot to 'keep their eyes peeled' and they yelled like crazy Indians. The spectators, several thousand in number, threw their hats in the air and danced about like Mequils at a sun festival. Well, Ryan won by a hair. Everybody was satisfied except the runners. Gibson looked like a dead man when he reached his training quarters. He ran to win, and when he realized that he was beaten he expected a hail of bullets to come pouring in his direction. He was afraid to turn his head after Ryan had cut the tape. Ryan also showed signs of the terrible strain he had been subjected to. 'Gib,' he said, 'we quit this camp today.' 'Gib' was willing. That night 'open house' was kept at the Bird Cage theater, but 'Gib' and Ryan were not among the guests.

"Was an attempt made to fix the race?" Old Sport was asked.

"We never heard a word that would lead even a Sherlock Holmes to conclude that a fraud had been planned," he replied. "The foot racers may have been on the square, from toe line to finish, for aught we knew. Over $50,000 was wagered on that race, and the losers agreed with the winners that it was worth the money.

"It was my luck to be in Reno, Nev., five years later," continued the Old Sport, "when Ryan arrived there looking for easy money. He put up at Al White's Palace hotel and soon had all the sports of John Sparks's town talking foot race. Pete Musgrove, over in Carson City, heard of Ryan's boasting, and he promptly sent a representative to Reno. A match was quickly arranged. Again the betting was heavy. Reno and Carson City were great rivals in those days and the people bet high and often. The race was run in a street and Ryan won in a canter. The best man won again, for among the spectators were half a dozen of the men who had stood guard over the cinder path in Tombstone.

"As I have stated, the winnings of the Boatwright gang are not worth bragging about," said the Old Sport, in conclusion. "More money has been wagered on a dingy horse race on a sage brush track in Nevada; and there was no sequel in the form of a grand jury investigation to mar the pleasure the occasion afforded."

OUR WIRELESS OUTFIT.

Within a few days the first consignment of portable wireless telegraph carriages will be shipped by the Siemens & Halske Wireless Telegraph company, of this city, to Washington, to bee mployed by the United States signal corps for the army, writes the Berlin correspondent of the New York Herald.

Six carriages will be sent and placed in operation at military forts near Washington, and will be employed in maneuvers. The wagons will be specially adapted for use in mountainous Western regions of the United States. The air wire, which is of fine steel, is elevated by means of a small captive balloon or by a kite, if the weather is favorable.

The system employed is that invented by Professor Braun and used in the last German maneuvers in the presence of Gens. Corbin, Young and Wood. This will be the first attempt in the United States army to employ wireless telegraphy on a practical basis. Fifteen carriages will be sent in all to the United States and several will be shipped likewise to the Philippines for active service. Two carts will be used, the first containing the wireless apparatus and a rear carriage with a benzine motor. It is proposed to carry wireless messages a distance of 100 kilometers (62 miles).

Herr George Seibt, director in charge of the wireless department of Siemens & Halske, showed a wireless telegraph carriage to a Herald correspondent. He said: "For present emergencies of war no greater distance is desired than from fifty to sixty miles in transmitting messages from one corps or point of military operations to another. But it will be easy to telegraph a distance of more than 100 kilometers (63 miles) if necessary. In a short time all the big armies of the world will be equipped with wireless portable stations, as we have orders from France, England, Russia, Belgium, Sweden and many other countries.

In every city there is one paper favored by local advertisers. In Duluth it is The Herald.

Mueller was in great form at Crookston yesterday. He had all the goods at his command and it was a long time between swats. The Cardinals supported him errorlessly.

Manager Lyean figured that Freeman's twirling could beat Duluth and the light, long, lank, lean, lithesome south paw did pitch good ball in spots but suffered from a fatal bingle bee in the fourth in which the Cardinals got six runs tied up in a bunch like radishes.

All at once Duluth developed a batting streak that put the Crookston infield in the air and in the fifth inning three more runs were scored.

McGaughey was put in to pitch Monday's game at Crookston and was hit hard for five innings, when Mueller went in and held Lyean's men down to two hits. He then took his regular turn again yesterday, making thirteen consecutive innings pitched against Crookston and allowing but nine hits.

* * *

Shepard got hit in the ribs with a swift inshoot on Monday.

* * *

Jack Burns had a home run off McGaughey while Hoffmeister had a home run and two singles.

* * *

Quillan keeps on pounding out two-baggers right along and Kennally continues to do good stick work. Quillan's double Monday was a feature of the game.

* * *

Hoffmeister stole second, third and home on Clark in one inning of Monday's game.

* * *

Umpire Bray went after Superior strong for dirty ball playing at Grand Forks Monday fining Logger $5 and ordering Spelley out of the game.

* * *

Lambert had three hits and four putouts in the first game of the Crookston series.

* * *

Davis, the left-hander who pitched so poorly for Duluth at the beginning of the season has been signed by Fargo.

* * *

Foster, the Superior center fielder, is certainly fast enough for a big league. At Grand Forks yesterday he made a long run leaped four feet into the air and pulled down a hit that was good for three bases. This was the feature of a game in which Grand Forks shut Superior out. The score:

Struck out—by Morris, 2; by Doll, 4. Bases on balls—off Morris, 1; off Doll, 4. Double plays—Scharnweber to Gardner to Cole; Hanrahan to Scharnweber, Brown to Cole. Two-base hits—Doll, Scharnweber, Hanrahan. Stolen bases—Grand Forks, 2; Superior, 1. Umpire—Bray.

Winnipeg beat Fargo twice yesterday. The tail-enders seem unable to take a brace. In the morning game Burns was hit hard and the fat and fickle Foulkes was knocked out of the box in the evening game. The scores:

Winnipeg	1	2	1	0	0	0	3	1	*	—8	14	1

Batteries—Burns and Bonthron; Corbett and Rogers.

Evening score:

										R	H	E
Fargo	0	0	2	1	0	0	1	1	0	—5	8	9
Winnipeg	1	1	0	5	4	2	6	3	*	—16	16	1

Batteries—Foulkes, Treager and Archer; Bemis and Rogers. Umpire—Cusack.

* * *

A new outfielder will appear in the Cardinal uniform at Crookston this afternoon. He is Freeman, a promising youngster that reported here yesterday and was ordered to join the team immediately. He will replace Glendon in left. Cox and McGaughey will alternate in right during the trip.

* * *

The suspension of McCoy is generally approved by the fans. It is the consensus of opinion that any man that cannot live up to team rules has no business in the game. Last year McCoy was fifth in Northern League batting with a season record of .300 while this year, with a few brilliant exceptions, his hitting has been very poor and the showing is the result of his disregard of the team's rules and regulations.

* * *

Holmes, the new catcher recently signed by Manager Van Praugh, has wired that he cannot get away from Terre Haute and much regrets disappointing the local club.

West Superior will see something real sizzling in the line of amateur baseball next Sunday. The manager of the Big Duluth clothing company team says he has $50 to say that his aggregation can defeat the Freimuths.

The manager of the latter team has a similar amount of money to say that the Freimuths can beat their former indoor baseball rivals and it is virtually agreed that the two teams shall meet on neutral ground at West Superior Sunday afternoon. Both are fast and many rooters from this side of the bay will cross over to see the contest.

Kelly and Annis, playing second and short for Winnipeg, are putting up a tremendously fast fielding game. When between the two of them twenty chances are accepted without an error in one game there is not much show for an opposing team.

The Cardinals go against the Champions at Winnipeg tomorrow.

AN AMERICAN WOULD RIVAL

Dumont With a Turtle-Backed Flying Machine.

New York, June 24.—While Santos-Dumont's feat in going from Paris to the races at Longchamps in the same matter-of-fact way that another man might go there by automobile has placed him at the head of aerialists, he is not to be without rivals when the St. Louis Exposition competition is held in 1904. From an exhibition of a model of a dirigible airship given in Brooklyn Santos-Dumont's greatest rival in America for the St. Louis medal probably will be Lawrence E. Dare, a young Pennsylvanian, grandson of the man who was Ben Franklin's secretary.

While Mr. Dare confesses that much that is in the Santos-Dumont machine has been helpful, he claims to have originated improvements which will place his machine in the first rank and provide the air-ship that will not only be dirigible, but will be perfectly safe so far as human life is concerned.

A model, one-fourth the actual size of the flying machine as it is designed for practical purposes, was shown to half a hundred scientific and other men interested in the problem of aerial navigation.

The exhibition was held at the Dare laboratory, at Eighteenth street and Ocean boulevard. No ascension was attempted with the machine, it being altogether too small. But all parts of the mechanism, however, were put into trial and worked perfectly. The mode of the air propellers had a successful test as to their carrying power against the wind last winter when tested on a lake at Ridgewood, N. J. Fifteen miles an hour speed was made against the wind, the ice boat to which the Dare propellers were attached making as good time against the wind as before it. Unlike other airships the Dare balloon contrivance is not cigar-shaped, but is a flat bag with a turtle-shaped back. Its mechanism, its inventor claims, will allow ascensions without the least danger to human life in case the machine does not work properly. By means of the turtle-shaped back and several subordinate propellers it will always be practical to make the descent in spiral circles, thus bringing the machine gently back to the ground.

In addition to the turtle-shaped gas bag and the propellers are two straight wings on either side, an adjustable sail at the prow and a rudder of canvas.

DATES FOR SPECIAL RACES

For Cup Defender Aspirants Have Been Named.

New York, June 24.—The regatta committee of the New York Yacht club announced today that the dates for the special races of the yachts Constitution, Columbia and Reliance, at Newport, have been changed and finally fixed as follows:

June 29 and 30 and July 1, 2, 3 and 4. As planned originally the series was to end July 8. These races will not be the official trials.

Evidence is ample to prove that the most beautiful women in the world are Americans; 90 per cent owe their beauty to the use of Rocky Mountain Tea. S. F. BOYCE.

DEATH WAS CERTAIN.

New York, June 24.—Archibald Morrison, a salesman, committed suicide yesterday in a novel way from the Brooklyn bridge. He climbed the platform railing south of the Brooklyn tower, jumped on top of a train bound for Brooklyn, fell off the last car, struck the third rail, was flung across the tracks, fell through the ties and landed on Front street, more than 100 feet below, a mangled corpse, and was probably dead before he fell to the street.

DEVEREY LOSES CASE.

Albany, N. Y., June 24.—The court of appeals yesterday confirmed the lower court in the case of Peter J. Bargey against the New York county Democratic committee and the well known Tammany leaders, reversing an order of the special term which directed a peremptory mandamus requiring recognition of Garvey as representative of the Ninth assembly district controlled by Former Chief of Police W. S. Deverey. The decision is a defeat of Mr. Deverey in his efforts to secure a place on the executive committee of Tammany hall.

FIRE AT WETASKAWIN.

Winnipeg, Man., June 24.—A disastrous fire broke out yesterday morning in Wetaskawin, Alberta, and before it was subdued did damage amounting to $200,000. The fire started in a hall used for a theater, over the general store of Heric & Co., and destroyed a dozen stores and other buildings before it was extinguished, a heavy rain materially aiding the efforts of the townspeople.

Grand Display and Sale of Oriental Rugs and Carpets.

The mere announcement of a special display and sale of rich Oriental Rugs and Carpets is sufficient in itself to attract lovers of oriental art, but the fact that this display consists of the entire collection of the prominent importer, Mr. Taminosian, and that he is here to personally superintend the sale and display for a few days only is worthy of the critical attention of all. Those who were here during the two days past, cannot say too much in favor of their beauty—gems as it were of the weavers art—and the equal of these rugs have never been shown in the city.

HAPPENINGS IN DAKOTAS

Capital Punishment Law Upheld; Rooney Hangs In September.

Bismarck—The supreme court has upheld the capital punishment law passed by the last session of the leislature and has confirmed the death sentence passed upon John Rooney, who will be executed in September. The case is a peculiar one. Rooney was convicted of the murder of Harold Sweet in March last and sentenced to be hanged June 26. Meanwhile the legislature had amended the law to require that the execution must take place at the state penitentiary and that six months must elapse between the date of sentence and execution. The trial judge had Rooney brought back from Bismarck and resentenced him in conformity with the new statute. Rooney's attorneys appealed on the ground that the prisoner had been tried under one law and sentenced under another, and that the new law provided additional penalty, in that it lengthened the term of imprisonment prior to execution. The supreme court denied this appeal and Rooney will hang in September.

Fargo—Devils Lake is up against a proposition that may lose that city its regular term of the United States court. Judge Amidon holds court in Fargo, Bismarck, Grand Forks and Devils Lake. The county commissioners of Ramsey county receives $900 rent for the use of the court house for the term. The United States owns no jails. Some years ago several sheriffs who combined to hold up the government agreed to charge a rate of $1 a day for the board of United States prisoners, $1 a day for jail rent and $2 a day for guards. The government promptly refused to be buncoed and made contracts with some sheriffs at 75 cents a day. Other counties stood out and Ramsey was one of them. It is understood that Judge Amidon is emphatic in his declaration that there will be no term of court at Devils Lake till an arrangement is made for reasonable charges. Sheriff Rutten of that county is understood to assert that he has his instructions from the county commissioner and is powerless to reduce the rates. Unless there is a change the term for Devils Lake will be transferred to one of the other court towns.

Bowbells—A reign of terror prevails here as a result of the typhoid fever epidemic. There have been five deaths and there are now nine cases, which are being cared for by four Minneapolis nurses at the schoolhouse. The only physician in the town was one of the first to be stricken and he is dead. The water supply was the cause of the trouble. Good drinking water is not obtainable. Bowbells has a population of 300 and is located on the Soo road, thirty miles from the Canadian frontier.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Sioux Falls—Two well known residents of Sioux Falls had a novel adventure with wolves within a few miles of the city. While Dr. G. T. Page, accompanied by Olaf Hautro, was driving on the school section about three miles west of Sioux Falls they observed that their wagon was being followed by two large wolves. In their efforts to attack the dogs, they ran around the wagon, and had Dr. Page and Hautro been provided with firearms, the wolves were frequently so close that they could easily have been killed with a shotgun. Dr. Page, when the wolves attacked and crippled one of the dogs, went to the assistance of the animal, and even then the wolves would come close to him and were with difficulty driven away.

Pierre—William Kuneke, the prisoner confined in the jail in this city on the charge of murdering Andrew Demmler in Stanley county, made an effort to escape, but was prevented from carrying out his plan by the watchfulness of Sheriff Laughlan. As the time approaches for his trial Kuneke is evidently becoming desperate, and watches every move of the jailers far any possible opening.

The state land department has been doing a good business in loans the past week, having sent out over $8,000 on calls from counties for money from the permanent school fund. Lawrence county alone took $49,865, which went into Lead and Deadwood school bonds. Meade county took $24,000 on refund county bonds, and the rest of the amount was made up in small calls from Davison, Fall River, Roberts, Jerauld and Moody counties.

Twenty-three domestic corporations secured charters from the secretary of state last week, with a total combined capital of $32,305,000. One of these was capitalized at $12,000,000, and another at $5,000,000.

Huron—Dr. J. P. Foster, state veterinarian, has returned from a month's tour of the Pine Ridge agency, where he went for the United States department of animal industry. He examined about one thousand horses, sixty-five of which it was found necessary to destroy because of diseases. More than 1200 horses have been killed in the past year by the government.

Redfield—Preparations have been made for the German Methodist Episcopal camp meeting of the Northwest conference, which will be held on the old grounds in Hagman's grove, commencing Thursday evening at 8 o'clock and continuing until Monday, June 29.

Wessington Springs—R. S. Vessew received a dispatch today from the hospital at Lead [illegible] announcing the death of his brother-in-law, G. A. Alberts. Mr. Alberts was one of the best known men in South Dakota.

SAW COMET ALSO.

San Jose, Cal., June 24.—W. W. Campbell, director at the Lick observatory, says: "The comet discovered in the Constellation Aquarius yesterday by Borrelli, of the Marseilles observatory, France, was observed at the Lick observatory Tuesday morning.

RADICAL CHINESE METHODS

To send a telegram to his paper, the Shangai Mercury, the correspondent at Pingtu, China, has to walk 25 miles. Pingtu is a city of 40,000 people, and the telegraph line runs through the town, but there is not enough telegraphing to justify the establishing of an office there, says the New York Sun.

Rev. W. H. Sears, a native of Missouri, now a Chinese missionary, is the Mercury's Pingtu correspondent. When he gets a piece of news that ought to go promptly, he saddles his horse and makes a twenty-five mile journey over the hills to a town where there is an operator.

Most of his news is sent in by mail, and though the paper for which he corresponds is only a weekly, and his letters to the Mercury are not overfrequent, his expenditure for stamps at the Pingtu postoffice is one-fifth of the entire amount of stamps purchased there. In a letter received here from Mr. Sears, he says:

"China has established postoffices in all the walled cities and many of the larger towns, but postoffices and telegraph offices are looked upon as foreign institutions, and are not well patronized.

"There are not many papers in China. The province I live in has nearly 40,000,000 population, yet there is but one Chinese newspaper in it, and that one lonesome sheet has not nearly the circulation of the average country newspaper in Missouri. (About 2500.) Not more than one native man can read—no, I will say not one in twenty. I do not know of a single Chinese woman—except those who are Christians—that can read. The Chinese don't educate their girls.

"In regard to the clipping you sent from an American newspaper about the Empress Dowager preparing to inaugurate a bloody warfare on the 'foreign devils,' will say that the report is without confirmation. There is no doubt the Empress Dowager is one of the worst women in the world. She has no idea whatever of right. As an illustration I will give you the following story, taken from a recent issue of the Celestial Empire of Shanghai:

"'When the royal cavalcade started every Mandarin along the route of nearly 800 miles knew that if the Empress Dowager found that insufficient provision had been made for her in his district, his head would be likely to be the forfeit of her displeasure.

"'As Tsz Hi was entering Kie-hian, a man in Boxer regalia ran into the road, and kneeling beside her chair began an eulogistic address on her efforts to exterminate the foreign devils. The Empress Dowager, so an eye witness told me, merely motioned to one of her body guards, who quietly walked behind the Boxer and with one stroke of his sword cut off his oration and his head at the same time. That was when Boxerism was out of fashion, and the Imperial lady was on her way to Hsian.'"

DEMAND IS GOOD

Dealers In Railroad Ties Are Finding a Good Market.

Interesting Facts as to Consumption and Possible Future Supply.

Dealers in ties and other cedar products at the head of the lakes are reporting a very good season's business. New railroad construction in the Northwest, which is very much larger this summer than was anticipated at the beginning of the year, has created a good local market, besides the demands which come for shipments outside of the state. Railroad washouts over large areas in the South and Southwest have caused a fair market in those localities during the present time.

The street railway improvements at the head of the lakes this year and last have caused a much larger market at home than many people would realize. None but the heaviest and soundest ties are used in the work, and immense quantities have been brought to the city by rail or hauled to points along the street railway lines in the outskirts of the city, where they could be readily loaded on cars.

Every year there is more or less talk of the diminution of the supply of cross ties, but each year sees a greater demand and a correspondingly greater supply of ties. That, eventually, some other than a wooden tie must be devised for railway construction is accepted as a matter of fact, but timber men claim that time is still far off.

In the construction of primitive railroads wooden rails were used. These were supplanted by iron and steel, and now it is argued that the wooden ties must eventually be supplanted by the iron or steel ties.

The question of the future tie supply is attracting the attention of lumber and railroad men all over the country as the demand increases owing to the extension of lines of railroad, repairs on old roads and the necessity of keeping the great systems in repair.

It is estimated that 2500 ties are needed to build one mile of road, and the average life of a tie, when not treated with preservatives, is about six or seven years. It is estimated that there are about 250,000 miles of steam and electric railroads in this country, and those using the specified number of ties to the mile would require about 625,000,000 ties, one sixth of which would have to be replaced every year. This would mean an estimated annual consumption of about 100,000,000.

In discussions of the the possibility of the future, lumber statisticians have figured out that under a system of forestry twenty-five acres should supply annually enough ties for a mile of road, and the tree tops and intermediate yield should supply the necessary fence posts, which are used in large quantities; that with proper allowances 7,000,000 to 8,000,000 acres of good timber land should supply the requirements of the roads in this connection. Reference is made to the action of the federal government in rapidly forming a national forestry policy, and the suggestion is made that the railroads might well take up the same line of work.

Impaired Digestion

May not be all that is meant by dyspepsia now, but it will be if neglected.

The uneasiness after eating, fits of nervous headache, sourness of the stomach, and disagreeable belching may not be very bad now, but they will be if the stomach is suffered to grow weaker.

Dyspepsia is such a miserable disease that the tendency to it should be given early attention. This is completely overcome by

Hood's Sarsaparilla

which strengthens the whole digestive system

THE NORMAL CATALOGUE

First One Is Issued—Full Information as to School.

The first annual catalogue of the Duluth normal school for the school year 1902-3 with announcements for 1903-4 has just been issued. It contains a number of excellent pictures of the building and its various departments, and a full description of its courses, etc. The calendar for the coming school year shows that entrance examinations will be held Tuesday, Sept. 1, that students will be enrolled Wednesday, Sept. 2, and that class work begins Thursday, Sept. 3. The terms ends Wednesday, Nov. 25. The fall term begins with the enrollment of students Monday, Nov. 30, and class work begins Tuesday, Dec. 1. The holiday vacation is from Wednesday, Dec. 23, to Tuesday, Jan. 5, when class work is resumed. The winter term ends Friday, March 4, and the spring term begins Tuesday, March 8, with the enrollment of students and Wednesday, March 9, with class work. The spring term and the school year end Wednesday, June 8.

The catalogue also gives a short history of the foundation of the school, and a general statement showing its purpose and plan and describing the courses in detail. Conditions of admission, the curriculum in detail and items of general information make up the book, which is valuable to prospective students.

A list of students shows that of the 127 enrolled 102 were from Duluth and 25 were from outside the city.

No need to fear sudden attacks of cholera infantum dysentery, diarrhoea, or summer complaint, if you have Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry in the medicine chest.

NORTH WEST ARRIVES.

Brings Fair List and Takes Out More.

For the first time in nearly three years the big passenger steamer North West Captain G. A. Miner, of the Northern Steamship company visited her home port last evening, arriving at 8:30 o'clock or nearly half an hour ahead of time, thus taking by surprise many who had planned to be at the dock when she arrived.

The big vessel presented a very pretty sight as she passed through the canal piers, with lights gleaming from every window and port hole.

Nearly 100 passengers made the trip up the lakes and about 50 more were taken on here. Howard James, president of the Northern Steamship company was among the passengers. He remained on the steamer and returned with her to Buffalo.

Some changes have been made in the vessel since her last appearance in Duluth, one smoke stack having been removed and the promenade deck cabin having been extended 40 feet further aft.

CHAINED IN PRISON

Hard Fate Accorded Former President Arias of Honduras.

Left to Meet Death By Slow Method of Torture.

New Orleans, La., June 24.—Gen. Lee Christmas, the American soldier of fortune, who commanded a detachment of revolutionists in ten desperately fought engagements in Spanish Honduras during the recent insurrection, and who was the first person to enter Tegucigalpa, the capital, after a three days' siege, has arrived here from Puerto Cortez. Gen. Christmas was the second in command on the staff of President Manuel Bonilla, of Honduras, and was one of the bravest and most aggressive leaders in the war that put Bonilla in the president's chair.

Gen. Christmas has come home on a two months' vacation which he will spend with friends in this city. He holds the important position of director general of police at Tegucigalpa.

Christmas brings the first authentic information as to the actual disposition of ex-President Arias upon Bonilla's triumphal entry into the city. The ex-president was declared to have violated the peace protocol when he took a detachment of thirty soldiers, and is charged with robbing the National bank at Tegucigalpa of over $100,000. Bonilla's forces pursued him and found him and his cabinet staff having a convivial rejoicing over their booty.

The members of the party were captured and returned to the capital, where they were thrown into the penitentiary, and are still lying there chained to the stone floors, with no prospects of release. It is alleged there are eighty processes of the Honduras law lodged against every member of the Arias cabinet.

Christmas brings the news of the death of Maj. Al Lelande, for years chief of police of the entire republic of Guatemala. He was an American, a native of Michigan, and had lived in many cities in the states. He was a reckless, desperate character, afraid of nothing, and had been in the worst encounters with desperate bands of outlaws. He was once brought here to have a number of bullets extracted by means of the X-rays. Lelande died in a small dory on route from Puerto Barrios to Punta Gordo. He was taken desperately ill from eating bananas and expired before the shore could be reached.

MANAGER BABCOCK RETIRES.

Salt Lake, Utah, June 24.—Assistant General Traffic Manager S. H. Babcock, of the Denver & Rio Grande system, has tendered his resignation to take effect July 1st. Mr. Babcock retires to private life. On Monday he leaves for California with his family to pass the summer.

North, South, East and West it's proclaimed the best.

"HURRY" CALL FROM KANSAS

Thousands of Men Are Wanted to Harvest the Crops.

Chicago, June 24.—A second call, this one a "hurry up," has been sent to Chicago by the farmers of the West, who must have laborers to harvest the maturing crops. Although the rush season of gathering the cereals is still several weeks off, the demand for "hands" already is great. It is reported that 42,000 men soon will be required to care for the bountiful yield of the Kansas grain field, and other thousands of men will be needed in the adjoining states.

"Many industrious and ambitious men and women have found homes in the country as the result of our advertisements," said Manager George B. Briggs, of the Orange Judd Farmer. "I still receive daily letters from all parts of the country inquiring for work on farms.

"The need is so great, however, that what we have done is only a drop in the bucket. The corn crop requires little help outside of the regular hired help of the farmers. With wheat and other small grains the case is different. Harvesting comes on quickly and must be done rapidly. Vast additions must be made to the working force in any district to care for the yield.

"Thousands of the unattacned, semi-vagabond, lodging-house denizens flock to the wheat fields for a month's work. There seems to be a large class of men who drift from North to South and back again with the coming and going of warm weather. Then there are many small farmers who are able to leave their own acres for a short time and help out their more wealthy neighbors. These men are the best workers known in the harvest fields.

"This year the scarcity promises to be more pronunced than in former summers. Prosperity in the cities keeps many men away from the farms in spite of all attempts to lure them there. But what accounts for the situation to a greater degree is the fact that there is a larger increase this year in the acreage of tilled land.'

DEMOCRATS

In Majority on the Civil Service Commission.

Brooklyn, N. Y., June 23.—A Washington special to the Eagle says: The Democrats are in a majority in the reorganized United States civil service commission. A. W. Cooley, of Westchester, N. Y., is the sole Republican member of the commission, Henry P. Greene, of Duluth, the other recent appointee, being a gold Democrat. The Republican is sandwiched in between the two Democrats. Cooley having been given Foulke's place on the commission, while Greene fell heir to the place vacated by James A. Garfield.

Green is said to be a good civil service man, having made the fight in Duluth to incorporate the merit principle in the new city charter. But he was not known to the president or considered for the office until J. Adam Bede, the representative-elect from the Duluth district, became active in his behalf, which was only about two weeks ago. Bede is also a gold Democrat, or he is a Republican who has become one via the Democratic road. Once he was an out and out Democrat. In fact, he was United States marshal during the administration of Grover Cleveland, but during the period of Bryanism he voted the Republican ticket and has kept it up ever since. The appointment is considered quite an achievement for J. Adam Bede. The latter has yet to be sworn in as a member of congress, but he has already pulled down a bigger plum than the two senators from his state have been able to land for some time.

President Roosevelt offered the place on the civil service commission to "Pudge" Heffelfinger, the famous Yale guard of the early nineties. President Roosevelt was a great admirer of the football giant, and hoped to get him in the government service to block the political place grabbers as he had blocked opponents on the gridiron. Heffelfinger is running a shoe factory up in Minnesota, and, after coming on to Washington and looking the place over, decided that he would prefer to remain in business.

DRESSED AS A MAN.

School Teacher Who Ran Away From Home Found.

Carthage, Mo., June 24.—Miss Maude Gage, 22 years old, missing from her home in Oronogo, in this county, since Wednesday last, was discovered attired in man's clothing working on the farm of Ernest Peugnet, near this city. When encountered by her father, Edward Gage, and an officer, the pretty girl was at work in a field pitching hay. She was recognized by the father, but maintained until the last that she was unknown to him. The girl had cut her long hair with a knife.

Miss Gage is a high school graduate and has taught in this county. She said that she left home because a letter to her had been opened by her father, who believed it came from a young man. The contents instead were unavailable verses returned to the girl by a periodical. She will return to her home.

Pupils' Concert.

The Bradbury school of music announces a recital by the pupils of the junior class, assisted by pupils of the vocal department, Tuesday evening, June 30, at the High School Assembly hall. A number of seats have been set aside for the general public, as it is impossible to reach all by invitation. These tickets are free and can be had for the asking at the office of the school, No. 10 Columbus building.

HE HAD WINE ON HIS TABLE

Awful Charge Against President of South Dakota University.

Sioux City, Iowa, June 24.—The details of the investigation of President Garrett Droppers of the South Dakota state university at Vermillion have finally leaked out.

It is known now that, in addition to the charges of incompetency because he once wrote a letter in improper form, immorality because he smoked and occasionally drank wine, and radicalism because he believed in government ownership of railroads, he is accused of not being as good as he ought to be, of having served wine for Senator Kittredge and of having been tainted by the Unitarianism of Harvard.

It is understood that the board of regents regard none of the charges made against the president personally as worthy of consideration except the one relating to the use of intoxicants. It is not charged by any one that President Droppers is intemperate, but there is an opinion that the president of a state institution should be a total abstainer from the use of wine, whisky and beer and that he should not smoke.

Senator Carl Gunderson made the use of intoxicants his principal charge when he demanded the investigation. When asked for specific information, Mr. Gunderson gave an instance when he had personal knowledge that Mr. Droppers used wine. He said that soon after Senator Kittredge was appointed to succeed James H. Kyle as United States senator, Mr. Kittredge visited Vermillion as the guest of President Droppers. Mr. Gunderson and another prominent citizen were invited by the president to take supper at his home and meet Senator Kittredge. Mr. Gunderson informed the board that there was claret on the table on that occasion.

The origin of the fight against Droppers dates back to shortly after his arrival in Vermillion from Japan. He was invited to a chafing-dish party at the home of a woman who was a prominent member of the W. C. T. U. It had been stated that there would be Welsh rarebit, and for the preparation of that dish President Droppers contributed two bottles of beer. That was his first mistake. Vermillion makes its Welsh rarebits with milk.

Trouble arose over the appointment of a secretary for the university. Senator Gunderson promised the position to a school teacher in the northern part of the state, but President Droppers disliked him and threatened to resign if another secretary was not supplied. Senator Gunderson regarded the president's action as hostile to himself.

The next trouble was over the discharge of Dr. Logan, professor of English and philosophy. He was removed by the board of regents, the result, it is said, of objections to his habits by Dr. Droppers.

Another cause of friction is the fact that Droppers is believed to have a leaning toward Unitarianism, which dominates Harvard, where he graduated. The churches of Vermillion are chiefly Methodist, Baptist, and Congregational. On one occasion, at chapel exercises, he read a lesson from one of Emerson's essays instead of from the Bible, which was made the subject of a former charge.

FARMER MISSING.

Left Note Saying He Was Going Fishing.

Albany, Minn., June 24.—A good deal of anxiety is caused the friends of Peter Cremers, a young married farmer, living near St. Anthony, Minn., by his disappearance Sunday forenoon. On her return from church his wife found a note o rthe kitchen table explaining that he had gone out fishing and that he could not be expected back until late. By other parties he was seen last in company of a young lady and where they went or what has become of them, no one knows, as a diligent search by parties of friends in the woods and around the lakes and in the neighboring villages has failed to reveal any trace of the missing ones.

CORPSE OBJECTED

And the Coroner Postponed Holding of Autopsy.

New York, June 24.—Arrangements were being made for an autopsy on the body of Simon Greenberg yesterday when the supposedly dead man sat up and objected, so Coroner Jackson took his ante-mortem statement instead. Five doctors had said Greenberg was as good as dead and had gone their several ways, and four persons had been arrested on the charge of manslaughter.

Magistrate Pool had sent the prisoners to Coroner Jackson for the inquest, but the coroner declined to receive them because the victim had "regained consciousness," as the police blotter put it. They were sent back to court, where the papers were revised to meet the new conditions.

Just what ailed Simon Greenberg is still in dispute, as the usual tests applied failed to show life in the body, but Coroner Jacson and his brother were making other and severer tests just before the autopsy, when Greenberg sat bolt upright and protested. He may recover.

THE IRON ORE SEMI-CENTENNIAL.

Inclement weather has caused the postponement for a few days of the Lake Superior Iron company's big celebration at Ishpeming. Many prominent iron men of the Lake Superior region were on hand for the festivities in honor of the semi-centennial of the iron mining industry of the lake region, and large crowds from Ishpeming and neighboring towns were preparing to take part in the exercises. The marvelous development of the mining and shipment of iron ore from Lake Superior has been the most remarkable feature of the past fifty years in this section of the country. The first iron mine was located in 1845, but the first shipment of ore was not made until 1850 and consisted of only five tons. There was no canal at Sault Ste. Marie then, and all freight had to be taken across the portage. No great development could be made without continuous navigation to the lower lakes, and naturally the growth of the industry was very slow until the canal was constructed. With the establishment of the waterway connecting Lake Superior with the lower lakes a great impetus was given to the iron ore industry, but it was not until 1888 that the output of the mines exceeded 5,000,000 tons.

In 1892 the first shipments were made from the Mesaba range, and thereafter that range became a large and increasing producer, until last year its output was one-half the total output of the whole Lake Superior region during the thirty years from the first shipment to 1885. In 1901, the Lake Superior mines furnished 74 per cent of the entire amount of iron ore produced in the United States, the shipments passing 20,500,000 tons. While the output in the United States at large doubled between the years 1888 and 1901, the production of the Lake Superior mines quadrupled during the same period, furnishing nearly all the increase in the ore production of the country. Last year the Lake Superior total reached 27,571,121 tons, bringing the total output of the mines in this region during the past forty-seven years up to 210,583,642 tons.

For this wonderful growth of the industry, cheap transportation by the lakes is primarily responsible. No great investment was made by a government with such a splendid showing of profit as has attended the expenditures by the United States on the harbors and waterways on the lakes. The saving in the cost of transportation on iron ore alone would repay all the money expended on the waterways and harbors which it traverses from mine to furnace. Not only has the water route afforded a saving in the expense of transportation, but it has created a large part of the wealth of the nation; without it the development of our manufactures of iron and steel and other industries dependent on them or related to them, all constituting a great share of the national wealth, would have been retarded or impracticable.

It is appropriate that the Lake Superior company—the pioneer mining company in this industry—should celebrate the semi-centennial of the industry. No other factor has been so powerful in the development of the industrial supremacy of the American people.

INITIATIVE AND REFERENDUM.

Is it possible that a referendum law may be turned against its promoters? It is not certain, but one thing is true, and that is that the advocates of the initiative and referendum had a narrow escape from having it turned against them by the corporations in Oregon. The initiative and referendum amendment to the constitution of Oregon was adopted at the election in June, 1902, and was made effective by a law of the legislature which sat in January and February, 1903, providing the manner of calling and holding such elections. The amendment provides that legislation may be initiated by the voters after an election which must be called when 5 per cent of the qualified electors of the state petition for it. New laws do not become operative until ninety days after their approval, and a referendum election must be held upon them when 5 per cent of the qualified electors petition for it within the ninety-day period.

Among the bills passed by the last legislature was one for the construction by the state of a portage railroad around The Dalles and the cascades of the Columbia river, in order that the farmers of the interior of Oregon and Washington may have the advantage of water transportation to tide-water at Portland, and thus force the railroads to reduce their rates. This bill is particularly obnoxious to the Oregon Railroad & Navigation company, whose railroad runs down the south bank of the Columbia river, having the only route from the country east of the Cascade range that follows a water grade. E. H. Harriman, who controls the railroad, began a campaign against the portage railroad. W. C. Cowgill, a newspaper man, circulated petitions for a referendum election on the law. The effort failed, for it was necessary to secure the petitions of 4386 voters, and only 4000 had signed when the ninety days expired on May 21.

Another new law provides for the payment of largely increased fees for charters to new corporations, graduated according to their capitalization, also for a heavy annual license fee, graduated in the same way. This law is opposed not only by the railroad companies but by the organizers of wildcat mining companies in Eastern and Southern Oregon. The wildcat companies invest only enough cash to pay incorporation fees and secure an option on a mining claim, so that a law which requires them to pay an incorporation fee of $75 and an annual license fee of $175 on their ostensible capital is a deadly blow at their industry. Mr. Cowgill also secured 3222 signatures to a petition for a referendum election on this law. A movement among the labor unions to have a referendum election on the law appropriating $500,000 for the Lewis and Clark expositon to be held in Portland in 1905, came near success. The hostility of the unions was incurred through a strike. The strikers circulated petitions for a referendum election on the Fair law. They had secured 3900 signatures when the time limit expired.

Thus far the Oregon people have had no real experience with the referendum law itself, but they see its dangers. It apparently will work as well in favor of corporations as the general public. A real experience will be necessary before the value of the law becomes apparent.

ONE CENT LETTER POSTAGE.

Postoffice department officials have strenuously opposed the adoption of the parcel post business by the government and also penny postage, even for large cities. In spite of this opposition the plan may yet become effective. The principal objection advanced in opposition to penny postage is the deficit that it would entail, but now it is possible that when the thieving officials are all removed and their stealings revert to the government, and with the savings effected by means of reforms in second-class mail rates, sufficient income may be had to add these necessary improvements without a greater deficit.

The opposition to 1-cent postage is based entirely on a dollars and cents argument. It is declared that to adopt it generally through the country would cause a deficit in the postal service of something like $40,000,000 or $50,000,000. The annual deficit has been steadily reduced for the last eight or ten years, and it will be the lowest for the current year since 1884. When the report of the auditor is made public in July, showing a shortage of only about $3,000,000, the question of a reduction in the letter rate of postage will be bound to come to the front again. The argument that to cut the rate in half would jump up the deficit in the neighborhood of $50,000,000 is not borne out by the history of the last reduction. Back in the early '90s, when the letter charge was 3 cents, a movement in favor of a cut to 2 cents was begun. The yearly deficit was about $3,000,000, but in 1882 it dropped to only a little over $6000. In the following year it was but $21,000, and congress decided that the time had come when the postage charge could be safely reduced. Accordingly it was placed at 2 cents. The change made itself apparent at once in an increased deficit, the shortage in 1885 being more than $6,000,000. This was looked upon as an insignificant increase in the deficit in view of the fact that a reduction of 33 1-3 per cent was made in the charge on the most important item that figured in the postal receipts.

Post officials estimate that 80 per cent of the total postal receipts come from the sale of stamps, postal cards, wrappers, etc. Last year the receipts from all sources were $121,800,000, while the expenditures amounted to $124,000,000. The sale of stamps and other supplies netted $112,000,000. Of course, the greater part of this fund came from the sale of 2-cent stamps. It is estimated that not less than $80,000,000 was derived from the sale of stamps of this denomination. Now if the rate on letters were to be cut to 1 cent it would involve a drop of nearly 50 per cent in the receipts from the sale of 2-cent stamps, which would make a difference in the revenues, based on the business of last year, of something like $40,000,000. The proposition to have 1-cent letter postage in the large cities receives more favorable consideration from the officials as they believe it would not cut down the revenues materially.

There is probably more of a public demand for an expansion in the parcels post system of the country than for the 1-cent postage. Were it not for one consideration, the chances would be good for the early elaboration of the present method of transporting packages by the postal service. The express companies are engaged in the same business and would move heaven and earth to keep the monopoly to themselves. It would take a long campaign of popular agitation to create a condition of things where congress would pass a law authorizing the postal service to take up traffic in packages. Of course, the government already does a modest express business, carrying merchandise in packages up to four pounds. The charge is at the rate of 1 cent an ounce. It has been proposed to increase the limit of weight up to twenty or thirty pounds, at the same time reducing the charge on large packages to 2 or 3 cents per pound. This would bring in more revenues, but at the same time it would increase the expenses of transporting matter.

These matters are of vital interest and should be agitated. If the government can carry four pounds of mail matter profitably, it can carry twelve. Express companies should not be considered. It is the good of the people that should receive first attention.

MANAGING THE ARMY.

After much time and attention given to the subject, the new plan by which the army of the United States is to be governed by the general staff, has been perfected and submitted to Secretary Root. As it was prepared by his direction it will undoubtedly be acceptable to him, and will go into effect the middle of August. The system now proposed is to do away with the evils of the staff bureaus, the inefficiency and short comings of which were revealed at such great cost during the war with Spain.

The American army is to be managed generally in the future in the joint co-operation of representatives from all of its branches, both of the lines and of the staff—known as the general board. At the head of this board will be Maj. Gen. S. B. M. Young, who, on assuming the position, will also become a lieutenant general. Next to the chief of staff in power is the general board. This is to be composed of the following officers: Gen. Young, Gen. Corbin, the adjutant general; Gen. Tasker H. Bliss, president of the war college; Gen. George L. Gillespie, chief of engineers; Gen. Wallace F. Randolph, chief artillery officer; Col. Enoch H. Crowder, assistant judge advocate general; Col. William D. Beach of the cavalry, and Col. Alexander McKenzie of the engineering corps. Gen William H. Carter, of the adjutant general's corps, will be a member of this board temporarily. The powers of this board are immense. It will have general supervision of the work of the entire staff, mapping out lines of inquiry and suggesting matters of inquiry and investigation.

Probably its most important duty, or the one which will concern army officers most, will be to recommend to the secretary of war all promotions that are to be made by selection. Its members will have charge of records of all officers of the service, and when vacancies in the grade of brigadier and major general occur, they will suggest to the secretary the men most available for promotion. For the purpose of administering the affairs of the army, the general staff is divided into three divisions. A prominent officer is at the head of each of these divisions, and the general management of the entire army is instrusted to these three divisions.

It is sincerely to be hoped that the new plan will prove satisfactory. Time alone will tell. One bad feature is the knowledge that Gen. Corbin, a bureaucrat, pure and simple, stands next to Gen. Young in power, and in his absence is in control. Such men are a detriment to the army, but in this case it is possible that surrounding influences will overcome deficiencies and all will be well.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

Col. John Crawford, of Grant's Pass, Wash., picturesque and 70, though probably the youngest old man in this part of the country, has painted a landscape, which he has presented to the St. Louis hotel, where he is stopping.

Before it goes any farther Col. Crawford wishes it known that he is no the "notorious Jack Crawford" who was a scout-poet. He is a member of the Loyal Legion, and at 70 years he bowls ninepins like a lad just out of school.

Then this colonel, "our colonel" speaks several different languages, and is a fine old gentleman in a whole lot of ways. And besides he paints.

The colonel finished the painting of Mt. Hood, Ore., several days ago, from sketches he has made while killing time out in the prospecting country, when he was looking for signs of copper or silver.

The picture is a representation of the mountain in the distance, with a pond of water in the midst of a dense growth of jack pine. The trees and the water and the mountain are well executed, and the picture itself is considered quite a valuable possession at the hotel.

The colonel executed this during spare moments since his arrival in Duluth, doing the work for the pleasure it afforded him.

Charles A. Ruprecht, who has had charge of the logging operations of the John O'Brien Lumber company up Grand Marais way, is a guest at the St. Louis hotel. He is preparing to leave Duluth and this part of the country to go into the same work near Memphis, where his company has purchased large tracts of timber recently.

"The last raft is on the way down," said Mr. Ruprecht last evening, "but after it arrives here, which will be late this week, I will be occupied for several weeks closing up the work, probably for another month. I will have the same kind of work at Memphis that I have here."

Mr. Ruprecht is a widely known lumberman in this county, especially among the younger people. He is a brother-in-law of A. H. Viele, of the Iron Range road, and is a member of a family which has been known in lumber and mining circles over in the Michigan country for a great many years.

Arthur Pell, who is one of the best known repertoire opera musical directors in the country, is quite English in many of his mannerisms, but not much that way in his sentiments.

He was telling of some characteristics of the English audience, which is so dense a six-inch coast defense gun could hardly make an impression, at the Spalding hotel, where he stops, the other night. By way of illustration he offered the following yarn:

Once upon a time an American minstrel was engaged to appear in London, when the minstrel craze was at its height there. Coming from the home of the industrious, it was expected he would simply paralyze the audience with his ready American wit and vivacity.

At the end of his first night's work he decided he must have paralyzed the audience, for it passed the jokes and singing without a winkle or a murmur and seemed to be in a state of coma. He was one of the brightest of the American minstrels and it seemed peculiar he couldn't get a hand.

The next night it was the same, and the manager told him it was strange, and that he would have to do something else and change his act around so as to get a laugh. He said he was paying the American a big sum, and he must have the goods delivered or he would have to cancel the contract. The minstrel said there must be some mistake, because he had been before audiences before, and knew, and said he would do the best he could that night.

He went to work that night and his act was a dizzy frost.

The manager came back to see him. He told him that the next night was Saturday; that the house would be packed; that he would have to entertain the crowd or leave. The ship for home would leave Tuesday, and unless he made good at the Saturday performance he would sail Tuesday.

"There's no two ways about it; make good or sail Tuesday," said the manager.

The American thought over his jokes and finally remembered an old, old timer that he thought might "go" in London, as it had gone in this country for fifty years.

So the next day before the performance he went to the interlocutor and said:

"I'm going to have a new joke tonight, and I want to explain it to you.

"I will say 'What is the difference between an old maid and a green to-ma-to, you understand, to-ma-to?'

"Then you repeat and say: 'I don't know the similarity between an old maid and an unripe to-ma-to; what is the similarity between an old maid and a green to-ma-to?' drawl, the 'to-ma-to,' out, because I say as an answer, 'Because they're both hard to mate-o.'

"Now you have that all right have you?" he asked the interlocutor, and the latter said he understood perfectly, but he didn't quite see the point.

At the evening performance the minstrel man was nervous; but the audience looked a little warm and applauding a great deal and he took heart and felt that he certainly would make it go.

When it came to his turn he turned to the interlocutor and said:

"Mr. Middleman, ah have a conundrum to ask yo'. It's a habid one, sah, an' I want a right smaht answah."

"Go ahead, sir," responded the interlocutor.

"Mistah Middleman," he said, "can you tell me, sah, in what pahtic'lah an old maid is like a green, unripe to-may-to?"

The audience leaned forward and were visibly affected and looked to hear something great. The minstrel man felt that his time had come.

The interlocutor half turned in his chair and looked toward the elated end man. He threw out his chest and with a most pronounced cockney accent, said:

"I cah'nt tell you, sir, in what pahticular an old maid is like a green to-maw-to—"

When the minstrel heard that "to-maw" he wilted.

"—what is the answer?" with accent on the "is."

The poor minstrel gathered his forces for one last sarcastic remark.

"The answer is: The ship sails Tuesday."

LINES TO A LAUGH.

Chicago Tribune: "What's the cause of that infernal racket on the floor above?" asked the customer.

"I think," said the bartender, his check paling as he listened, "it's one of these Democratic harmony dinners."

New York Press: "I think," said the first author, "that I shall write a two-volume novel as my next effort."

"Yes?" smiled his rival. "Yes, I think that will be a large enough edition."

Somerville Journal: It is strange that it doesn't occur to more boarding house keepers that they could save money by buying their prunes by the barrel instead of by the pound.

Chicago Record-Herald: "My plea," said the young lawyer who had just won his first case, "seemed to strongly affect the jury."

"Yes," replied the judge, "I was afraid at one time that you would succeed in getting your client convicted in spite of his innocence."

Philadelphia Ledger: Matron—I want to get one of the popular novels.

Clerk—Yes, ma'am.

Matron—I want one suitable for a young girl to read.

Clerk—Well—er—you don't want a "popular" novel, then.

Washington Star: "Are those physicians jealous of the success of their colleague's new operation?"

"Not a bit of it. The only thing that makes them envious is his success in getting it talked about in the newspapers."

Philadelphia Press: "That young woman next door to you goes in for music, doesn't she?"

"Music, so called, yes."

"Vocal or instrumental?"

"A little of both. She's vociferously vocal, and instrumental in making all the neighbors swear."

Chicago News: Mrs. Crowfoot—Yes, the president kissed my little Henry.

Mrs. Brill—Did it make him strenuous?

Mrs. Crowfoot—I should say so. He's been hunting the stray cats with an old gun ever since.

THE MAN INVISIBLE.

Who prompted Brutus when he aimed
At Caesar's heart that fatal blow?
Who, but that man of ill repute,
Johannes Doe—John Doe.

Who let the Normans in when they
To Britain's shores came years ago?
It was that self-same wicked wight,
A man named Doe—John Doe.

Who steered the "Flying Dutchman's" crew
To graft and pillage in the flow
Of ocean's waves? The novelist
Will claim it was John Doe.

Who made good Rip Van Winkle drunk
On mountain crests where sleep the crow?
Who but a Holland sailor bad—
Mynheer John Doe—John Doe.

Who struck brave William Patterson,
Down South, and hurt him badly so
He ne'er returned to tell the tale?
'T was surely that tough man John Doe.

Who sits behind a paneled door
Where gamblers royster to and fro,
And disappears when ammen strike?
Once more it is that man John Doe.

Johannes Doe, my Jo, John,
Within the glare and glow,
Forever more you'll ply your trade,
Johannes Doe—John Doe.

A Singer's Crime.

New York Times: Col. Prentiss Ingraham, author of a thousand novels, soldier in seven wars, and a gentleman of the old Southern school, is lifted from the earth several times a day by a colored elevator conductor who, like most of his race, is very fond of elaborate language. Recently an artist in the apartment gave a song recital, and the darky heard her sing.

"Well, James," said the colonel to the conductor the next morning, "what did you think of the singing last night?"

"I was assassinated wid it, suh," he replied; "puffeckly assassinated, suh; she do sing wid great fluentillity."

A Theological Poser.

New York Times: An eminent divine, discussing the labor question with a friend, had an interested listener in his little boy. During a pause in the conversation the child said, earnestly:

"I suppose, father, that even God has to have workmen to help Him do all He has to do. Are the angels God's workmen?"

The minister, smiling at the child's serious interest in the great question of the day, laid his hand kindly on his son's head and said: "I think they are, my son."

"Father," said the boy, "do you suppose that the angels ever strike?"

THE HOTEL CLERK; LOQUITUR

By H. S. Canfield.

(Copyright, 1903 by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

This hotel is named the Alhambra, after a city in Spain or Portugal, I forget which, and the town is known to 10,000 summer guests as Burton-by-the-Sea. I wouldn't have been here if there hadn't been lots of people; you don't catch a man like me working in a desert. It takes money to get me. I've been at the business for ten years and I've stood behind the counters in the best of them north and south. What I don't know about the hotel clerking profession wouldn't make a book as big as a postage stamp. The fact that I was born in Philadelphia don't mean that I'm slow. I moved away from there a long time ago. New York's my size in the winter and in the summer Burton-by-the Sea is good enough.

There's too much work here for the money I get—I never struck a place yet where they paid me the money I was worth, but I'll hang on until fall. Then it's by-bye, my honey, I'm gone.

You know what my duties are well enough: Behind the counter from 7:30 in the morning until six in the evening to welcome the coming, speed the parting guest. Seems to me I've heard that before; but maybe not. There are two men trying to learn the busine s and I have to show them how; that's wearying. It's my work to see that everybody gets a room and is made to believe that it is the best in the house until they get into it. I receive all of the kicks first and turn as many of them from the proprietor as I can. Is the proprietor grateful? His sort of beast wouldn't know a wagon load of gratitude if he met it in the road. He hinted yesterday something about reducing my salary. I simply looked at him and he wilted. I see that everybody registers; that everygets their mail and telegrams; that every commission left with the office is filled promptly; that all bills are made out and put into the proper boxes and that everything is charged for. If it is not an extra it is me to make it an extra. Am I the whole works? Well, pretty near.

Now, look at what I do and what I am and say whether I ought to be owning the hotel or not. I've forgotten more in three minutes than the boss has got he sense to learn in three years. I'm young; I've got to be young to stand the work. I'm handsome; no proprietor is going to stand for an ugly man behind his counter at a summer resort. They tell me in New York that there ain't a man in town that's the dresser I am. My clothes cost enought to support a family. I've got to have 40 ties in stock and you can't get a tie that will look decent after three wearings. Look at the expense a man is at in this profession. My manicure bill is three dollars a week. I've got $150 locked up in this diamond and it's as big as a filbert. It took me five years to get just the right prefume. I'm using a mixture of patchouli and moss rose and it's great.

How long do you suppose it takes a man of good natural abilities to be come a master in this profession? Look here, now! I receive guests with respect and cordility. If it appears that they'll stand it I throw warmth into my greeting. I try to make 'em think that the tahe hotel has been all gloom until they came. I read their signature upside down as they write and immediately address them by name. I never forget a face or a name. I memorize twenty names and faces a day and keep all of the others in my head. I've got to do it. Any man who's at the top as I am and wants to stay there has got to do it. Ask about this beast Simpkins who owns the plant paying me enough salary! It's ridiculous.

He's got to acknowledge me as his superior and treat me with deference. I've got the help awed and I'm going to keep 'em that way. If a newsboy comes in here with the New York papers he looks at me sideways and treads light. Do I get a copy of each of the papers for myself? Cert. If I walk out of the front door you see every cab-driver out there up his hat. What am I on earth for?

Can I help it if the women can't pass the desk without looking at me? Do I tell 'em to hang around here and read their letters and throw a soft remark at me every now and then? Did I make myself? Sometimes I wish I had a carroty hair and a pimply face, for they bother me when I'm busy. I try to be kind to 'em; I don't want to hurt their feelings; but when a man's been a hotel clerk for ten years with the petticoats getting mashed all of the time he gets tired of it. I've got so tha I just accept it as a matter of course like any other part of the business. My face and figure and hair help to keep my salary up and I've got to stand for all the sighs and laguishing glances and whispers that come my way. I don't mind it so much on the part of the lady guests because often they're the highest-toned ladies in the land and it shows a man that he amounts to something when they smile on him, but the female help make me tired. There's the housekeeper, now. If I didn't order her away she'd be hanging around here all day and the head chambermaid and the head linenkeeper are plumb daffy. Why can't they fall in love with the waiters and the porters—folks in their own sphere of life?

But my heart is always young and as much as I've seen and as much as I've been pursued there are some faces which can make me a foolish boy again. I tell you this because I know that it won't go any farther. It'd ruin me if it got out.

Only last week one came. I saw her as soon as she entered the door—a dream a poem in brown; brown traveling gown fitting a perfect figure like her skin, brown hat, brown gloves, brown eyes, a rich brown complexion, with tints of red on the cheeks, lustrous brown hair, crimson lips, teeth like snow, slender black eyebrows, long lashes—a face to keep a man awake at night. She looked at me once when she registered and her eyes fell. It was only a glimpse of a glance, but it told its story. I had seen it before and knew what it meant. I don't know how it happened, but I remember noticing in the mirror that my hair seemed particularly becoming that day; I had on a beauty of a pink shirt with fine crimson stripe and my tie was a narrow black four-in-hand with a high-roll collar, same material as the shirt. My diamond shone in the tie and that first caught her. I swear her hand trembled as she write. I read the signature upside down—"Mrs. J. H. Cadwallader, Washington, D. C."

My thoughts went back to my boyhood home in Philadelphia. Could she be, I thought, one of the Cadwalladers? If so she was connected at least by marriage with the Biddles. She might be even a Biddle herself and thus a Biddle-Cadwallader, or a Cadwallader-Biddle as she might choose to write it, or belong to one of the collateral branches of those great families, a Bidwallader-Caddle or a Cadbiddle-Wallader or a Bidcaddle-Wallader. She showed birth and breeding in every line and I give you my word and honor that, old man of the world as I am with a thousand conquests behind me, I turned pale with emotion. Here, I said, is my fate.

Later in the day she came to the desk for a telegram and when she thanked me her voice was music. Her poodle was ailing and I suggested something for it, and she talked to me a little while and every time our eyes met I knew that she was mine. She must have known, too, that I was hers. I made no effort to conceal it. When I said to her: "You will find the shore quite windy this afternoon," I threw such a world of meaning into it that she blushed.

She passed again when going to dinner and threw me a swift glance over her shoulder. I caught the second clerk preening himself as if the glance were meant for him—he is a presuming beggar—and came near kicking him. That glance decided me. I would write her a note on the morrow, telling her of my love.

That night her husband came—a square man, 40 years old, with cropped grizzled whiskers—just the sort of common commercial type created to provide luxuries for angels. He wrote his name in a big black hand, tossed his grip to a boy and went into the saloon for a drink of raw whisky. Pah! The moment I saw him I knew that love between her and him was as possible as love between a goddess and satyr. What is a satyr, by the by?

Next morning I wrote her the note and saw that it was delivered. I said: "Your eyes are stars and have lighted my soul! Life was a soundless blank until you came and filled it with music. We have wandered far apart, but fate at last has thrown us together. I love you, as you know, I know that you love me. If I may see you soon alone wear a red rose in your hair as you pass into luncheon." I signed my full name, Herbert Montgomery Twiggs, for I believed that she was from Philadelphia and I wanted her to know that I was connected with the Montgomerys of Germantown. Never mind where I got the language for that note. It read all right.

Now listen, and remember Ive been ten years in this profession:

She came down to luncheon and her whiskered husband with her. She stopped ten feet from the desk and he came close. He said, hold out the note:

"You wrote this, did you? It's a pity you're not big enough to kill."

Then he reached out with a large hand, grasped me by the nose and tried to pull me over the desk. It hurt cruelly. You need not think that I was afraid of him, for I pulled back with all my might. Then he released his hold and went on to the dining-room. She looked back over her shoulder, exactly as she had looked the day before, and laughed! Damn! She laughed! What do you think of a woman like that, married to a coarse beast like that? If it were my hotel they should not stop a day. I should not be surprised if they were sailing under false colors. Probably he is a confidence worker or a burglar. Luckily no one saw his unmanly assault on me. The other help were at luncheon.

Front!

A Ghastly Joke.

Judge: "Ha, ha!" laughed the first street railway magnate, who was going through his mail. "Here's a funny letter."

"What is it?" asked the second street railway magnate.

"Oh, the usual bunch of complaints about the service," explained the first speaker; "but it is signed 'A patron of twenty years' standing'."

The Road to Poetic Fame.

New York News: A new story is going the rounds about Mark Twain and a young poet.

"How long does it take to get fame from a poem?" asked the poet.

The sage thought and in a few minutes said:

"Well, it takes about 4 hours to write one and 19 years 11 months 30 days 24 hours and 55 minutes to get it published! Then it's a toss-up whether it's famous or infamous."

Let Him Out.

New York Times: While Arthur was spending a week at his aunt's, he chanced one day to place his elbows on the table during dinner.

"My dear boy," said his aunt, "don't you know that children of the first families must never put their elbows on the table?"

"Oh, well," said Arthur, easily, "that doesn't hit me, for my father's been married twice, and I belong to the second family."

"She's All the World to Me."

"My ideal man," said Naney,
"Is one of power; a knight
Of strong right arm I'd fancy—
Far reaching in his might."

"Behold this arm," I vaunted,
"Would reach round all the world!"
"I'd like to see," she taunted,
With lip disdainful curled.

I put my arm about her
Ere she had time to flee.
"'Tis thus 'tis done, fair doubter—
You're all the world—to me!"

GETS A NEW MISSION

The United Church Absorbs a Flourishing Chinese Mission.

This Necessitates the Appointment of a Board of Charities.

Another charitable concern was turned into the United Norwegian Lutheran church this morning. An independent Chinese mission has been in operation for a dozen of years past among Norwegian Lutherans in this country. About $4000 was raised for this mission last year, and over 90 per cent of this amount came from members of the United church. This fact seemed to speak in favor of turning the work over to the United church, and the Chinese Mission society offered to transfer the property, on which there are no encumbrances, to the United church. The chief station is in Hankow, where there is a congregation having a membership of seventy and a school attended by 100 children. The value of the property at this place is $6000. At Siuyang twenty-three have been baptized and the school has an attendance of fifty. Fenning is the name of a third station, from which no statistics have been received. Kinamissionstidn, the official organ of the mission, which has over 5000 paying subscribers, is a part of the property, and the aggregate value of the mission stations and the paper is at least $15,000.

This offer was discussed at some length, but one peculiarity of the discussion was, that every speaker was strongly in favor of accepting the offer. Rev. M. Saterll announced that there was not only no doubt, but that there was a surplus in most of the different funds. He also exhibited a map drawn by himself and showing the different Norwegian mission stations in China. To make the way still smoother, he announced that, according to John Arctander, a prominent Minneapolis lawyer, there are no legal difficulties in the way of transferring the property to the United church.

The offer was accepted, less than half a dozen voting in the negative.

Now that the United church is being made a kind of general dumping ground for eleemosynary institutions a board of charities will be needed, and a committee was elected to report on this subject at the next annual meeting. The members of this committee are, Rev. G. G. Krosta, Cumberland, Wis.; Rev. N. J. Bjorkman, Sheridan, Ill., and Rev. N. A. Gharlsmoe, Gary, Minn.

Bethany Church, of Stineer, Minn., was admitted into the United church.

Rev. C. O. Aasbol, of Minneapolis, was selected editor of Lutheraneren, the official organ of the church, though the committee had nominated two other candidates. A good deal of feeling was manifested during the discussionthat preceded this election, and this was the first time that handshapping was heard at any session of the conference.

Formand Dahl was instructed to appoint a committee of one to draft resolutions of thanks to the Commercial club, the newspapers, the congregations that entertained the visitors, the railway companies, etc. Rev. Th. Eggen, of Madison, Wis., was appointed.

A comprehensive code of rules and regulations for the management of the deaconess home in Chicago was adopted.

In view of the fact that many delegates have already deserted the meeting, it was resolved that the congregations be requested to control the attendance of their delegates in the future, and the secretary was instructed to call the attention of the congregations to this resolution.

Propositions looking toward the establishment of pension funds for missionaries in heathen lands, were discussed, but the matter was practically postponed for another year.

A vote of thanks was extended to Rev. T. Dreyer the former secretary of foreign missions, for his efficient and self-sacrificing services.

John Frolnes, of Chicago, led in prayer at the opening of the forenoon session.

The attendance was somewhat smaller this morning. This is not strange, the conference having just entered upon its second week of hard work.

About 350 persons took part in the steamboat excursion last night. The ladies of the Zion church served refreshments.

At the evening service in Rev. N. B. Thvedt's church, a collection of about $50 was taken up for the benefit of Professor Hvidtfeg, who presides at the organ during the conference.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

Rev. N. B. Thvedt Tells of Duluth Hospital Plan.

It has already been mentioned that men and means are naturally drifting into the United Norwegian Lutheran church. Property to the value of about $100,000 has been donated to it in less than a week, and yesterday eight ministers, who formerly served as ministers in five different denominations or synods, were admitted as members by the convention in session here. The names of these are: Gotfred Pederson, formerly belonging to the Church of Norway, and serving as a missionary in Madagascar; T. A. Dietrichson, Menominee, Wis., formerly of the Norwegian synod; T. K. Solensten, Toronto, S. D., formerly of the Norwegian conference; H. A. Gaardsmoe, Gary, Minn., formerly of the Hauge synod; C. O. Solberg, formerly of the Swedish Augustana synod; M. Londahl, formerly of the Methodist church; I. B. A. Dale, Twin Valley, Minn., formerly of the Hauge synod, and H. Hjertaas, Hatton, N. D. One application for admission was declined.

Just before the close of the session yesterday afternoon Rev. N. B. Thvedt, of this city, addressed the meeting on th hospital which he and his people are establishing in this city. A site and a house have already been procured, and a name had been given to the institution. The late Formand Hoyme began his brilliant career as pastor of Rev. Thvedt's present congregation, and he had always looked back to this as his "first love." No name, therefore, could be more appropriate than the one chosen.

Mr. Thvedt said some one might feel like asking the speaker questions of this sort: "Why do you talk to the United church about this? Don't you know that your hospital scheme is a local affair?" He admitted that it was largely a local affair. But Duluth is rapidly becoming the commercial and social center of a large part of the Northwest. People are naturally drifting into Duluth from all quarters. It is, therefore, of great importance, not only to the two cities at the head of the lakes, but to a large number of other cities and towns to have a hospital where Scandinavian patients can be cared for by people of their own nationality and their own religion. Rev. Thvedt also mentioned the fact that the Scandinavians in this section of the country live chiefly in cities, and for that reason most of them are people of limited means, who cannot well afford to build up expensive charitable institutions. It may be necessary, therefore, to appeal to outsiders for aid, to the rich farmers of the United church, for instance, and when the annual meeting of the United church has been made acquainted with the origin, aim and management of the institution, it will be so much easier to raise money in that manner.

Just as Rev. Thvedt was finishing his remarks, Rev. A. Wright shouted: "Here is the first five dollar bill from the United church!"

The Madagascar mission is the most discouraging section of the fields into which the United church has pushed its work since it was organized thirteen years ago. The Madagascar mission of the United church would make an interesting study for a moral philosopher. Only a few years ago this field looked exceedingly promising, and the good people of the United church joyfully shoveled tens of thousands of dollars into the foreign mission fund. Last year the contributions exceeded $15,000. The committee had to spend over $25,000, reporting a deficit of fully $7000. But this was not the worst aspect of the case. The missions over there are badly demoralized. The United church has sent seven missionaries into that field, but only three of them are at work. To be plain, the means are at hand, but the proper men to do the work are lacking.

When this matter was discussed yesterday some of the speakers admitted that the power of money has been overestimated in this work, and a resolution was passed to the effect that the United church will look upon its recent reverses in Madagascar as a chastisement because it expected too much from the beans of this world. It must be added that another resolution makes an appeal to the friends of this mission to encourage gifted young men to take up such studies as will fit them for work in Madagascar.

Rev. O. Guldseth, of Park River, N. D., made a bulky and elaborate series of resolutions from the committee elected to report on the home and foreign missions. By this time the work was rushed with great dispatch, but so many circumstances had to be taken into consideration that Formand Dahl intimated that unless things moved along more smoothly in the future than in the past, he would have to keep the conference in session until Friday or even Saturday.

The annual meeting of the United church controls the affairs of St. Olaf college, Northfield, by declaring itself to constitute the St. Olaf college corporation. The meeting was thus constituted at the opening of the afternoon session yesterday. Rev. J. Ofstedal, of Chicago, the chairman of the board of trustees of the college, occupying the chair. Hon. Osmund Wing, of Goodhue county, Minn., and A. O. Bakken, of Albert Lea, were unanimously re-elected as members of the board of trustees.

It was resolved that the last letter written by the late Rev. E. J. Homme to the United church be printed in the minutes of the meeting. This letter states that there were fifty-seven children in the orphans' home at Wittenberg, and that there were twenty-four inmates at the home for aged people. Some of the latter cannot leave their beds and several are from 80 to 90 years old.

Without a dissenting vote the meeting appropriated $25,000 for the home missions.

HELD UP PAPERS

Auditor Halden Acted In Northern Pacific Taxes on Technicality.

Nevertheless County Board Action Has Been Nullified Temporarily.

County Auditor Halden says the papers in the matter of the reduction in Northern Pacific taxes are not in proper form and will, therefore, not be forwarded to the state auditor's office.

The county auditor declines to discuss his future action in the event that similar action is taken in proper form. This leaves the matter up to the county commissioners.

The city officers have dropped the matter, considering it a closed incident, and all interested express the opinion that the reduction of $50,000 in the Northern Pacific assessment for valuable harbor front property will not be further considered by the county board.

If it is considered, it is said, that the second resolution may not get to the state auditor's office, and if it does the city will fight it there and possibly in the courts.

The city officers were much surprised to see in the morning paper that the county auditor had merely held the reduction up on a technicality, they understanding that the reduction did not meet with the auditor's approval, and was, therefore, a closed incident without so much as a fight before the state auditor.

There was a telephone conference between the county auditor and City Assessor Olafson, in which the misunderstanding was apparently satisfactorily explained on both sides.

Mayor Hugo is in St. Paul, but it is announced that his trip there did not have anything to do with the Northern Pacific tax matter; in fact the question is not now before the city officers in any form, and consequently there is nothing for them to do but to await the present deadlock between the board of county commissioners and the county auditor.

IOWA DEMOCRATS LIKELY TO KNOCK OUT ANY SILVER PLANK

the spirit of American institutions and cast over all a sinister shade of doubt and fear, dimming the bright sunlight of freedom which we once regarded as our inalienable birthright. This change has not come about by violence and bloody revolution, but by the insidious advances the secret usurpations of a class of powerful men, a class constantly narrowing until it is now scarcely more than a group. It has not been accomplished by open and avowed attacks upon the right of suffrage, of freedom of speech or of the press, or upon any of the express rights upon which we have been taught to look as the safeguards of liberty, but it has come with the gradual covering of our natures, our coal and oil fields, our highways, the great original sources of production, the means of transportation, the avenues of employment, until the time has arrived when the once free born American is born into a monopolized and fenced-up world, in which he must walk in the mighty shadow of the owners of his country and ask of them the right to labor, to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

Here lies the wrong at which the spirits of Jefferson and Jackson bid us strike. This issue we must meet. If the Democratic party has any mission today, that mission is to set itself in battle array against these new masters of our people, these industrial Caesars for whom we have coined a new name—the trusts.

This convention should go down to history for its fearlessness in recognizing this battle and placing itself upon the fighting line. I have no fear that we will commit any great error, if we keep our eyes fixed upon the north star of democratic principle and steer our course by that. There will always be found some timorous and venal souls who will prefer any course which promises an easy campaign and success at the polls. But I say to you that success at the polls won at any sacrifice of true democracy will be more disastrous than any defeat. There are those who say and say, with great plausibility, that by making peace with Wall street we might make sure of winning in 1904. Such gentlemen hold out promises of much fatness in the honors and emoluments to be won. The temptation is disguised under specious words, but essentially the thing proposed is a bargain, in which a campaign fund and offices are offered as the price of the Morganization of the Democratic party. I do not know the extent to which such views are held here, but as for me, I pray we may not be led into such temptation, but be given defeat with honor rather than so shameful a victory.

The more unlike the Republican party we become the better our chances to win. The policy of imperialism abroad, and of shameless subserviency to the demand of monopoly at home must in time bring destruction to the party in power. We, as a party, must stand for the reforms which they oppose. We must not be afraid to speak out for the things in which we believe. In 1892 we moved up from the platform of 1884 and won. In 1896 we advanced from the position of 1892 and saved the party from destruction. In 1900 we added that noble appeal for righteousness against imperialism which raised the party to a moral altitude superior to that of the churches. And now let us take counsel as to how we shall apply the eternal principles of liberty and democracy to the new conditions of 1903.

For that there are new conditions who can deny? Let us not now make the mistake of worshiping the verbal expressions of former platform as fetishes. Therein lies the backward road to ruin.

The chief issue of 1896, in the form then put forward is dead. To attempt to galvanize it into life is to be false to the spirit of 1896. The spirit maketh alive, but the letter killeth—let this text shed light upon your deliberations. The paramount issue of 1900 must wait. The consciences of men were and still are wrung by our arguments against imperialism, but the fancied welfare of their pocketbooks prevailed on the day of election. And now the new feudalism of the trusts so overshadows all else in men's minds that they will not shape their political course by considerations of our foreign or colonial policy. The issue of today was implied in every past platform, yea, in the declaration of 1779, in Magna Charta, wherever right has striven against might. But it awaits expression at our hands. All forms of oppression have been bound into a single sheaf and named the trust. In it is slavery for the producing masses. In it is the tariff wrong. In it is the currency monopoly, reaching out for the banding business of the world. In it is government by injunction invoked by corporate employes of labor. In it is imperialism seizing the homes of weaker people for the exploitation of capital. At the trust we may aim our blows, confident that when the Goliath falls, down with him will go the hosts of Philistine evils at which we have been hacking.

The problem were simple if it were as easy to do as to know what to do. Three roots bear up the dominion of the trusts. These are highway monopoly, tariff monopoly and land monopoly. Land monopoly in the form of ownership of mines and forests has so far come forward as to have been made an issue by the Democrats of New York in a platform denouncing the anthracite trust. This great evil demands the attention of all who hope to see industrial wrongs set right.

The tariff monopoly alone seem to me insufficient to account for any of the great and powerful trusts. They rose under its shelter, but, controlling as they now do, our mines, forests and railways, most if not all of them, could still thrive though trade were free. Yet, any movement towards free trade is in itself good, and how can we better serve the cause of truth than to couple the name of such industrial giants as the trust with the ancient and absurd lie "protection to infant industries." Furthermore, while free trade might not kill the trusts it would establish a line beyond which their robberies could not extend. Hence, we shroud renew our war on protection, unfurl again the tariff reform flag, and demand free trade in trust made goods. Of the very essence of liberty is the right to move from place to place and to transport property. He who is bound to the place where he was born is a serf. He who controls the highways by which we must move and transport goods holds us in a sort of serfdom. The third great bulwark of the trusts is highway monopoly. It appears in every city in monopoly of our streets by the public service corporations, and everwhere in the privately owned steam railway lines, controlled almost exclusively by the same group of industrial potentates who own the other trusts. Whether private individuals could under any circumstances successfully compete in business with the trusts may be questioned, but it may be taken for granted that, as long as the stock of the railways and the trusts are owned by the same interests, no one can compete with either. There are those who seem to believe that proper restrictive statutes vigorously enforced will cure this evil. I am not in agreement with these optimistic views. There is no force in law to compel the single owner of two railways to compete with him, self, nor is it possible by statute to prevent men as railway owners from granting favors to themselves as shippers. Against a combination so fortified all the Quaker guns of mock strenuousness will be pointed in vain. So long as this concentration of ownership exists there can be but two kinds of business in this country, that done by the trusts and that done by consent of the trusts. So long as this condition exists government of the people, by and for the people must remain a theory only and not a condition. Be not deceived; there are only two horns to the railway dilemma. We must choose between railway ownership and the operation of government and government ownership and operation of railways. And in the resumption by the people of the control of their own highways will be found the most simple and practicable way toward depriving the trusts of their power for evil.

D. W. Hamilton, of Sigourney, was chosen as permanent chairman of the convention.

At the district caucuses held in the forenoon, the gold men won a decided victory. Seven out of eleven selected gold men for their members on the committee on resolutions, the division standing:

For gold—First, Second, Third, Fourth, Fifth, Ninth and Eleventh.

For silver—Sixth, Seventh, Eighth and Tenth.

At 1:30 the committee on resolutions took a vote on reaffirming the Kansas City platform. The roll call showed seven votes against and four in favor. This settles the question of reaffirmation.

HOW CLEVELAND GOT A VOTE.

Just at this time, when Mr. Cleveland's name is so prominently before the public, the following story, which shows how Mr. Cleveland got one of the votes which elected him for a second term is seasonable, and as it has never appeared in print is fresh as well, says the Brooklyn Eagle. Shortly after Mrs. Cleveland's marriage she was called upon to open a working girls' home up in Connecticut. On this occasion Mrs. Cleveland was asked to choose a New York Clergyman to accompany her and act as chaplain at the opening. Mrs. Cleveland's choice fell on a well known Unitarian minister, who accompanied her in a private car to the home, and was perfectly charmed and delighted with the graciousness of the first lady of the land.

When Mr. Cleveland was nominated for the second time this clergyman, who had been a stanch Republican ever since he had been able to vote, astonished his friends by giving his support to the Democratic candidate. Asked to explain the reason why he took this step he said: "There are a number of reasons, but the strongest of all is that I would never help, even by one vote, to turn Mrs. Cleveland out of the White House."

Probably Mrs. Cleveland never knew how her charm of manner won for her husband a supporter from the ranks of the opposition, for herself a stanch friend and admirer and for one almost lifelong Republican the term of "Mugwump."

THE DOBSONS WILL GRANT NOTHING TO THE STRIKERS

Not Even the Fifty-Five Hour Week Which Concession Was Once Made—The Textile Workers Then Voted to Continue the Strike.

Philadelphia, June 24.—For the first time since the inauguration of the textile workers' strike the piece workers and day workers of John and James Dobson's mills at the Falls of Schuylkill met jointly today. A committee was appointed to confer with both John and James Dobson and in case of a non-agreement it was announced that a vote would be taken to determine the strikers' sentiment about returning to their looms.

The day workers and piece workers are not of the same mind. The former constitute a majority of the Dobson's employes and are opposed to the proposition of the piece workers to return to work at fifty-five hours' pay for affifty-five hour week, as they demand sixty hours' pay for fifty-five-hour week. As no agreement has been reached the committee was appointed with the hope of making terms with the firm. Failing in this endeavor, a vote on the question of ending the strike will be taken.

The committee's efforts to effect a compromise with Messrs. Dobson were futile. The firm refused even to grant the fifty-five-hour week, which concession had previously been made providing the strikers did not insist on an increase in pay. The committee was informed that the strikers could return to work when they were willing to accept the old terms of sixty hours a week, at an equal wage rate. The employes decided to continue the strike.

I SAVE WEAK MEN

I Have Discovered the Marvelous Secret of Perpetual Youth and Undying Manly Vigor and I Give It To You Free.

My Mysterious Compound Startles the World With Its Wonderful Cures —With This Marvelous Secret No Man Can Grow Old and It Is My Mission on Earth Henceforth to Bring All Jaded, Worn-Out Men to This Fountain of Youth.

Send No Money—Simply Send Your Name and Address and This Marvelous Compound Will Be Sent You By Return Mail, Prepaid and Absolutely Free.

I have discovered the marvelous secret of perpetual life and vigor in men. To me it has been given to bring to the fallen, weary, worn-out brothers the knowledge of this priceless boon, and even to the uttermost ends of the earth I send my message of love and peace and hope and help. Unbelievers may scoff and cry "fake" but I heed them not. My work has just begun and I am saving men.

The secret of this mighty healing power this vital life spark, this marvelous teric is known to me alone. It is mine to give to whom I will and my works go before me. Doubt not! I ask no man to believe me, but I give to every weak man free this priceless boon and it restores him instantly to the strength and powerful vigor of youth. With this marvelous, mysterious compound, which I have discovered only after a lifetime devoted to search through all the realms of science, and the archives of the ancients, it is possible for every weak man to have the glorious manly power, the untiring vigor and the long life of the patriarchs of Bible times. With this mysterious compound no weak man will ever again be troubled with impotency, vital losses, nightly emissions, spermatorrhea, varicocele, prematurity, defective power or lack of vital energy.

"No Man is Lost —There is a Sure Cure for Every Weak Man."—Dr. Ferris.

Send me no money. It is my duty, guided by an Unseen Hand—It is my mission on earth—my life work—to lift up the fallen, heal the weak and cure the maimed or undeveloped; and to every man who has lost his vital power or finds it waning, I send my message of love and peace and health. I can save him and I will save him and restore him to many years of happiness and the impetuous vitality and vigor as manhood of perfect health and youth.

Remember, it matters not how old you are, it matters not how you lost your manhood, or when you lost it. It matters not what doctors or scoffers say. This is no ordinary drug or stimulating method of treatment, but it is the vital spark of life itself, and it matters not how many remedies and doctors have failed. I have repeatedly and instantly renewed the youth of old men. My secret compound never fails. I have often instilled into jaded men new vitality, health and strength. For worn-out men I have oft kindled, in an instant, and to stay, the sparkling vitality of youth. My private address is Dr. C. Sargent Ferris, 91 Strawn building, Cleveland, Ohio, and I urge every weak man to come to me for I will give him undying strength, the supreme joy and happiness of perfect manliness. My wondrous discovery has startled the world by its miraculous effects, yet I seek not fame nor glory. It suffices me if I may be the humble instrument to bring all men into the enjoyment of bringing all men into the enjoyment of their true manliness and I do it free. In the time allotted to me here on earth I shall do all that in my power lies to give my fellowmen the benefit of this great secret and my reward shall be in the knowledge that I have done unto others as I would that others should do unto me.

IN NEED OF RAIN

Crop Service Reports Tell of Dryness In Red River Valley.

In North Dakota Damage May Be Serious Unless Rain Comes.

The crop service reports for the week ending Monday, present the need of rain. The Red River valley is especially in need of it, although the condition is not such as to ocasion alarm. At the same time it is coming to the point where rain is a necessity. The North Dakota report says:

"Dry, warm weather, followed by cloudy and cooler, with light to heavy showers in some localities prevailed the past week. Crops in all sections, except in a few especially favored ones, are beginning to show the effects of the dry weather that has prevailed the past three weeks, and there is no doubt that some damage has already been done, and unless heavy rain falls soon, the effect will be serious.

"Wheat is turning yellow in places and getting very weedy. In some places, where that early sown is beginning to head, it is very short, and it is probable that all straw will be short this season.

"Oats are beginning to suffer from the drouth, while rye and barley seem to be holding their own, but would be greatly benefited by rain.

"Early flax still continues in good condition, but that sown late has not come up yet, and will not, until rain enough to germinate the seed falls.

"Corn continues backward in all sections. It is large enough to cultivate in the extreme southern portion, but in the central and northern portions it has made but little growth.

"The drouth is having a serious effect on the grass and prospective hay crop. It has fallen off to a great extent during the past two weeks, as in many places the prairie grass is short and fast drying up.

"One hail storm, doing little or no damage is reported. Grasshoppers are said to be doing considerable damage in the northwestern part of Cass county."

The Minnesota report also tells of a shortage of rain in the northern portion of the state, but in the southern part there has been plenty. The report says:

"The temperatures were moderately high early in the week, but considerably lower towards its close. There were showers in the south and southwest on June 17, 18 and 19, which were locally heavy in southwestern counties. There were light, local showers in orthern portions on June 20.

"In the Red River valley there was temporary benefit to the crops from the showers, but more rain is needed, especially for the oats, and for pastures and forage crops. The winter wheat and oats on the fall plowed lands seem to be standing the dry weather fairly well.

"In the southwest the rains were heavy enough to flood some of the low lands again, and to delay the cultivation of corn and potatoes. In other parts of the south the wheat, oats, barley, flax, corn and potatoes on high lands were benefited, and there was benefit also on the recently flooded lands which were becoming dry and baked. Early barley is heading. Rye is filling nicely, oats do not look well in some places, wheat is generally good, except that a little rust is reported in Redwood county; a fine clover crop is being cut; timothy is coming into bloom; corn is backward because the weather has not been continuously warm enough for corn growth; flax is generally doing well, though much of the flax was seeded on low lands which have suffered from excess of moisture. A good strawberry crop is being gathered."

STARTLING EVIDENCE.

Fresh testimony in great quantity is constantly coming in, declaring Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption, coughs and colds to be unequaled. A recent expression from T. J. McFarland, Boltorville Va., serves as example. He writes: "I had bronchitis for three years and doctored all the times without being benefited. Then I began taking Dr. King's New Discovery, and a few bottles wholly cured me." Equally effective in curing all lung and throat troubles, consumption, pneumonia and grip. Guaranteed by all druggists. Trial bottles free, regular sizes 50c, and $1.00.

SCHAEFER COMING HOME.

New York, June 24.—Jacob Schaefer, the billiardist, will sail for home today, according to a Herald dispatch from Paris. He has received a challenge from Fournier for a three thousand point match at 18-inch balk line billiards, two shots, to take place in January or February next in Paris.

Energy all gone? Headache? Stomach out of order? Simply a case of torpid liver. Burdock Blood Bitters will make a new man or woman of you.

ARTILLERISTS ROBBED.

Chicago, June 24.—A dispatch to the Tribune from St. Louis, Mo., says: Three members of battery A, an artillery company which contains on its rolls many of the well-known society men of the city, were held up by a lone robber last night and suffered the loss of $350.

THE ROYAL ARCANUM

Banquet In Celebration of the Order's Twenty-Sixth Anniversary.

Clever Speeches and a Program of Entertaining Features.

"Royal Arcanum Day" was celebrated last evening by the members of the Duluth Council No. 1483 last evening, in a banquet at the Commercial club. Covers were laid for 150 and the tables were filled.

"Royal Arcanum Day" is the anniversary of the foundation of the order, this year being the twenty-sixth that the order has been in existence.

Julius H. Barnes acted as toastmaster and fulfilled the duties in a very pleasing manner, his speeches being witty and pointed.

Ellis L. Millar was the first spenker and convulsed the banqueters by his interpretation of the subject given him on which to speak, "Calildus Aer" the Latin term for "hot air." The picture drawn by him of one of the prominent members of the order, a doctor, sitting in the center of the cemetery and soliloquising, "O what a practice I would have if my patients were all alive," made the hit of the evening. Incidentally Mr. Millar gave some noteworthy statistics of Duluth and Minnesota.

"We are living today," he said, "in the best world that exists, in the best country in that world, in the best state in the country and the best city in the state. We have more brave and bright men and beautiful women in Minnesota than in any other country or state in the world. Minnesota is the bright particular gem in the nation's field of blue."

Following Mr. Millar's address Charles O. Applehagen sang a baritone solo in excellent voice.

F. H. Barnard followed with an address on "Ethics of Our Order." The ethical part of the speech was given in a masterly conglomeration of Choctow, Chippewa, Latin and French but the wittiisms and jokes in Mr. Barnard's address were in English and fully appreciated by the audience.

A well rendered coon song by John Doran followed.

Lansing R. Robinson was destined to make a hit with his monologue which was original and delivered in an excellent manner. The local hits and jokes were much appreciated.

A dialect story of the Americanized Hillary's view of the labor problem was told by Francis B. Beapre, who convulsed the audience by his dialect.

A speech on "Fuzzy Wuzzy, the Zulu," by Deputy Grand Regent Gerrit F. Backus proved to be a pretext for the telling of some new and excellent stories and the evening was brought to a close by a trio sung by Messrs. Applehagen, Robinson and Doran.

Flaaten's orchestra was present and played throughout the sumptuous banquet which was provided. Credit for the success of the affair is largely due to the banquet committee composed of Messrs. L. R. Robinson, Robert J. Hamp, William D. Jones, and Charles O. Applehagen. The six resident charter members of the order, Dr. C. B. Pillsbury, Dr. S. E. Catheral, Simon Clark, John Chrisfield, George R. Claybourn and W. R. Eckman, occupied seats of honor at the right of the toastmaster.

FLIRTING WITH DEATH.

Diavolo's Great Act of Looping the Loop.

"An enumeration of chances that men take with death in order to entertain the great amusement-loving public would be very incomplete without the addition of that latest and greatest sensation, viz., that looping of the loop on a bicycle," said James D. DeWolfe, one of the agents of the Forepaugh-Sells circus, which is scheduled to show here next Monday. Mr. DeWolfe gave some very interesting statistics concerning this great act, which he declares is "the greatest sensation ever presented anywhere, at any time." In the course of conversation, he said:

"It is difficult to conceive how a man of sound mind can be tempted by money to so ardently flirt with death. The cost of this act is $1600 per week, and it consumes just six seconds of our entertainment program. The act is presented twice daily, and therefore Diavolo works just seventy-two seconds per week. But his work is such that we have as yet been unable to find another living man who can perform it. The basis of the act is the overcoming of gravitation by velocity. It has been mathematically proven that a freely moving body, weighing 225 pounds, can descend a 110-foot runway at an angle of 45 degrees and gain sufficient velocity to rise almost perpendicularly 23¼ feet. In other words, Diavolo weighs 160 pounds, and his bicycle 65 pounds; the runway is 110 feet long, placed at an angle of 45 degrees, and the 'loop' proper is just 23½ feet in diameter.

"The speed attained is terrific, and the slightest swerve from the center of the narrow 3-foot runway means instant death. It is absolutely without qualification the greatest hair-raising demonstration of dare-devilry ever witnessed—but it only lasts six seconds."

DEATH RATE DECREASING

Wonderful Improvement In Manila Since American Occupation.

Washington, June 24.—Surgeon Gen. O'Reilly has received an interesting report from the medical officers in the Philippines, which shows a steady decrease in the death rate in the city of Manila, as a result of the operations of the medical officers of the army. The death rate of Manila for the first quarter of the past four years has decreased steadily from 46.80 per 1000 of the population for the first quarter of 1900 to 22.17 for the first quarter of 1903.

Assistant Surgeon Munson says that the improvement in the conditions this year has been accomplished in spite of the fact that Asiatic cholera and bubonic plague both previously had gained a foothold in the islands and that the existence of a largely unvaccinated population in the provinces meant a constant introduction in the city of the infection of smallpox. Cases of plague, cholera and smallpox have occurred in Manila during the present year, but the precautions taken by the board of health have prevented an epidemic therefrom.

"The sanitary results obtained in the past four years through American control have been accomplished," says Dr. Munson, "despite the naturally insalubrious condition of Manila and its total lack of sanitation under the former sovereignty, which, from the level site interfering with drainage, the many foul canals ramifying the city, the absence of any sewerage system and the existence of an impure and insufficient water supply and many old unhealthful habitations—have created sanitary problems of the greatest difficulty. The board of health, therefore, has been unable to turn previously existing methods and conditions to sanitary advantage, and has found it necessary not only to develop entirely new plans of improvement, but at the same time to combat the results of conditions inherited from the Spanish administration. The mixed character of the inhabitants, with their prejudices, superstition and largely primitive habits of life, also have been a constant obstacle in sanitary work."

Attention is invited to the fact that the present annual mortality in Manila, 22.17, is lower than that of many cities not commonly regarded as unhealthful, situated in the United States and elsewhere. In Washington city the annual death rate per 1000 in 1900 was 22.80. According to Dr. Munson the present death rate of Manila compares not unfavorably with San Francisco, Boston and New York, Glasgow, Paris, Vienna and Havana.

TERRIFIED THE TOWN.

Officers Are After Willard Herrell, an Ex-Convict.

Logansport, Ind., June 24.—Pan-handle detectives, sheriffs of two counties, policemen from three cities and several farmers yesterday afternoon started in pursuit of William Herrell, an ex-convict, who has terrified Cass and Miami counties for the past twenty-four hours. Herrell fully armed, has sworn he will not be taken alive. The posse is closing in on a clump of woods and will shoot Herrell if they get within range. Monday Herrell amused himself by shooting at traveling men in the Lake Erie depot at Bunker Hill. Then he visited a saloon and shot out the mirrors. On the way home he shot at everybody in sight, breaking the windows of a passenger train, several passenger narrowly escaping death. He met John Shively and told him to prepare to die. Shively leaped over a barbed wire fence and fled. Herrell sending a shower of bullets after him. Shively had testified against Herrell when the latter was tried for the murder of William Condon, a penitentiary sentence following Herrell's conviction.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

The line of defence that will be made by Chauncey Dewey and his associates is that whoever did the killing of the Berrys acted in self defense. It is not admitted that any of those under arrest fired the shots that did the deed. In fact, it is claimed that the one whom one of the Berrys claimed fired the fatal shot is McBride.

Mrs. Roosevelt arrived at Oyster Bay Tuesday night by train, accompanied by a maid. Superintendent Neal Seaman, of Sagamore hill, met her at the station with a carriage which she entered and was driven home. There were few at the station when she arrived.

Judge Elmer B. Adams, of the United States district court released United States Marshal Morsey, as receiver of the defunct John J. Ryan Turf Investment company, its affairs having been settled. The assets, about $130,000, paid about 15 per cent of the deposits, and were distributed among 12,000 claimants.

Enough giant powder and nitro glycerine was found in the penitentiary, Canyon City, Colo., to blow up the entire prison. This discovery was made after the convicts, who had attempted to escape Monday, were put through the sweating process. The explosives were concealed in the wall of one of the shops. It is believed that the nitro glycerine was manufactured by Kuykendall, the convict who was killed.

WORST OF EXPERIENCES.

Can anything be worse than to feel that every minute will be your last? Such was the experience of Mrs. S. E. Newson, Decatur, Ala. "For three years" she writes, "I endured insufferable pain from indigestion, stomach and bowel trouble. Death seemed inevitable when doctors and all remedies failed. At length I was induced to try Electric Bitters and the result was miraculous. I improved at once and now I'm completely recovered." For liver, kidney, stomach and bowel troubles Electric Bitters is the only medicine. Only 50c. It's guaranteed by all druggists.

Philadelphia, June 24.—Charles G. Fisher, a furniture dealer and his clerk, James K. Hallowell, were held up yesterday in Fisher's store by three thieves. The men entered the store on the pretense of buying furniture. They drew revolvers, tied the two men to a chair and table and then proceeded to rob Fisher and the clerk. They took a watch, a diamond and $10 from Fisher, and were about to rob the safe, which contained $400 or $500 when they were frightened off. Fisher's loss is about $200. The men escaped.

STARTLING FACTS

Expected to Develop at a Murder Trial In Alabama.

Illness of the Leading Witness Delays the Climax.

Birmingham, Ala., June 24.—One of the most noted murder trials in the history of this state is now in progress in the criminal court here. It is that of the state against Glen Havis, charged with the murder of Elias M. Lathem, a prominently connected young traveling man who was shot and killed in the lobby of the Morris hotel, on April 17 last. The case was called for trial last Monday, but it was Friday morning before a jury was completed after the defense had exhausted every effort to secure a continuance.

William Wise, a well-known young merchant and boon companion of Havis, is under indictment with Havis for the same offense, but a severance was asked for and granted in the trial of the accused.

The killing caused a tremendous sensation at the time, not only because of the prominence of the parties, but the persistent rumor that an ugly scandal was back of the tragedy. The Wise and Lathem families resided in the same neighborhood and were regarded as the best of friends. Lathem had a wife and three children and Wise had a wife and several sisters.

At the time of the shooting Lathem was at the Morris hotel and Wise and the latter's friend, Glen Havis, had gone to the hotel and had a long parley with him. The conference ended in an altercation, after which Havis shot and killed Lathem.

In seeking a continuance the attorneys for the defense set up the claim that one of their most important witnesses, Mrs. Joseph Rubel, sister of Wise and wife of a well-known merchant, was too ill to attend court. The court asked for a showing of what it was expected to prove by her, and this was made and produced a profound sensation, as it was the first public statement of what is alleged to have caused the killing. The statement said that it was proposed to prove by Mrs. Rubel that on the morning of the tragedy Lathem telephoned her from the Morris hotel telling her that if she would come to his room he would deliver to her certain letters which she had written to him, and which she had sought without success to have him return. The statement alleged that Lathem made an improper proposal to Mrs. Rubel, as he had repeatedly done before. The allegation was also made that Lathem's wife had in her possession certain letters which Mrs. Rubel had written to Lathem and that Mrs. Lathem had threatened to sue for a divorce.

Continuing, the statement said that upon receiving the telephone message Mrs. Rubel communicated with her brother, William Wise, and asked him to try to get the letters which Lathem had. He said he would, and departed from the house. Later witness became fearful that trouble would occur, and starting out to intercept her brother, met his friend, Glen Havis, and sent him to the Morris hotel to try to prevent trouble.

Shortly after the killing Mrs. Rubel's husband was arrested and jailed on a charge of complicity in the killing, but the grand jury failed to connect him with the affair and he was released.

NEGRO FIEND ASSAULTS TWO

One White Woman and One Colored Left For Dead.

St. Louis, Mo., June 24.—Two women, one white and the other colored, were assaulted and left for dead about three and a half miles east of East St. Louis yesterday morning, and a posse is looking for a negro described by one of his victims.

One of the victims, Mrs. Annie Green, a colored woman, aged 25, was clubbed about the head, her skull fractured and her left arm broken. Just before lapsing into unconsciousness she told of the assault and described a light yellow negro, aged about 25 years, as her assailant. The negro later proceeded to the house of Jhon Bruno, a farmer living between East St. Louis and Belleville, and committed the second crime. A brother of Miss Florence Bruno, aged 17, returned home and found his sister lying on her bed unconscious. Her skull was fractured, both arms were broken and she was suffering from other injuries. The young woman had been at home alone during the afternoon. She was her father's housekeeper.

Young Bruno spread the alarm, and then the other assault became known. A posse was rapidly summoned and the country thereabouts is being searched for the guilty man.

The posse of farmers, reinforced by the chief of police of East St. Louis and members of his force and the sheriff of St. Clair county, with a number of deputies, has surrounded a man on an island formed by backwater from the Mississippi flood. It is not known who the man is.

Florence Bruno was taken to St. Mary's hospital, East St. Louis. She was still unconscious late last night, and the physicians express no hope for the girl's recovery. Annie Green, who is at the Henrietta hospital, East St. Louis, is in a precarious condition, but there is a chance for her recovery.

"BOY FAGIN" ARRAIGNED

For Teaching the Art of Stealing to Little Lads.

New York, June 24—Samuel Simon, 17 years old, who lives at No. 153 Suffolk street, is a "boy Fagin," according to the police. He was arraigned in the Yorkville court with Samuel Blumenthal, a 9-year-old lad, who had been accused of stealing a pocketbook containing $22.

A detective testified that he saw the Blumenthal boy take the pocketbook, and, as he ran, pass it to Simon. The detectives caught Simon, but the latter threw the purse to another lad, who escaped.

Magistrate Pool ordered young Blumenthal to come before him.

"Who taught you how to pick pockets?" asked the magistrate.

"Sam, there," said the boy.

"How long have you been picking pockets?"

"About two or three days."

The boy then told how he and other boys were taught to pick pockets, open chatelaine bags and steal watches on women's dresses.

"Sam said I would make a good 'dip'" said the little fellow, "and he told me there was lots of money in it and we could live swell."

"What is a 'dip,' my boy?" asked Magistrate Pool.

"Oh, that's a guy what can lift things outer pocketbooks without gettin' caught," was the answer.

Simon was held in $1000 bail for examination and the Blumenthal boy was sent to the rooms of the Children's society.

PRESIDENT TO MOVE

To His Summer Home at Oyster Bay Next Saturday.

Will Deliver Oration at Fourth of July Celebration.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, June 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—President Roosevelt has begun to move to Oyster Bay. A wagon load of stationery is now on the way to the president's summer home, and in the next week enough will be shipped to the little town on the sound to run the summer capital until the president returns to Washington in the fall.

The presidential offices will be located this summer in the Morse block, at the corner of South and Main streets, instead of in the Oyster Bay Bank building, which was the official home last year. A grocery store is on the ground floor, another grocery occupies the diagonally opposite lot and a meat shop and a dry goods store are on the corners.

When the president goes to Oyster Bay, he will be accompanied by Secretary Loeb, Stenographer Latta and Messengers Hall, Lightfoot and Dulaney. Later in the summer Assistant Secretary Barnes and Stenographers McGrew and Webster will probably go to Oyster Bay to relieve their brother toilers, who will take their vacations.

The president expects to leave Washington June 27 and remain in Oyster Bay until Sept. 1 or thereabouts. His fellow townsmen are making preparations to accord him a hearty welcome on the evening of that day. The president has accepted the invitation of the local committee of Oyster Bay citizens to deliver an oration at their Fourth of July celebration.

Wyoming, the beautiful saddle horse presented to the president by friends and admirers in Wyoming when he was coming through that state on his return from his Western trip, is being made accustomed to Washington streets and sights. The Wyoming man who brought the horse to the White House stables is still here looking after the animal, and will remain until he becomes thoroughly accustomed to his new surroundings. Wyoming was brought up on the plains of Wyoming and has had no extensive familiarity with red automobiles, smoking locomobiles, bicycles, electric street cars and the hundred and one other things that make Washington different from the scenes on the prairies. Consequently Wyoming has been disposed to be a little skittish at the new sights and especially at the "red devils." Furthermore, he has a prejudice against red automobiles and all kindred machines. In Wyoming, his native state, the horse is the king of all styles of locomotion, and the human being who would prefer an automobile to a good horse would be reviled by both man and beast. Wyoming's thoroughbred blood rebels at anything that is held as good as a horse, but he is a good Westerner, and despite his prejudice and unfamiliarity with these things, he is progressive and is coming to the conclusion that they are here to stay and will not be frightened off by his dislikes and antics when he meets them. In the street between the White House and the navy department on a recent morning he stood stock still right alongside an automobile and watched it with dignified curiosity, but without the slightest demonstrance of any sort. He didn't even turn up his ears when a messenger boy skimmed along on a bicycle. In other words, he is getting accustomed to Washington and the strange things here, and within a short time will have no objection to anything he may see, even if it concerns his next door neighbor and is of a scandalous character.

The recent appointment of Judge Hook, of Kansas, to a position on the bench of the Eighth United States circuit court leaves a vacancy on the United States district bench to which Kansans consider their state entitled.

The state of Kansas is now busily engaged in grooming its candidates and the most prominently mentioned thus far is Eugene F. Ware, at present commissioner of pensions. The friends of Mr. Ware are already marshaling their forces, and his name, it is said, will be suggested to the president before he leaves Washington for his summer home at Oyster Bay. Mr. Ware has long desired a position on the bench, such a place being more to his tastes and habit of thought than an administrative position such as the commissionership of pensions. Although Mr. Ware is not making an active campaign for the judgeship made vacant by the elevation of Judge Hook, his friends are earnestly endeavoring to capture the place for him.

Secretary Root and Representative Hepburn, of Iowa, met in the corridor of the war department the other day and a very interesting conversation occurred between them. It was shortly after the return of the president from his Western tour, and some comment was being made upon the wonderful performance and the way the president has stood the wear and work of the journey.

"He has certainly set a pace that will be hard to follow," remarked the secretary.

"The limitations upon men for public offices grow more and more circumscribed," said Hepburn. "It is become so now that only a young man can be president, only a rich man ambassador and only a very patriotic man a cabinet officer."

The last tribute was to Secretary Root, as it is well known in Washington that he remains in the cabinet at the earnest solicitation of the president and at the sacrifice of his personal interests. The secretary then related some of the difficulties and annoyances of holding a cabinet office, which everybody here has come to recognize as a part of the general scheme of government. Finally, Hepburn suggested that, perhaps, Mr. Root did much more hard work as a cabinet officer than he would in the practice of law, and the secretary was inclined to think that he worked as hard at his profession in his office, but the conditions were different.

SUMMER RHEUMATISM

Every season has its own diseases, but Rheumatism belongs to all, for when it gets well intrenched in the system, and joints and muscles are saturated with the poison, the aches and pains are coming and going all the time, and it becomes an all-the-year-round disease; an attack coming as quickly from sudden chilling of the body when overheated, a fit of indigestion or exposure to the damp, Easterly winds of Summer as from the keen, cutting winds, freezing atmosphere and bitter cold of Winter.

Rheumatism never comes by accident. It is in the blood and system before a pain is felt. Some inherit a strong predisposition or tendency; it is born in them; but whether heredity is back of it or it comes from imprudent and careless ways of living, it is the same always and at all seasons. The real cause of Rheumatism is a polluted, sour and acid condition of the blood, and as it flows through the body deposits a gritty, irritating substance or sediment in the muscles, joints and nerves, and it is these that produce the terrible pains, inflammation and swelling and the misery and torture of Rheumatism. No other disease causes such pain, such wide-spread suffering. It deforms and cripples its thousands, leaving them helpless invalids and nervous wrecks.

When neglected or improperly treated, Rheumatism becomes chronic, the pains are wandering or shifting from one place to another, sometimes sharp and cutting, again dull and aggravating. The muscles of the neck, shoulders and back, the joints of the knees, ankles and wrists, are most often the seat of pain. Countless liniments and plasters are applied to get relief, but such things do not reach the poisoned blood; their effect is only temporary; they are neither curative nor preventive. The blood must be purified, and all irritating matter removed from the circulation before permanent relief and a thorough cure is effected, and no remedy does this so certainly and so quickly as S. S. S. It contains not only purifying and tonic properties, but solvent qualities as well, all these being necessary in eradicating the poison and making a complete and lasting cure of Rheumatism. S. S. S. cleanses the blood of all irritating matter and the acid particles are dissolved and filtered out of the system, thus relieving the muscles and joints and removing all danger of future attacks. Under its tonic effect the nervous system regains its normal tone and the appetite and digestion improve, resulting in the upbuilding of the general health. S. S. S. contains no Potash or minerals of any description, but is guaranteed purely vegetable. Old people will find it not only the best blood purifier, but a most invigorating tonic—just such a remedy as they need to enrich the blood and quicken the circulation.

SSS

Whether you have Rheumatism in the acute or chronic stage, the treatment must be internal, deep and thorough in order to be lasting. Never be satisfied with anything less than an absolutely perfect cure. This you can get by the use of S. S. S., the oldest and best purifier and greatest of all tonics.

Write us fully and freely about your case, and medical advice will be given without charge, and our special book on Rheumatism will be mailed free to all desiring it.

THE TENNIS CONTEST

Play Dragging This Week and Second Round Is Behind.

Result of Drawing and of the Games Played In It.

Delays have been experienced in the tennis tournament of the Endion club, the second round of which is being played this week at the East End courts. A number of players who survived the first round have been absent from the city and in spite of the favorable weather only one match has been pulled off this week.

The first round was completed Saturday afternoon and it is hoped to have all of the matches in the second round played before tomorrow night. The following are the men who survived the first round: Hopkins, Bagley, Stone, Peck, Palmer, Gridley, Strong, Ames, Griffith, Bunn, Grady, Wright, Graff, Dash and Ingalls.

The following is the result of the drawing for the second round together with the results of the games already played in it.

Hopkins vs. Bagley, to be played.
Palmer vs. Bunn, to be played.
Stone vs. Peck, to be played.
Grady wins by default.
Dash vs. Ingalls, to be played.
Graff vs. Wright; Graff wins, 6-4, 6-0.
Ames vs. Griffith; Ames wins, 6-1, 6-0.
Gridley vs. Strong, to be played.

The match between Graff and Wright was played Saturday afternoon and both Graff and Ames are thus entered in the third round with two very decisive victories to their credit. They are very strongly in the running for the championship and should the drawings in the third round bring them together the match will be one of no little interest.

The tournament will probably be completed before the end of the week and the semi-finals should prove to be very pretty exhibitions of tennis.

A team to meet Superior players will probably be chosen from the winners in the tournament.

THE STAGE

One of the real good things in the Northwestern Opera company's production of "The Chimes of Normandy" this week is Stanley Felch, who, in the character of the Bailiff, does the principal comedy work. Mr. Felch has not shone to such an extent since his coming here as a comedian, as he does in "The Chimes." His humor is dry and quiet, and he has simply exhausted the field of local hits. He has made his lines very funny by the droll answers he makes, nearly of which have some local bearing.

Dan Young is also long on jokes, as the Notary, and in his speech the opening night was referring to his invitation from the mayor.

Mayor Hugo was in a box, unknown to the actor, and the laugh that followed confused the actor and made the mayor blush.

The last performance of the "Chimes" takes place today, and tomorrow night "Fra Diavolo" will be presented by the Northwestern company.

* * *

The popular opera by Offenbach, "The Grand Duchess," will be the bill of the Wilbur company at the Metropolitan this evening. "Olivette" was sung last evening. The piece is full of comedy and comical situations and the two comedians, Charles Van Dyne and W. A. McGraw, appeared to good advantage. The vaudeville features were as usual well received and the three little Gardner children were encored several times for their singing of "Sammy."

Injuries Cause Death.

Ex-Supervisor John Thompson, of West Superior, died yesterday from injuries which he received at the shipyards last Thursday. Mr. Thompson was standing on a scaffold and was struck by a falling timber, sustaining a compound fracture of the arm and having his chest crushed. The decedent was born in Norway and resided many years in West Superior, serving on the board of county supervisors for four terms. He leaves a family consisting of two daughters.

LUMBER CONTRACTS.

Assignments of Several Are Placed on Record.

Several assignments of timber contracts were filed yesterday with the county register of deeds, running from C. F. Ruggles to the Rainy Lake company. One contract made in August, 1902, was for the purchase of timber, the same being made between Louis Levy and W. H. Cook and assigned to Mr. Ruggles. On this contract there was $180,000 unpaid.

The second contract was made on the same date between A. J. Keith, T. B. Keith, Henry Turrish and W. H. Cook, and was assigned to Mr. Ruggles. On this contract $75,000 remained unpaid.

The third contract was made between M. S. Stein, Henry Turrish and W. H. Cook, and assigned. About $172,000 remained unpaid on the contract.

The fourth is the purchase of timber lands by Mr. Ruggles from the French Lumbering company, made in February of this year, $60,000 remaining unpaid on the contract.

CHARGE BIGAMY.

Excited Woman Demands Arrest of a Young Man.

Several excited Polish women visited County Attorney McClintock's office yesterday and demanded the arrest of a young man of their acquaintance on the charge of bigamy. The women claimed he had just secured a marriage license in this country when he already has a wife living in New York city. Mr. McClintock refused to issue a warrant until further developments.

Unless the young man weds a second wife he cannot be prosecuted for bigamy and the chances are that he will not do so when he learns of the women on his trail. If the charge is true, but if he has taken out a marriage license and already has a wife living he is liable on the charge of perjury.

TAKEN TO STILLWATER.

John Ponder to Begin Serving His Time.

John Ponder has been taken to the state penitentiary at Stillwater to begin his term of imprisonment for one year. Yrio Pallomaki will be taken to St. Cloud today to enter upon his reformatory term.

Ponder was indicted on the charge of grand larceny in the first degree and entered a plea of guilty. He had been working in the woods and on coming to Duluth with a companion started on a protracted spree. While intoxicated Ponder took his companion's money and a check of over $100. The check and some of the money was recovered and Ponder gave up his watch as security for the money he had spent.

Pallomaki was mixed up in a saloon row at McKinley where he drew a knife and carved a fellow countryman. He was indicted for assault and pleaded guilty.

Hutter, N. W. P. A., St. Paul, or to C. F. Daly, chief A. G. P., Chicago.

WILL CARE FOR HIM.

Jonathan Pettit Is a Charge of Breckenridge.

The information received by the poor authorities through The Herald regarding Jonathan E. Pettit, the old man of 86 whose loss of memory and whose gentle and dignified bearing made his case such a pathetic one, has been confirmed by A. P. Cook, superintendent of poor.

This information is that the old man is from Breckenridge, Minn., where he lived for many years, though he now remembers nothing of it, and that he was recently sent to the insane asylum at Fergus Falls. Word has been received by Mr. Cook that Pettit was sent there by the Breckenridge authorities May 18, was discharged after being held six days, on the ground that he was not a subject for hospital treatment.

L. J. Mikschel, of Breckenridge, chairman of the board of county commissioners, wrote Mr. Cook that Pettit is a resident of the county and that $15 a month has been appropriated to take care of him, but there is no place there for his accommodation. He suggests that if Mr. Cook will locate him in Duluth Wilkin county will settle any reasonable expense. The old man will probably be returned to Breckenridge, however.

INQUIRY IS WIDENING

Third Assistant Postmaster General's Bureau to Be Investigated.

Bristow's Enemies Circulate Stories Derogatory to Management.

Washington, June 24.—The bureau of Third Assistant Postmaster General Madden, the only important branch of the postoffice department not heretofore included in the investigations under the direction of Fourth Assistant Bristow, has at last been added to the list of those which will be subjected to the dragnet of the scandal inquiry. No charge of criminality or irregularity in the transaction of this bureau has been made, but in view of the recent discharge of Superintendent Metcalfe, of the money order division, for "an indiscretion" committed in trying to divert a contract for the manufacture of money order blanks, certain contracts in the third assistant's office for the manufacture of registry order books will be carefully investigated. The specifications of these books are drawn up in the office of the third assistant postmaster.

It is alleged that there is only one mill in the United States which has the necessary machinery and can turn out these books in sufficient quantities to meet the demands of the service. The mill is operated by the General Manifolding company of Franklin, Pa., of which Representative Sibley, of Pennsylvania, a candidate for the chairmanship of the postoffice committee of the house in the Fifty-eighth congress, is a large owner.

The Washington representative of the company is a man by the name of Wilson, Representative Sibley's son-in-law. The books are bought under a closed, or non-competitive contract, and it is explained that this is necessary because the General Manifolding company had patents on portions of the registry book. It is admitted that the specifications are such that no other mill in the country can fill them.

The general investigation, in which it can be positively stated, the third assistant postmaster general's office will be included, will also embrace the bureau which has charge of the classification of second and third class mail matter. This division has been considered of great importance since the publication of the department order placing so-called premium publications in the third class instead of the second class, with an increase of 7 per cent on every pound of this matter carried.

Frequent charges have been made of late that the classification of mail matter by the third assistant postmaster general's office was conducted in a very unsatisfactory manner. But it was believed by Postmaster General Payne and other high officers of the department that these charges were made by disgruntled publishers whose publications had been transferred from the second to the third class mail matter and made to pay the increased rate, and no attention was paid to them.

Mr. Payne and the other officers profess to have absolute confidence in the honesty, integrity and good judgment of Third Assistant Madden, and have, therefore, not the least fear of his reputation. But it is realized that the opportunities for "graft" among his subordinates have been many since the promulgation of the order referred to, and a careful investigation of this branch of the service will be made.

It is known that a publisher some time ago offered one of Mr. Madden's subordinates a $5000 bribe to obtain his entrance into the lower classification. The subordinate was indignant, but the offer of the $5000 was made in such a way and under such circumstances that no further action could be taken.

The American Federation of Labor recently filed charges with the postoffice department against the contract for the registry books. Among other things, the charges alleged that the books were bound by child labor, and it was petitioned that the contract be annulled, or at least not renewed upon its expiration.

Three reports of heretofore unknown scandals in the postal service were circulated freely about the postoffice department today, evidently instigated by friends of Former Superintendent Machen. One is to the effect that Former Congressman Loud, who was chairman of the postoffice committee and a friend of Superintendent Machen until the beginning of the present inquiry, was the Washington representative of a company which manufactured and sold to the government a device for attaching to mail boxes, which registered the exact time of collection. It is alleged that 17,000 of these devices were purchased and are now in use in Philadelphia, Chicago and San Francisco. The price paid was $4.25 each. The real value is said to have been $1.15. Inquiry at the department showed that a large number of the automatic registers have been purchased, but it was said that they were still in the experimental stage and were not in general use.

Another report consisted of a vicious attack on Fourth Assistant Postmaster General Bristow, Chief Inspector Cochran, Inspector Clum and other officials of the department directly concerned in the prosecution of the present investigation. The story is to the effect that Mr. Bristow and the other officials named are interested in a number of placer gold-mining claims in Alaska, and that Inspector Clum has been detailed to that section ostensibly to investigate postal conditions, but really to look after this mining property. The story charges Mr. Bristow with having placed a government railroad commission at the disposal of the private secretary to the governor of Kansas, Mr. Bristow's state, in order to enable that official to travel around the country and dispose of stock in this Alaska mining company.

Diligent inquiry warrants the statement that Mr. Bristow is interested to the extent of a small sum—about $200—in an Alaska mining claim, but that not a dollar's worth of stock has ever been issued.

The third report in general circulation is that C. M. Waters, who succeeded George W. Beavers as superintendent of the salary and allowance division of the postoffice department, and about ten inspectors, are large stockholders in a copper mining company, with properties in Arizona. It is charged by the authors of the report that some time ago before the beginning of the present inquiry Waters was detailed to Boston ostensibly to attend official business, but in reality to sell stock in this mining company.

Inquiry warrants the statement that Mr. Waters has a mining property in Arizona, and that shortly after the Spanish war it was planned to make the concern a stock company. It was found, however, that the war tax on stock certificates was so great that it would take more ready money than the stockholders had on hand, and the project was abandoned. No stock has been issued by this concern, and the concerns have not secured articles of incorporation.

DEMOCRATS SEEK CAPITAL.

Will Try to Unseat Senator Reed Smoot.

Washington, June 24.—There is a move on foot among Democrats to bring about the unseating of Senator Reed Smoot, of Utah, in the hope of making political capital. For months petitions and resolutions by the hundred have been sent by temperance societies and church organizations to members of the senate urging that Smoot be removed on account of his alleged practice of polygamy.

It has now become known that Democratic senators are preparing to make a fight against Smoot, ostensibly in compliance with the request of their constituents. The real purpose of the Democrats is to make a bid for the support of the church people all over the country and at the same time endeavor to put the Republicans in the attitude of deserting Smoot. It is generally believed in political circles that a deal was consummated between the Republican party and the Mormon church in Utah, which, Democrats say, accounts for that state going Republican in 1900 and 1902.

INSOLENT TELEGRAM

Sent to King Charles By Sixth Servian Infantry.

Vienna, June 24.—A dispatch from Bucharest says the king of Roumania has received an insolent telegram, signed by several officers of the Sixth Servian infantry, of which regiment he recently resigned the honorary colonelcy. The officers declare in offensive language that King Charles is not competent to judge their actions. They say that he himself ascended the throne of Roumania after a military breach of faith, and add that they forego with pleasure the distinction of their regiment bearing the Roumanian king's name.

A HANDSOME JUNE WEDDING

Miss Clara Marian Hector and James F. Walsh United In Marriage.

Last evening one of the most beautiful of the many pretty June weddings took place at Pilgrim Congregational church, when Miss Clara Marion Hector, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Hector, and James F. Walsh were married. The church was charmingly decorated entirely in white and green. From the organ loft down to the pulpit the space was massed with greens studded thickly with white blossoms, snowballs and syringas being used. The pews were marked off with the customary white ribbon and a single graceful peony at each one.

The musical program was given before the ceremony by Mrs. J. N. McKindley and Miss Rena Smith. At 8 o'clock the wedding march was played and the party entered. The ushers came first. They were Messrs. John F. Martin, C. P. McCormick, Elmer Whyte and L. Keith, of Eau Claire. The maid of honor, Miss Stella Hector, followed, and the bride alone. They were met at the altar by Mr. Walsh and his best man, Charles O. Baldwin, and the service was read by Rev. S. P. Long, of the First Methodist church.

The bride's gown was of cream crepe de chene over an underdress of taffeta and chiffon, and daintily trimmed in real lace and pearl trimmings. She wore a veil and carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley. The bridesmaid's gown was white trimmed in insertion, and she carried American Beauties.

After the ceremony an informal reception was held at the home, 1017 East Third street, for the immediate friends. Mr. and Mrs. Walsh left on the North West for an Eastern trip, and upon their return will be at home for the summer on Park Point, where they have built a charming cottage. The bride's going-away gown was of blue panne finished cheviot with black trimmings.

DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

Old Veteran to Take Long Ride on a Bicycle.

Menominee, Mich.—James A. Rappe, a civil war veteran, although 88 years of age, expects to leave on his bicycle about the middle of June for New York city, and from there will go to his old home at Rome, Oneida county. He figures the journey will take about seven weeks. In 1858 Mr. Rappe walked to Cincinnati to attend the G. A. R. encampment, and the next year rode to Philadelphia on his wheel.

Norway—Under charge of Captain Oliver Symonds, of Iron Mountain, twelve miners have left for Waukon, Iowa, near which city they will explore for iron ore for the Oliver Mining company, the ore producing branch of the steel trust. There are indications of a deposit of iron at the point in question and it is the intention to explore thoroughly the tract.

Houghton—People interested in the Quincy mine, the "old reliable," are wondering what the forthcoming dividend will be. Those best informed aver it will be not less than $3.50 a share. In this prediction they consider the high price the Quincy has been receiving for the metal, and also the fact that it has no heavy expense account for betterments. The Quincy is twelfth in the list of the world's greatest mines, and its output this year probably will be the same as last year—about 18,328,491 pounds. To date the mine has paid $13,920,100 in dividends, having paid out $700,000 last year and $900,000 in 1901. Exclusive of supplies in use the company on January 1, 1903, had a balance of assets of $625,322, and the net earnings for the year will be the greatest in the mine's history. In the former era of high prices of metal costly improvements were made, which bettered the service and lowered the cost sheets, but this heavy drain on the income has now ceased with a result of greater profits.

Calumet—The new Croatian church was formally dedicated. Bishop Eis, of Marquette, officiated. Catholic prelates from all over the upper peninsula attended. The church is a handsome edifice, costing over $30,000. The architecture is of the French Gothic style, and the main auditorium seats about 800 persons.

Iron Mountain—Judge Patrick Flannagan, of Sagola, has purchased the G. A. Bergland sawmill at Sidnaw and is dismantling the plant preparatory to removing it to a point near Seattle, Wash. He has closed contracts in the West for sufficient timber to keep the mill in commission for an extended period.

Munising—During the past ten days about a dozen or more fires have broken out. The fires have been started in lumber yards and in barns and sheds, and there is evidence that kerosene has been freely used. A reward for the apprehension of the culprit has been offered.

Marquette—Joseph Jasper, Alger county, complains that deer are so numerous as to cause him serious inconvenience and actual loss on his farm near Munising. He says they get into his fields and root and paw them up, especially his oats.

Gladstone—Much indignation has been caused by the robbing of graves of their flowers in the Gladstone cemetery. The practice has been going on for some weeks and now complaint is made that potted plants are being taken.

Escanaba—Peter McRae, a well-known timber operator, has closed a contract with a Canadian concern to furnish a large quantity of square timber for shipment to Liverpool, Eng., where it will be used in dock construction.

THE PERFIDY OF MAN.

The Sorry Tale of a St. Louis Woman.

Chicago, June 24.—Lured from St. Louis to San Francisco by a man who pretended to love her, then drugged, robbed of $7000 and abandoned, is the substance of a story told by Mrs. Julia Klein, of St. Louis, who has just caused the arrest of Charles Marco. Marco, a well-educated Hungarian, who is married and lives in Chicago, declares that he is innocent.

THE NEW GOLD FINDS.

Seattle, June 24.—The first details of the new gold finds near Valdez were brought from the North by the steamer Excelsior, which has just arrived here. The discoveries are on Lowe river, 23 miles from Valdez, and already 300 acres of ground has been staked out. During the last few days before the Excelsior sailed there was quite a stampede to the new find.

ANARCHISTS ARRESTED.

Paris, June 24.—Two Russian anarchists, Prince Victor Nackachidse and his wife, whose expulsion from France had been decreed, were arrested today at Thonon-Les-Bains, Haute-Savoie. They will be escorted to the frontier.

Mr. Seamens, of the Seaman Cedar company, is shipping an immense amount of 7-40's these days.

The Chippewa Farm Land company has opened an office at this place. Mr. Boland is the local representative.

Miss Howard is entertaining a number of Duluth friends this week.

Bert Meagher, of the Hotel Itasca, spent Sunday at Grand Rapids.

A. Lord, superintendent, and George Fisher, foreman for the Shevlin-Carpenter company, are off for a six weeks' trip through Canada. During their absence J. W. Murray is in charge.

A prominent club woman, Mrs. Danforth, of St. Joseph, Mich., tells how she was cured of falling of the womb and its accompanying pains.

"Life looks dark indeed when a woman feels that her strength is sapping away and she has no hopes of ever being restored. Such was my feeling a few months ago when I was advised that my poor health was caused by prolapsus or falling of the womb. The words sounded like a knell to me. I felt that my sun had set; but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound came to me as an elixir of life; it restored the lost forces and built me up until my good health returned to me. For four months I took the medicine daily and each dose added health and strength. I am so thankful for the help I obtained through its use."—Mrs. FLORENCE DANFORTH, 1007 Miles Ave., St. Joseph, Mich.—$5000 forfeit if original of above letter proving genuineness cannot be produced.

The record of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cannot be equalled by any other medicine in the world.

"FREE MEDICAL ADVICE TO WOMEN."

Women would save time and much sickness if they would write to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for advice as soon as any distressing symptoms appear.

The Itasca Lumber company has started its Mississippi drive.

W. Lacroix went to Grand Rapids yesterday.

James Sullivan is home from a trip through California, Washington and Oregon. Mr. Sullivan is enthusiastic about the West.

Early yesterday morning the Great Northern section crew picked up the body of a man near Stack spur. He was run down during the night by a freight and both feet severed. The poor fellow had removed his overalls and wrapped them around his feet presumably to stop the blood. He was dead when found and his identity is unknown.

J. W. Murray will spend Sunday next with relatives and friends in Superior and Duluth.

The social event of the season occurred at the village hall last Friday evening. The young men's club gave a banquet and hop in honor of the young ladies of the city. Those on the committee were, William Taylor, Fred Stevensen and Burton Shepherd.

TENEMENT OWNERS

Must Expend Millions In Improving Buildings.

New York, June 24.—If a decision of a jury in Judge Joseph's court is not overruled by the higher courts, $20,000,000 must be expended by the owners in altering the 9000 tenement houses in New York city to conform to the tenement house law of 1901. The case under consideration was a test action brought by the tenement house department, brought through the corporation counsel's office against Katie Moezenhen, the owner of a tenement house at 332 East Thirty-ninth street.

It was sought to make Mrs. Moezenhen remove certain sanitary accommodations which are in the yard and place them on each floor of the tenement. The defendant argued that the act is unconstitutional, but the jury directed against her.

The law provides that on each floor of every tenement shall be sanitary accommodations which shall be ventilated on the outside of the building.

PULL WITH TAMMANY.

Contracting Firm Makes Million Dollars With It.

New York, June 24.—How, Brown & Fleming, contractors, made in three years more than $1,000,000, with no capital to start with except a Tammany pull, will be one of the chief features of the investigation by District Attorney Jerome of certain proceedings of the old Tammany dock board. Richard Croker, Corporation Counsel Rives has suggested, is a silent partner of the firm.

Many valuable dock concessions were given to the firm by the Tammany board, which was composed of Charles F. Murphy, now leader of Tammany Hall; Peter F. Meyer, Croker's business partner, and J. Sergeant Cram.

District Attorney Jerome has substituted for "John Doe" in the proceedings before Justice Mayer the names of Cram, Meyer and Murphy.

IOWA IDEA BURIED

By the Republican Leaders and "Stand Patters" Delighted.

Wording For the Tariff Plank In Iowa Agreed To.

Chicago, June 24.—A Wahington special to the Tribune says: Complete harmony now prevails in the Republican party on the tariff, a plank having been drafted which will be adopted by the Iowa Republican convention next week and which will be satisfactory to President Roosevelt, the other national leaders, and all the contending factions in Iowa. This plank is almost identical with the one adopted by the national Republican convention at St. Louis in 1896.

The two planks will be so nearly alike that the plank of 1896 will be followed almost word for word. It was submitted to President Roosevelt by Secretary Shaw, Director of the Mint Roberts, and Representative Hepburn. It was entirely satisfactory to all of them, and Mr. Roberts left for Iowa with a draft of the plank. Senator Allison of Iowa is the author, but it was drafted after many conferences between President Roosevelt, Senators Allison, Hanna, Aldrich and Spooner, Secretary Shaw, and other leading Republicans.

These conferences began before congress adjourned in March, and the Republicans are elated over the agreement on the question, which for a time threatened to cause a breach. The lines laid down in the plank will be followed by the next Republican national convention.

The most important feature of the plank of 1896 declared:

"We are not pledged to any particular schedules. The question of rates is a practical question to be governed by the conditions of the time and of production; the ruling and uncompromising principle is the protection and development of American labor and industry. The country demands a right settlement, and then it wants rest.

While those who advocate the "Iowa idea," which undoubtedly caused some uneasiness in the Republican ranks, assert that the idea is not dead, it is agreed that it will enjoy a profound and prolonged slumber. This agreement has delighted the "stand patters," and at the same time has left no soreness with those who represent the Iowa idea.

The fortunate outcome is directly due to Senator Allison, who is one of the most successful promoters of harmony in the party. The strong influence of President Roosevelt and Senator Hanna has been potential in bringing about the harmonious condition. Immediately after Governor Cummings advanced his idea, which has such strong supporters in Iowa, President Roosevelt and Senator Hanna delivered addresses in which they advised their party associates to "stand pat" on the tariff.

In the west and particularly in Iowa, the attitude of the president and Senator Hanna did not meet with hearty indorsement, but since then many prominent Republicans have followed in the footsteps of the president and Senator Hanna, and many of the rank and file of the party now align themselves with these two leaders. The result of this stand has been the agreement on a platform which is broad enough in the opinion of the leaders to meet all the requirements and to allow the changing of rates when the conditions demand.

Senator Hopkins, of Illinois, in discussing this question said:

"The Iowa idea will not spread. I am not committed to rates, but stand for a policy of protection. Our wage scale is higher than in any other country, wages are being increased, and labor is constantly demanding higher wages. We must protect our laboring classes.

"It has been demonstrated that protection is greatly beneficial to our industries and laborers. Our people understand this thoroughly, and at present there are more voters in this country who favor this policy than at any time in our history.

"I have frequently said that the tariff schedules are not sacred. They can be changed when the conditions demand, but as long as the Republican party is in power these modifications will be made with the protection policy in view.

"When the circumstances warrant it the Republican party will revise the tariff," said Representative Hepburn of Iowa. "This party is not always in favor of increasing duties and has from time to time revised the tariff schedules when the conditions were such that it was advisable to do so. Our duty will again revise the duties, but they will always remain on a protective basis, as we are strongly committed to this policy, which has been so beneficial to the country.

"If upon investigation the Republican committee finds a reduction can be made without injury to the labor interests, I will favor it, but if it should find to the contrary I will oppose it, together with the proposition advanced by Representative Babcock.

"My idea is that the laboring man must first be protected and his rights preserved. That is also true of the Iowa idea. In any state it is generally agreed that there should be no tariff reduction until after the next national election."

For Domestic Science.

The normal school board at its last meeting in St. Paul granted the petition of the woman's council of Duluth for a department of domestic science in the normal school of Duluth, if the women of the town would equip two rooms in the building for that purpose. A meeting of the committee appointed by the woman's council is called for Saturday, June 27, at 4 o'clock, in the normal school building, to devise ways and means for this purpose. Mr. Bohannan and Mr. Washburn will be present to confer with the women. Miss Mary B. Statham is chairman of the committee.

LIBRARY DONATIONS.

Over Ten Millions Were Given Last Year.

Niagara Falls, June 24.—A report submitted to the annual meeting of the American Library association, now in session here, shows that $10,306,400 was donated to the founding of libraries in the year ending May 31. The report includes gifts of $500 or more, of 250 volumes and upward, and such other gifts, miscellaneous in their character, as seem specially noteworthy.

Of this amount $715,300 was given for general endowment funds, $86,700 for building sites, $6,679,000 for buildings from Andrew Carnegie, $1,250,998 in round numbers for buildings from various donors, $108,000 for the establishment of book funds, $101,600 for the purchase of books, and $1,565,400 for purposes the object of which was not stated.

MANY PROMOTIONS.

Will Be One Thousand In Chicago Postoffice.

Chicago, June 24.—Postmaster Coyne, in his address at the supper of the Postoffice Clerks' association, held last night, announced that there would be 1000 promotions July 1 in the $600, $700, $800 and $900 grades of the Chicago postoffice. Mr. Coyne spoke of the investigation being made by the postoffice department and said that as they had commenced they should not stop until affairs had been sifted to the bottom.

DONATION FROM CARNEGIE.

Beloit, Wis., June 24.—Beloit college is to receive $50,000 from Andrew Carnegie for a library building. The announcement was made by Horace White, (class of '53), editor of the New York Evening Post, at the commencement exercises today. Professor George Adams, of Yale college, made the address at the cornerstone laying of a new $40,000 gymnasium.

DRIVEN TO DESPERATION.

Living at an out of the way place, remote from civilization, a family is often driven to desperation in case of accident, resulting in Burns, Cuts, Wounds Ulcers, etc. Lay in a supply of Bucklen's Arnica Salve. It's the best on earth. 25c, at all druggists.

ATTACKED A CIRCUS.

A Mob at Coamo, P. R., Gets Unruly.

San Juan, P. R., June 24.—A mob of 300 at Coamo last night attacked a circus which was giving a performance there. The employes defended themselves with guns until a sufficient force of police arrived at the scene of the disturbance and quelled the disorder. Ten persons were wounded and many arrests were made. The riot was caused by the refusal of the circus management to issue complimentary tickets.

LONGEST RAINFALL

For Ten Years Is Occuring In Eastern States.

New York, June 24.—After twenty-five days during which New York, New England, Pennsylvania and New Jersey were parched by unseasonable heat, receiving less than one-third of an inch of rain, while the West was literally drowning, more weather records are being broken in and around New York. Since the breaking of the drought there have been seventeen successive days of rain, with a precipitation greater than the average for the entire month of June during the last thirty-four years.

In point of duration there has been nothing like the rainfall of the present June since 1892.

MASTER MECHANICS MEET.

Saratoga, June 24.—The American Railroad Master Mechanics' association, began its thirty-sixth annual convention here today. A discussion of technical papers followed the completion of the routine business.

BRAIN BUILDING.

How to Feed Nervous Cases.

Hysteria sometimes leads to insanity and should be treated through feeding the brain and nerves upon scientifically selected food that restores the lost delicate gray matter. Proof of the power of the brain food Grape-Nuts is remarkably strong.

"About eight years ago when working very hard as a court stenographer I collapsed physically and then nervously and was taken to the state hospital for the insane at Lincoln, Neb., a raving maniac.

"They had to keep me in a strait jacket and I was kept in the worst ward for three months. I was finally dismissed in the following May, but did no brain work for years until last fall, when I was persuaded to take the testimony in two cases. One of these was a murder case and the strain upon my nervous sysetm was so great that I would have broken down again except for the strength I had built up by the use of Grape-Nuts. When I began to feel the pressure of the work on my brain and nerves I simply increased the amount of Grape-Nuts and used the food more regularly.

"I now feel like my old self again and am healthy and happy. I am sure that if I had known of Grape-Nuts when I had my trouble 8 years ago I would never have collapsed and this dark spot in my life would never have happened. Grape-Nuts' power as a brain food is simply wonderful, and I do not believe any stomach is so weak that it cannot digest this wonderful food. I feel a delicacy about having my name appear in public, but if you think it would help any poor sufferer you can use it." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

There are desserts and desserts. The delicious health-giving kind are told about in the little recipe book found in each package of Grape-Nuts.

AT WEST DULUTH

Repairs to the bridge on Grand avenue are being pushed to completion, and it is expected that the street railway company will be able to continue the laying of its rails during the coming week. The cars are already running as far as Fiftieth avenue, and before many weeks have passed West Duluth will have two car lines to the city.

The condition of Grand avenue is said by residents of that locality to be almost impassable. The rails of the traction company are projecting in places as much as six inches above the remainder of the street and prove to be an insurmountable obstacle to teams.

The matter has been referred to a committee of the council to see what steps can be taken in regard to overcoming the difficulty.

"We are endeavoring to find some plan," said Alderman Barnes, who is the chairman of the committee having the matter in charge, "by which the condition of the street can be cheaply and effectively improved. We have not yet decided what action to take in the matter, and will not know until after we hold our next meeting, but the condition of the street certainly demands that something be done."

FORESTERS SURPRISED.

St. James Court Receives Call From the Women.

The members of St. James court, 614, C. O. F., were treated to a most agreeable surprise party last evening at the close of the regular meeting of the lodge. The business part of the meeting had been completed and the members had adjourned for a social session. Cigars had been lighted and the members were preparing for an hour or two of social conversation, when the door was opened and the members of the Sancta Maria court, No. 322, which is the ladies' auxiliary of the lodge, entered the room, headed by their president, Mrs. Kearn.

In a brief speech Mrs. Kearn explained that the object of the visit was to do honor to the state chief ranger of the order. P. H. Martin, who was but recently elected to this office from the West Duluth lodge. Mr. Martin, who was present, responded briefly, thanking the ladies for the visit and the honor they had done him.

The ladies had brought refreshments with them, and tables were soon spread with a dainty lunch which the ladies had prepared.

After the luncheon music was also forthcoming, and the remainder of the evening was spent in a social time.

MORE LAND SEEKERS.

Another Party Going and Will Include Women.

Good progress is being made in organizing the second party of landseekers to go to California from West Duluth to take up timber claims. The members of the first party were so loud in their praises of the good luck that had befallen them, that a number of other West Duluth business men are desirous of following their example, and the party is being organized for the purpose of securing better railroad rates and for better protection in selling the land by securing it all in one plot.

Several of the members of the first party are planning to send their wives on the second trip, and it is likely that at least two or three West Duluth ladies will take the trip. J. P. Smith, cashier of the Merchants' bank, who is organizing the party, states that it already numbers six and that several others have signified their intention of going.

The party will leave about July 1 if arrangements can be completed by that time.

MURPHY-HOLT.

Quiet Wedding at Residence of Father Feheley.

Miss Celia Murphy, of West Duluth, and Dean Holt, of Scanlon, were quietly married last evening at the residence of Father Feehely of St. James' Catholic church. Father Feehely performed the ceremony.

The wedding was a very quiet one, only the relatives and a few intimate friends of the bride and groom being present. Miss Nellie Murphy, a sister of the bride, acted as bridesmaid, and Julius Holt, a brother of the groom, was the best man.

The bride is a daughter of S. C. Murphy, of 4915 Grand avenue, and is well known in West Duluth, having resided here a number of years. The groom is a prominent young business man of Scanlon, being bookkeeper for the Brooks-Scanlon Lumber company, of that city, and is also well known in West Duluth, being a frequent visitor here.

After the ceremony the young couple took a carriage for Duluth and left last night for Marine City, the former home of the groom, where they will spend a few weeks on their wedding trip. On their return they will take up their residence in Scanlon.

TEAM IS SAVED.

Dropped Into Water and Rescued With Difficulty.

An accident which occurred last evening at the Clark-Jackson mill nearly caused the loss of a team of valuable horses.

The horses were hitched to a wagon which was loaded with slabs. The team was standing near the edge of the water in the yard at the mill, which consists of made ground formed from refuse from the mill. The horses began to back and were unable to stop in the soft, yielding ground. The rear wheels of the wagon slipped over the edge into the water and the team was pulled after it.

The water at the spot is about ten feet in depth, and the horses were rapidly becoming exhausted with their struggles to get out, when Robert Myers, an employe of the Duluth Brewing company, who happened to be present, jumped into the water beside them and, drawing his knife, severed the traces which attached the team to the wagon. Aided by several of the mill hands, he then succeeded in pulling the exhausted animals from the water. The wagon was also recovered.

RESULTS IN GERMANY.

Berlin, June 24.—Unofficial returns of the recent election for members of the reichstag gave the following figures: Socialistic 3,008,000 votes, an increase over the preceding general election of 900,000, nearly 43 per cent; Center party 1,752,816 votes, an increase of nearly 350,000 votes; National Liberals 1,289,209 votes, an increase of 275,000 votes.

Ball Game at Lacrosse Played By Clergymen.

La Crosse, Wis., June 24.—"Baby" and "sneak" were the epithets hurled at each other by ministers of the gospel during a row over a ball game in which they were the principals. For a time serious trouble seemed imminent, but finally harmony was restored and all was forgiven.

The contending nines were made up of members of the ministerial unions of this city and of Winona, and a large crowd made up of parishioners witnessed the game, or games, for there were two before the visitors were satisfied with the home of the locals.

Of course the row was all laid to the umpire, and came when the locals had won the game, as they claimed, by skill. The Winona ministers charged that the La Crosse divines secured the game through an unfair ruling. A Winona player had been put out owing to his unfamiliarity with the rules, retiring the side in the ninth, the score being, La Crosse, 19; Winona, 16. The Winona clergymen contended that his ignorance should have been considered by the umpire. The assertion by a Winona man that La Crosse won with the aid of the umpire caused a La Crosse minister to characterize the Winona men as babies, and this drew from a Winona clergyman the reply that at least they were not sneaks. The matter finally was settled by the game being replayed. Winona won by a score of 2 to 19.

CELL INSTEAD OF AUTO.

Young Man Arrested on Charge of Forgery.

Milwaukee, Wis., June 24.—Homer F. Warkensteln, who says his residence is 418 Newport avenue, Chicago, and who had written a letter to his sweetheart announcing that he would arrive in Chicago from this city Saturday night in a new automobile, spent the night in the central police station instead. He will be charged with forgery of a check for $750, which he offered George A. Crane, a dealer in autos, in payment for the machine. Warkensteln, who is only 20 years old, came into Crane's place of business and negotiated for an automobile. When he offered the check Crane was suspicious, and asked the young man to call again. In the meantime he found the check was worthless. The police were notified, and that night Warkenstein was arrested.

NO. 1 SHAFT

At Isle Royale Mine Will Be Worked Again.

Houghton, Mich., June 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—Work at No. 1 shaft of the Isle Royale mine will be resumed in several weeks in compliance with orders from the Eastern office, it having been closed since last August. An extra head, giving two, will go into commission July 15, at the mill, doubling the present output. This will give employment to 150 men. The company wanted evidently to allow the copper market to prove its stability before resuming operations at No. 1, and the policy of reopening indicates the management is confident that the present price is on a solid basis.

A WEATHER MARKET

Wheat Has Strong Advance, Due to Crop Scare News.

Dry Weather In Northwest Reported—Flax Has an Advance.

Duluth Board of Trade, June 24.—Wheat had a sharp bulge today and all on weather news. The Northwestern situation is the one that is most influencing the trade now, the reported dry weather in the spring wheat territory alarming the trade. In the Southwest there is too much rain. Antwerp cabled that the Danubian crops are damaged by incessant rains. Liverpool is not responding to the advances in America and today only showed an advance of ¼d. Paris was stronger being up ⅛ to 1c. Berlin was ⅜c lower and Antwerp unchanged. The cash demand is good in other markets but not especially so here. Exporters can do no business, the markets being out of line.

Primary receipts of wheat were 270,000 bus., last year 349,000 bus. Shipments 106,000 bus., last year 245,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour were 328,000 bus.

Receipts of wheat at Duluth-Superior 254,000 bus., last year 216,000 bus. Clearances were 111,000 bus.

Trading in wheat on the Duluth board was active. September opened unchanged at 75¾c and sold to 76¾c at 9:52. It reacted in a few moments to 76¼c and sold at 76¾c at 10:20. Another reaction to 76¼c followed a half hour later and it then sold to 76¾c at 10:50. It reacted again to 76⅛c at 11:20, sold at 76⅞c at noon and then fell back to 76⅝c fifteen minutes later. From that point it sold to 77c and held steady there, closing at that price which was 1½c over the close of yesterday. The advance in July was 1¼c.

Chicago September advanced 1⅝@1¾c and July 1½c. Minneapolis September was up 1¾c and July 1½c. St. Louis was not so high, the advance in September being 1⅝@1¾c and July 1½c. New York July and September were both up 1⅝c.

Cash sales were 25,000 bus. at July price for No. 1 northern and 1½c under for No. 2.

Flax receipts continue large, there being 20 cars at Duluth today and the same number at Minneapolis. The market was quiet and firmer. July sold 4c off to $1.01 and then advanced to $1.02½, falling back from there and closing at $1.02. September also advanced 2c, October ½c and November 5c.

Following are the closing prices:

Wheat to arrive: No. 1 hard 80¼c; No. 1 Northern 84¾c; No. 2 northern 83¼c; July 84¾c; September 77c; December 75¼. Flax in store $1.01¾; on track $1.01¾ to arrive $1.01¾; July $1.02; September, $1.03½; October $1.03½; November $1.04¾. Oats to arrive 38@38¾c. Rye on track 51, to arrive 51. Barley 37@51c.

Cars inspected: Wheat 18, last year 31; oats 14, flax 20; last year 5.

Receipts: Wheat 33,559; oats 9247; rye 1783; flax 33,585.

Shipments: Flax 3884.

GRAIN GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—The market was again active and strong. Cash wheat and the nearby futures continue to lead in the advance. Foreign markets are still indifferent and lagging; there is, however, a little better export business reported today. They have not yet made up their minds abroad that our crop instead of being a record breaker will be a moderate crop. The market is still without relief in the way of rain, except to an unimportant extent. The weekly government report shows that the spring counties in North Dakota and Minnesota are badly in need of rain, and the wheat is turning yellow. It also says that the harvest returns in the winter wheat country continue to prove disappointing. There is an increasing speculative interest and the market is broadening under existing circumstances. Our feeling still is that we are tending toward high-priced wheat and it should be bought on the weak spots. At the present rate of consumption, the world needs a big wheat crop and it seems pretty certain that it will get one much below last year. A large speculative interest with the present small stocks could easily make a runaway market.

Corn—The market is firm and higher. We are inclined to think the strength came partly from sympathy with wheat, but temperatures throughout the corn belt continue somewhat below normal, and with the small stocks and liberal speculative interest there is not much selling pressure. The crop is of course backward, and the acreage somewhat reduced, but in the main the outlook is an improvement and there is plenty of time for the corn crop to attain quite a promising outlook.

Oats—The market was moderately active and prices fractionally higher. Strength in oats also came partly in sympathy with the other markets. The receipts of oats are getting fairly liberal and the weather is favorable for the crop.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Opened Easier on Better Weather Reports.

Chicago, June 24.—Better weather and rather disappointing cables caused an easier tone in wheat at the start today, July being ⅜c to ½c lower at 78c to 78¼c, while September was unchanged to ½c lower at 75⅝c to 75¾c. There was good buying of the distant futures by St. Louis and the Northwest which caused a firmer feeling in those months and active covering by shorts resulted in a sharp advance in July, the price advancing to 80c within a first half hour, but declining again to 79¼c on realizing. September sold up to 76½c and was strong at the advance. Minneapolis and Duluth reported receipts of 120 cars, which with local receipts of 20 cars, none of contract grade, made total receipts for the three points of 140 cars, against 268 cars last week and 265 cars a year ago.

The market continued exceedingly strong the entire season under the influence of a heavy demand from the Northwest, and after selling up to 80¾c, July closed at 79¾c, a gain of 1½c for the day; September closed 1⅝@1¾c higher at 77⅜@1½c, the best figure of the day.

Corn opened easier on bearish crop advices with July unchanged at 50¾c and September ⅝c to 1⅛@1¼c lower at 49⅞@50c. Receiving and commission houses bought freely which with the strength in wheat and the light offerings soon caused a rally, July advancing to 50½c and September to 50⅝c. Local receipts were 442 cars, with 31 of contract grade.

A good commission house demand held prices strong and the close was at the top, July being 1½c higher at 51¾c and September up ⅝c at 50¾c.

Oats were quiet but steady, with no disposition to sell and with the demand light and scattered. The advance in wheat and corn caused a firmer feeling and after opening unchanged to ⅛c lower at 39½@39¾c, September sold up to 34c. Local receipts were 127 cars.

Liberal receipts of hogs and a decline of 5@20c in prices at the yards caused a weak opening in provisions, September pork being 15@20c lower at $16.55@16.55, September lard was 12½c lower at $8.52½, while ribs were 10c lower at $9.05. There was a fair general demand early in the day, but prices showed little change.

Close: Wheat—July, 79¾c; old, 80¾c; September, 77⅝@77¾c; old, 77¾c; December, 77⅝; old, 77¾c. Corn—June, 51c; July, 51¼c; September, 50⅝c; December, 49c; May, 48¾c. Oats—June, 41½c; July, 41¾c; September, 34½@34⅝c; December, 31¼@31½c; May, 35¾c. Pork—July, $16.25; September, $5.90; light $5.80@6; bulk of sales $5.85@5.95. Sheep receipts 18000. Sheep and lambs steady to 10c lower. Good to choice wethers $4.50@5; fair to mixed $4.35@4.75; western sheep $4@5; native lambs $4@7; western lambs $4@7.

PRICES OF STOCKS

Fell Away In the Late Dealings Which Were Light.

United States Steel Stiffened and Closing Was Irregular.

New York, June 24.—Yesterday's late advance in stocks was continued this morning, the slight reactions in London this morning being ignored. Chicago Great Western preferred rose 1½, Tennessee Coal 1¼ and Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste Marie and American Ice a point. Several of the coalers rose ½ and Wabash preferred as much. Otherwise the changes were small. Colorado Fuel fluctuated feverishly below last night's level.

The firmness of the market gave way to a sagging tendency on the announcement of gold exports. Realizing in Colorado Fuel depressed it 1⅞ and there was a general shading in the active list to below yesterday's close. Tennessee Coal lost its rise, Cleveland, Chicago, Cincinnati & St. Louis declined 1 and Toledo, St. Louis & Western 1¼. On the other hand, Minneapolis, St. Paul and Soo preferred ruled up 3, Metropolitan Securities 2½ and Wabash preferred, Denver & Rio Grande preferred, Grass Twine, National of Mexico and People's Gas 1 to 1½. The market was firmer at 11 o'clock. The market became apathetic and sluggish and the only movements of consequence were in special stocks not of first importance. Metropolitan Securities extended its gain to 3½, Colorado & Southern second preferred and American Car preferred 1 to 1½. There were losses of 1¼ in Wheeling & Lake Erie, an Union Bag and 1⅛ in Kansas City Southern preferred. Bonds were steady at noon.

The scarcely perceptible drift of prices was downward during the noon hour. The market was in a lethargy.

Pressure against St. Paul and Reading fell a point, the general list fell slightly in sympathy. Trading was relatively more active on the selling movement. Brooklyn Union Gas broke 3 points and Pacific coast 2. Colorado Fuel moved up to 68¾ at 2 o'clock and there was a slight rally all around except in Atchison, which lost a point. United States Steel second 58 was sold freely and declined ⅛ to 32¾, a low record price. The United States Steel stocks lost a small fraction.

Prices were nearl stationary and dealings were light. Western Union rose 1¼ and United Railway Investment preferred 2⅜. Prices fell away again in the late dealings. Brooklyn Rapid Transit declined a point and Pennsylvania fell the low 124. American Cotton Oil lost 1½, United States Steel Securities stiffened just at the close, which was thus made irregular.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: The Market is a little easier. It is a very dull market. The only feature is some pressure from bear traders and very little pressure from bull stocks. There are further small exports of gold but interest rates remain easy. The indications are we think for a better market. We think stocks are worth the money and that purchases made on reactions will furnish good profits. We advise buying good stocks on the soft spots.

Waldorf to Coe Commission Co.: With stock exchange dealings down to an average of less than 400,000 shares a day, little interest is evinced in the market. The situation has resolved itself into one which professional traders are the only aggressive factors, and as they are generally bearish and as the magnates of the street buy only on a scale, traders find little trouble in forcing little declines. The comment is made that while the market is very narrow, it has considerable resisting power and a better tone than surface appearances indicate. Notwithstanding gold exports, money continues easy, crop prospects are said to be improving and generally speaking reports from outside business respect healthy activity. It is argued that before the summer is over this combination of influences will pull the market out of its rut by enlisting the support of the public. Moreover, these panicky conditions are in favor of a better market, short interests being large while stocks are to a great extent in the hands of sanking interests and rich men. For these reasons closer observers believe that when good railroad shares are weak they will do buy. The bear party under the lead of Well bases its operations on uncertainty of money and political situation, the lateness of the crop season and the argument of undigested securities. But many conservative houses believe that these factors have been discounted. Discussing the principal features of today's market, brokers say tonight that recovery in Colorado Fuel & Iron stock was on buying by Rockefeller and Gould, who are credited with the belief that in the sixties the shares are cheap. On the other hand, the weakness of Pennsylvania was attributed to bear pressure, and there was some of thi same sort of selling in the Grangers on private wire dispatches, to the effect that the crop situation in the corn belt was worse than expected, but the bulletin being regarded on the whole as favorable was deemed more significant than the dispatches referred to.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, June 24.—July cotton opened today at 12.80 and quickly advanced to 12.97, a new high record on the present advance. After selling at 12.97 the next quotation was 12.85.

The speculative excitement and activity of yesterday was carried over into this morning's market and notwithstanding disappointing early cables and fairly satisfactory crop weather, the first prices on the local exchange showed more new high records and a net advance of 6 to 12 points on the nearby months, while the later positions were 9 points higher to 5 lower. Sentiment was feverish and unsettled, with fluctuations not only broad and violent, but extraordinarily irregular. September opened at 11.60 sold at 11.56 then declined to 11.46, August sold first at 12.60, jumped to 12.69 and back to 12.60, while October and the later months showed losses of from 3 to 7 points from the best of the opening within the first few minutes under heavy realizing.

The decline was followed by a general, though irregular recovery and midday found prices for July and August at about the best of the session, while September had reached $11.77 and eased off to $11.65. The market as a whole was about net unchanged on the late positions to 30 points higher on the near months.

Cotton spot closed quiet 35 points advance; middling uplands, 13.25; middling gulf, 13.50. Sales 350 bales. Cotton futures closed steady. June 12.94; July, 13.00; August, 12.75; September, 11.73; October, 10.39; November, 9.98; December, 9.93; January, $9.90.

COPPER GOSSIP.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: Copper opened at a slight advance in London, but lost the gain at the closing. New York advances quote Lake copper at 14½ with 14⅜ bid. With the exception of Amalgamated Copper shares averaged firmer today. There was practically no stock offered and the few buyers who came into the market had to bid up prices. The recent decline appears to have fully discounted it cent copper and there is a good prospect that the price will not go any lower. We think the best coppers all right to buy.

A TRAGEDY AT CASCADE, MONT.

Two Men Shot and Women Hurt In a Quarrel.

St. Paul, June 24.—A Helena, Mont., special to the Dispatch says: Charles Spaulding is in Great Falls hospital, and is suffering with a wound which will probably prove fatal. Clifton E. Walker is at the house of Samuel H. Wilson, near Cascade, in a dying condition, and Mrs. Walker's body is bruised and shows signs of rough treatment. These conditions come as a result of a quarrel, near Cascade, between Helena and Great Falls, over some papers in a land filing case. Stories of the affair differ materially. Spaulding says he went to Walker's ranch to get papers which the latter denied possessing. While arguing the question, he says, Mrs. Walker attacked him with a butcher knife. In self defense he knocked her down, he says, whereupon Walker, who had gone into the house opened fire on him with a shotgun, shooting him in the left shoulder. He then drew his revolver and sent a bullet into Walker's lung. Walker has it that when he came to the door of his house he saw Spaulding choking his wife and pointing a revolver at her, and that he opened fire on him, and says that he shot solely to protect his wife. Mrs. Walker corroborates his story. Spaulding, shortly after reaching the hospital in custody of a deputy sheriff and posse which arrested him, lost his reason and cannot live long, so the physicians say. Walker is also dying. Both men are well known residents of Cascade county.

TREATY IS DEADLOCKED

Negotiations With China Have Reached a Critical Point.

Washington, June 24.—The negotiations with China for a trade treaty have reached a critical phase growing out of the demand of the United States and Japan for the opening of ports in Manchuria. The Russian government has professed to entertain no opposition to this demand, but the Chinese commissioners now take the ground that the ports now mentioned in the demands will be opened to foreign trade in the future when trade necessities seem to require it. Therefore, they propose to let this matter lie in abeyance and conclude the trade convention without this section. The United States refuses to accept the suggestion; Japan takes the same position; the English leads in that directions and the negotiations are deadlocked pending the contrivance of some means by the three powers named to bring some pressure on China.

ODD FELLOWS AT ST. PAUL

Fifty-First Annual Session of Minnesota Grand Lodge.

St. Paul, June 24.—The fifty-first annual session of the grand lodge, Independent Order of Odd Fellows of Minnesota, convened today at the state capitol. Nearly 500 members, representing 250 lodges, were present when Grand Master C. A. Fossnes, called the meeting to order. This session is especially notable, because it is the fiftieth anniversary of the Minnesota grand lodge. This event will be fittingly celebrated at a big public meeting at the Grand Opera house tonight. The session was taken up mostly with the reports of the grand master, grand secretahy, grand representative, grand directors of the Odd Fellows' home, and the formal admission to the grand lodge of 200 new members.

The reports of the officers were of a very encouraging nature.

JUDGMENT SECURED

St. Paul Trust Company Wins Out In Important Case.

Recovers For Perfecting Right of Way of a Railroad.

Judge Dibell this morning filed his findings of fact and conclusions of law in the case of the St. Paul Trust company against D. M. Sabin, A. C. Frost, George A. Ball and the United States Fidelity and Guaranty company.

The court holds that plaintiff is entitled to judgment against the defendants, D. M. Sabin and the United States Fidelity and Guaranty company, for $3367.16, as follows: For $1778.58 with interest at 6 per cent from April 24, 1900; for $1226.04 from Aug. 7, 1900; for $101.90 from Dec. 24, 1900, and for $260.64 from March 3, 1901, together with the costs and disbursements of the case. A stay of execution for twenty days is allowed.

The case came on for a hearing in the November term, 1902, when George C. Squiers appeared for the plaintiff and J. A. Keyes and Ray S. Reid for the defendants.

The action was brought by the securing a clear title to the right-of-way of the Minnesota & Wisconsin railroad.

The findings of the court, in substance, were as follows: Aug. 28, 1896, the plaintiff entered into an agreement with D. M. Sabin and certain parties for the reorganization of the Minnesota & Wisconsin Railway company, which now owns and operates its lines.

In an action brought by the plaintiff against the defendants July 29, 1898, a judgment was rendered for the plaintiff which is still in force, and which provides that bidders for certain bonds provided for in the judgment should give a bond of not less than $15,000 to secure the balance of the purchase price of the bonds. It is provided that the plaintiff is to be reimbursed for expenses incurred and the remainder to be paid the plaintiff at times designated by the court.

The defendant, D. M. Sabin, bought the bonds Oct. 14, 1898, with A. C. Frost, George A. Ball and the United States Fidelity and Guaranty company as sureties, and delivered a bond of $10,000 to the plaintiff.

Owing to a mistake in the drafting of the bond, the balance of the purchase price due was put at $7229.18 instead of $10,000, and the defendants executed a supplementary bond to the plaintiff to correct the mistake. Prior to the execution of the bond the amount of $10,000 instead of $15,000 was agreed upon by all parties.

In 1892 the Minnesota & Wisconsin Railway company entered upon certain lands and built and operated a railway line, but did not pay for the lands.

In 1893 the railway company defaulted in the payment of interest due on $290,000 of its bonds, secured by a mortgage on the company's property, and an action was started in the federal court which resulted in the appointment of a receiver for the road.

The court subsequently ordered the receiver to sell the road at public auction. It was purchased by the St. Paul Trust company and the title afterwards conveyed to the Minnesota & Wisconsin Railway company, which now owns and operates its lines.

During these transactions the titles to the right-of-way were not clear and there were claims against the road. By conditions expressly stated in the bonds executed by the defendants, the defendant D. M. Sabin was to reimburse the plaintiff for all necessary expenses in perfecting the title, and he was to furnish good deeds running to the new company, of the right-of-way of the old company.

Various settlements and compromises were made with claimants by D. M. Sabin, and he knew of the proceedings of the plaintiff to perfect title, but the defendants refused to pay the expenses incurred and for which the court today rendered judgment.

SIR THOMAS HAS ARRIVED

Was Passenger on Oceanic —Says He Has Fine Boat.

New York, June 24.—The White Star liner Oceanic from Liverpool was reported at 10:30 a. m. from Nantucket. Aboard are Sir Thomas Lipton and J. P. Morgan.

When the Oceanic was reported, Sir Thomas Lipton's steam yacht Erin, convoyed by the ocean tug Cruiser, which was sent across with the Shamrocks, started down the bay. Ex-Commodore Smith's yacht, the Privateer, which has been the regatta committee's boat at all the races of the 90-footers, thus far held under the New York yacht club auspices also started out to greet Sir Thomas.

On the Privateer was Adj. Gen. Corbin, who will welcome Sir Thomas on behalf of President Roosevelt. Gen. Corbin bears an invitation to Sir Thomas to take luncheon at the White House Friday.

The Oceanic arrived in the narrows flying from her mizzen mast the flag of Sir Thomas Lipton, the Shamrock. She was closely followed by the Erin and Mr. Morgan's yacht, the Corsair. At quarantine, Sir Thomas said he was glad to arrive in port once more. He said the challenger would have a spin outside on Saturday. "She is a remarkable boat. I know you people have a good one, but the Shamrock III is a remarkable boat." He was also anxious to learn all about the qualities of the Reliance, and when told of that yacht's performances, he said:

"This was all in light weather, was it not. However, we have a remarkable boat."

J. Pierpont Morgan's time was taken up by representatives of his business house and he gave no interview at quarantine.

SIDEWALK CASES

Judge Dibell Decides the Lake Avenue Sidewalk Controversy.

City Can Assess Without Regard to Railroad's Liability.

Judge Dibell this morning filed decisions in two of the Lake avenue sidewalk assessment appeal cases, confirming the assessments in each case. The appeal from the assessment were taken in one case by George B. Orr and others, and in the other case by N. N. Betts and others.

The findings are the same in each case, the court holding that the city is authorized to levy special assessments upon property benefited by the improvements, and that the city may exercise the authority without regard to the power which it may possess to compel a railway company to build a bridge or viaduct over its tracks at a street crossing.

The appeal from the assessment was taken by the property owners, on the ground that part of the sidewalk was to be built over the Lake avenue viaduct, and they argued that the railway company was bound to stand the cost of such improvement. The court's memorandum, which was the same in each case, was as follows:

"The appellant argues that an assessments for benefits cannot be upheld against property abutting upon he approach to the viaduct on Lake avenue south, because the city had the power to compel the railroad company to build the viaduct and its approaches, and now has the power to compel it to maintain them in proper repair, notwithstanding the contract entered into between the city and the railroad company, Sept. 22, 1891.

"The same contention was made in State vs. Ensign, 34 Minn., relative to an assessment for benefits upon the original construction of this same viaduct and its approaches.

"The supreme court said that the claim made involved the proposition that because the city had the power to compel the railway company to bridge the street it was without authority to make the improvement itself, and it disposed of the proposition by referring to the provisions of the charter then in force, giving the city power to make assessments for bridging any street. Under similar provision of the charter now in force, power is conferred upon the city to bridge any street and keep it in repair and defray the expense thereof by assessments.

"It is true that the court in the case cited states that in any event it was incumbent upon the property owner objecting to the assessment to show that the street in question was within some statute casting upon the railway company the burden of constructing the viaduct, referring in that connection to State vs. St. Paul & Duluth Railway company, 35 Minn., 131, where a division of the charter of the railroad company was held applicable to a street laid out and established prior to the construction of the railway. The attention of the court does not see into have been drawn to a somewhat similar provision of the old charter relative to the power to compel a railroad company to bridge at crossings, a provision similar to which is found in the present charter.

"Nor does it seem that the claim was there made that Lake avenue was laid out before the construction of the railroad, and there is evidence in the case at bar tending to show that Lake avenue was dedicated, although not used, prior to the time the railway company obtained its first monument of title.

"But the fact is that the court did not consider it a matter ow moment whether the city could have compelled the building of the viaduct by the railway company at its own expense. The court's own syllabus states the law to be that 'the city is authorized to levy special assessments upon property benefited by the improvement, to cover the expense of bridging any street, and may exercise that authority without regard to the power which the city may possess to compel a railway company to build a viaduct or bridge over its tracks at a street crossing.'

"In the case at bar no claim is made that the assessment was not made according to benefits.

"It is claimed by appellant that under the holding in 89 Minn. 108, the railway company can be compelled to maintain the Lake avenue viaduct and its approaches at its own expense. This matter is one finally to be determined in a proceeding between the city and the railway company, by the result of which both will be bound. It is not necessary to determine the question in this assessment proceedings to which the railway company is not a party, it would be unfortunate, indeed, if the right to compel a railway company to construct a viaduct—a right which in a particular case might be doubtful and involve years of litigation between a municipality and a railroad—should be litigated in an assessment proceeding by which the railway company would not be bound, while in an action against a railway company determined upon the same or different evidence, it would be bound by a precisely different decision.

"My best judgment is that the assessment should stand within the holding in State vs. Ensign, supra, and that it may be fairly supported upon the theory that the charter power of the city to judge is not abrogated because of the existence in the municipality of a right to compel a railway to bridge, doubtful or fairly certain, the city ought to levy assessments and make the improvement is not a matter of judicial consideration.

"When the legislative body of a municipality acts unwisely, or without what a property owner may deem a just regard for his interests or those of the municipality, his remedy is often other than a judicial one."

A SPECIAL SESSION

Of Kansas Legislature to Enact Flood Relief Measure.

Governor Bailey Urges Prompt Action on the Matter.

Topeka, June 24.—The special session of the legislature called by Governor William J. Bailey to enact a flood relief measure convened this afternoon, enough members having arrived to insure a working quorum in both houses. The principal subject of contention will be whether a general relief bill or local bills shall be passed. There seems no doubt about the "enabling bridge act" law being passed quickly. It is also considered certain, from expressions of advance members here, that a charity bill of some nature will be passed. The best authorities differ as to the legality of such action, but, as one well-known legislator remarked today after viewing the ruins in North Topeka: "The crisis seems so great and the needs so pressing that relief will undoubtedly be granted, and the courts can settle the legality of such action later."

There is some difference of opinion also over the question of organizing the legislature. The majority think, however, that the old organization will stand. The legislators were shown over the North Topeka remains by the Commercial club today before convening.

Governor Bailey in his message to the legislature says:

"The floods which have recently swept over a portion of our state, have created conditions unusual and extraordinary. The valley of the Kaw and its tributaries which but a short time ago gave promise of rich harvests have been devastated by the angry waters. Villages and cities have been inundated, homes have been obliterated and the property less to the citizens of our state is so vast that at this time its amount is but a conjecture. Bridges that spanned our rivers that are absolutely necessary for the every day transaction of business have, in many cases been swept away and others made impassible, making necessary the expenditure of large amounts of money before the avenues of commerce can again be opened. Especially is this true in Wyandotte couty, where the immense business is suspended until the river can again be bridged. While the conditions are perhaps the most acute in Wyandotte county, yet the same situation obtains in several of the other counties. In some of the counties, those charged with the responsibility of repairing these great losses, find themselves helpless under the law to meet these unusual and extraordinary conditions and it is for the purpose of giving such enabling legislation as is necessary to meet these emergencies, caused by the recent floods, that I have exercised the power vested in m by the constitution of our state to convene the legislature in extra session.

"I regret very much that the exigencies of the hour have impelled me to this action at this unusually busy season of the year, but the legislation necessary, giving the counties so desiring, the authority to use their credit to raise the money to repair their losses can be passed in a few hours, and I trust the great calamity that has come to us will not be utilized in an attempt to pass general legislation.

"Assuring you of my highest personal regard and with the earnest hope and belief that your nets during the present special session may prove beneficial to the whole people whose interests you have in charge, I pledge you my hearty co-operation."

THE GOLDEN CHARIOTS

One of Entertaining Features of Carnival.

Ever since the invention of the childish old-style merry-go-round the amusement promoters of the world have been seeking something new, and many wonderful contrivances have been invented, but nothing has before been seen in this country to approach the magnificent Golden Chariots which will be seen on the Midway of the Great Ferari Bros.'s Carnival company.

The chariots are eight in number and are operated by steam in an undulating circle, nearly 100 feet in circumference. Each chariot is most beautifully embellished with wood carvings, plate cut glass mirrors and elaborate gilding, which gives the appearance which they truly present—that of royal magnificence.

They are upholstered in costly silk crimson plush with brass railings and twisted rods. Each is as palatial as was the royal barge of Cleopatra, and seldom if ever has it been the privilege of the average man or woman to ride amid such splendor.

Their motion is a delightful undulation and they are invariably the central feature of the Midway, with their flashing lights, dazzling gold ornamentation, glittering mirrors, burnished trimmings and soul inspiring music, draws thousands from all sides.

The mechanical portion of the great amusement consists of three separate and distinct engines and plants. One furnishes the power to the chariots, another runs a dynamo, which makes a dazzling blaze of electric lights, while the third operates the great $10,000 military organ, which discourses melody with all the musical power of a full brass band, the latest and most popular music of the day, adding to the pleasure of those who ride.

The Golden Chariots will be here on the Midway of the Duluth July fair and carnival, July 6 to 11 inclusive.

Low Rates to New England and Canadian Points.

The North-Western Line will sell excursion tickets, June 15 to 26th inclusive, to all points in New England states, and to points in Canada, at one fare for the round trip. Tickets good for return up to Sept. 1st, 1903. City Ticket Office, 405 West Superior street.

PROPOSALS.

Sealed proposals will be received by the board of trustees of school district No. 2 of Lake County, Minn., until 8 o'clock p. m., Wednesday, July 1, 1903, for raising the Third avenue school house, in the village of Two Harbors, Minn., according to plans and specifications which may be obtained at the office of Palmer, Hall & Hunt, architects, Duluth, or from the school board at Two Harbors.

A MONITOR ISLAND.

Queer Comments By Some People Along Mississippi.

When the United States monitor Arkansas stopped here on her way down the river, on the recent ante-flake rise, after being mud-bound near the ancient town of Ste. Genevieve, Mo., for nearly a month, "Vinegar Bill," who officially and in private is William Kirky, one of the ship's apprentice seamen, regaled the Memphians with many tales of the sea, writes the correspondent of the New York Sun. But his stories of the people who had visited the war vessel on her trip up the river and her stay at St. Louis during the World's fair dedication ceremonies were the most entertaining.

All along the voyage up from New Orleans, and up the Ohio to Evansville, Ind., to which point the monitor made a side trip, the inlanders plied the crew with questions, some of which were peculiar. These inland people look upon a war vessel much as they might regard a monstrous meteorite dropped from the skies; only once or so in a lifetime do they see either, and they want to know all about the sky visitant or the fighting craft when they get a chance.

"These landlubbers are queer ones," said Bill, taking a hitch in his trousers. "H'ist me with a steam winch if they don't know less about this steel washtub than an Arkansas mudhole hog knows about the wardroom of the ship Alabama.

"When we anchored at Vicksburg, a long, triple-jointed Mississippian, about the size of a beer bottle and as tall as ten foot of tarred rope on end, came aboard and hove to alongside the forrard turret and looked up at the smokestack, which was taller then than it is now, because we had to cut off eight feet of it to get under a bridge in the Ohio river on our trip back from Evansville.

"'Say, young feller,' this Mississippian says to me, 'that thar is the dadblamedest mast I ever see on any ship, s' help me. How do you uns hang the sails on that air thing? Looks to me like it mought be a big b'iler sot on eend.'

"After the monitor got to Memphis on the up trip and was anchored in among the trees in the high water, a family from Arkansas boarded us. There was the old man, the old woman and seven children, and every mother's son of 'em was as yaller as the upper works of the Arkansas. But that's not the yarn I'm about to spin. The old man was holdin' two of his boys by the hands and p'intin' out things of interest.

"'That thar is the turtle, Jimmy,' he said, pointing to the big turret with the 12-inch guns sticking out.

"'Gee whillikens, paw!' says Jimmy, 'yes' look what long front legs it's got.'

"'They call hit a turtle, Jimmy,' explained paw, 'because it can turn clean over on its back an' go after th 'enemy all spraddled out, I reckon.'

"But the mistake a Kentucky countryman made while we were at Paducah," continued Vinegar Bill, "shivered my timbers for fair. He came aboard us with a knowin' air, as if he was acquainted. He walked around half an hour or son, goin' over the ship three or four times, but lookin' mostly at the fightin' top. His eyes seemed glued to that part of the vessel as if he expected something to happen up there. Finally he came around to me and said: 'Pardner, when do they call time nex'?'

"I didn't just quite understand him, and I said so. 'Hain't that yon the fightin' top?' he inquired. 'Sure,' says I. 'Wull,' says the Kentuckian, 'then hain't you-all goin' to give us a few rounds?' 'What do you mean?' I asked, supposin' the man wanted us to fire the big guns for him. 'I mean I come on this here steamboat to see a fight,' says he, 'en' I wanted to see it. I've heerd tell a whole lot about the way you sailors fight with the mitts on, an' I want to see hit done. So I reckon as how it's about time you-all was a-givin' us a few rounds.'

"Then I tumbled. The man thought the fightin' top was the ring where the sailors had boxin'. Say, wouldn't that spike your guns?"

Vinegar Bill was compelled just here to turn around and grab by the nape of the neck a young fellow from Tennessee, who was walking down a gangway.

"Private 'quarters down there, sir," said Bill; "sorry, sir, but it's orders."

The Tennessean regained his footing o nthe gun deck after the seaman had set him down and remarked, contemptuously:

"Well, I'll be switched clean offen the track if I didn't think this here house belonged to me an' the rest of Uncle Sam's folks. I was goin' to see this buildin' from garret to cellar. I just come down from the roof, an' if you-all hadn't stopped me I'd 'a' been down in the basement by this time."

"That fellow reminds me of a woman that boarded us at Cairo," Vinegar Bill resumed, when the youth had passed on. "She asked one of the boys how to get 'downstairs,' as she called it.

"'There's a hatch open forrard,' says the sailor, 'if you want to go below, ma'am.'

"The woman stared at him. 'The hatch is open,' he repeated.

"'I didn't know you folks on this ship raised your own chickens,' says the Cairo woman, 'and I don't like incubators, nohow, but I think if you left one open the little chicks might git out and fall into the water.'

"'What's this here thing?' asked a boy at Chester, Ill., pointin' to the winch we use for h'instin' the boats. Seaman Siedelman told him what it was.

"'Gee!' says he; 'do you lift the enemy's boats clean outen the water so's to git a good aim at 'em?'

"The Missourians who came aboard when we stopped at Cape Girardeau I liked fine," announced Bill. "There was a big group of mighty pretty girls from a normal school they've got up there, I'm told, and what those girls didn't know about this craft ain't worth knowin. They'd been reading up for a month and they thought they had all the terms down pat. One of the finest-lookin' girls in the bunch declared to the others that she knew which was port and which was starboard.

"'The port side,' she says, 'is that side of a vessel that lies next to the wharf when she is in port.'

"'And what is the starboard side?' asked another normal school girl.

"'Why, the other side, of course,' says she.

"'Why don't you put some sights on that cannon, young man?' asked a felow that got aboard at Grand Tower, Ill. 'I'll bet you could shoot her a heap straighter if you'd put some sights to her.'

"I informed the visitor that the sights would be shaken off the first time the gun was fired.

"'Golly! does she kick that bad?' exclaimed the Illinois man.

"'Don't you have no ramrods to them gun barrels?' was the question a man at Henderson, Ky., asked me as he inspected the big 12-inchers. I told him we pulled out the mainmast when we needed a ramrod, and the last time we used it the gun went off accidentally and blew the mainmast into Posey county, Ind., which explained to him why the ship now has no mast. The funny thing about it was that he believed that. Oh, you can tell some people mighty nigh anything, and it goes.

"What do we think of the inland folks? Fine people, I tell you. Most of us are inlanders ourselves; don't forget that. A few years ago we didn't know a ship's anchor from a bale of hay. The only nautical term we understood was prairie schooner. We don't much mind answerin' questions, but the funny ones furnish us something to talk and laugh over when we get dull."

GREAT CELEBRATION HELD AT ISHPEMING

Iron Ore Semi-Centennial a Great Success.

Ten Thousand People Join In the Festivities.

Ishpeming, Mich., June 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—The greatest celebration in the history of Marquette county took place here today, when the Lake Superior Iron company, one of the three pioneer corporations of this city, celebrated its fiftieth anniversary. Extensive preparations were made for the festivities, and the total cost of the celebration to the company will be about $10,000. It was originally intended to have the celebration yesterday, but the inclement weather necessitated a postponement of all the features of the program except the log-burling contest. Today the weather was perfect, and the celebration proved a grand success in every way.

The exercises began at 9 a. m. with the drilling and wrestling contests, and an hour later the speechmaking took place in the presence of an immense concourse of people. The first speaker was James Gayley, vice president of the United States Steel corporation, who reviewed the production and use of iron during the past fifty years. Hon. Peter White, who has been a director of the Lake Superior Iron company for the past thirty years, gave an interesting historical sketch of the company.

After an address by Hon. H. O. Young, the first congressman from this district, who was an ore weigher for the Lake Superior company in 1827, at a wage of $2 per day, remarks were made by Thomas F. Cole, of Duluth, president of the Minnesota and Oliver companies, and by W. H. Johnston, general manager of all the Oliver company's mines on the Marquette range.

Then came the presentation of service certificates to the old employes of the Lake Superior company. Two hundred and twenty-two employes, who have been with the company from ten to over forty years, received service certificates and money in proportion to the length of their service. Capt. John McEnecro, who has been constantly engaged here for forty-five years; Peter Redmond, with forty years, and Catherine McHugh, daughter of John McHugh, who saw forty-three years' service, each received $100.

At noon an immense barbecue was held, at which 10,000 people were served. The celebration ends up with a big ball tonight.

PROMINENT VISITORS.

Among the prominent officials of the United States Steel corporation who are here to attend the celebration are:

James Gayley, first vice president of the United States Steel company.

D. M. Clemenson, president of the Pitsburg Steamship company.

C. D. Frazer, secretary of the corporation's mining companies.

D. G. Kerr, ore agent for the Steel corporation.

Judge Reid, president of the Bessemer & Lake Erie Railway company.

T. F. Cole, president of the Oliver Iron and Minnesota Mining companies.

W. W. Billson, of the law firm of Congdon & Billson, general counsel for the Steel corporation.

Joseph B. Cotton, general solicitor of Duluth, Missabe & Northern and Duluth & Iron Range railroads.

W. J. Olcott, general manager of the Oliver Iron company's mines.

A. B. Wolvin, vice president and general manager of the Pittsburg Steamship company.

F. E. House, president of the Duluth & Iron Range Railway company.

W. M. Jeffrey, auditor of the Oliver and Minnesota Iron Mining companies.

L. W. Powell, assistant to President T. F. Cole of the Oliver and Minnesota Iron Mining companies.

J. L. Mullin, assistant auditor of the Oliver and Minnesota Iron Mining companies.

Nelson P. Hulst, vice president of the Oliver Iron Mining company.

LOG BURLING CONTEST.

The log burling contest took place yesterday afternoon at Lake Bancroft, under the direction of Michael Ferguson. There were two contests, the first without pole or peavy, and the second with pole or peavy. Prizes aggregating $140 were awarded as follows: In the first contest, first prize, $50; second prize, $20. In the second contest, first prize, $40; second prize, $15. A prize of $15 was awarded to the best comic and acrobatic individual burler. The judges were: George Newett, of Ishpeming; Charles Woodcock, of Champion, and B. J. Goodman, of Sands. The burlers entered for the contest were: George Feigel and Paul Miller, of Negaunee; J. M. Johnson, Joseph Jott and Joe Dsannow, of Ishpeming; "Bud" Murphy, of Marquette; Harry Berros, Eugene Johnson and Dan Mongall, of Palmer; Terry Maudry and Charles Reynolds, of Marinette; Charles Anderson, Dave Alore and J. Midcuffe, of Munising.

The contests resulted as follows:

Contest without poles—Terry Maudray, of Marinette, first; Charles Reynolds, of Marinette, second.

Contest with poles—Terry Maudray, of Marinette, first; Paul Miller, of Negaunee, and Charles Reynolds, of Marinette, tied for second prize.

Best comic burler—George Feigel, of Negaunee.

YALE AND HARVARD CREWS MEET ON THE THAMES RIVER

All Three Events Were Won By Yale With Ease.

Twenty-Fifth Annual Regatta on This Course.

New London, Conn., June 25.—The hundreds of devotees of college boat racing, who gathered in this little old whaling town yesterday and last night, in anticipation of the annual contest on the Thames between the oarsmen of Harvard and Yale, scheduled for today, awoke this morning to find the conditions weatherwise anything but encouraging.

Though the early morning brought with it a let-up in the matter of rain, a bleak wind blew out of the northeast and the atmosphere was raw and penetrating.

Blowing diagonally across and down the river, the wind bucked the tide and kicked up a choppy sea. Every one agreed that unless the late forenoon brought a change the regatta would not materialize, according to schedule.

At the quarters of the oarsmen the disappointment was just as keen, but the rival crews began final preparation for the events of the twenty-fifth annual regatta over this course. Of the twenty-four races which have been rowed on the Thames between the varsity eights from Cambridge and New Haven universities Yale has a record of sixteen victories. Harvard has won eight. The New Haven collegians confidently expected to make it seventeen today, while the young men from Cambridge were not without encouragement that this was to be Harvard's day.

Before 9 a. m. the chairman of the regatta committee, with the referee, W. H. Melkleham, of Columbia, went out on the river and over the course for a final inspection. They reported that everything was in readiness for the race except the weather. Meanwhile the harbor presented an animated scene. Many yachts had arrived during the night and early in the day they left their anchorages in the lawer harbor and steamed or were towed up to the waters about the 'varsity finish line. Among these craft was the president's yacht, the Sylph, having on board Miss Alice Roosevelt. There appeared also in this fleet the two big cup yachts, Constitution and Columbia.

Early in the day excursion trains began to arrive, the first comers being from Norwich and nearby towns. Later the big specgials from New Haven came, and they were followed by similar long trains from Boston.

Despite the forbidding aspect of the weather it was announced at 8:30 that every effort would be made to start the regatta at 11 o'clock, the scheduled hour. The day's program called for the race between 'varsity fours from the start opposite Gales ferry, down stream to the navy yard, a distance of two miles. This was to be followed promptly by the freshmen race from the navy yard to the railroad bridge. It was planned to finish these two minor events before noon and to start the big eights down the river at 12:30 p. m.

As the day wore on the unfavorable conditions of the early morning changed, and at 10 o'clock the river was almost smooth. The wind had shifted to the north and was very light.

Preparations for the contests were hurried forward. The Harvard freshmen embarked in their shell and started down stream toward the navy yard preparatory to the race.

It was announced that the four-oared race would not be started until after the freshmen crews had arrived at the navy yard. The Harvard four-oar shell was launched and shortly after the arrival of the observation trains, the referees' boat and the regatta committee boat steamed up to Yale quarters to notify the men to prepare for the four-oar race. A little later the Yale freshmen crew was on its way to the nay yard.

The four-oared crews were off at 11:33. Yale caught the water first and soon led the Crimson by a quarter length, rowing strong 36 while Harvard rowed 38.

Both crews are splashing considerably and on their way to the half-mile flag Yale increased their lead until within a few hundred feet of the station she led by a length and a half At the half mile Yale led by a length and three-quarters and was rowing in splendid form.

Yale covered the half mile in 2 minutes 45 1-5 seconds, Harvard in 2 minutes 49 4-5 seconds. Near the mile flag Yale increased her lead and passed the flag two lengths ahead.

The time for the mile was 5.38 4-5. Harvard's time was 5.45.

Shortly after leaving the mile flag both crews slackened their stroke

BUT WILL IT STAY BURIED?

ALL CREWS READY

Big 'Varsity Race Will Occur at Poughkeepsie Friday.

Coaches Believe All Has Been Done For Crews.

Poughkeepsie, June 25.—All the crews except the Wisconsin 'varsity were out this forenoon for a short time, but the practice was hardly more than a paddle, the coaches believing that all that can be done for their respective crews is accomplished. Cornell's four crews rowed down the two mile stretch to blue point, and then returned. The Columbia crews rowed about the same distance south of their boathouse, while Syracuse practiced starts in neighboring waters. Georgetown rowed three miles, practicing some starts.

The program for the races tomorrow afternoon is as follows:

4 p. m.—Four-oared race, 2 miles, Cornell, Columbia, Pennsylvania and Wisconsin.

4:45 p. m.—Freshmen eight-oarded race, 2 miles, Cornell, Columbia, Wisconsin, Pennsylvania and Syracuse.

6 p. m.—Varsity eight-oarded race, four miles, Cornell, Columbia, Pennsylvania, Georgetown, Syracuse and Wisconsin.

Official referee, John Eustis of Wesleyan; timekeepers Evert Jansen Wendell of Harvard and Wm. Innes Forbes of Pennsylvania. Judge at the finish—Frederick R. Fortmeyer, of the National Association of Amateur Oarsmen.

THE PRESIDENT CONCLUDES TO SEND JEWISH PETITION TO CZAR

After Further Consideration the Executive Reconsiders His First Conclusion and Will Send the Pleas of the Hebrews to St. Petersburg.

Washington, June 25.—The president has decided to transmit to the Russian government the petition presented to him by the executive council of the B'Nai B'Rith regarding the treatment of Jews in Russia.

The action has been taken after mature consideration. At first it was decided that the petition should not be presented because it might be resented by the government of Russia and lead to a response that will cause a break in the relations of the two countries. However, the first conclusion has been reconsidered and by direction of the president the petition will now go forward. What the result will be is problematical. As indicated in the following note from Secretary Hay to Simon Wolf, the presentation will probably be made to the Russian government, through the United States charge at St. Petersburg. The note reads:

Department of States, Washington D. C., June 24.

Dear Sir—The president has concluded to transmit to the Russian government the petition of which you presented him a draft on June 15. The matter which he had to consider most seriously was whether or not such a proceeding would be to the advantage of your persecuted and outraged nation in Russia. On this point he has decided to accept your opinion and that of the numerous and intelligent groups of American citizens of the Jewish faith, whom you represent. He requests that you will send him the ptition in due form at your earliest convenience. Of course, you will understand that the president cannot tell you what reception your petition will meet with at the hands of the Russian government. I am, sir, faithfully yours, JOHN HAY."

"Hon. Simon Wolf, Washington, D. C."

The petition to be transmitted to the Russian government is the one which the executive council of the B'Nai B'Rith handed to the president as a tentative document to be signed by leading citizens of the United States outside of federal officeholders. It is expected that it will take about two weeks to secure these signatures. Work along that line is already in progress.

EMPEROR WILLIAM LOUD IN HIS PRAISES OF U. S. WARSHIPS

Told Admiral Cotton That He Would at Once Telegraph to President Roosevelt, Telling Him of Excellent Condition of Vessels.

Kiel, June 25.—"I shall telegraph to the president today, sirs, telling him in what perfect condition I have found your ships," said Emperor William in parting with Rear Admiral Cotton and Capt. Hemphill on board the American flagship Kearsarge today after he had spent an hour and a half looking over the battleship as thoroughly as any naval inspector could have done, working the turrets, examining the quarters of the men, looking at the food in the galley and talking familiarly with some of the able seamen.

The emperor came alongside the starboard quarter of the Kearsarge, steering his own barge and attended by Capt. Von Grumme, while up the port gangway came Admiralty Secretary Von Tirpatz, Gen. Von Plessen and Count Von Eulenburg. Admiral Cotton and his staff, Capt. Hemphill, all the other American commanders and all the officers of the ship except the midshipmen, who were at quarters, received the emperor on the quarter deck.

"I am happy to welcome your majesty on an American warship," said Admiral Cotton, "and I wish that I were receiving you on American soil."

"I am very happy to be here," the emperor replied. He then shook hands with all the captains whom he met yesterday, calling them by name, and with all the juniors who were present in turn.

"Now, captain," the emperor said to Capt. Hemphill, "I want to see your ship."

Capt. Hemphill thereupon led the way with the emperor, Admiral Cotton following with Secretary Von Tirpatz, the other American captains accompanying the members of his majesty's suite.

EIGHT MILLIONS ALREADY SPENT

St. Louis, June 25.—The World's Fair company has expended in actual cash $8,500,000 up to the first of the present month, as shown by the report of the auditing committee of the national commission at work here. The committee has been informally notified by the Exposition company that a request will be made upon the secretary of the United States treasury to be allowed to draw on the fund of $5,000,000 appropriated by the commission for the fair between now and September, probably in August. Contracts have been let by the Exposition company that will approximately complete the expenditure of the $10,000,000 required by the act of congress before any of the government funds are available. The report of the auditing committee will be forwarded to Washington and when the government fund is available the money will be paid out under the rules and regulations prescribed by the secretary of the treasury.

CAPITOL WORKMAN FALLS TO DEATH

St. Paul, June 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—John Carrington, employed at the new state capitol, was almost instantly killed at 9 o'clock this morning. He fell through an air shaft opening on the second floor to the main floor, a distance of seventy-five feet. He struck on his head, fracturing his skull and probably broke his neck. He lived but a few minutes after being picked up. Coroner Miller had the body taken to the morgue and is investigating the case.

A CLOSED INCIDENT

Chicago, June 25.—A strike of freight handlers in the houses of the Chicago & Alton railroad is regarded by the officials as a closed incident. Work was resumed there today and the vacancies caused by the walk-out of 65 per cent of the men have been filled.

"We are suffering no inconvenience today," said Superintendent Barrett, "and anticipate no trouble at other points on our system. We only have freight handlers at Kansas City and St. Louis outside of Chicago, and as the former have our men did not go out in the general strike, and I do not believe they will do so now."

President Curran, of the freight handlers' union, declined to state today what his next step will be.

CHICAGO ART MUSEUM.

Definite Steps Are Taken Towards Its Erection.

Chicago, June 25.—Definite steps toward the erection of a $3,000,000 art museum in Chicago has been taken. The trustees of the National Art museum met and elected officers, and selected the Illinois Trust and Savings bank as a repository for the funds of the organization. Subscription books will be opened and the task of collecting the funds commenced. The trustees who will receive the funds subscribed include: Col. George Briggs, Grand Rapids; S. O. Brooks, St. Paul; Senator J. C. Burrows, Michigan; W. B. Webb, Jackson, Mich.; Harrington Fitzgerald, Philadelphia; S. B. Butler, Jr., Youngstown, O. The officers elected: President, J. G. Butler; vice president, Col. G. G. Briggs; treasurer, H. M. Cable; secretary, J. Harrison White.

NEW POSTMASTER.

Washington, June 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—Thomas W. Meiby has been appointed postmaster at Wilton, Beltrami county, Minn., vice M. A. Roynlie, resigned.

FATAL EXPLOSION OF AMMONIA GAS

Chicago, June 25.—An explosion of ammonia gas in the Citizens' Brewery, Archer avenue and Throop street, early today wrecked the building and resulted in fatal injuries to Charles Brunke, the night brewer, and serious injuries to Charles Howard, night engineer, and to Frank Fisher, night foreman. The property damage is estimated at $15,000. Fisher was found unconscious in an alley nearly a block away from the building, where he was thrown by the force of the explosion. Several firemen were overcome by the fumes of ammonia. Howard was found unconscious in an alley and Brunke was fatally scalded. The night engineer is said to have turned steam into the ammonia tank instead of into the boiler, causing the explosion.

"EL MOCHO" TO BE MADE MINISTER

New York, June 25.—It is reported from what are considered to be good sources, that the Venezuelan government intends to re-establish its legation at Washington, and that Gen. Jose Manuel Hernamdez is to receive the appointment. Venezuela has been without a minister or legation at Washington for over three years.

The probable selection of Gen. Hernamdez has caused great surprise among the local Venezuelans here. It is only a few months since he was liberated from prison in Maracaibo, where he was confined for starting a rebellion. He was set free at the time of the recent trouble with Germany, that he might fight for his country.

He is about 50 years old. The sobriquet "El Mocho" (the maimed) was given to him because of a crippled arm, the result of a battle in one of the many revolutions in which he has taken part.

SCHOONER TALLANT WAS WRECKED

San Francisco, June 25.—The German schooner Neptune, which has just arrived from Jalult, brought dispatches which revealed the identity of the wreck reported on the Marshall island of Mille by the missionary schooner Carrie and Annie. The ill-fated craft was the four-masted schooner John D. Tallant, of this port, for whose safety hope died many days ago. The Tallant was a vessel of 417 tons register, and left Vancouver, Aug. 31, 1902, for Mollendo. She was posted missing March 31 last. She carried a cargo of lumber, which is now being saved from the wreck. No trace of the captain or crew has been found. The Tallant was owned by J. Jensen, of this city. She was built in 1891. Her commander was Capt. Hoffland.

SAYS BEER INSPIRES STUDENTS

New York, June 25.—Having completed their seven weeks' tour through the United States, the delegation of forty-seven Germans sent to this country by the kaiser to study agricultural methods, are preparing to leave for home. The leader of the party says what they admire most in the United States is the people. The agricultural experiment stations also were a revelation to the visitors. Speaking of the schools, one of the delegates said: "I liked your American universities very much. They are very well put together. But there is one thing that they miss, and that is beer. The students here can't have the enthusiasm we have in our German schools by drinking water. It is beer that inspired them."

THOUSANDS SEE POPE LEO AT THE PUBLIC CONSISTORY

Venerable Pontiff Was Viewed With Intense Curiosity and Received With Great Enthusiasm In the Cries of "Long Live Leo."

Rome, June 25.—The public consistory, postponed from June 18, was held today with much pomp and circumstance and additional interest and reverence, for in spite of the reassuring news concerning the pope's health, many persons believed that this would be the last consistory under Leo XIII. The assemblage gazed at the venerable pontiff with intense curiosity, and there was redoubled enthusiasm in the cries of "Long live Leo." He looked a little more wax-like, a little more bowed, his voice was somewhat thinner, and it was evident that his attendants were anxious.

There were many strangers in the crowd who gathered in the corridors of the Sala Regia and Sala Ducale to witness the passage of the cortege. The pontiff was borne in the Sedia Gestatoria by eight bearers clad in red brocade. They were flanked by the bearers of the famous Flabelli or feathered fans.

The pope smiled while he blessed the crowds as he passed. In fact at times he tried to rise so as to better impart his benediction, and it was only when he descended from the Sedia Gestatoria that his extreme weakness was apparent.

Following the pope came a gorgeous line of scarlet-clad cardinals, friars in various habits, priests, and members of the papal court wearing velvet knee-breeches and white ruffs. The church dignitaries were escorted by the noble Swiss and Palatine guards, which, with the sistine choir, chanting solemnly, formed an emotional picture. Special tribunes were erected on both sides of the papal throne for the accommodation of the members of the diplomatic corps, the Knights of Malta, the Roman aristocracy, the family of the pope and relatives of the newly created cardinals. Among the Americans present were Monsignor Kennedy, rector of the American college; Monsignor Farrelly, secretary of the American college and privy chamberlain to the pope; Monsignor Robert Setton (formerly of Jersey City, N. J.), titular archbishop of Heliopolis, and Rt. Rev. F. Z. Rooker, bishop of Jarro, Philippine islands.

The ceremony was made as short as possible in order to lessen the pontiff's fatigue. The pope sat on the throne facing the brocade-covered benches in the form of a square, on which the cardinals were seated.

The new cardinals present who were to receive the red hat from the pope, according to custom, first took the oath in the Sistine chapel and were then ushered into the Sala Regia, where they were greeted by the master of the ceremonies. On approaching the pontiff the three cardinals knelt and kissed his foot and his hand, and the pope then gave them the double embrace. The new cardinals afterwards embraced the other cardinals. Returning to the pontiff, each of the new cardinals then received from his hands a cardinal hat, which ended the ceremony.

The pope thereupon rose, bestowed the apostolic benediction, and, preceded by the pontifical cross and surrounded by the cardinals and his attendants, impressively retired. Subsequently the pope rejoined the cardinals in the Sistine chapel, and the pontiff announced the new episcopal appointments. These appointments have all been previously announced from time to time.

The postulants for Archbishop Farley, Monsignor Farrelly; for Archbishop Quigley, Monsignor Jaquemin, and for Bishop Orth, Father Descuffi, of the propaganda, then entered the hall and asked the pope to bestow the palliums on the prelates they represented, which was granted. They will be delivered tomorrow. The function ended with the pope giving the new cardinals their rings as princes of the church.

The episcopal announcements for America were: Right Rev. George Montgomery, bishop of Los Angles, to assume the position of coadjutor archbishop of San Francisco; Most Rev. John Farley, as archbishop of New York; Most Rev. James E. Quigley, as archbishop of Chicago; Right Rev. Henry Moeller, bishop of Columbus, Ohio, as coadjutor archbishop of Cincinnati; Right Rev. Bertram Orth, bishop of Victoria, B. C., as archbishop of Vancouver; Right Rev. Thomas J. Conaty, as bishop of Monterey, Cal.; Right Rev. F. Z. Rooker, archbishop of Jaro, Philippine Islands; Right Rev. Dennis J. Dougherty, as bishop of Nueva Segovia, Philippines; Right Rev. Charles H. Colton, as bishop of Buffalo; Right Rev. James Keane, as bishop of Cheyenne, Wyo.; Right Rev. John W. Starihao, as bishop of Lead, S. D.; Right Rev. J. Regis, as coadjutor bishop of Pittsburg, Pa., and Right Rev. John J. Glennon, bishop of Kansas City, Mo., as coadjutor archbishop of St. Louis, Mo.

A PRETTY BROOKLYN GIRL

Regained Her Beauty By the Use of Pe-ru-na.

Miss Margaret Little, 47 Hoyt St., Brooklyn, N. Y., writes:

"I have been troubled with constipation and indigestion for over a year, my complexion was ruined and I was losing flesh every day. The doctors advised that I go to a Sanitarium, but a number of people advised be to try Peruna before going to that expense, and I did so.

"I found that the first bottle regulated my bowels, cleared my complexion, and by the time I had taken six bottles my stomach and digestion was in perfect working order, and has remained so ever since."—Margaret Little.

THOUSANDS of women suffer from systemic catarrh. This is sure to produce such symptoms as cold feet and hands, sick headache, palpitation of the heart and heavy feelings in the stomach.

Then begins a series of experiments with medicine. They take medicine for sick headache. They take medicine for nervous prostration, for palpitation of the heart, for dyspepsia. None of these medicines do any good because they do not reach the cause of the complaint.

Peruna at once mitigates all these symptoms by removing the cause.

Systemic catarrh is the trouble. Systemic catarrh pervades the whole system, deranges every organ, weakens every function. No permanent cure can be expected until the systemic catarrh is removed.

This is exactly what Peruna will do.

A Wonderful Cure by Pe-ru-na

Was Given Up to Die—Eight Doctors Failed—Pe-ru-na Saved Her Life.

Miss Alma Cox, Assistant Postmistress of Orum, S. C., writes:

"I have been a great sufferer from chronic disease and dyspepsia for five years. How I suffered no tongue can tell. I tried eight or ten of the best physicians without receiving much benefit, also tried lots of patent medicines. But still I suffered with sick headache, cold feet and hands, and such a heavy feeling in my stomach and chest. At times I would be so nervous I could not bear anyone around me. I had been given up to die.

"One day a friend sent me one of Dr. Hartman's pamphlets, and I decided to write to him. He advised Peruna and Manalin, and after taking the medicine two weeks I felt greatly relieved. My head did not pain me any scarcely, and my stomach was relieved of its heavy feeling. I am so thankful that I can say after using several bottles of the Peruna and Manalin I am restored to perfect health.

"Before using your remedies I could not eat anything. I lived on barley water and Panopeptin for two years. Now I can eat with pleasure. Everybody is so surprised at my improvement. Everyone says I am looking like a rose. I would advise all suffering women to take your remedies. I know if it were not for Peruna and Manalin I would have been in my grave today. I cannot thank you enough for the kind advice you have given me."—Miss Alma L. Cox.

Dr. S. B. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, of Columbus, O., gives advice to women free during the summer months.

in the drilling contest this morning, in which twenty-one teams were entered. Capt. Josh Hodgson, of the Lake Superior Hematite mine managed the drilling contest. The judges were Capt. James Piper, of the Negaunee mine; Capt. F. E. Keese, Volunteer mine, and Capt. James Stephens, of the Cliffs Shaft. The prizes for the winning teams were as follows: First, upper hole, $50; second, $30. First, down hole, $40; second, $20. For the upper hole drilling a large rock, about two tons in weight, was placed upon a scaffold and the men worked at it in a manner similar to the upper hole drilling in the mines. The down hole work took place on the bare ledge, which was stripped for a sufficient area to give all the teams a satisfactory place to work. Following were the teams that took part in the contest:

Team No. 1—John Smithen, Mass mine; Thomas Maffait, Negaunee mine; Hubert Dower, Lillie mine.

Team No. 2—Hugh Trembath, Harold Gears, Josiah Eade, Republic mine.

Team No. 3—Joseph Kitt, William Heard and Ed Cory, Lake Angeline mine.

Team No. 4—Mike Sullivan, William J. Thomas, Stephen Paul, Negaunee mine.

Team No. 5—Thomas Wallace, Stephen Nicholls, Hans Halverson, Volunteer mine.

Team No. 6—Hugh Coady, John Nelson, William Toms, Volunteer mine.

Team No. 7—William J. Treloar, Albert Hampton, William Hampton, Cleveland Lake mine.

Team No. 8—John Pearce, William Mitchell, George Buck, Lake Angeline mine.

Team No. 9—Robert Creer, Thomas Creer, Ben Lace, Salisbury mine.

Team No. 10.—Sol Kugeman, John Millimakki, Matt Rado, Section 21 mine.

Team No. 11—Joseph Rice, Lake Superior Hematite; Thomas Roberts, Regent mine; Joseph Grigg, Regent mine.

Team No. 12—Sam Drake, William Williams, George Delbridge, Section 15 mine.

Team No. 13.—John C. Hodge, Joseph Tregenza, James Clemo, Lake Superior Hematite.

Team No. 14—John Wilksman, Fred Anderson, Charles Ollila, Section 15 mine.

Team No. 15—Gust Youngberg, Andrew Warnquist, Otto Kellgren, Lake Superior blacksmith shop.

Team No. 16.—John Quine, John Stephens, William Drew, Lake Angeline mine.

Team No. 17—Joseph Hocking, Henry Wheat, John Olds, Cliffs Shaft.

The contest was unfinished when the hour for the speaking arrived.

WRESTLING CONTEST.

While the drilling contest was going on the Cornish wrestling matches were also in progress. Among the men who donned the jackets were: Samuel Davey, J. Kelly and Hart Martin, Humboldt; William Matthews, Thomas Johns, William Gill, William Goldsworthy, Stephen Nicholls, John Buck, Thomas Linn, Herbert Skews, William Blight, Patrick Harrington, William Moll, William Manley, Thomas Trematle, Robert Dyer, Daniel Cashen, Charles Covlo, William Harris and Richard Bennett, of Ishpeming; James Champion and Ruben Champion, Trimountain; Thomas Clanark, Hancock. The committee in charge of the wrestling consisted of H. H. Milden, of this city, Capt. James H. Rough, of Negaunee, and Capt. W. J. Allen, of Humboldt. John Lacey was master of ceremonies at the ring. The sticklers were Emanuel Pope and Peter Carlyon of Ishpeming, and Harry Sath, of Negaunee. The prizes for the winners were: First, $90; second, $60; third, $25, and fourth, $15. No wrestler weighing over 180 pounds was permitted to participate in the contest.

When the hour for the exercises at the speaker's platform arrived the contests had not been decided.

HISTORY OF THE COMPANY.

New Part of United States Steel Corporation.

In the historical sketch of the Lake Superior Iron company, written by George A. Newett, editor of the Ishpeming Iron Ore, it is stated that the company was formed to explore and develop lands originally embraced in the territory held by the Marquette Iron company, which was organized in 1848, and whose interests Robert Graveraet, of Cleviand, with a small party of men, was sent in May, 1849, to protect. In this party was Hon. Peter White, now of Marquette. The articles of association of the Lake Superior Iron company, were filed March 13, 1856, so that the semi-centennial celebration of the event is a little delayed, this being purposely done so that better weather for the carrying out of the program might be enjoyed. The incorporators were: Herman B. Ely, Marquette, Mich.; Anson Gorton, Marquette, Mich.; Samuel P. Ely, Rochester, N. Y.; George B. Ely, Rochester, N. Y.; Alvah Strong, Rochester, N. Y. The work of clearing the trees from the surface for the prosecution of mining was begun in the fall of 1856 under the direction of H. B. Ely. In July, 1857, Capt. Gilbert D. Johnson, the first mining superintendent of the company, took charge under the management of H. B. Ely, general agent. On Oct. 10, 1857, the first cargo of ore to be sent out from this location by rail, amounting to light cars, was shipped over the Marquette, Houghton & Ontonagon railroad, which was extended to the mine in this year. This road is today the Peninsula division of the Chicago & Northwestern Railway company. The first ore mined at the Lake Superior was in the shape of boulders lying in the outcropping jaspers and other rocks of the iron-bearing formation. Afterward, the ore was found in the hollows, instead of in the hills. With the boulders sent out, the ore in place was attacked. Today the old open pits and seams from which the ore was taken in the Lake Superior's early history are plainly seen. At the outset oxen were used to pull the ore from the pit and they were an important motive power for many years, being employed until a depth in the pits of 150 feet had been attained.

The first season's output from the mine, 1858, was shipped to Detroit and Cleveland, and the demand greatly exceeded the supply. Pig iron was selling at $80 per ton. For the year 1859 there were shipped 2,998 tons. This year saw the first ore pockets erected in the mining region. Underground mining was not thought of and it was not until 1874 that this system of mining the ore was started. In 1857 soft hematite ores were found, but the furnaces rejected it and it took some time to overcome the prejudice against it. In 1871, G. D. Johnson retired, as did S. P. Ely, who had succeeded H. B. Ely as agent, and C. H. Hall was chosen as managing agent, with J. D. Day as assistant. After several years the latter resigned and was succeeded by E. B. Hall, son of the agent, who continued until W. H. Johnson was called to the position. The introduction of high explosives to take the place of the black powder was made in 1880-70, and caused many fatal accidents, while its proper handling was being learned. The Lake Superior was the first to procure a steam shovel for the loading of iron ore from stockpile, the original machine being purchased in 1869, and was also the first to introduce electric lights underground in this district.

From the original 120 acres of land which comprise the estate of the company fifty years ago, the acreage has grown to about 16,000. The capital stock of the company was gradually increased to $2,500,000 in 1882. On May 1, 1890, a three-quarter interest was sold to the Oliver Mining company, which then took possession. The remaining quarter interest is owned by the Cleveland-Cliffs company. The Oliver company is one of the many important branches of the United States Steel corporation.

ASPHALT FAILS

Property Owners Are Dissatisfied With Its Showing Already.

City Will Accept No Asphalt That Is Unsatisfactory.

General dissatisfaction is expressed over the apparent failure of asphalt paving on East Superior street.

Hundreds of property owners and others that have examined the two-weeks' old paving between Fifteenth and Sixteenth avenues are about willing to concede that the city officers and The Herald were right when they protested vigorously against letting the asphalt contract, claiming that Duluth's climatic conditions and wet subsoil would make the paving a worse failure than it has proved to be elsewhere.

In addition to that there was also a strong protest against using asphalt paving here at $2.45 a square yard, when the same company was giving St. Paul the identical material for $1.85 a square yard.

An asphalt expert made an examination of the block of paving that one lone and lightweight horse put to the haul by simply walking over it, and says that it may be all right after several months of traffic have smoothed it down. He says that in his experience he has seen asphalt paving behave in that manner and afterwards turn out to be as good paving as it is possible for asphalt to be.

City Engineer Patton has expressed the opinion that the paving material was mixed too soft in an effort to get a surface that would be sufficiently elastic to withstand Duluth's moist subsoil and climate.

The city will not accept a foot of the paving until it is made right, and a high officer of the Barber asphalt trust is expected here at any time to make an examination of the paving and talk the situation over.

It is rather unfortunate for the asphalt trust that the horse did not wait till Saturday before walking on the new paving, as the city opens bids for paving material to be used between Third and Eighth avenues east tomorrow. It is understood that the asphalt concern was very anxious to get this contract, but under present conditions, together with the delay in the East Superior street contract for one year, it is not likely that asphalt will be given serious consideration.

The tendency of public sentiment seems setting very strongly in favor of a bitulithic macadam paving manufactured out of Duluth trap rock and coal tar, mixed in a municipal owner-ship plant and put down by day labor.

The bituminous macadam paving put down on First avenue west within the last week is attracting much attention and teamsters use in on a steep grade in preference to other avenues where the grade is of a lesser degree.

Without the slightest trouble a team hauled 7000 pounds of coal over this new paving between First and Second streets without a sign of slipping and neither horse had calks on its shoes.

LANDIS GUILTY

Of Murder In the First Degree, Says Jury.

Toledo, June 25.—The jury in the case of Ben Landis, charged with the murder of Catherine Sullivan, two years ago, this morning brought in a verdict of murder in the first degree, with a recommendation for mercy, which means a life sentence without hope of pardon. Landis is the last of three men who, as was charged, were implicated in the murder, the other two, Ben and Al Wade, having both been convicted of murder in the first degree without the clemency recommendation.

GOES TO LEXINGTON COUNTY.

Columbia, S. C., June 25.—Judge Townsend today announced that the trial of James H. Tillman, charged with the murder of N. G. Gonzales, would be heard in Lexington county, Saluda was the county to which the defense wanted the case moved.

JOHN LIND IN TOWN

Ex-Governor Here on Combined Business and Pleasure Trip.

John Lind, former governor of Minnesota and present congressman from the Minneapolis district, elected upon the Democratic ticket, is in the city today.

He came up from Minneapolis this morning and stopped at the Spalding.

"I am here on business," he said to a reporter of The Herald this morning, "and incidentally to look over some parts of our state that I have not seen before. I am going up to Ely, and will go up to Grand Marais before I return to Minneapolis. I have never yet seen the iron range country, and I am much interested in my prospective trip there."

Mr. Lind was asked for an opinion on the action of the Iowa Democratic state convention in rejecting a silver plank for its platform, but declined to discuss it. In fact, he professed not to have heard of the action of of the convention, but when informed what it had done, he replied that he preferred not to discuss political questions at this time.

Mr. Lind has lately returned from Washington, and he stated this morning that he did not expect to go back to the national capital until shortly before the opening of the extra session in November.

During the forenoon he foregathered with a number of local Democratic politicians and other acquaintances in the city, but his visits to them were simply in the nature of renewing acquaintance, and they had no policital significance.

Becker-Warren.

Miss Louise Becker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Becker, of 615 West Superior street, formerly of Torah, Minn., was united in marriage this morning to George F. Warren, a prominent young man of Milaca, Minn. The ceremony took place at 1 o'clock in the St. Anthony's German Catholic church, Rev. Father Kosmerl officiating. After the ceremony the wedding party partook of a dinner at the home of the bride's parents, and the young couple left on the afternoon train for a trip to the Twin Cities. They will make their future home at Milaca.

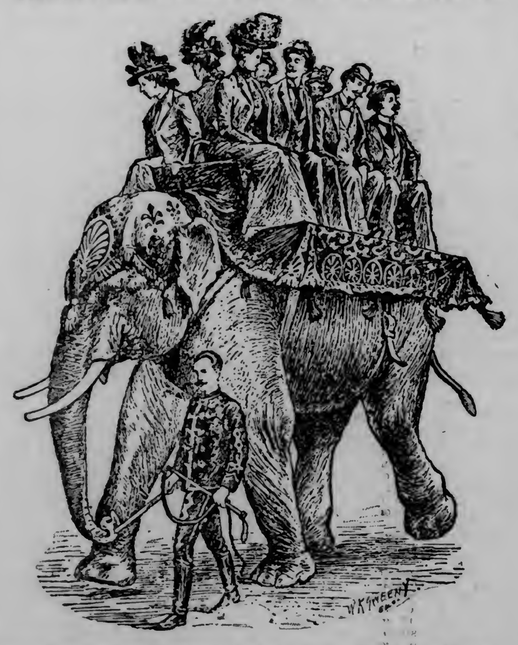
ESCAPED FROM THE TOMBS.

New York, June 25.—Two prisoners escaped from the Tombs prison Tuesday but the news of it was not given out until yesterday. The men escaped by sawing a bar in a door leading from the cellar underneath the women's prison to the yard. The wall around the yard has been torn down and the means to escape was easy. The men were serving six months' sentences for disorderly conduct and were regarded as "trusties." The Tombs warden believes they were assisted from the outside.

ONE OF THE NOVELTIES OF THE COMING CARNIVAL.



Among the favorite amusements at the Duluth July fair and carnival July 6 to 11 will be riding the elephant which will be provided for the purpose by the Ferari Bros.' shows. Mogul is the big elephant, chosen for his gentleness and good manners, taught him in drastic lessons by the iron hook of his mahout, Ali Guj, of somewhere in India, who will do the elephantine honors.

It isn't every day that one has an opportunity to ride an elephant in this country, and the chances are that this vehicle will have many patrons. Mogul will have a carriage seat sort of an arrangement erected on his back that will seat eight people at once. This should be a treat for everybody.

STEEL TRUST BALL GAMES

Will Be Two More of Them on Saturday Afternoon.

There will be two terrific games of baseball Saturday afternoon. One begins at 2 o'clock and the other starts when the first one finishes.

There is bloody vengeance demanded by a great man of various teams in the steel corporation building.

The following Saturday schedule has been arranged: 2 o'clock p. m.—Duluth, Missabe & Northerns vs. Pittsburg Steamships.

Sometime after 2 p. m.—Oliver Iron Minings vs. Duluth & Iron Ranges.

The two latter have a percentage of 1000 in the league standings.

The other two teams have a standing of one big 0 each.

They will vie to see which starts to get figures.

The Olivers and Ranges will vie to see who gets top place, as there will be four kinds of figures when these games are played.

The game will be played at the old driving park, and arrangements are being made for a large crowd to witness the game, as it will be for blood, and there are likely to be some hot and interesting scenes.

The Missabe railroad team has been reorganized again, or re-reorganized, this being its third time on earth. If it don't finish inside the flag Saturday, another team will be formed next week.

BRIEF CITY NEWS

Parlor Theater—Open every evening.

The Pioneer Press, of yesterday, said: "Mrs. A. G. Farrer, of Duluth, was stricken with syncope, due to grastritis, while she was at Rice street and Como avenue last evening, and she was unconscious for some time after being carried into a drug store. She was revived by Dr. E. A. Stevens and taken to the home of her mother at 857 Albemarle street."

W. C. Gray, undertaker, 205 E. Sup. St.

William Surrell, of Eveleth, and John Larson, of Virginia, are to be examined before Judge of Probate Middlecoff, for insanity.

Parlor Theater—The home of vaudeville.

The crib work of the Barnet & Record company for the Ohio coal dock extension has been completed and the cribs will be sunk in position, beginning today. Besides the new cribs, the contracting company has built several hundred feet of new revetment at the dock.

A woman and her baby narrowly escaped serious injury in a runaway early this morning. The horse they were driving began running near the corner of First street and Eleventh avenue West and at Thirteenth avenue West dashed up into the Sang stone quarry, where it was stopped. The rig was slightly damaged and the occupants badly frightened.

L. S. Humes, manager of the Western Union Telegraph company at Duluth has been selected to succeed William A. Rudd as manager of the St. Paul office, the latter having resigned to go with another company at Memphis, Tenn. The manager of the Sioux Falls, S. D. office, a man named Crane, will succeed Mr. Humes.

Miss Stella E. Allbright and Charles S. Prosser were married yesterday afternoon at 622 London road. The wedding was a quiet one only a few of the intimate friends of the young couple being present. Rev. T. H. Cleland of the First Presbyterian church performed the ceremony. The bride was formerly principal of the Longfellow school at West Duluth and Mr. Prosser is the senior member of the firm of hay, grain and feed merchants, C. S. Prosser and Co., of East Michigan street.

John J. Skuse has started an action in district court against the Duluth Business University for $304.75 which is alleged to be due for the plaintiff's services as land attorney.

Judge Ensign has granted a stay of proceeding on the verdict until August 1, 1903. In the case of Robert Stitt against the Rat Portage Lumber company. The action was brought by the plaintiff on an alliged timber contract and he was rendered a verdict of $1500 during the November term of court. The extension of the stay of proceedings is taken to permit of the transcribing of testimony at the trial.

Sanstrum-Dwyer.

Miss Hilda Sanstrom, of Cambridge, Minn., and F. A. Dwyer, of this city, were quietly married last evening at the cathedral residence by Rev. Father Corbett. Miss Myrtle Salmon acted as bridesmaid and Charles Sanstrom, a brother of the bride, was the best man.

Miss Sanstrom is a popular young woman of Cambridge, and the groom is one of the city salesmen for the Stone-Ordean-Wells company. Only a few of the intimate friends and relatives of the young couple were present at the wedding. They will leave today for a wedding trip to St. Paul and Minneapolis, and on their return will take up their residence in Duluth.

DISMISSES ORDER

Papers In Forbes Brothers' Case Served on the Wrong Man.

Given to J. A. Keyes, Who Is Not Robert Forbes' Attorney.

Another chapter in the contest of Alexander Forbes against Robert Forbes for a division of the assets of the firm of Forbes Brothers, came to an abrupt close in district court this morning, but the end is not yet.

The matter came before the court on an order issued against the defendants, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Forbes, to show cause why a receiver should not be appointed to take immediate charge of all the books and effects of the firm of Forbes Brothers, and why an injunction should not be issued restraining the defendants from disposing in any way of the effects of the firm, and temporarily restraining them from interfering with the sheriff's possession of the vault of the firm.

The defendants moved for a dismissal of the order to show cause, on the grounds that the order was served on J. A. Keyes, and as he was not then attorney this did not constitute a service. Attached to the motion of the defendants was the affidavit of Mr. Keyes, stating that he was not the attorney for the defendants.

In dismissing the order to show cause, the court remarked that things looked as though a delay was being played for, but under the facts and the law he would have to grant the petition for a vacation of the order.

The granting of the motion disposed of the action, and J. B. Arnold, attorney for the plaintiff, immediately petitioned the court for the appointment of a receiver without notice. Mr Keyes was on the point of leaving the court room with associate counsel, and he turned and was about to protest, when he received the tip that any protest on his part would constitute an appearance for the defendants, so he refrained.

At the instance of the plaintiff the court has issued another order to show cause worded practically the same as that for argument this morning, but which the plaintiff declares will be served on the defendant and not on any attornies. The law states that the service of papers may be made on the attorneys for either party in a case after the action is in court, but the court held that there had hardly been any appearance yet of the defendants.

The plaintiff is consoling himself with the fact that the writ of non-exeat is still in force and the defendants cannot leave the state to avoid the service of papers even should there be any inclination to do so on their part.

A. A. Forbes was present during the proceedings this morning. After the court dismissed the order to show cause he showed little concern, remarking that he always knew his brother was a slippery customer to deal with and might have known he would slip out under some technicality, but that it was only a question of time until he got into court. The order to show cause which was set aside this morning was one which was filed this morning, and was the second issued by the court. The first was not drawn up in quite the same form, but was served on the defendants. At the request of the plaintiff before the argument was begun this morning, the first order was temporarily withdrawn by the second and more complete order.

All indications give promise of an interesting legal battle when the case coming comes on, which will probably be Saturday of this week.

The plaintiff is represented by J. B. Arnold and George F. Davis, and the defendants by H. J. Grannis. It was commonly supposed that Mr. Keyes was also attorney for the defendants, but according to his affidavit this morning he is not connected with the case.

Tennis Tournament.

Only one event was played off yesterday afternoon in the Endion Tennis club tournament. Gridley met Sheldon and succeeded in defeating him in two straight sets by the score of 6–3 and 6–2. There are still four matches to be played in the second round of the tournament. They will be played this afternoon. Hopkins will meet Bagley, Stone and Peck will come together, Palmer will play Bunn and Ingalls will meet Dash.

Tomorrow afternoon the third round in the tournament will commence. The players will then be narrowed down to eight and some good tennis may be expected.

Too Deep For Court.

A dog valued at $5 was a bone of contention in the municipal court this morning.

Simultaneously John Schau and J. W. Hayden tried to prove they got the same pup from different people about the same time, and the whole trouble seemed to be that the pup was leading a double life—first living at the home of Mr. Schau and then at the home of Mr. Hayden.

The argument got too deep to be settled by mere law and case, pup and contesting owners were compelled to leave without a decision on the question of ownership.

WILL BE A FIGHT

One Promised on the Proposed Substitute Plumbing Ordinance.

Masters and Men Dispute on Responsibility for High Prices.

A fight is promised over the proposed new substitute plumbing ordinance.

Real estate men and investors say the recent raise in plumbing prices is killing the building business.

Master plumbers say the raise complained of is the result of the new plumbing ordinance, drafted at the instance of the journeymen plumbers, which was passed last fall and became operative May 1.

The journeymen plumbers say the new ordinance has been lied about, and that the increase in prices is simply brought about by an unholy combine of master plumbers, seeking to make 33 1-3 per cent profit on the average job.

Business men are intensely interested in the matter, and it was at the request of these men that Alderman Wing introduced a substitute plumbing ordinance in the council last Monday night.

It has been claimed by many that this substitute ordinance is a copy of the ordinance passed last fall, with very few exceptions—following the original word for word. However, there appears to be many changes covering at least twenty-three sections, and when the ordinance comes up for consideration there is likely to be a vigorous fight.

The journeymen plumbers say that the only extra expense entailed by the new ordinance is that it calls for the use of a high grade of material in the interest of wholesome sanitary conditions.

OLD AGE STATISTICS.

Those persons who find life so well worth living that they would not be sorry to relive it find the following statistics, which were recently compiled by an indefatigable French scientist, says the New York Herald.

Out of every 1,000,000 persons who are born in the same year, 312,000, he says, live for seventy years, 107,000 for eighty years and 8841 for ninety years. Two hundred and forty-five persons out of every 1,000,000 live for ninety-seven years, 119 for ninety-eight, 54 for ninety-nine, 23 for one hundred, 9 for one hundred and one, 3 for one hundred and two and 1 for one hundred and three years. A few among the 1,000,000 may attain even a greater age than this, and the statistician expresses this chance in fractions. Thus the chance that a man may live for 104 years is 0.3, and the chance that he may live for 105 years is 0.1.

NO CANALS ON MARS.

The learned and venerable Alfred Russell Walker takes no stock in the tales that Mars is inhabited, and has written a learned treatise to show that the earth is the only habitable planet in the universe, says the New York Herald.

An American astronomer tells us that the evidence afforded by the canals on optical delusion, due to the shadows of the blood vessels behind the retina of the eye becoming visible to the observer's brain, made hypersensitive, by long telescopic scrutiny of Mars.

OVER THE FENCE

Neighbor Says Something.

The front yard fence is a famous council place on pleasant days. Maybe to chat with some one along the street, or for friendly gossip with next door neighbor. Sometimes it is only small talk but other times neighbor has something really good to offer. An old resident of Baird, Texas, got some mighty good advice this way once. "Drinking coffee had left me nearly dead with dyspepsia, kidney disease and bowel trouble with constant pains in my stomach and back and side and so weak I could scarcely walk," he says.

"One day I was chatting with one of my neighbors about my trouble, and told her I believed coffee hurt me. Neighbor said she knew lots of people to whom coffee was a poison, and she pleaded with me to quit it and give Postum a trial. I did not take her advice right away, but tried a change of climate, but it did not do me any good, and then I dropped coffee and took up Postum.

"My improvement began immediately and I got better every day I used Postum.

"My bowels became regular and in two weeks all my pains were gone; now I am well and strong and can eat anything I want to without distress. All of this is due to my having quit coffee and used Postum regularly.

"My son, who was troubled with indigestion, thought that if Postum helped me so it might help him. It did, too, and he is now well and strong again. We like the Postum as well as we ever liked the coffee and use it altogether in my family in place of coffee, and all keep well." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

THE CHINA TRADE

Angus Macdonald of Hong Kong Talks of It Interestingly.

He Is In Duluth Visiting His Brother, Edward Macdonald.

Angus Macdonald, chief engineer of the China Transportation company, which carries on a coasting trade along the shores of China and between Hong Kong and Manila, is in the city, a guest of his brother, Edward Macdonald, of 519 Eighth avenue east.

Mr. Macdonald is on his way to the shipbuilding yards on the Clyde river, in Scotland, where his company has under construction six new vessels to cost over $150,000 each, which are to be put into the coasting trade.

Mr. Macdonald, while still a comparatively young man, has been in the service of his company for fifteen years, and all that time has been in the China coast trade. His experience makes him thoroughly familiar with the existing conditions, and he is able to draw some interesting comparisons between the commerce as it is there today and as it was several years ago.

"Some idea of the growth of the commerce on the coast of China can be gained from the fact that where my company fifteen years ago had three or four small vessels engaged in the trade, it now has sixty steamers operating in that part of the world. We have about a dozen steamers that are trading between Hong Kong and the Philippine Islands.

"As to the principal cargoes which we carry from China to the Philippines, you will probably think them peculiar when I tell you they are American beer and flour and rice. You can actually buy American flour as cheap on the coast of China as you can buy it here at home, or even cheaper.

"We built as many as eleven steamers in one year to meet the demands of our growing commerce and the six boats which I am now on my way to Scotland to see about will be an addition to the fleet. Not all the steamers are large ones, for what we figure on most in the coast trade are light draught steamers that will carry large loads. The harbors are not all suited for deep draught vessels.

"The Chinamen that you find in Hong Kong are very much different than those you see in this country. You may search the world over, but you cannot find the merchant that can begin to compete with the Chinese business men as you find them there. They are shrewd and have accumulated large fortunes on small profits, which they invest in real estate, keeping over and over. Some of them are interested in coasting transportation lines of their own.

"Trouble is not all over in the southern part of the Philippines. Your country will have trouble there for years to come, and the future of the Philippines depends on the Chinamen they transport there to do the work. The antive Filipino will never be educated up to the working point, in fact he don't have to work. All he needs to possess to keep him alive is a banana and a mango tree and he will be a contented man. The Filipino cares for no other diversion than a cock fight and he is keen for self-government. The Filipinos are not fitted for self-government, in fact they will always need a protectorate over them such as Spain was or the United States now is, but no matter what the government over them is they will continue to hate it just the same, simply because it is over them. The Filipino is treacherous and will not fight openly, as recent murders of innocent school teachers a few miles out of the Philippine towns will demonstrate.

"The American merchant marine in the China coast trade is surprisingly small. A few years ago you would frequently see trading vessels there flying the American flag, but there are not so many of recent years.

"I like Duluth and I only wish I could stay longer than the ten days allotted me for a visit."

When Manila was occupied by the American troops Mr. Macdonald was at Cavite, where he says he ate horsemeat twenty-four hours after the occupation. The ships of his company bearing supplies to the American troops were the only trading vessels allowed in the harbors at the time of Dewey's victory. The same line of boats transported the British and American troops from Tien Tsin after the allied troops occupied it during the China trouble. Mr. Macdonald brought back with him a handsome medal and a diploma which was presented by the emperor of Japan to another brother who died a few months ago and who served aboard one of the mail boats during the war between China and Japan.

Mr. Macdonnld believes there are some parts of China that never will become civilized, or, as he puts it, "modernized."

Mr. Macdonald is an old friend and townsman of Thomas Clark, deputy register of deeds, both having been born in the town of Stornoway, Scotland.

WONDERFUL PICTURES.

A Frenchman is at work in a studio near Broadway and Twenty-ninth street on some marvelous pictures, says the New York Press. His shop is next to the roof of a private house, one of the old brown stone fronts. In a small room you may witness dissolving views and magic visions appearing in their places. The room is darkened after you have looked with admiration upon a young maiden lying drowsily in a hammock. She is completely and most modestly and becomingly clothed. An electric machine is set in operation in a closet. Presently the clothes of the girl fade away and you are amazed and shocked by the confrontation of a female form divine as innocent of drapery as Mother Eve herself. The machine, continuing to revolve, the girl is clothed again before your eyes.

Another picture is a ball in a swell palace in the Highlands of Fifth avenue, the women in matchless gowns, the men in evening dress. The dance is at its height, and quite respectable. The room is darkened and the machine turned on. As you gaze an astounding transformation takes place. The women turn into nymphs and the men into satyrs. The dance is a mad revel, such as Billy McGlory never directed in his palmiest Hegira.

During the following year he wrote her occasionally, telling her of the progress of the work. It was two years before he returned East, and after some ter street days. When the lights are on again there is the respectable Fifth avenue ball once more in all its "gulleleseness."

MADAME BRUIN GOT SPIKED

Old Lady Bear Was Tangled Up With Hedgehogs.

"I cal'late thet this 'ere spring'll go down in th' his'ry 'f Queechee Valley es a record-buster fer oncommon doin's," declared Mose Winslow yesterday as he sat on the porch of the general store sunning himself contentedly after his spring half cut, writes the Pittsfield, Vt., correspondent of the New York World.

"Nothin' serious happened t' ye over Killington way?" queried Nathaniel Dow, who knew Mose had recently returned from marking out a mountain timber lot. "They do say thet b'ars is wunsliu' 'round over b' th' peak thicker'n hedgehawgs."

"Waal," replied Mose, deliberately, refilling his pipe. "I dunno's they be es thick es hawgs, but they be tol'rably thick. Ye might say thet they be durned thick."

The group narrowed and the listeners became attentive.

"I've allus allowed thet ye've got no business to go trapsin' over h' Killington 'thout a gun," he went on. "ain' 'f course thet's jest th' thing I went an' did when I went over t' mark out thet piece 'f timber 'long with Zeke Pettingill.

"I was tellin' Zeke 'bout it jest t' git him narved up, when he grabbed me by th' arm an' p'inted over by a mass 'f rocks where we bed et our lunch an' throwed out some ham bones an' bread crusts. There was a black animile 'bout 'es big 'es Nat's ole haound dawg comin' out 'f th' bushes an' noshin' toward the bones. Zeke thought et fust thet it was a cub b'ar, an 'he was gittin' ready t' git out 'f th' way 'f th' ole lady, when he seen it was a hedgehawg.

"Hawgs innkers arter stuff with salt in it suthin' terrible, an' I reckoned thi rest 'f th' critter's family 'id be showin' up arter a spell, so we sot down t' watch. They come along at fust, 'f course, all their neighbors with 'em. They crawled out 'f holes in th' rocks an' down trees an' come out 'f th' bushes until the must hev been nigh on t' thirty 'f 'em. Never seen s' many before not t' once. They was all ages and kinds, an' they begun t' fight fer th' bones 'es soon 'es they showed up, hristlin' an' snarlin' an' grunt-in' fit t' kill.

"I noticed they was clust t' a bee tree Zese hed marked so's t' git th' honey later, but I didn't think much 'f thet until I heard the twigs a-snappin' behind us an' looked 'round jest in time t' observe an ole she b'ar an' three cubs makin' by us fer th' scrap.

"I cal'late it didn't take Zeke an' me a turrible spell 't time t' shin up a spruce thet was clus handy by. I ain't sayin' but we was scart, fer we seen th' b'ar was pintin' fer th' bee tree, but we wan't jest easy in our minds. Ye see, b'ars is onsartin critters, pa'tic'ly when they hev their families fer an airin', an we wa'n't takin' no chances. Th' critter didn't pay much attention t' us, only raisin' her head an' sniffin', an' she didn't stop t' take notice 'f th' hawgs. She just kept right on t' th' tree 'es though she hed been there a dozen times b'fore, an' climb up t' th' hole where th' bees go in. 'We sorter calkilated thet we was intrudin' on th' party an' was meditatin' on gittin' out sorter quiet like, when one 'f them pesky cubs went up an' smelled 'f th' biggest hawg in th' hull mess. Th' hawg was payin' s' much attention t' gnawin' th' bone thet he didn't see th' cub until he was right on t' him. Then he histed up his quills an' they went later th' youngster's nozzle. I reckon thet cub was the most su'prised animile on th' hull mountain, fer th' way he hollered was a caution. Zeke snickered, but I grin him a kick in th' ribs jest as th' cub jumped back'ards an' butted up ag'inst a black an' white hawg thet was tryin' t' swaller a ham bone so 's t' git it where his brethren an' sisters wouldn't hanker fer it. 'F course, he got spiked all over, an' thet made him holler wus.

"Th' next minute th' was th' all-firdest growlin' an' snarlin' up thet bee tree ye ever heard. It come out 'f th'innards 'f th' ole she-b'ar, an' Zeke an' me lit out fer th' top 'f th' spruce. Afore we hed got up th' ole b'ar hed jerked her paw out 'f th' bee hole an' begun t' come down th' tree. Zeke was pooty white an' I ain't sayin' thet I was 'f an' uncommon healthy color myself.

"I wa'n't movin 'so't ye co'ld notice it, but I wa'n't steady 'nough t' play a game 'f jack-straws. I kept my eye on th' b'ar. She hed got down b' this time an' was a battin' her paw on' th' leaves t' git th' honey off an 'lickin' her chops t' git down what she hed in her mouth. Th' hair on her back hed riz up like a mad terrier an' I co'ld see she was gittin' ready t' do some lively things t' them hawgs.

"Now, ye can't git a hedgehawg t' fight onless he's hurt, but 'f ye git one 'f 'em t' bleedin' he'll bite like blazes, an' it ain't no joke t' git th' teeth 'f one 'f th' varmints in t' ye. I reckoned th' b'ar was riled an' there'd be trouble, an' there was.

"She come up t' th' big feller fust an' gin him one crack thet knocked him twenty foot an' put him out 'f business. But his pesky quills went in t' her paw clean up t' th' middle, an' she let out a yell thet ye co'ld hear for half a mile. Th' cub started t' foller her arter th' second hawg but she knowed th' critters an' knocked th' cubs off so thet they wo'ldn't git hurt. Then she started in fer fair.

"I've seen some tol'rably lively fights but I never seen nuthin' like what followed. Thet ole b'ar jit right in Cooling their parched pipes with pink lemonade and petrified peanuts, Crookston patriots went home last evening trembling on the brink of nervous prostration.

Dizzy luck enabled Lyenn's bunch of red and white pennant chasing aspirants to take a game for which they had no license, and to make things still worse Duluth had three men on bases in the ninth with no person out, but failed to score. A sacrifice meant a tie score and a lifesized sizzle a winning, but there was nothing doing.

Shaw fairly pitched the game of his life, allowing but two meagre hits and a home run scattered through nine innings. With proper support he would have had a one-run game to his credit.

Kennally got into the game strong with a home run and a single and Freeman, the new outfielder, celebrated his first appearance in the Cardinal uniform playing a nice clean fielding game and having two safe hits. The score:

When not play Duluth the Bugville aggregation seems unable to put up even a decent grade of corner-lot ball. Yesterday Grand Forks did not have the slightest trouble in winning with ten runs to spare.

Copper country papers say that the Duluth management is after Brand, the Houghton second baseman, and Mutter the Hancock catcher, but this happens to be news to officers of the local team.

Winnipeg and Fargo had a day off yesterday, the Champions taking a day's rest at home preparatory to the series with Duluth, and the Fargo team traveling between Winnipeg and Fargo in order to open up a series with Superior today.

There is a bit of gossip going around the circuit to the effect that Tim Keefe may again break into the Northern league as manager of the Fargo bunch of orphans.

Cameron asked for his release from Grand Forks and will play second base for Fargo.

Jack Page who will be remembered as a member of Mansell's old Independent team has signed with Grand Forks and will play in the outfield.

Randall had four hits on Tuesday, two of them being doubles.

THE STAGE

"Fra Diavolo" opens tonight at the Lyceum theater and will be the bill of the Northwestern Opera company for the rest of the week. Auber's romantic opera will be given a revival worthy of it and Stanley Felch and Dan Young will be given an opportunity to exploit several kinds of comedy, of which they are very capable.

The chorus work is frequent and the numbers beautiful. The staging of the piece has been the subject of much care on the part of the management and the costuming is new and bright.

The company will offer "Fra Diavolo" the rest of the week with a Saturday matinee.

The appearance of Fulton!, better known to Duluthians as Mrs. Matie Bown, on the program of the concert to be given Sunday afternoon at the Lyceum, by artists who will be in the Alfred Davies company the coming season, is of much interest. It is a number of years since Mrs. Bowen has been heard here, in fact since she left Duluth ten years ago to take up the study of music, she has been heard but few times and there is naturally much interest in her appearance now. She has met with much success and her ability has been handsomely recognized.

THE WILBURS GO ELSEWHERE

Close Their Engagement at the Metropolitan—Go to Fargo.

The Wilbur Opera company decided last evening to shake the dust of Duluth from its feet and journey to fields that it is hoped will be more remunerative. Its business at the Metropolitan has not been up to what it had hoped would be given by Duluth. Manager Fullwood believed that the former popularity of the Wilbur company in Duluth would mean large business on this engagement, but he now concludes that the public is fickle and poularity fleeting. He will take the company to Fargo and will play the Walker circuit of houses with which he has good prospects.

HANNA ON LABOR.

Situation Is Much Better Than People Suppose.

Cleveland, June 25.—The attention of Senator Hanna has been called to the fact that strikes throughout the country during the last few weeks seemed to be more numerous than ever before.

"This may be true," said he, "but the strike situation is not nearly as bad as it has been in the past, despite the apparently bad showing that has been made lately. I am firmly convinced that it is constantly improving. There are no big strikes today. None that might be termed really dangerous. The situation is not bad and much is being effectively done to better it.

"Just now the principal effort of the Civic federation is in the direction of local organization. We have local organization in New York, Chicago and St. Louis, and will soon have an organization in Cleveland. An example of what may be accomplished may be seen in the recent waiters' strike in Chicago. I point to the effectiveness of the Civic federation work there. It was the spirit of the thing more than anything else. In Chicago they have an organization representing the business men, another representing employes. The two organizations, independent of each other, work through the Civic federation, and were able to get together before any real harm was done.

"Again, there never can be another situation in Chicago such as that which resulted in the teamsters' strike. Employers cannot arbitrarily refuse a reasonable demand; workmen cannot involve a whole city's industry in idleness without a just and specific cause. Labor and capital are now organized to work in harmony and fairness for mutual benefit. Why, Mr. Young, who was at the head of the teamsters' strike, is now a member of the Civic federation."

HARD ON NEWSIES.

New Law Will Endanger Their Business Career.

New York, June 25.—Dr. William H. Maxwell, city superintendent of public schools, has issued circulars to heads of public and non-public schools requesting them to prepare lists of all boys in the schools between the ages of 10 and 14 years who expect to sell papers when school opens Sept. 1 next, when the new child labor law goes into effect. The district superintendent of schools, under the new law, will have charge of the issuing of permits and badges, without which no boy or girl under 14 may sell newspapers. The permit will be good for one year. The badge must be worn conspicuously and cannot be transferred. No child under 14 may sell papers after 10 p. m. The children may be committed to an institution for violating these laws. Boys under 10 will not be permitted to sell papers during school hours.

Not until Aug. 31 will a newsboy know whether his application is granted. The offices of the district superintendents will then be open and the boys, accompanied by parents, guardians or friends, must present themselves to obtain badges.

Under the new law no girl under 16 can sell newspapers in the streets.

A POPULAR SPORT

Fishermen More Numerous Than Ever the Present Summer.

Streams All Around Duluth Patronized By Followers of Walton.

"Fishermen are more numerous and more enthusiastic this year than during any season within my remembrance," said a well-known local follower of Isaac Walton. Every Sunday and every holiday you can see scores of anglers leaving on trains in all directions to spend the day in searching the cool depths for the 'beauties,' and the St. Louis river, from here up to Fond du Lac, is dotted with small-boats containing eager anglers for pike and pickerel.

"This renewed interest in the noble sport is a good thing for the people of the city. In no way can spare time be better spent than in roaming the woods and gaining some idea of the beauties of nature. Fishing is the best possible relaxation for the business man or the city resident, whatever be his occupation, and Northern Minnesota has some of the most beautiful spots that can be found anywhere outdoors. Some day the people will begin to realize this fact, and then you will see the lake country to the North and West develop into a great summer resort."

Cass Lake is one of the favorite spots for the angler at present. Pike and pickerel are said to be found in great abundance and a number of Duluthians have made good catches in this vicinity.

The small streams in the vicinity of Scanlon, on the Northern Pacific, are said to be teeming with brook trout. Two Duluthians visited that locality this week and returned with large catches, the result of two or three hours' fishing. Other good catches from this district have been reported.

St. Louis river, from the blast furnace on the bay front, in West Duluth, to Fond du Lac, is a favorite resort for anglers, and numerous catches of pike and pickerel have been reported during the past few weeks. As much as 100 pounds of pike has been taken from the river in a single afternoon by one rod.

Lester Park creek is claimed to be about exhausted, although some brook trout have been secured there this season.

The streams all along the north shore, between the pumping station and Grand Marais, are, as usual, favorite resorts for the trout fishermen, and good luck has been generally met with by those who have visited the streams this year.

Pike Lake and the Cloquet river are also popular resorts again this summer, and as usual the luck met with here is general good.

INCREASE IN WAGES

Granted Express Drivers By Board of Arbitration.

Chicago, June 25.—The wages of the 1000 members of the Railway Express Drivers' and Conductors' union will be increased on an average of 10 per cent under the decision of the Chicago board of arbitration just made public. The union made a demand for a united form of wages by which the highest paid would receive $75 a month. In the agreement, which covers the seven express companies in Chicago, they agree not to discriminate against union men, to grant drivers extra pay for Sunday work, excepting one Sunday in each month. The agreement is for one year and dates from June 15.

WORK FOR THE EXECUTIONER.

Albany, N. Y., June 25.—There are now seventeen murderers awaiting execution in this state. Five are set for the week of July 6. Eleven are assigned for dates extending over several weeks, an done is held upon appeal.

FAST HORSE SOLD.

New York, June 25.—E. E. Smathers is reported to have purchased from George E. Smith, known on the turf as "Pittsburg Phil," the latter's star running horse, Grand Opera. The price is said to have been $11,000.

GOVERNOR VISITS PARK.

Livingston, Mont., June 25.—Governor Durbin of Indiana, accompanied by his wife and daughter and members of his gubernatorial staff, have gone into the National park. The governor expects to tour the Northwest after he has visited the park.

EMPLOYES ARE ARMED.

Portland, Ore., June 25.—Owing to the large number of suburban trolley cars which have been held up by highwaymen recently, the Oregon Water-power & Railway company has armed all of its conductors and motormen with revolvers.

DON'T OVER-LOOK THIS

A Careful Perusal Will Prove Its Value to Every Duluth Reader.

The average man is a doubter, and there is little wonder that this is so. Misrepresentations make people skeptic. Nowadays the public ask for better evidence than the testimony of strangers. Here is proof which should convince every Duluth reader.

Mr. J. Vaughn, of 532 First street west, says: "I had constant dull aching pains through my loins and a catarrhal condition of the bladder. The kidney secretions were irregular, distressing and annoying, the sediment varying from a light color to that of brick dust. Any one position became irksome, and on getting up in the morning I felt tired and depressed. I saw Doan's Kidney Pills highly recommended and procured a box at W. A. Abbetts', of the Duluth Drug Co.'s store and used them. The first few doses relieved me, and I was soon entirely rid of the trouble."

DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

The Oldest Residence In Hancock Destroyed By Fire.

Hancock—The residence of Mrs. James Hingston at Hancock has been destroyed by fire. The building was uninsured. The house, it is believed, was the oldest residence in the city. It was built forty-five years ago. During the fire the flames communicated to the roof of the building adjoining, but were quenched before much damage was done.

Sault Ste Marie—In excavating for the Carnegie library the workmen discovered the skeletons of soldiers who were buried at that point when the place was used for a military cemetery several years ago. It had been generally supposed that the bodies had all been removed, but four or five have been unearthed. The boxes in which the soldiers were buried have rotted away and all that is left is a few bones. A silver coffin plate indicated that one body was that of a woman, probably the wife of a soldier. The date was 1854. The woman's bones had all crumbled away.

Menominee—The Burns & Hicks Lumber company has sold its complete sawmill plant in this city to A. F. Bartlett & Co., Saginaw. The crew commenced at once tearing it down. The site is still unsold. The mill has a capacity of 150,000 feet of lumber, and can turn out 250,000 shingles every ten hours. It is one of the oldest mills in Menominee. Burns & Hicks will move to Eureka, Cal., where they have a big sawmill for redwood timber next fall.

St. Ignace—G. S. Brownell, of the Ault Woodenware Manufacturing company of Cincinnati, is in the east end of the peninsula looking the ground over with a view to establishing a branch plant that will give employment to 200 men or more. The purchase of a tract of 20,000 acres of hardwood lands is contemplated. The Soo and St. Ignace have been inspected as available sites for the proposed factory.

Ontonagon—Eighty cars of logs are being loaded daily by the Diamond Match company and shipped to its mill at Green Bay, Wis. One night crew is being worked. Before the week is out, however, the daily shipments will have been increased to 100 cars, the electric light plant the company is installing being nearly ready to go into commission, when the loading force will be augmented.

Newberry—The Union Carbide company whose big plant on the water power canal at the Soo is nearing completion, is making an exhaustive test of a large deposit of limestone lying southeast of Newberry in Pentland township. A crew of twenty-five men and a steam drill are being employed. Several carloads of the stone have been shipped east for a thorough test of its quality.

Escanaba—George Young, who discontinued his bakery business at Escanaba several weeks ago and went to Zion City to take charge of Dr. Dowie's baking establishment, is reported to be missing. Young, it appears, lost his position at Zion City, having been discharged when the Dowieites learned he was a member of a secret order.

Bessemer—Dr. Coe, the Ironwood veterinary surgeon who has been missing for several months and who, it is alleged, sold numerous horses, procured from a Wisconsin firm, to which he did not possess clear title, has been located at Seattle, Wash., whither Deputy Sheriff John Bowett has gone to arrest him.

THE LOG BOOK OF COLUMBUS

Said to Be In Possession of Southern Illinois Man.

Carbondale, Ill., June 25.—A remarkable book in script on parchment, claiming to be the log book of Christopher Columbus on his voyage of discovery to America, is in the possession of Frank Reeves, a resident of this county. The book was secured by Reeves from a German family of Cincinnati several years ago, and dealers in old boks pronounce it a most remarkable document if, in fact, it is not the log book of Columbus.

It is a record of the events and of the secret hopes and fears of the great navigator on his first voyage to America. The record begins with the departure of the three vessels from Palos, Spain, Aug. 3, 1492, and contains a complete narrative until the two vessels that returned from the new world were caught in a terrific storm about 200 miles west of the Azores. At this stage of the voyage, when Columbus and his crew had nearly given up all hope of weathering the storm, the last entry in which the statement is made that the secret log was placed in a secure box and cast overboard in the hope that it might reach the shores of Europe. This, however, was never done.

The language and orthography is pronounced by experts as that of 400 years ago. It gives vivid descriptions of the discovery and the disappointments of Columbus when he failed to find either gold or species on the tropical islands which he visited.

The book came from Germany and was been an heirloom for many decades in the family from which it was secured. Its genuineness is believed to be perfect.

HAPPENINGS IN DAKOTAS

State Is Keeping Witnesses In Jail at Jamestown.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Jamestown—Anton Clemenson and Elmer Maygard are in jail here under rather peculiar circumstances. They were asked to furnish bonds for their appearance as witnesses for the state against Charles E. Raney, accused of blindpigging, but were unable to do so, and were taken to jail to keep Chris Lindseth, the complaining witness in the Raney case, company. They swore positively at the preliminary hearing that they purchased beer from Raney, and the object of putting them under bonds was to prevent their being spirited away.

Fargo—The adjournment of the supreme court before the appeal in the case against State Treasurer McMillan could be perfected is fatal to the erection of buildings at the different state institutions this summer. Even if decided in favor of the state the delay will be too great, as twenty days are required to reassemble the supreme court and ten days more would be necessary for the arguments and the decision. This would make it the latter part of July, and it would be impossible to complete any of the proposed buildings by the time college work is resumed this fall, and many could not be made ready for the heating plant before cold weather. There is much disappointment over the adjournment of the supreme court, as it was understood that body would wait a day or two till the appeal could be prepared. Friends of the different tate institutions are inclined to be sore at State Treasurer McMillan for his absolute refusal to help dispose of the bonds. There is not a place but needs additional buildings, and educational work in the state will be handicapped for a year.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Deadwood—Wesley A. Stuart, of Sturgis, an attorney and something of a specialist on irrigation, has prepared a paper in answer to the statements of F. M. Barnes, of Mitchell, S. D., who declared that South Dakota was not an arid or semiarid state. Mr. Stuart says in part: "Though laudable to be patriotic, 'tis far better in the long run to recognize true conditions. Standard American lexicons define the term arid as 'dry, wanting in moisture.' Is there no land in South Dakota dry or wanting in moisture?

Continuing, Mr. Stuart says there are more than 2,000,000 acres of rich land between the Black Hills and Pierre wanting in moisture, upon which a furrow has never been turned, and where the dry, virgin surface will remain unbroken to the end of time unless irtificially watered. This area is practically riverless and the rainfall inadequate for tillage. He says similar areas have been reclaimed. In Southern Texas six years ago vast bodies of land were acquired at 50 cents an acre. Artesian wells were sunk, and much of that land is today netting its owners more than $50 an acre annually. Last year more than 200,000 acres of what was dry Texas land, by means of irrigation with artesian wells and pumping plants, yielded 2,500,000 bags of rice, increasing the revenue of that state $8,000,000.

Sioux Falls—The authorities of this county have released from custody John Swenson, who was arrested at Yankton, and brought to this city last Saturday, on the charge of having been implicated in the robbery of the Mullen hardware store in this city about ten days ago. The authoritiesse were unable to procure sufficient evidence to hold him.

Vermillion—Ex-Senator Carl Gunderson is expecting an appointment as agent for the Cheyenne Indians. He is believed to have the backing of Senator A. B. Kittredge, and if so, the appointment seems as good as made. If the plum is landed it will be especially fortunate for Mr. Gunderson, who has a large ranch in Potter county, not far from the agency. He has already arranged to have his large farm near Vermillion taken care of.

Clark—The old settlers of Clark county will hold their annual picnic at McClelland's grove on Saturday. An interesting program will be presented.

On Saturday morning at the Catholic church, will take place the wedding of Miss Abigail Travers, of this city, and James Lalley, of Minneapolis.

GETS MORE MONEY

Rev. J. M. Dahl Makes United Church Gift of $2000.

Convention Adjourns After Cleaning Up Very Much Work.

The United Norwegian Lutheran church closed its fourteenth annual meeting a little after 12 o'clock today, after having waded through a pile of work during the forenoon.

Rev. J. M. Dahl, of Ratna, Iowa, announced that he had $2000 that he was anxious to get rid of. Many years ago Rev. Dahl and the late Rev. Homme, Wittenberg, Wis., transferred an Indian mission to the Wonneqinn synod, each of the two gentlemen receiving $1000. The $1000 allotted to Rev. Dahl has grown to $2000 under his able management. He would gladly turn the money into the fund of the Madagascar mission, but in order to do this his intention must be advertised in the Norwegian papers for about one year. If no one that contributed to the fund objects to the plan within a certain period, the money may be given to the United church. The meeting resolved to accept the offer made by Rev. Dahl, and the United church is very apt to receive $2000 in spot cash from that source next year.

The chairman of the board of trustees of the United church, Rev. T. O. Erdahl, and Rev. A. L. Dahl were instructed to take the necessary steps towards having Homme's home for aged people and orphans' home transferred to the United church.

Professor Kildahl, Professor Bockman and Vice President Ellestad were elected to answer the pamphlet published against Professor F. A. Schmidt by the church council of the Norwegian synod.

An appropriation of $500 was made for a heating plant for the ladies' hall at St. Olaf college.

Rev. S. Gunderson, of Mount Horeb, Wis., and Rev. M. H. Hegge, of Brooklyn, N. Y., were elected to take steps towards giving the United Church control of the deaconess home in Chicago.

M. Gunderson, manager of the orphans' home at Beloit, Iowa, had charge of the morning devotionals.

Prof. S. G. Iland, D. D., was not yet ready to withdraw his resignation, and the theological faculty and the board of school directors were authorized to act in the matter whether Prof. Iland remains as professor of theology or not.

Committee to draft rules for the work of the district visitors: Formand Dahl, Rev. P. G. Osthy and Rev. O. Gulbrandson.

The following were elected as instructors at St. Olaf college, the salary being added in each case: A. A. Reece, $500; Dr. G. O. Berg $650; Miss Frida Bu $500; Miss Agnes Melby, $500. The college will also furnish room and board free of charge in the above cases. Profs. Grose and Lee were re-elected on the old terms. Prof. Paul Schmidt, Ph. D., was also elected, his salary to be $800.

Vice President Ellestad was re-elected to continue the work of raising funds for the proposed Hoyme Memorial chapel at St. Olaf college.

Formand Dahl made a touching little address at the close of the meeting, thanking everybody that had contributed towards making the meeting such a decided success. He closed by pronouncing the benediction. After the closing ceremonies Rev. Thvedt tendered the thanks of the city congregations to the United church for holding its annual meeting in this city.

The meeting passed the following resolution of thanks:

"We, the members of the United Norwegian Lutheran church of America, in convention assembled, express our appreciation of the work done by the Commercial club, the board of education and the United church congregations of this city to make our convention a success, and do hereby tender our most sincere thanks to these organizations and the citizens of Duluth in general, for all courtesies extended and all efforts made to facilitate our work. Especially do we appreciate the service rendered by the Commercial club in granting us free use of the High School Assembly hall. We desire also to acknowledge our indebtedness to the Western Passencer association for giving our lay delegation reduced transportation rates, and to the public press for the interest shown in our work."

DOES MUCH BUSINESS.

United Church Convention Puts In Busy Afternoon.

The annual meeting of the United Church cleared away veritable mountains of business yesterday afternoon. Indeed the progress was so gratifying that Rev. J. Ostedal, of Chicago, suggested that an attempt be made to finish the business at the night session. This idea was scouted by the others, however, and no extra pressure was brought to bear on the members.

The following were elected to serve as a committee on missions during the coming year: Formand Dahl; Rev. C. R. Rasmussen, Minneapolis; Rev. P. Dreye, Harmony, Minn.; Rev. L. Lund, Leroy, Wis.; Rev. G. A. Larsen, Northfield, Minn.; Adolf Larson, Chicago; Rev. N. B. Thvedt, of Duluth; Rev. M. Saterli, St. Paul; Rev. O. T. Nelson, Buxton, N. D.

Rev. Saterli resigned as a member of the board of school directors, and Rev. H. Voldal, of Dane county, Wis., was elected in his place.

Some of the most important resolutions passed are briefly indicated below:

The missionaries from Madagascar shall be enabled to vote at the annual meetings of the United Church.

The plan of instruction in force at St. Olaf college shall be used as a basis for a common plan for the academies owned or controlled by the United Church.

The churches that did not contribute to the running expenses of the association during the past year were urged to fulfill their duties in future.

Men and women of means were requested to make bequests to the United Church for the advancement of the cause of the kingdom of God.

Individual congregations that are keeping their contributions to the endowment fund of their divinity school are requested to send such moneys to the treasurer of the United Church because experience has demonstrated that he can get a larger per cent of interest and more out of the funds handled by himself than out of those handled by the congregations.

Lutheraneren, the official paper of the church, shall be improved in certain particulars.

A committee elected at a former meeting was instructed to collect material for an English Lutheran hymn book for use among Scandinavian Lutherans.

A committee of one shall be elected to continue the work of raising funds for the erection of the proposed "Hoyme Memorial Chapel" at St. Olaf's College, Northfield.

A vote of thanks was extended to Consul Halle Steensland, of Madison, Wis., for his "long, faithful and efficient service as chairman of the board of trustees of the United Church."

Schools not owned or controlled by the United Church shall under no circumstances be advertised in Lutheraneren because such ads would indirectly injure the schools of the association.

It was understood that Rev. C. O. Aubol would not serve as editor of Lutheraneren unless his position was made a permanent one at this meeting, and the proper committee proposed that he should no longer be elected every year but that he should serve during good behavior. The proposed arrangement was fought with considerable animation by many clergymen, but Rev. Aubol was made permanent editor by something like a three-fifths vote. At the same time his salary was fixed at $1500, and he will be permitted to spend $200 for original articles written by others.

C. A. Strand, of Lake Park, Minn., led in prayer at the opening of the afternoon session.

Most of the evening session was spent in making appropriations for the schools and for other necessary expenses. Some time was devoted to the discussion of the demands of St. Olaf's college. A rising vote showed that 150 members were in favor of $12,000 and 164 in favor of $10,000, the latter sum being appropriated.

The appropriations were as follows:

Improvements of the seminary grounds	$ 500
Fuel	1,200
Light	700
Water tax	125
Salary of janitor	650
Telephone	65
Insurance	250

SUBMARINE WAR BOATS.

Construction Board Will Submit Its Own Plans.

Washington, June 25.—The naval board on construction has made a report to the secretary of the navy concerning designs for submarine and subsurface torpedo boats. The board reported adversely on some of the designs but favored giving a trial to the "Lake Submarine" boat and this recommendation will probably be approved by the secretary.

Congress at its last session authorized the expenditure of not more than $500,000 for submarine boats and Secretary Moody is considering whether he should spend any of this money until the submarines recently built have been tested thoroughly under all conditions.

It is likely that the board on construction will design a submarine boat of its own and ask Secretary Moody to allot part of the $500,000 for building it.

CHICAGO AUTO CLUB

Starts Away on a Thousand Mile Tour.

Chicago, June 25.—Led by Dr. Frank H. Davis and followed by a gasoline wagon and a corps of skilled machinists in a portable repair shop, seventy-five members of the Auto club left today on a 1000-mile tour.

Twenty cars will make the trip to Mammoth Cave, in Kentucky, but on the first day out of Chicago, the party will consist of nearly 200 persons and fifty cars. At Cedar Lake, Ind., where the first night is to be passed, a reception has been arranged. Early in the morning twenty of the cars will move south, while the others will return to Chicago. The tour is scheduled to last fifteen days.

TO SETTLE STRIKE

The Joint Board of Conciliation Meets at Wilkesbarre.

Miners' Representatives Cordially Welcomed By Coal Operators.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., June 25.—The board of conciliation, which at the suggestion of the anthracite strike commission was created for the purpose of adjusting any grievances which may arise between operators and their employes in the hard coal regions and which is composed of three representatives from each side, met here today for organization. The personnel of the board is as follows:

W. L. Connell, individual operator, of Scranton; R. C. Luther, of Pottsville, general superintendent of the Reading colliery; S. D. Warriner, of Wilkesbarre, general superintendent of the Lehigh Valley company's mines; R. D. Nichols, president of district No. 1, U. M. W. of A.; William Renttrey, president of district No. 10, and John Fahey, president of district No. 9. The three presidents were cordially welcomed by the operators.

After effecting a temporary organization the board adjourned until this afternoon. The district presidents left the meeting at 11:30, but refused to be interviewed as to what took place, beyond the fact that the board had organized. The representatives of the operators were still behind closed doors at noon.

GREAT SYSTEM OF SEWERAGE

Mayor of New Orleans Turns First Spade of Earth.

New Orleans, June 25.—With formal ceremony today, in the presence of a large assemblage of citizens, Mayor Capdeville turned the first spade of earth in the work of constructing the vast system of sewerage, water and drainage, which is to place New Orleans abreast of the best sanitated city of the world, and which is to cost $18,000,000. The great undertaking is to be finally completed within the next five years. The tax to provide the money for this purpose was voted in 1899. The movement, which culminated in the final breaking of ground today, followed the epidemic of fever in 1898. Though the disease was mild and the mortality comparatively insignificant, immense business losses were suffered through the institution of prohibitive quarantines, and a great public demand was aroused for radical sanitary reforms. The property holders promptly voted the required tax, necessary legislative action was secured, and constitutional authority for issue of bonds. Unavoidable delays, however, postponed the actual commencement of work until today.

The magnitude of the undertaking may be understood when it is said that there is to be built now, and at the same time, such systems of sewerage and water supply as only have been developed in other cities of similar size by gradual growth, extending usually through several generations, and as will ultimately accommodate more than double the population.

STATUE OF HOOKER

Unveiled at Boston With Fitting Ceremonies.

Boston, June 25.—The equestrian statue of Gen. Joseph Hooker, erected upon the grounds of the state house here, was dedicated today. Preceding the unveiling ceremonies a great parade was held. The state and city departments suspended business, many firms closed their stores, and the day was a general holiday.

The unveiling ceremonies were very brief. Governor Bates accepted the custody of the statue for the commonwealth. The formal dedicatory exercises will be held this evening.

DOUGLAS AT WASHINGTON.

Washington, June 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—W. Bruce Douglas, attorney general of Minnesota, is in Washington. Attorney General Douglas is here for the purpose of conferring with Secretary Hitchcock relative to the tract of swamp land claimed by the state of Minnesota in St. Louis county, near Virginia, which West Superior men tried to scrip.

AT WEST DULUTH

Eighty of the little merchants who distribute the evening edition of The Herald in West Duluth will enjoy an outing together with the Duluth boys, Monday, July 6.

Manager H. D. Clow of the steamer Newsboy has donated the use of his boat for the day and will carry the boys to Fond du Lac in the morning, returning in the afternoon in time to allow the boys to attend to the distribution of the papers.

The West Duluth boys will meet at the corner of Spencer's drug store at 7:20 a. m., and will all take the same car to Duluth, in charge of Donald Holmes. They will meet the Duluth and West End boys in the circulating room of The Herald, where they will receive orders and tickets from Circulation Manager A. C. Pearson, and will march to the dock at the foot of Fifth avenue west.

The boat will leave at 8 o'clock, instead of at 9 a. m., which is the scheduled time, and returning will thrive at 3:45 p. m., instead of 6 o'clock, as is usual.

The boys will be in charge of A. C. Pearson while on the trip, and a program of sports has been arranged for.

The picnics given by The Herald to the little merchants in former years have always been one of the events of the summer to the boys, and this year promises to be no exception to the rule.

CELEBRATE THE FOURTH.

Merchants Anxious to Heev the Day Observed.

It has been definitely decided that West Duluth will again have the big end of the Fourth of July celebration in the city. The merchants are desirous that some demonstration should be made on the Fourth. In order to prevent the people from leaving the city for the day, and as no active steps have yet been taken by the citizens of Duluth, the matter will be brought before the meeting of the West Duluth Commercial club tomorrow night.

Those who are active in the agitation say that the program for the day will be along the same lines as last year, only on a somewhat grander scale. Last year the unfavorable weather prevented the showing that the outlay would warrant, but should the day prove to be fine this year West Duluth is promised a Fourth of July to be remembered.

In the morning the usual parade will be held, in which all of the merchants of the town will participate, and a prize will be given for the best decorated wagon.

A baseball game and a program of sports is scheduled for the afternoon, and a brilliant display of fireworks will be shown in the evening.

The holiday will be generally observed in West Duluth, the merchants and business men having for the most part agreed to keep their places of business closed throughout the day.

A FINE WELCOME.

Junior Woodmen Team Given an Entertainment.

The victorious junior team, from the West Duluth lodge of Woodmen, which won honors at national encampment in Indianapolis recently, was given a royal welcome home by the members of the West Duluth lodge last evening.

The regular business was done away with in honor of the occasion and music, dancing and good cheer took its place. Refreshments were also forthcoming and the evening was spent in a delightful social time. The hall was well filled with the Woodmen and their friends.

The committee in charge of the arrangements for the welcome to the returning team consisted of Messrs. Govett, Meidahl, Getchell, Filiatrault and Armstrong.

Capt. Salter and the members of the team were all present and carried their honors very modestly.

MINISTERS' ABSENCE

From Belgrade Depends Mainly on King Peter's Course.

Their Departure a Protest Against the Royal Assassinations.

Paris, June 25.—The French minister to Servia has reported the circumstances attending the departure of the ministers from Belgrade, as follows:

All the ministers received similar instructions to act together. Accordingly an understanding was reached that they should depart, this step being regarded as the most emphatic method of impressing the powers against the assassinations of King Alexander and Queen Draga. The Russian and Austrian representatives apparently shared in the principle of the protest, but they did not withdraw because Russia and Austria were apprehensive that a united withdrawal of the entire diplomatic representation at Belgrade would precipitate another revolution.

The officials here say that the entente of the ministers to Servia now becomes an entente of the powers in expressing a protest. The duration of absence from Belgrade of the ministers is indefinite and depends mainly on King Peter's course in the selection of his ministers and the terms of Servia's notification to the powers of the inauguration of the new regime.

Belgrade, June 25.—Amidst great enthusiasm, King Peter this morning took the oath before the skupshtina. Subsequently he held a review of the troops.

The oath taken by the king was in the following terms:

"I, Peter Karageorgevitch, on ascending the throne of the kingdom of Servia, and assuming the royal prerogative, swear by the Almighty God and by that is holiest and dearest to me upon this earth, that I will protect the independence of Servia and the unity of the government; that I will maintain inviolate the constitution of the country; that I will govern in conformity with the constitution and the laws, and that, in all undertakings and dealings, I will keep the welfare of my people before my eyes. Taking this my oath, solemnly before God and the people, I call as witness, the Lord God, to whom I shall give account at the judgment seat. So help me, God. Amen."

Previous to the king taking the oath there was a joint sitting of the senate and skupshtina, attended by a religious service, at which the metropolitan officiated.

The president of the senate opened the joint session with the announcement that the king would take the oath to maintain the constitution. King Peter then appeared wearing his orders and other decorations and accompanied by the cabinet ministers.

The metropolitan uttered a brief prayer and then read the oath, which the king repeated in a firm voice. Loud cries of "Long live King Peter!" punctuated the king's repetition of the oath.

After the metropolitan had bestowed the benediction, all present joined in singing the national anthem.

The king took leave of the assembly with the words, "God be with us, brother."

POOR ASPHALT PAVING.

The property-owners on East Superior street and the city officials are having an experience with asphalt paving that may cause them to decline entering into further contracts for that style of pavement. Yet their experience does not differ much from that of other cities which have come in contact with the asphalt trust and its methods.

Only a few weeks ago it was discovered that the cement foundation did not come up to the standard prescribed in the contract, and a whole block of cement, condemned by the city engineer, was taken up. Now it has been discovered that part at least of the pavement that has been laid will have to be taken up because it does not stand the test, being soft and unable to bear the weight of even one horse. It was asserted by the asphalt contractors that the asphalt paving could be used twenty-four hours after being put down. A horse walked over one block of the pavement that had been down for two weeks—certainly a sufficient time in which to harden—and every step by the animal left deep foot-prints in the pavement. The result is that a block or more of the pavement must be removed.

Property-owners on other sections of Superior street who have been inclined to look with favor on asphalt paving, will hardly be disposed now to ask that such a pavement be laid in front of their property.

SOME SOCIAL SINS.

In a recent sermon, Rev. Dr. Hillis, pastor of Plymouth church, Brooklyn, spoke with unusual plainness regarding the sins of the higher classes of society. "Today we are raising pampered sons and daughters," said Dr. Hillis, "surrounding them with every luxury and idle satisfaction, of desire, and they are rotten before they are ripe. I repeat it, they are rotten before they are ripe, and the boys in many cases are sinful before they are bearded. I cannot pick up a paper but that I see the Four Hundred of this city engaged in divorce suits. Even the oldest families of Boston are in the divorce courts, and last week I read of three old families of Philadelphia at one time engaged in divorce litigation. I tremble for my country when all the work the preacher does at one end in marrying the judge undoes at the other end in the divorce court. I want to say that we all go to the devil on $50,000 a year—at least a great many men I know are going to the devil on that sum—and very few are escaping it. By over-indulgence decay comes early. I would as soon seen a boy sunk in the acid of a tanning vat as pampered to death in milk and honeysuckle."

But while Dr. Hillis is thus forcibly pointing out the sins of the very rich, there are other classes of society that are equally deserving of censure, and the Emporia, Kan., Gazette has been moved to direct attention to them. "The mothers of this town," says the Gazette, "have had a lesson—but it doesn't seem to have done them any good. There are just as many girls gadding around town after school now getting their mail from private boxes in the postoffice as there were ten days ago. Two years ago the Gazette went after the mothers of Emporia for neglecting their daughters and the result was that half a dozen private mail boxes were discontinued and a lot of little girls that were in the habit of gadding too much were kept in for a time. These girls are now developing into fine young women, but another crop of gadding girls has come on and the Gazette hopes no one's modesty wil be shocked by saying that these little hussies ought to be spanked good and red. They are between 14 and 17 years old and are just so everlastingly boy-struck that they can't sit still. If their mothers knew the type of boys and men—young human pups—these girls are running with their mothers would throw fits. But their mothers know nothing of the situation. They think their little girls are so sweet and pure that nothing can harm them. The truth is that these children are made of the same kind of mud that we are all made of and they are just as liable to temptation as older people and a thousand times less experienced. And their mothers let them gad Commercial street after school and flirt with all kinds of men, and then their mothers wonder how the devil got them and think the girls must 'take after' their father. There are just two things that will keep girls straight at 'that age,' one is plain clothes and the other is home duties. The girls who make fools of themselves in Emporia are invariably overdressed. They wear duds that women of 30 should hesitate about wearing. A little girl with too many and too costly clothes on her back gets self-conscious and vain and loves admiration—and you grown-up women know the next step."

Are these remarks not equally applicable to many girls and mothers in Duluth?

The New York Evening Post urges the immediate reassembling of the joint high commission in order to secure a reciprocity treaty with Canada, saying: "If there is a glimmer of large political sense at Washington, the joint high commission will be promptly convened and directed to draw up a plan for reciprocal lowering of duties."

There is a possibility that if Machen, the former superintendent of the rural free-delivery system, told all he knew, many senators and representatives would not thank him.

"Instead of wasting money on the Panama route," asks the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, "why not build a canal to connect the drouth-stricken district of New England with the Western overflow?"

AWAITING THE PUBLIC DRIFT.

The powers that be seem a little doubtful as to what to do in relation to questions that are pending with Canada. It is still a matter of doubt whether the joint high commission of the two countries will get together again or not. It seems evident that the administration waits the drift of public sentiment in the country. There is no present decision or determination among the members of the president's official family as to whether the commission should or should not meet. The most important matter which was before the joint high commission at its last meeting several years ago was the Alaskan boundary question. The dispute over this is what brought a deadlock, and finally led to the dissolution of the commission, without definite results being accomplished. It has been argued that now that this is out of the way, there is every reason for the commission to go ahead and adjust other differences with the Dominion. But the diplomats on both sides are disposed to wait until there is a decision in the boundary question before taking on any more responsibilities. It is well understood that whichever side gets the award, the country defeated in its contention will look for some means of retaliation. By settling all other differences or disputes, no card would be left them to play. This is not the ostensible reason for the delay and hesitation about assembling the commission, but it is understood to be one of the potent reasons. The question of reciprocity also vexes the administration. There is an inclination to wait the public drift in this connection. The state department is not encouraged to make a further move in the direction of reciprocity until encouraged to do so by the committees of congress.

In short the administration is not certain whether the majority of the people want reciprocity with Canada or not. From the present drift of things, however, it will soon be demonstrated that reciprocity is wanted, and it will become so plain to the leaders that they will either cause such legislation or must make room for others who will.

INTERSTATE CORPORATIONS.

One of the most important features of the new department of commerce and labor, which become fully effective on July 1, will be the regulation of corporations of the interstate class, which will come under the bureau of corporations of which Commissioner Garfield is the head. Mr. Garfield has been working hard to secure necessary information and get things into shape so that this work can be promptly and easily carried on, and has already secured valuable data. An effort will be made not to duplicate information of this kind already in possession of the government. The census bureau has a vast amount of such material collected in the last census, concerning the corporations of the country, which material was made use of by the census bureau in compiling some of its reports. As these reports have been compiled by the census bureau, the names of the corporations have not been made public, but only the salient facts that it was desired to bring out. In the case of the bureau of corporations these reports will be of as great service as if called for directly by that bureau, as to a large extent they cover the ground to be covered in the investigation of the commissioner of corporations. The use of that data, instead of calling for other matter, will prevent giving the corporations concerned the trouble of compiling another similar report. In a few cases people have called to the attention of the bureau of corporations alleged facts concerning abuses of certain corpotations which they believe to be in violation of law. This action has been with a view of having prosecutions begun of the corporations indicated by the people making the charges, and will receive prompt attention.

While the bureau will have a large amount of work in keeping up with the doings in this country of corporations, in order to see that they are not violating law, another important part of its work will be to look out for the interest of those corporations in foreign lands. Already the New York Life Insurance company has brought to the attention of the bureau a case of its own in Uruguay, in which it is alleged that that company has been discriminated against in a legal action without what in this country would be considered due process of law. This matter was referred to the state department in order that the matter might be looked into by a consul in Uruguay. After July 1 the bureau of corporations will be able to refer such matters directly to consuls of the United States abroad, and it is expected the business of the United States consuls will be very much increased.

Much is naturally expected of this new department, and if it proves as effective as it seems to promise, the wisdom of its creation will be demonstrated.

DECREASE OF CONSUMPTION.

If figures count for anything it seems evident that the dread disease, consumption, is decreasing, especially in the large cities of the country. According to Charles H. Johnson in the Review of Reviews there was a considerable decrease in tuberculosis of the lungs in New York in 1902, as compared with 1901, the figures as given, showing but 7571 deaths in 1902, as compared with 8135 in 1901. This is said to be due largely to the watchfulness and activity of the health department of that city.

Families able to care for their own sick were advised as to methods beneficial to consumptives, and as to the protection of those about them. Free treatment at their homes was gicen to patients not able to employ a physicial. Sanitariums and hospitals were provided for those who had no homes or could not be treated at home. Physicians were induced to act together to prevent the spread of the disease. Trained nurses were sent into the tenement districts to inform the people as to the simple curative agencies. Investigation showed that half the tenement-house population of New York was more or less affected by tuberculosis and that thousands became consumptive by reason of their weakened powers of resistance, due to improper nourishment and unsanitary surroundings. To meet these conditions additional accommodations for consumptives in hospitals were provided. Mr. Johnson's conclusions are that by spreading information and by the co-operation of physicians the New York health department has saved thousands of lives, and might save many more. More careful and intelligent living, better food, cleanliness and greater regard for proper sanitary conditions will no doubt gradually reduce the number of consumption's victims from year to year in our great cities.

Anything that can be done to cure or relieve this almost always fatal disease, will be joyfully welcomed. It certainly seems from all reports and from reliable statistics, that some gain is being made on the disease, and those afflicted are taking on renewed hope of a longer life.

If the assassins of King Alexander should be banished from Servia, they might find employment in Breathitt county, Ky.

As a practical concession to the peace movement, France has reduced the term of compulsory military service by one year.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

Judge Moore of Hibbing, was in town last evening and looked around over the amusement field with the elder Ferris, former stage director for "Dick" Ferris, as a guide.

Judge Moore and some others of Hibbing are building a large theater, and expect it will be done about the early part of August. They are now making some arrangements for bookings, and that is one of their reasons for visiting Duluth.

The new house will seat 1500 people it claimed, and will be ready for occupancy by the opening of the theatrical season. The theater at Hibbing, it is now claimed, has not been large enough to provide the seating capacity necessary to support many larger attractions, and the bject of the new theater is to attract a better class of performances to the growing mining town.

It is expected the house will open about the first week in September.

K. D. Chase, at one time president of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railway, now a prominent and wealthy resident of Faribault, arrived in Duluth this morning and registered at the St. Louis hotel. He is here on a visit, and not on business, he says.

"I haven't been interested in railroad construction for a great many years," said he, "and the days when I was at the head of the Missabe road and built the line seem so far away that I have almost forgotten them.

"I do not think I will ever do any more of that work, though one can never tell just what is going to happen."

* * *

G. B. Goff of Saginaw and Ezra Ruse, the former the man who made the first practical discovery of ore on the Missabe range, are at the Spalding hotel again. They came down last evening from the range country, where they have been looking over property in which they have an interest. They arrived at Hibbing before the steel corporation officials left. They went up on the range to inspect the development at some of their mining properties, and will return to their homes today or tomorrow.

Thomas Owens, accompanied by two children and Mrs. Owens, are here from Two Harbors and stopping at the Spalding hotel.

Mayor M. C. Woodard of Tower, the representative of the Tower Lumber company, is in the city, making arrangements for shipments of the product taken out by the company. He is registered at the Spalding hotel.

* * *

Prof. J. Morgan Clements of the faculty of the University of Wisconsin and geological survey of the government covering the Minnesota mining ranges, has returned from a trip into the country and is at the Spalding for a day on two. He says positively that his visit has little significance, and he is conducting no business of a public nature.

Mrs. D. C. Rood, of Hibbing, is at the Spalding hotel.

Mrs. E. D. Parmalee, of Virginia, is a guest of the St. Louis hotel.

Frank Johnson, of the Johnson Nickle company, John Peterson, both of St. Paul, and F. X. Beuring, of Minneapolis, were in town this morning. They came in and registered at the St. Louis hotel, and then left, presumably to take a boat for Grand Marais, where the Johnson properties are located.

The last time Johnson was in the city he failed to make any deanite statement regarding the iron smelting process he had previously claimed to have perfected, through which he could secure an iron of steel like hardness by one smelt from the titanic ore which is found at nigh grade, but black in the Cook county properties.

Johnson left no word this morning as to his destination, and none of his acquaintances have anything to say regarding his prospects and plans.

* * *

Frank Boutin, Jr., of Bayfield, who is in charge of a number of independent tugs at ports along the south shore of Lake Superior, is in the city and registered at the St. Louis hotel.

* * *

D. L. McKay and W. W. Potter, of Chippewa Falls, two well known lumbermen, who represent Iowa ownerships in this country are in the city and at the St. Louis hotel. They will make a trip over the property of the company, it is expected, before returning home.

* * *

Mrs. M. O. Aubolee, of Two Harbors, is in the city, a guest at the St. Louis hotel.

Two old theatrical men were telling old stories at the Hotel McKay last evening, and among them was one that antedates the minstrel profession, but which was taken up by the minstrel men at the beginning of it, regardless of its previous condition of servitude or else, to start the minstrel traditions off properly.

Two minstrel men, as recently as when Cal Wagner was on the stage, one of them being him, met at a junction down in New York state one cold, raw morning. One was going to Syracuse and the other to Rochester. The next night they were to each take the other city for a performance that night, which might help business both places the next night. They left with that understanding.

The next noon they met at the same junction.

"Did you make the announcement for me?" asked Cal Wagner, emulating Homer or some early member of the minstrelsy.

"You bet I did, Cal, and swelled up the show and told them it was a great hit," replied the other.

"Thanks," said Wagner and started away.

"Hold on, Cal," shouted his friend, "did you announce us to the Rochester audience?"

Wagner walked back up the platform, put his hand on his friend's shoulder and looked solemnly in his face.

"Old man, I didn't," he said. "I fully intended to, and had it all made up what I was going to say, but he got away before I had time to spring it."

Chicago Tribune: "Are you troubled with cockroaches or other insects about your premises, ma'am?" inquired the man with the pack, who had succeeded in gaining an audience with the mistress of the mansion.

"No, sir!" she said, glaring at him. "We are not troubled by cockroaches or other insects!"

"Don't mind 'em, hey?" he rejoined, cheerfully, shouldering his pack again. "Well, there's nothing like getting used to one's afflictions. Good day, Ma'am."

MY PIPE.

I hold it—
I rub the old, brown, briar bowl;
It seems to hold a kindred soul
That speaks to mine,
When it does shine.
And on its surface I can see
My face reflected grotesquely.

I fill it—
I press the God-sent weed down tight,
And when 'tis ready for the light
There comes to me
Expectancy;
And presage of the sweetest bliss;
The old bowl seems to promise this.

I light it—
I blow the fragrant smoke afar,
And now my thoughts most pleasant are;
I am a king,
My praises ring
The whole world o'er; I dream with ease,
Of power to do whate'er I please.

My pipe goes out—
I lay the old bowl down and sigh,
My power is gone, no king am I;
And now, once more
I long for that kind moment when
'Tis time to light my pipe again.

Lincoln and the Drummer Boy.

Detroit Free Press: In the spring of 1861 Col. Fox stopped a few days in Washington with his regiment, the Twenty-seventh Michigan, on his way to join the army of the Potomac. While there he called on President Lincoln, who received him kindly and invited him and the officers of his regiment to attend a reception at the White House that evening, an invitation which was joyfully accepted.

When they arrived at the historical mansion the colonel introduced his officers to the president, who greeted them warmly. But when the colonel passed with the last one, Lincoln said:

"Why, colonel, you've overlooked one of your soldiers!"

The colonel did not understand, but, following the direction of the president's gaze, he saw, stowing himself away in an obscure corner where he hoped not to be noticed, his regimental drummer boy, who had stolen along behind his superiors.

And what did the great president do but walk over to the boy and take his hand, saying:

"My name is Abraham Lincoln. What is yours?"

He talked to the surprised and delighted lad until he put him entirely at his ease. Whether that drummer boy is still living or not is not known, but if he is, he has not forgotten that incident.

MONSIEUR'S ACCOUNT OF IT

By J. W. Hunt.

(Copyright, 1903, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

So, my dear friend, you wish that I should write all that which I know concerning what you call the affair Latouche, is it not? Ah, well! I have fear that the result will not please, but, since I can refuse you nothing, I obey, knowing well that your indulgence will excuse those passages where my not too full acquaintance with your language may involve me in the difficulties.

Allons. It was then, at Mont St. Michel, that I for the first time met the actors in that affair. Alas, I am now five years less young, but even to this day I cannot without an emotion of enthusiasm and homage, recall the image of la belle Latouche. When one has said that she was entirely beautiful one has said only the truth and still has failed to do her justice.

But he! What shall I say of him? Such a marriage! How was it possible? Picture to yourself a pearl without price fixed in a setting of brass; the glorious moon chained in a firmament of daubed canvas. Picture to yourself what you will, you will not exceed the reality.

It was in the cloister walk of the fortress-monastery where, hanging on the verge of the towering rock, it overlooks the sea. There we sat and talked, she and I, talked and watched the sun sink far off into the sea.

We met again from time to time in the blessed intervals between the go and come of the Cook's tourists, he saturnine, silent, forbidding, a covert sneer ever on his face; she calm, gracious, uncomplaining, but sad, ah! how sad!

One day he disappeared. The next they found they, a party of sightseers, lying in the darkness of an old dungeon. An Englishman holds a lighted taper to make plain for his companions the horrors of the middle ages and is confronted by a modern tragedy. There, stretched upon the rusty chains, they see him. His eyes stare blindly up at the tiny flame. He is dead!

You will imagine that this caused a stir. One does not find every day a corpse in the oubliette of Mont St. Michel. Then come the police. They question, they peer here and there, they twirl fiercely their mustaches. One trembles. One dreads, he knows not what. What was it? we ask. Heart failure, or suicide, perhaps? Tiens! One does not go into a dungeon and close the door to have an apoplexy, and there was no weapon. Yet there is a wound; oh, one so little wound, yes; and where, think you? In the ear! The doctor traces the passage of a long, thin weapon through the tissues of the brain. Plainly it is murder. And the murderer? Seek the woman! You are astonished? What is it that you would have? Look. No, it is not a button. Look well. See, this bit of steel; the head of a pin for hats, such as ladies use, and broken short off.

Thus, step by step, the police clear the ground. The commissaire arises and receives her with all politeness. It is a form; will she be so obliging as to explain some things? Thanks, he will be as brief as is consistent with his duty.

Madame will not think him impertinent if he asks her where she was between the hours of four o'clock in the afternoon her husband disappeared and five and a half o'clock, when she re-entered her apartment? She was walking with her husband at four o'clock. Precisely. And after? Silence. Her pallor, always marked, became even more noticeable; a touch of despair made yet more sad the habitual melancholy of her expression. But she answered—nothing.

Madame should receive every consideration which French chivalry accords a lady in so sadly trying circumstances, but madame surely sees that it is necessary to answer? She has said that she was walking with her husband at four o'clock. Naturally! That is as Jean Labeau testifies; walking along the gallery which leads to the old dungeon.

Again silence.

At five o'clock people saw madame descending the stairs cut in the rock, the stairs to the town. This—madame perhaps knows it?—this the agents found two metres from the door behind which the body lay—and the official held before her eyes the head of the broken pin for hats. The counterpart at that moment held her hat to her head.

She raised her hands as though to commend herself to the keeping of Heaven, and said:

"Sir, I may not answer you questions, although I see too plainly that you suspect me of having murdered my husband."

And he replied:

"Madame, the circumstances compel me. I accuse you of it."

Ah! Well! It came to an end at last, that trial. And to such an end! Would you believe it, they found her guilty! Is it that you can conceive of such stupidity! But then, what would you? It was in Bretagne. Now, had it been held in Paris, the trial, the jury would have seen in the sweep of an eye that one so beautiful could not be guilty. It was not possible. Besides, the husband was a beast. But before a jury of peasants! Ah! pigs! dolts! what is it that you have destroyed? Yes, they convicted her. She protested her innocence, but for the rest remained obstinately silent. How the thought of it makes me sad. And the truth of it? I go at once to tell it to you.

* * *

It is the night of Shrove Tuesday, the Mardi Gras so loved of us Latin peoples, and the scene is Paris. As I glance here and there among the maskers my eye is arrested by a Pierrotte. Bauble in hand, jaunty hat on head, her white dress with its tufts of black ending above her ankles; yes, it is merry-making Pierrotte, complete. And yet, that expression. It is the cry of a soul in anguish, heard mutely, through the eyes, great, sad eyes, which look so strangely out of place in that chalk-besmeared face with its carmined grimaces. It is despair in cap and bells. A mortal woe in the livery of folly. An inspiration comes to me. My picture for the salon. It is there. Two steps and I am beside her. A word and it is arranged. She will pose.

So, on many succeeding days, she dons her costume in my studio while I try vainly to fix on canvass the two expressions of her face. And so it happens that one day, throwing aside my pallette in despair, I fall to pacing the room. In nervous preoccupation I trifle with the litter on a table there. I throw my model a look which says, "is it yours?" and she bows in affirmation. Idly I lift a pretty trifle such as Neopolitan women wear in their hair, a tiny dagger of welded gold and steel, the hilt, small even for the hand of a doll, formed of golden serpents intertwined. On one side of the needle-like blade I read the words: "Only to right a wrong." And on the reverse side, rudely scratched, these: "It is done," and a date.

Musingly I repeat the inscriptions to myself and wonder what it is that seems familiar, that seems as though it should awaken a memory which will not stir. In a flash it comes over me; it is the date of the tragedy at Mont St. Michel. In my surprise I cried the name aloud, "Latouche!"

"Ah, you know!" she shrieked, "you know, and I am lost!"

For a moment only she grovelled in terror, then facing me with dignity, tragic even in her grotesque garb, she resumed calmly:

"But no, you did not know that I had done it. I am overwrought, your exclamation startled me, and I have betrayed myself. Well, what matters it? He for whose sake I did it is dead, and I—I am weary."

She loved, this wretched Pierrotte, loved the brother of the peerless one so falsely accused, so unjustly punished. This brother—surely a malignant fairy cursed both children in their cradles—proscribed, a fugitive from justice, was yet fortunate beyond most men; for two women loved him; she who told me these things, and his sister. One man could clear him of the charge under which he lay—Latouche. And the ill-assorted marriage—you see it now—was the price he put upon his service. But the sacrifice once made this Latouche delayed until the brother, grown impatient, sough him on the rock of St. Michel. There, while brother and sister hold a stolen interview she whom I will still call Pierrotte, though not then one, God knows, watches against surprise.

And while she watches comes Latouche. Latouche, the market-place wooer, the repudiator of bargains, he who withholds from the man she loves the right to resume his place among honest men. She entreats him; he answers with a sneer. She taunts him that he has lied as to his ability to save; he taps some papers in his pocket and leers; he can clear her lover when he will. But he will not. He has been sold. He has sought a wife, love; not a passive sacrifice. So he will not.

He turns to leave, but the woman detains him. Love, said he? But if his wife already loved another. If she, Pierrotte, could prove it, what would he give?

What? Why the papers. Proof for proof! Eagerly he bends to catch her whispered words, mad with jealousy, murder in his heart; then—it is done. Pierrotte holds the precious papers and Latouche lies at her feet, dead.

You ask why madame Latouche did not speak out at her trial? Had she not given herself in loveless marriage for the sake of her brother? To have spoken would have been to deliver him up to his pursuers. It was a lesser sacrifice that she made in keeping silent. And he? He knew nothing.

True and Unfailing Health for Suffering Women.

Paine's Celery Compound

The World's Medicine for the Cure of Female Troubles.

A large share of the evils and sufferings which women are liable to, result from special female weaknesses and diseases. From the girl entering womanhood to the woman who arrives at the Grand Climacteric or "Change of life," there are troubles, ailments and irregularities—too often borne in silence—which undermine the health and result in disease. Where such conditions exist, Heaven help the poor sufferers to fully realize their perils and dangers!

It is well known that ordinary medical treatment too often fails to build up the delicate nervous system of woman, and give necessary tone and strength to the important female organs. The experience of years, medical testimony and letters from tens of thousands of cured women, point to Paine's Celery Compound as woman's friend and life giver. Mrs. W. I. West, Fremont, Neb., writes thus:

"I used Paine's Celery Compound for female troubles and general debility. I have taken a great deal of medicine during the last ten years, but none of them of such value as Paine's Celery Compound. I believe it is the best medicine for the nerves and the troubles from which women suffer so much, that I ever used."

NEGRO HOLDS RICH SECRET

Discovered Ore Yielding $60,000 a Ton and Disappeared.

South McAlester, I. T., June 25.—Somewhere in this locality is a negro named Ponto Jackson, who is supposed to have knowledge so valuable that Chicago detectives are searching the United States for him. The story smacks of romance, and, as told by A. J. Mooney, one of the detectives who is here in search of Jackson, is very interesting.

About four years ago Jackson was in the employ of Reagen Bros., wealthy ranchmen near Alpine, Tex. He was Northern born and in that respect was different from the Southern negro, with whom the cowboys had been acquainted. To them Jackson appeared "sassy," and this led to a quarrel between several cowboys and the colored cook, whose independent action infuriated the cowboys to such an extent that one of them attempted to kill him. Jackson managed to escape, and ever since has kept away from that portion of Texas.

On the morning of that same day Jackson had been down on the Rio Grande, and while wandering about had picked up some valuable specimens of rich copper. These specimens he took with him when he fled North, and to a conductor on the train he showed his mineral. With the consent of Jackson, the conductor had them assayed and they showed up ore that would yield $60,000 per ton. The negro could not then be located, but the conductor wrote to the Reagens regarding the mineral. So imbued with the idea of finding the riches was the conductor that he resigned his place as conductor, and for two years hunted for the spot where Jackson found the copper. His means failing him, he has resumed railroad service as a brakeman.

The Reagens immediately attempted to locate Jackson, and in this they were successful, but they could do nothing with him, as he feared it was a scheme to get him back and the cowboys would kill him. A second time he was found and a proposition made him to lead an expedition to the Rio Grande, but again he dropped out of sight.

Nothing was heard of Jackson again until a few months ago, when a clue was secured through a twin brother, a porter in a St. Louis hotel. Ponto then was working in the Baltimore hotel at Kansas City, but the made quick changes to Hannibal, Mo., and Quincy, Ill., and finally to Indian territory. Detective Mooney is here looking for him, but yet without result.

BOYS MUST HANG.

Charles and Henry Nelson Sentenced to Death.

Owatonna, Minn., June 25.—At 2:15 yesterday afternoon, Judge Buckman sentenced Charles and Henry Nelson, murderers of Harry Krier, the saloonkeeper, to be hanged, the date to be fixed hereafter.

William Sutton, who participated with the Nelsons in the crime and pleaded guilty to murder in the second degree, was sentenced to life imprisonment.

When the court met, Senator Samuel Lord, of the counsel for the defendants, made an earnest plea for the defendants. He introduced affidavits made by the Lindersmith brothers as to the presence on the afternoon of the murder of certain strange men near the spot where Krier met his death, and argued that from these and from the testimony introduced at the trial, there was some room to doubt that guilt had been clearly established.

MRS. DE LARTIGUE ACQUITTED.

Spokane, Wash., June 25.—The jury in the trial of Amanda De Laritgue, for murder, brought in a verdict of not guilty yesterday. Henry De Lartigue, a farmer, disappeared last September. His wif wife said he had gone to Honolulu. Last winter his body was found hidden in a potato field near his home. During the trial Mrs. De Lartigue confessed that she killed him Sept. 23, and buried his body. She declared that he attacked her with a gun and she hit him with an ax. Evidently the jury accepted this theory and she was acquitted.

IS A COUSIN OF RUDOLPH

Nephew of Emperor Francis Joseph Is Now In Oklahoma.

Woodward, O. T., June 25.—A. Von Fersen, cattleman and politician, nephew of Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria, and erstwhile captain in the Austrian army, is much interested in the story recently published under a Marinette, Wis., date line to the effect that Professor Hoffman of the university of Iowa faculty is no other than Crown Prince Rudolph of Austria, who was supposed to have been mysteriously murdered several years ago.

On account of this murder, according to Von Fersen's own story, he was forced to leave Austria after being dismissed from the service in disgrace. Von Fersen, cousin to the crown prince, says he did not believe then, and does not now, that Rudolpr was a suicide, although that opinion was the one expressed by the emperor and others in authority. The supposition was that he killed himself because it was impossible for him—the heir to the crown—to wed the woman he loved.

On the other hand, Von Fersen says that Rudolph was murdered and that for political reasons. This was his belief at the time, and his persistency in attempting to ferret out the murderers led to his summary dismissal from the service. Believing then that he would be imprisoned unless he left the country, he came to the United States and located in Nebraska, later in Oklahoma, in Woodward county, where he now resides.

The Oklahoma member of the house of Hapsburg was greatly attached to the crown prince, under whom he served in the army as a captain of cavalry, and the two were much together as the result of their intimate friendship. The idea that his cousin was murdered was so apparent to Capt. Von Fersen that he began a thorough investigation of the matter. He was immediately apprised that he had secured the displeasure of the emperor by attempting to ferret out the facts in the case, but still he persisted, and as a result lost his rank in the army. Then he came to America. He still maintains that his cousin was the victim of a political plot.

Since coming to the United States Von Fersen has been prominent in politics, having aligned himself with the Republican party. He is now about 40 years old. In Nebraska he took the stump against Prohibition, and during the last congressional campaign in Oklahoma he was on the stump continually for B. S. McGuire, the Republican nominee, making speeches in German to voters of that nationality. He stands high in the favor of the Republican leaders of Oklahoma.

LITTLE LIKELIHOOD

That Projected Grand Trunk Pacific Will Be Built.

Toronto, June 25.—There is very little likelihood that the Grand Trunk Pacific, as now projected, will be built. Basis for this belief is found in the fact that Sir Wilfrid Laurier has declared, in the Dominion house of commons, that the government did not care whether the Grand Trunk Pacific and the Canadian Northern amalgamated or not, so long as a new transcontinental lien was built. It was the intention, he said, to subsidize only one new line.

It is asserted that the new portions of the Canadian Northern will be a part of the Grand Trunk Pacific scheme. Mr. Blair, minister of railways, suggested that it was quite possible that the government, in aiding the Canadian Northern, was aiding what, at no distant date, might be the main line of the Grand Trunk Pacific.

The government's proposals provide that the Canadian Northern shall not amalgamate with the Canadian Pacific, but do not prohibit coalition with any other road. The apparent object is to guarantee competition for the protection of the public.

ENGINEERS TO MEET

Government Board Here Monday to Consider Improvements.

Capt. McKinstry of Board Was Once Located In Duluth.

Next Monday morning at 11 o'clock the board of United States examining engineers will hold a meeting at the local office of the government engineer of this district, in the Providence building, to listen to the arguments for and against the proposed improvement of the St. Louis river waterway by the deepening of the channel from the foot of the rapids to New Duluth, and for the improvement of the harbor at the mouth of Split Rock river on the north shore.

The board of engineers is comprised of Maj. H. F. Hodges, Capt. C. H. McKinstry, Capt. W. B. Judson and A. H. Weber.

Capt. Charles H. McKinstry is not a stranger to Duluth people. He will be remembered by a number of friends here as Lieut. McKinstry, who for about a year and a half, in the early '90s, was assistant to Maj. Sears, who was then in charge of the Lake Superior district. Lieut. McKinstry left Duluth in 1893 or 1894 and for some time was stationed at points along the coast of Florida, during which time his promotion occurred. He was formerly one of the instructors in the school for engineers in New York, and since November, 1901, has been instructor of civil engineering and practical astronomy at the engineers' school of application at Washington barracks. He is a member of the board of engineers for rivers and harbors and is connected with various other government engineering boards.

The board, after listening to all the argument, which must also be reduced to writing, will make its report, with recommendations, to the board of chief engineers of the United States at Washington. A number of local people who are interested in proposed projects on the St. Louis river, which would be greatly benefited by the deeper waterway, have already signified their intention of arguing before the board of examining engineers. So far as can be learned, there will be little or no opposition to the proposed improvement.

The proposed improvement of the harbor at Split Rock is of the greatest interest to the lumber industries at that point, although quite a settlement is said to be forming about the bay. It is understood that in event the government improves the harbor, the prospect for the erection of a sawmill at that point is a very good one. The Split Rock Lumber company, which carries on heavy logging operations in the country back of Split Rock, has been rafting all its logs to the mill at West Duluth.

The examining engineers were in Milwaukee yesterday. They will inspect the harbor at the Soo Friday of this week and the Marquette harbor Saturday.

After the hearing here next Monday morning the examining board will probably visit Fond du Lac in the government launch Vidette to inspect the ground of the proposed improvement. An inspection of the Split Rock harbor will probably be made when the members of the examining board leave Duluth for Port Washington, where they will investigate the request of the vesselmen for the enlargement of the harbor at that point.

Maj. Lansing Beach, of Detroit, government engineer in temporary charge of this district, will be here during the visit of the board of engineers. When he left for Detroit last week Maj. Beach said he expected to turn this office over to Capt. Potter, the permanent engineer in charge, when he made his next trip to the head of the lakes. The transfer is not likely to be made before the middle of next month, however, as advices have been received by Chief Clerk James Owens stating that Capt. Potter will not be able to reach Duluth before July 15.

ODD FELLOWS SHOW GAINS

Annual Convention of the State Grand Lodge Begins.

St. Paul, June 25.—The Order of Odd Fellows in Minnesota has instituted eight new subordinate lodges and five Rebekah lodges during the year just closed, according to the report of Grand Secretary A. L. Bolton of St. Paul. The subordinate lodges have gained 713 new members, and the Rebekah lodges have added 504 members.

The Odd Fellows of the state convened yesterday in the house chamber at the capitol in the fifty-first annual convention of the grand lodge of Minnesota.

The grand lodge degree was conferred on the new representatives and as 300 of the delegates had not attended a grand lodge meeting before, the degree work occupied nearly the entire morning. In the afternoon reports were presented by the grand officers.

Secretary Bolton's report shows that the lodge now has a membership of 16,694 in the state, in 254 lodges. The subordinate lodges of the state have expended $29,983.59 during the year in relief work. The total assets of the order in Minnesota are $1,059,786.26.

The lodge sessions will continue through today, when grand officers elected last January will be installed. They are: Grand master, S. A. Farnsworth, St. Paul; deputy grand master, B. G. Covell, Benson; grand warden, E. M. Clay, Renville; grand secretary, A. L. Bolton, St. Paul; grand treasurer, C. M. Sprague, Sauk Center; grand representative, C. A. Fosnes, Montevideo.

MASS COPPER

Found Under Pine Stump Near Little Lake.

Negaunee, Mich., June 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—Humphrey Lucas, who owns a farm some seven miles west of Little Lake, was in town yesterday, showing a specimen of mass copper, weighing about two pounds, which he claims to have found in the bottom of an upturned pine stump on his farm. There is no question as to the copper, and the fact that it was under the stump precludes the idea that it is a float piece. Mr. Lucas believes that it is a certain indication that there is a valuable deposit of the metal in the vicinity and is taking steps for a thorough examination. Local people are very much interested in the discovery.

MACCABEES IN SESSION

Interesting District Meeting and Initiation of Candidates Held.

The district meeting of the Maccabees yesterday was a very large affair and extremely interesting to Maccabees. In the afternoon a school of instruction was conducted and in the evening the degree team of Duluth tent No. 1, initiated a class of 200 candidates, many of them coming from Two Harbors, Cloquet, Virginia, Eveleth and other range towns.

In the evening an entertainment was given the guests and the new members in which Thomas Cade, Thomas Martin, W. F. Hutchins, M. Orzelowski gave numbers and State Commander I. N. Chellew spoke.

Among those present at the session in the afternoon when papers were read upon various subjects interesting to Maccabees were:

Alfred Davey, commander; C. A. Morrison, past commander, and D. E. Wilson, record keeper, of Eveleth tent.

P. Sarett, record keeper, Cloquet tent.

B. J. Eyer, record keeper, Biwabik tent.

M. Rogalski, record keeper, and R. S. Watts, chaplain, Hibbing tent.

E. J. Elnman, commander, O. A. Koppe, record keeper, Virginia tent.

G. S. Raper, record keeper, J. M. Magnuson, sergeant; G. A. Hogaboom, deputy state commander, Two Harbors tent.

J. B. Thomson, record keeper, Emil Hagunson, sergeant, Carlton tent.

BARBER-DAY.

Niece of Mrs. McKinley Wed at Canton.

Canton, Ohio, June 25.—At 7 o'clock last evening Miss Ida Barber, daughter of Mr. and Mr. C. M. Barber and niece of Mrs. McKinley, became the wife of Luther, second son of Supreme Court Justice and Mrs. William R. Day.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. O. B. Milligan, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, in the presence of several hundred guests. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Kate Barber, and the groom by his brother, Stephen. For the wedding dinner the bride's table was set in the dining room and was surrounded by members of the Day and Barber families.

When the first niece of the McKinleys was married the president said all should have the same bridal presents when they were married and ordered for Miss Ida McKinley, now Mrs. Barber, a massive silver service. That was duplicated by Mrs. McKinley for Miss Mary Barber last fall and again for the bride of last evening. There was a wealth of other presents, including a set of china and gold coffee cups from Senator and Mrs. Hanna.

LEAVE THEIR HAPPY HOMES

Uncontrolable Infatuation Has Disrupted Four Families.

St. Cloud, Minn., June 25.—The town of Kraln, Stearns county, has a sensation. Peter Kreamer, one of its hitherto respected farmers, has left for parts unknown taking with him Lizzie Rosen, the pretty auburn-haired daughter of one of his farmer neighbors. Kraemer is 30 years of age, has been married and has a family of small children. Saturday he went to Albany and borrowed $150 at the bank, giving a mortgage on his stock for security. Returning home, he hitched up his best team to a top buggy, drove to his neighbor's and departed with the girl. Kraemer's wife has asked the Stearns county authorities to assist in locating her erring spouse.

Owatonna, Minn., June 25.—Louis Swanson is missing. Mrs. Charles Peterson is also absent from home. Both have families. A short time ago in the district court Peterson brought suit against Swanson, charging him with alienation of his wife's affections. Swanson won the case, and apparently his wife and he were happily reconciled.

WATCH THE MARKET

Iron Buyers Are Reserved In Placing Their Orders.

There Is a Growing Disposition to Make Concessions.

New York, June 25.—The past week has not brought very material changes in the iron markets, according to the Iron Age. The great majority of buyers persist in an attitude of reserve, and there is a growing disposition to make concessions to them. Much is made of the opening of the books of the steel rail manufacturers of 1904 orders at $28. It appears that the Western roads have placed about 200,000 tons, with considerable additional business pending. Generally speaking the Eastern lines have not yet ordered. The Harriman roads have placed 10,000 tons with foreign makers.

From all quarters come the reports that in foundry pig a volume of business is being done in moderate lots for prompt delivery, which contrasts very favorably with the rate of purchases made during the past few months. This, however, is merely proof of the fact that smelters are down to the bone in their maneuvering for position for the third and fourth quarters. All the leading buyers are watching the market closely, and inquiries are numerous and important, but the real buying movement has not yet set in. In the meantime prices are still weakening. In the Central West, Northern makers have gone even below the equivalent of Birmingham prices. It is interesting to note that a great deal of tonnage of foreign foundry iron which was due on former contracts have been transferred to domestic producers, the importers selling their foreign iron abroad and covering on this side. This practically puts an end to this extraordinary and abnormal movement, except that there is considerable temptation still to buy foreign foundry iron for drawback on export manufactures. Lately the agricultural implement makers have been closely studying the possibilities in this direction, not only in steel but also in pig iron.

The cast iron pipe makers continue to do a heavy business. The steel market has been quiet, although some round lots have been placed. There is some inquiry, but lower prices are being made. Foreign steel is being offered at $27.50 to $28, but little business is being done. There is nothing in the reports that prices of steel products for 1904 have been fixed, since, in the majority of the lines, excepting plate and structural material, the outside mills are acting entirely independent of the leading producer, and no one talks of 1904 requirements.

Bar iron is still weak, while steel bars are being specified for more liberally. In a number of the lighter lines independent manufacturers are setting the pace by making some concessions.

THE BOODLING IN MISSOURI

Large Sums Demanded and Received By the Legislators.

St. Louis, June 25.—Circuit Attorney Folk has uncovered an appalling lot of boodling at Jefferson City in the sessions of the legislature. The story of Missouri's shame is succinctly told in the appended table, which shows the amount received and demanded on various matters of legislation, and is, at most, but a partial list, but approximately correct:

	Demanded.	Paid.
St. Louis Transit company (consolidation bill)	$150,000	$150,000
Royal Baking Powder company (alum bill)	25,000	25,000
American Book company	20,000	20,000
Sugar trust	10,000	10,000
American Tobacco company (cigarette bill)	5,000	5,000
Insurance interests (anti-trust law)	40,000	.....
Whisky interests (bill taxing whisky)	10,000	10,000
Kansas City Stock yards (bill regulating charges).	15,000	.....
Audubon society's bill	1,500	.....
Brewery interests (beer bill)	10,000	.....
Coal oil inspection bill	300	300
St. Louis county excise bill	500	.....
St. Louis excise bill	2,500	.....
St. Louis county road tax	5,000	.....
Slot machine bills	15,000	.....
County warrant bill	1,500	.....
Chattel mortgage bill	3,500	.....
Total	$321,300

In addition to the above sum of $321,300 which it has been shown that legislators demanded for the passage or defeat of measures pending before the general assembly, statistics show that the legislators have received in cash bribes the sum of $220,900, to say nothing of jobs which have not been exposed.

ST. PAUL MAN

Slain at Anaconda By Woman He Abused.

Ainsworth, Neb., June 25.—A sensation was sprung in the district court here when the prosecution in the case of Fred M. Hans, a Northwestern railway detective, charged with the murder of a ranchman named Luse two years ago, asked for a continuance on the ground that its most important witness, the little 6-year-old child of the murdered man, had been kidnaped by persons living in Mexico. An affidavit to this effect was presented to the court, and Judge Harrington continued the trial to July 27. The child is said to have been an eyewitness to the murder. Hans was once a scout, and is well known in the West.

CHILD WITNESS KIDNAPED.

Murder Trial Postponed By Sensational Discovery.

Helena, Mont., June 25.—William Nemo, who claimed St. Paul as his home, and who was a cook by profession, was shot and killed in Anaconda by Mrs. Dell Kirk, with whom he had been living.

The woman had expressed her intention of leaving Nemo, whereupon he beat and choked her. While lying on the floor of a room in their lodging house she pulled a revolver and shot him in the breast, the body falling across her form. She was arrested. Nemo was about 45 years old and came to Montana ten years ago.

COMPLAINT MADE

West End People Object to Damaging of West Superior Street.

Street Railway Company Tearing Up Small Section of Paving.

Residents of the West End are looking with particular disfavor upon the manner in which Superior street is being left after the street railway company has finished its work of putting new joins in the rails, and wondering whether it is up to them to swear at the street railway company or the board of public works.

A new style of fish plate is being put in all along the line to West Duluth, and in order to take out the old ones and put in the new it is necessary to tear up the cedar block paving for a short distance around each joint.

In putting he paving back the old rotten blocks have been used, and as it is difficult to get them back just as they were taken out there are large interstices between them that have been filled with dirt and gravel.

The result is that there is an unsightly and uneven spot wherever this work has been done in most cases, though in some places the blocks have been put back very evenly, showing that it is not impossible.

The cedar block paving out that way is not in particularly good condition, having been down by years of use, and the work of the street railway company has made it worse. The work is now being done at about Twenty-fifth avenue west, and it will be continued out to West Duluth.

"I can see no excuse for this work being left so as to deteriorate the paving," said a West End citizen yesterday afternoon. "I do not know whether it is the street railway company or the board of public works that is to be held responsible, but at any rate work that makes the paving worse should not be allowed. Superior street is not built up very thickly between Twenty-second and Twenty-fifth avenues, where the start has been made, and the property owners can hardly afford a new pavement yet. It is in bad enough shape now, and I hope the city authorities will see that it is not made any worse.

"I do not see any reason why, if it is necessary, the company cannot be compelled to put down new blocks instead of the old, if the old ones cannot be made do the work properly."

TAKEN TO STILLWATER.

Marco Luiji Must Serve Four and Half Years.

Marco Luiji will be taken today to Stillwater to enter upon his term of imprisonment of four years and six months. Luiji was indicted and pleaded guilty to the charge of assault in the second degree. He is 61 years of age and has already spent eight years of his life in prison in the old country, where he was sentenced to a term of twenty years for killing a man. It afterwards developed that he was innocent of the crime, and he was released. At the time of his sentence, Luiji pleaded hard for mercy, declaring that he had only a few more years to live at the most and if he could be kept out of prison he would behave himself properly in every respect.

Luiji was arrested for shooting a boy by the name of Tony Stefonetti, who was among a number of others that tantalized the old man until he became fairly frantic with rage and went home for his gun. Luiji claimed that he was so beside himself with anger because of the tricks played on him that he did not know what he was doing. Stefonetti's wound was not of a serious nature and he has fully recovered from it.

Seriously Injured.

Michael J. McGrath, a well known switchman on the Great Northern road, sustained injuries in an accident at the yards in West Superior that may prove fatal. While making the coupling between two cars of lumber, the stakes on one car broke and several of the heavy timbers fell on him, breaking several ribs and causing internal injuries.

When the other trainmen went to his assistance, McGrath asked them to notify his wife of the accident, and to take him to the hospital. He resides at 1024 Oakes avenue, West Superior.

Hines Company May Buy.

It is rumored at Lake Nebagamon, Wis., that the Edward Hines Lumber company has made an offer for the purchase of the Nebagamon Lumber company's plant, a Weyerhaeuser concern, for the purpose of providing a place where the company may saw the logs which it had under contract to saw at the Sesofield mill. The cut of the Nebagamon Lumber company is very nearly completed and the company expected to dismantle its mill and ship the machinery to the coast inside of the next two years.

QUEEN COURTED BY INNKEEPER

Dutch Court Smiling at Experience of Queen Dowager.

The Hague, June 25.—All the court is smiling at Dowager Queen Emma's adventures with a love-sick inn keeper at Villers, near Brussels, at whose house she recently stayed. The royal party consisting of the dowager, an officer and a lady of the court, went to the village to view the ruins of the famous abbey, traveling in the densest incognito. After taking dinner at the inn the host came to ask if everything had been satisfactory, and when the queen complimented him on the cuisine, he grew very attentive. After ordering a special bottle and clinking glasses with her, he said to her majesty: "See here, dearie, haven't we met before? I thought I knew your face?"

The queen perceived that the man had her many published portraits in mind, but abstracted his inquiry to preserve her incognito. The host, however, insisted that he knew her majesty and affectionately petted her hand. To make an end of this Baron Vandenberg asked whether it was not possible to secure a carriage for a drive through the neighborhood.

"I am the liveryman," replied the host, "and my best rig is yours for the afternoon, if 'dearie' says the word."

The offer was accepted because the court marshal hoped in that way to get rid of the inn keeper, but when half an hour later the carriage drove up they saw him perched on the box, dressed in his best, the whip and horses' heads gayly beribboned.

"Now, dearie," said the host to the queen, "jump up next to papa and make yourself comfortable. You can't sit too close, I assure you."

Queen Emma good-naturedly consented, the courtiers sat behind and the party went off in gay spirits. After getting his horses well in hand, the host commenced telling tall stories, addressing himself exclusively to the queen and shutting up the baron when that official tried to get in a word edgewise. "You leave her to me," he said good-humoredly, but firmly, "I won't look behind and you must not look too closely ahead. Fair play is all I want." Then he turned to his lady again, regaling her with rural bon mots and equivocal tales that made the queen laugh heartily, "because," as she afterward confessed, "I am too old to play the prude in an innocent game like that." However, when the party returned from their outing, mine host became so demonstrative in pleading his case that the queen feared to be compromised and, at an opportune moment, ordered Baron Vanderberg to ask for the bill and take her away.

The inn keeper was as mad as a March hare when he learned that the party would not stay over night, and, assuming that the baron had to pay for the ladies, wrote out a most formidable bill, adding at least 50 per cent to the usual charges by way of punishment. As a sort of compensation he then offered to drive the party to the railway station, but after helping the queen to her seat he jumped on the box and drove away furiously, compelling the courtiers to follow on foot.

The queen says that on the way to the station the inn keeper made her a formal offer of marriage, enumerating his good points, physical and mental, worldly goods, etc., while she made sundry promises for another meeting. At the moment of leave-taking she had the greatest difficulty in the world to keep the inn keeper from kissing her good-by.

SLAVE HOLDERS

Fined By United States Court at Macon.

Macon, Ga., June 25.—In the United States court yesterday Judge Speer imposed a fine of $1000 each on three young men, William Shy, Arthur Clawson and Robert Turner, for holding a negro in involuntary servitude. He suspended the fine under conditions and in so doing the court said:

"The fact that it is the first crime of the kind which ever has occurred in Georgia and because of the frank confession of the young men, sentence is imposed in order to convince the public that the purpose of the court is to warn and deter others from like crime. During good behavior fine is suspended upon payment of $10 by each."

The offense was that the young men, who are prominent farmers, caught a negro, who had gotten in debt to them, gave him a whipping and made him go to work for them. Judge Speer said that the problem of the times could not be solved by harsh measures and wanted it distinctly understood that the laws of Georgia were against such treatment.

MURDERERS UNKNOWN.

The Verdict of Coroner's Jury In Burning of White.

Wilmington, Del., June 25.—Arthur Corwell, who claims his home is Hartford City, Ind., and who was arrested on the charge of complicity in the burning to death of George White, the negro assailant and murderer of Helen Bishop, was released on $5000 bail.

Last night 2000 persons gathered in front of the city hall, where Corwell was confined and made a demonstration. The police took every precaution to prevent a rescuing of the prisoner.

The coroner's inquest was concluded last night and when word reached the police station that the verdict did not implicate Corwell, the police decided to release him on $5000 bail. This was promptly furnished by Thomas McVeagh, a wholesale liquor dealer. Word of this action soon reached the crowd and a cheer went up, after which the people quickly dispersed.

The coroner held two sessions of the inquest on the remains of White yesterday, the first bringing difference of opinion between the coroner and his deputy, John R. Kilmer, which resulted in an open clash. Kilmer thought that Attorney General Ward should have selected the jury, while the coroner maintained the attorney general had no authority in the matter. The coroner carried out his plan and empanelled a jury.

When the inquest began the remains of White could not be found and after a long search they were found wrapped in paper in an ice box. White weighed about 200 pounds, but only about five pounds of bones and flesh were left of him after the lynchers had concluded their work.

The coroner again summoned a jury and the inquest was held last night. Thomas L. Leach, a farmer, and William Carter, a newspaper reporter, were the witnesses, and both testified to the finding of thes mall portion of the remains of the victim of the mob.

Some further testimony was offered, and after the jury brought in the following verdict:

"Resolved, that George White came to his death between the hours of 10 p. m. of June 22, 1903, and 4 a. m. of June 23, 1903, by being burned in a field adjoining the road leading from Price's Corner to the Ford Industrial school, by a party or parties unknown to this jury."

What the next step of the authorities will be is not known.

It will restore the appetite, purify the blood, strengthen the nerves, and cure your stomach, heartburn, belching, nausea, indigestion, dyspepsia and malaria. Women will also find it beneficial as a regulator and strengthgiver.

CHANGE OF VENUE GRANTED

Tillman Will Be Tried In Another County.

Columbia, S. C., June 25.—Arguments on the motion for change of venue in the case of James Tillman, indicted for murder, was concluded late yesterday afternoon and Judge Townsend announced his decision that the change should be granted. Counsel disagreed concerning the county where the case should be sent, and this was left undecided for the present.

GERMAN MINISTER

Surprises an Over-Officious and Lazy Subordinate.

Berlin, June 25.—The minister of public works, Budde, is an early riser, and delights in surprising his subordinates. The other morning he sauntered into the office of the chief clerk of thes tate railway administration at 8 sharp, when business ought to open there. He waited twenty-five minutes and not a soul showed up. Finally, a young secretary entered, took his place at one of the windows and began reading a newspaper. The minister, assuming the attitude of an ordinary citizen, asked the clerk politely to show him certain public records.

"You might have the decency to wait till I get through with my paper," snapped the clerk.

"How long will that be?" humbly asked the minister.

"If you don't bother me, ten or fifteen minutes."

"But I don't propose to waste ten or fifteen minutes to see 'ou read a newspaper," said Budde.

"You don't eh?" queried the clerk, contemptuously. "Can't wait? Well, you have to." He again turned to his paper, but looking up after a while inquired with a sneer: "Who are you, anyhow?"

"They call me his excellency, the minister of public works, Dr. Budde, and assuming that I am that person, I now ask you to vacate that seat and consider yourself discharged."

At that moment the chief clerk entered, preventing the other from firing an ink stand at the supposed imposter's head.

RECORD IS BROKEN

Previous Figures of Immigration Are Exceeded By 100,000.

In Eleven Months of the Fiscal Year, 758,285 Arrived.

Washington, June 25.—Over three-quarters of a million foreigners have come to the United States as immigrants in the eleven months ended May 30 last, according to a statement by Commissioner General Sargent of the immigration bureau. Heretofore the banner year for immigration was that of 1882, when the total reached 788,992.

The figures for the month of June are yet to be added to the total for the present year, and when this is done the prediction is made that the former record will be broken by something like 100,000. The arrivals during May of the present year were 137,514, which was an increase of 30,513 over the corresponding month last year, and makes the total for the eleven months of the present fiscal year 758,285. Reports of daily arrivals in the present month show that the increase over last month, as shown by the May figures, is still being maintained.

Of the 137,514 immigrants arriving in May, 1903, 101,925 landed at the port of New York. The influx af aliens from Italy, including Sicily and Sardinia, continues to be greater than from any other country, the number for the month being 37,738. Austria-Hungary contributed the next largest number, sending 32,769 of her population. The German empire lost 6486 of her citizens, which was an increase of over 2000 over the corresponding month last year. From the Russian empire and Finland 17,857 came, which was an increase of 3649 over the corresponding month last year. Swedes to the number of 9038 arrived, being an increase of nearly 4000 over May of last year. Nearly 5000 Irishmen came to the United States, which was an increase of 1040 over the same month last year. England more than double her contribution of citizens this year over May of last year, sending 4550, an increase of 3039. Only 190 Chinese landed, while from Japan 2190 came. Though but 247 Filipinos to arrive during May, an increase of 211 over the same month last year:

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

A general strike of all the freight handlers employed by the railroads centering in Chicago may follow the calling out of the Chicago & Alton men Wednesday. According to President Curran, of the Freight Handlers' union, unless the management of the Alton road shall recede from the stand taken it will be necessary for him to extend the strike to the other lines to enforce the demands of the men.

The firemen employed at the International Paper company's mill at Fort Edward quit Wednesday. This in addition to the strike of unskilled laborers, compelled the closing down of the entire plant.

Alfred R. Johnson, of Kansas City, formerly of Janesville, Wis., died Wednesday, a few hours after being told of the death of his brother-in-law, Major James B. Pond, of New York. The men had been lifelong friends. Mr. Johnson was the organizer of the Kansas City typographical union and was prominent in labor union work.

John McKay, the negro who killed Detective Murphy, was taken out of the county jail through a door in the rear Wednesday. A carriage was waiting and Sheriff Pollock, accompanied by two deputies and his prisoner, drove to Pottstown, boarding a train for Galesburg, where McKay will be imprisoned until the date of the trial.

A real estate agent, named Herrington, from Ohio, who stopped at Pueblo, enroute from Durango, was robbed of a valise said to contain $50,000 worth of securities at the Union depot. He had fallen asleep in the main waiting room.

Martin Johnson, who appeared at Inver Grove about a week ago with considerable money, was found in a barn there Wednesday unconscious from injuries and he died a few hours later while being taken to South St. Paul. It is thought that he was robbed and murdered. Several of his ribs were broken, and it is believed that he was kicked to death.

W. B. Hunter and Mrs. C. E. Ireland were killed and C. E. Ireland seriously injured in a fight at Brooksville, Fla. Hunter and Ireland engaged in a cutting scrape and Mrs. Ireland, in attempting to separate the men received wounds thn resulted in her death. Hunter died from the result of his wounds and Ireland is in a serious condition.

AN INDIAN ORDAINED.

Oneida, Wis., June 25.—Rev. Cornelius Hill, who is known to his Indian brethren as Chief-Onon-Gwat-Go, was ordained yesterday at the Episcopal Church of the Holy Apostles of Hobart mission, Oneida, Wis. Rev. Hill has served as an interpretor and missionary among the Oneida Indians, and his ordination is in some degree a recognition of his faithful services. Rev. B. Talbot Rogers, of Lafton Hall, Fond du Lac, acted as master of ceremonies. The most elaborate ritual of the church, the burning of the insence and the magnificence of the Episcopacy, contrasted strong with the environments.

ORDER FOR HEARING APPLICATION FOR APPOINTMENT OF ADMINISTRATOR.—

State of Minnesota, County of St. Louis, —ss.

In Probate Court, Special Term, June 17th, 1903.

In the Matter of the Estate of Aner Cameron, Deceased:

On receiving and filing the petition of John J. Rowe, of the county of St. Louis, representing, among other things, that Aner Cameron, late of the county of St. Louis, in the state of Minnesota, on the 16th day of June, A. D. 1903, at the county of St. Louis, died intestate, and being an inhabitant of this county at the time of his death, leaving goods, chattels and estate within this county, and that the said petitioner is the step-father of said deceased, and praying that administration of said estate be to John J. Rowe, granted;

It is ordered, that said petition be heard before said court on Monday, the 13th day of July, A. D. 1903, at ten o'clock a. m., at the probate office, in the court house, in the city of Duluth, in said county.

Ordered further, that notice hereof be given to the heirs of said deceased and to all persons interested, by publishing this order once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in The Duluth Evening Herald, a daily newspaper printed and published at Duluth, in said county.

Dated at Duluth, Minnesota, the 17th day of June, A. D. 1903.

NO SILVER PLANK

Was Inserted In the Platform of Iowa Democrats.

J. B. Sullivan Was Unanimously Nominated For Governor.

Des Moines, Iowa, June 25.—The ticket: Governor—J. B. Sullivan.

Lieutenant governor—D. B. Butler.

Judge of supreme court—John R. Caldwell.

Superintendent of public instruction—A. R. McCook.

Railroad commissioner—W. S. Porter.

The Democratic state convention, by a vote of 463 9-10 to 354 1-10 late yesterday afternoon, refused to adopt a minority report signed by four members of the committee on resolutions, adding to the platform reported by the seven members constituting the majority of the committee, a plank reaffirming the Democratic national platform of 1900, and by a vote of 628½ to 190½ rejected another minority report adding to the plank demanding government control of railway charges, a provision that in case such a control should not prove effective the national government should acquire ownership of railroads.

All the nominations were made by acclamation, the friends of Judge A. A. Van Wagenen, of Sioux City, having concluded not to present his name for governor after it became apparent that the convention would not adopt a government ownership plank which he has favored. J. B. Sullivan, the nominee for governor, has been affiliated with the Bryan wing of the party, but he was acceptable to the Gold Democrats.

E. M. Sharon, of Davenport, presented the report of the committee on resolutions and made the only speech in its support.

J. R. Parsons, of Rock Rapids, submitted the minority report in favor of government ownership, of which he was the only signer, and spoke in favor of its adoption. After the rejection of the report, W. H. Robb, of Creston, presented the reaffirmation plank. It's adoption was urged by Mr. Robb, G. S. Rhinehart, Former Congressman Walt. S. Butler, of Des Moines, and C. P. Mackey, of Sigourney. It was rejected and the report of the majority of the committee was adopted without division.

The following were the resolutions adopted:

"We, the chosen representatives of the Democratic party in Iowa, in convention assembled, hereby declares anew our faith in the fundamental principles of the Democratic party and renew our allegiance thereto.

"We find much in the domestic affairs of the nation that ought to be changed.

"The tariff policy originally adopted for the avowed purpose of raising revenue to meet the enormous burdens of the war has been turned to the individual aims and class interests until it has been the cause of countless unearned fortunes and the shelter of huge combinations of capital, organized in the form of trusts, which are strangling competition in many of our industries, destroying individual effort, crushing ambition largely in every line of industry, and already acquiring a power which enables them to dictate in their own interest the prices of labor and raw material, and the cost of transportation of finished products.

"We declare our unqualified opposition to the principle of government by injunction.

"We renew our demand for the election of United States senators by direct vote of the people.

"We are unalterably opposed to the policy of imperialism by this government instituted, fostered and maintained by the Republican party, and we demand that our government shall declare it to be its purpose and without delay to adopt such measures as shall give to the Porto Rico their inalienable right of self government.

"We condemn the Republican party's financial policy which has fostered in the country the unstable currency based on the uncertain private securities. We protest against the plan presented in the Aldrich bill, recently before the United States senate, by which the money of the nation shall be loaned to capitalists upon the bond of the securities of private corporations as an effort to give stains and stability to watered bonds and securities of corporations and trusts, many of which are malmaining monopolies in defiance of law and public sentiment.

"We insist that the integrity of the money be guarded with zealous care and demand that it shall be sufficient in volume to meet the needs of the business interests of the country and that it shall be safeguarded by careful legislation so as to prevent the gamblers of Wall street from cornering the money market, thus inflicting untold injury upon the smaller business men, the farmers and the laborers of the land.

"We deplore the corrupt condition of the government service in the postoffice department and demand a thorough investigation of that, and other departments by a congressional committee, publicity as to such condition and public punishment of all wrong-doers."

"We ask for such changes in our law, statutory or constitutional, as will limit the charges by railroads to such an amount as will yield only a reasonable return on the capital actually invested and will render it impossible for transportation favors to be granted to anyone and such as will make certain that all railway companies would be treated alike, such statutes to provide penalties that will be effectual to secure a compliance with them.

"When the sources of supply of any products are in the ownership of those who combine to extort from the people an unreasonable amount for such products, then we believe it is the duty of the government to take such steps as may be necessary to secure an equitable distribution thereof, not only to the consumption to the owners, and so that the design of nature in making provision for the wants of man may not be preverted into means for his oppression."

NEARLY ASPHYXIATED.

Three Norwegian Boys Have a Narrow Escape.

Minneapolis, Minn., June 25.—Lying unconscious in their room with life nearly extinct, Samuel, William and Ole Thompson, brothers, were found yesterday by H. Marks, the keeper of a rooming house at 519 Second avenue south. The poisonous fumes of gas were pouring into the room from the open jet. A physician was summoned, and after several hours' work the boys were restored to consciousness and are said to be out of danger.

At first it appeared that the boys had attempted to commit suicide, as all the windows of the room were closed so that the fumes could not escape, but a further investigation showed that they had a large sum of money in the room and the windows had been closed to insure its safety. A letter, which was written Tuesday night, but which had not been mailed, showed that the brothers had no intention of ending their own lives.

The Thompson boys came to this city recently from Norway and were employed in the North Star Woolen mills.

RED HATS

Bestowed By Pope Leo on Three Cardinals.

Rome, June 25.—In the throne room at the vatican, surrounded by his whole court, Pope Leo, who looked much better than at Monday's consistory, imposed with great ceremony the red birettas on the new cardinals, Monsignori Nocelin, Cavicchioni and Fischer, and congratulated them on the high honor they had attained. Cardinal Nocella, in the name of his colleagues, thanked the pontiff in a brief speech and then made a move to retire, but his holiness detained the new cardinals and insisted on having them in his private setudy, where he kept them in conversation for some time.

There is a keen demand for tickets to the public consistory, to which none but ticket holders will be admitted.

KILLED BY BASEBALL.

Washington, June 25.—Robert L. Shannon, aged 22 years, was struck by a baseball on the Georgetown University Athletic grounds yesterday and died within thirty seconds. The ball was thrown from the infield by G. W. Idding and struck Shannon at the juncture of the brain and the spinal column. Idding was prostrated when he learned what had happened, and was removed to the hospital, where his condition is said to be serious.

MISERABLE END

Of Antoinette Charlier, Sweetheart of the Third Napoleon.

Left Over Three Hundred Love Letters From Great Men.

Paris, June 25.—Antoinette Charlier is dead, the woman to whom the third Napoleon addressed this note, dated the Tuileries, Pavilion de Flore, September, 1859:

"Beautiful Rose: The war (in Italy) won't let me sleep. Please come and keep me company tonight. L. N."

The writer saw the paper, with the crown and golden "N" almost faded away, at the president of police's; next in the bundle—what strange bedfellows death makes, to be sure—a letter from Victor Hugo:

"Paris, Oct. 10, 1861.—Rose: I call you a girl of almost ideal beauty; your profile is classic, your transparent skin of indescribable loveliness.

"Yesterday I had the joy of watching you unawares. Surely God did not make you for an ugly dwarf, such as the pretty namesake of the great emperor. Your lips are like the budding rose—even the pure would hesitate to defile them by vulgar kisses. And he?

"The breath of the Creator is in thee, Antoinette, and upon your silky hair I perceive the golden reflex of his eternal throne. Upon your white forehead thy braided hair sits like a diadem.

"Your hands are as well made as the Madonna's by an Italian master, and nothing equals the fineness of your ankle or the sweet voluptuousness of your breast.

"When shall I see thee again, Rose?

"HUGO."

There are hundreds of similar letters by the great men of the second empire—Count d'Orsay, the duke of Beaufort, Lord Chesterfield, the Bonaparte Princes Plon-Plon and Jerome (sometimes king of Westphalia), Count Walewski, Dukes Persigny and Morny, by the notorious imperial adjutant, Col. Fleury and who not? Yet Antoinette Charlier—for tens of years lioness of the great restaurants, the race track and the opera, the woman who at one time sent Empress Eugene into voluntary-involuntary exile because her majesty despaired of rivaling the splendor of her husband's mistress—the "rose of the empire," died by her own hand, because she lost her place as janitress of a low tiphouse on Montmartre.

The proprietor, it developed at the inquest, had sent her away because "she moped too much," and, fearing that on account of her age and general debility she would be unable to secure another job, Antoinette ended it all by lighting her charcoal brasier, that last resort of Paris miserables. She asphyxiated herself, two birds, two dogs and two cats—that was better than the slow torture of starvation, anyhow!

That happened three days ago in an attic, high up in the clouds of dirty tenements—it would tax the pen of Zola to describe the place in its squalor, filth and melancholy wretchedness.

The police found nothing, absolutely nothing, worth taking away in the interest of probable heirs. Antoinette, it seemed, possessed only the clothes she wore on her body, lying on the straw; the few articles of tumbledown furniture were hired like the cooking utensils; there were not even any pawn tickets. But, hold! Something of distribution thereof, with due attention to the owners, and so that the design of nature in making provision for it a cedar chest, such as great ladies use to preserve their furs. The chest opened by a spring lock of precious and intricate mechanism. Contents: The letters already referred to.

"They form the greatest collection of human documents I ever came across," said the official appointed administrator of Antoinette's estate; "their sale might have assured madame a life of ease and even luxury, but, I suppose, she couldn't bear the thought of being separated from her treasures, poor soul."

The administrator has received a doezn or more letters from autograph dealers and men of wealth, offering large sums for the manuscripts in their entirety, or for such indicated by one or another of the leading personages—Hugo, Napoleon, Plon-Plon, Thiers, MacMahon and others—but Antoinette's heirs not having been heard from, nothing can be done. Even Mr. Morgan's agent had to be satisfied with a tardy "you must wait your turn, and it is impossible to say when that may come."

Meanwhile the writer, being somewhat of an expert in graphology, was permitted to go over the correspondence and thus had occasion to verify numerous stories of life in the Elysee and Tulleries she heard from Antoinette's own lips many years ago.

In the succession of imperial favorites Antoinette had her place between Miss Howard and Countess Castiglione, which latter died three years ago, aged 64. Castiglione cut her out for a time, but in the winter of 1869 had the satisfaction of seeing her rival conducted from the foyer of the Tulleries by a chamberlain, while she entered with flying colors, although forbidden to remove her mask.

Here is Napoleon's first letter to her, dated the Elysee, Sept. 13, 1849:

"Madam—Permit me to say that the recollection of your beautiful eyes, classic face and exquisite figure will not fade from my memory, after seeing you at the ball three days ago.

"I shall esteem it a favor if you will permit my adjutant, Col. Fluery, to arrange an introduction.

N."

In years gone by Antoinette often talked of the day that made her famous.

"Napoleon's English friend, Miss Howard, presided at the first supper I ever attended at Elysee palace," she said. "Of course, she knew nothing of our intrigue. I passed for Fleury's intended wife. Among those present were the beautiful princess of the Moskwa, she of the satiny skin; Persigny, ex-sub-lieutenant, now on the road to a dukedom; the Countess Castellane, whom Signor Baccichi had just taken away from her husband; the marchioness of Rochefort and Morny, Napoleon's half-brother, a son of Queen Hortense and Count Flauhault, her master of horse. There was much mysterious talk of a coup d'etat, and toward morning, when the wine made Napoleon forget his usual caution, I heard him say to Miss Howard, 'Let's hope that the day is not far off when I may crown you with the imperial diadem, the only one worthy of your beauty and love.'"

Antoinette saw much of Miss Howard, the English person's daughter, who presided over Napoleon's London establishment, King street, St. James, and afterward followed the prince-president to Paris, where she occupied rooms near the Elysee, and in a side wing of St. Cloud; she called Elisa a perfect beauty of the best English type. "Miss Howard might have lived to a good old age," said her rival, when her own hair was snow white, "if, like myself, she had not aspired too high; but, having two children by the prince, a boy and a girl, she took Napoleon's promises of marriage, seriously. He gave me the same promise a dozen times, but I never dreamt of taking him by his word. Well, one fine day when I visited his imperial higness at the Pavilion de Flore, Tuilleries, Morny came to report that Miss Howard had left for London and that reasons of state made it imperative to keep her there, or at least outside of France.

"Agreed," cried Napoleon, slapping his knee with joy, "get De Maupas (president of police) to secure those letters, quick. You will look after the Moniteur (Official Gazette) yourself."

An hour later an extra gazetted the engagement of Napoleon to Eugenie de Motijo and Miss Howard read the announcement while waiting for the boat at Havre. She returned at once—only to find her apartments ransacked and the chest, containing Napoleon's letters and written promises, robbed of its contents.

Later the discarded mistress accepted the title of Countess Beauregard and 10,000,000 francs as a sum of acquittance and went to Florence, where she lived ten years in comparative obscurity. "Then," as Antoinette put it, "the evil one must plague her to return and try to cut out the empress, whom she attempted to surpass in equipage, diamonds and even in point of beauty. But Eugenie was not a woman to endure humiliation. One fine morning, after a night at the opera, where she had ogled the empress unmercifully, the quondam imperial mistress was found dead in bed—strangled. Suspicion pointed to the empress as having instigated the foul deed, but Napoleon himself was certainly innocent of the crime, which he regretted from the bottom of his heart."

Here is an undated letter from the emperor to Antoinette, describing one of the great masquerade balls at the Tuileries:

"My Dear Rose—I promised to tell you of the great ball to reward you for your sacrifice in keeping away. Most girls would have asked much more than you for voluntarily giving up a pleasure of that kind.

"Well, her majesty, as 'Diana,' was beauty and grace personified. When she danced the gold dust from her hair wove a halo about her classic head; her bow and quiver alone cost 50,000 francs in diamonds and precious stones.

"Mme. Bonaparte-Wyse impersonated a butterfly, and seemed unhappy because compelled to draw a gauze veil over her fine shoulders—yet it would have hurt her to fasten the wings to her flesh, would it not?

"Then there was Mme. Feydeau, dressed, or, rather, undressed, as a follower of Bacchus, her loose hair falling to her knees, her neck and bosom almost entirely bare. Mesdames Persigny, Pelissier and Gallifet (the saint,' 'the devil' and 'the pig,' as you call them) looked very pretty, indeed, though, really, the costumes were more fit for a Turkish bath than a semi-public hall.

"Ah, and before any one else tells you, there was the marchioness of Roche-Brune, only 18, and not half as pretty as yourself. It gave her exceeding pleasure to dance with me, and I have slated her husband, the secretary of the legation, for the first vacant ministership. But, believe me, the marchioness shall not stay in Paris when her husband goes abroad. N."

Napoleon's last letter to "Rose"—at least the last in the bundle—is dated July 4, 1866, and rather peremptory in tone:

"My Dear Child—You will at once stop provoking her majesty. What do you mean by imitating the imperial livery and showing off in a four-in-hand similar to the empress? I have asked De Maupas to give you a serious talking to. There must be no repetition of the affronts you have been guilty of.

N."

Some ten years ago, when Antoinette was still living on the proceeds of her jewelry, she told me the history of that letter. "Louis" (thus she called the emperor) "had been kinder than ever to his old friend for some time past, also more generous, and, fool that I was, I began to forget Miss Howard's fate. Nothing I possessed or did would give me pleasure lest it be turned into a vehicle for injuring Eugenie's feelings. My greatest triumph was on July 3, 1866, when his majesty was completely lost to the world—in my arms.

"On that day occurred the battle of Koenigsgratz, wherein the Prussians abolished Austria. King William's victory meant much to France, and the emperor was dumbfounded when he received the news in my house. So was Eugenie, already deep in politics at the time. In her corset and petticoats, hair streaming down her back, she burst into Paul's room to consult with him. Not finding him in, and being unable to learn of his whereabouts, she was beside herself with rage. Then fear seized her. The president of police was sent for and ordered to fetch the emperor instantly. De Maupas knew, of course, that Louis was in my house and perfectly safe, but to tell the empress would have brought on an explosion! While he was making excuses, Eugenie cut him short by a shower of vituperation. 'He neglected his most sacred duty,' 'the life of his majesty was nothing to him,' etc. The poor woman actually thought the emperor in the hands of assassins, but, learning the truth, when he returned an hour later, her fury was unbounded. Louis had to sit straight down and write me that awful letter, for the empress had threatened to exile herself to Scotland for an unlimited space of time, if he refused."

Ask Your Doctor

He will tell you—

That barley-malt is a half-digested food, as good as food can be.

That hops are an excellent tonic.

That the little alcohol in beer—only 3½ per cent—is an aid to digestion.

But Purity is Essential

But he will tell you that beer must be protected from germs, and brewed in absolute cleanliness.

He'll say, too, that age is important, for age brings perfect fermentation. Without it, beer ferments on the stomach, causing biliousness.

Schlitz beer is brewed with all precautions. It is the recognized standard all the world over, because of its purity.

THE BEER THAT MADE MILWAUKEE FAMOUS

SOUTH DAKOTA CROPS.

Some Deterioration In Condition of Grains.

The crop service report for South Dakota for the week ending Monday some deterioration from lack of rain in the crops of that state. It says:

"The nights were generally cool, but there were some quite warm days. There were well distributed and beneficial showers, in some localities heavy, but in a number of northern counties generally light and insufficient.

"There was some local hail in the middle and upper James and Sioux river valleys, but no material damage therefrom is reported, except over scattered and limited areas.

"The general condition of wheat, oats, barley and grass has deteriorated somewhat from drought in portions of the middle and upper Missouri and upper James and Sioux river valleys, and in some localities in these sections they are suffering for more rain; elsewhere small grains are generally in very thrifty condition, in some southeastern localities growth, especially of barley, rye and oats, being unusually rank. Winter rye is in head and generally very promising, and barley is beginning to head generally. Except in dry districts, wheat is very promising.

"Corn, though generally backward, has made good progress in the middle and southern counties, and fair progress elsewhere. The stand is not generally good. Planting of previously wet lowland in the extreme southeastern counties is about finished, and replanting is generally completed.

"Flax and millet sowing is about finished, except in some dry northern localities, and early flax is generally doing very well.

"Potatoes have generally made good progress, and the early planted are in blossom.

"Grain is generally very good in the southeastern counties, but elsewhere is somewhat backward, and in a number of northern localities needs more rain badly and gives poor promise for a good early hay crop.

"Alfalfa is generally in very good condition, where it is raised.

"Strawberries are generally very good. Plums were somewhat injured in the localities where hail occurred. The prospect for apples in the southeastern counties is fair. In Yankton county the prospect for cherries is reported as poor.

"On the whole, potatoes and corn affected by the frost of the 11th have generally recovered very well, and no permanent injury of any consequence is reported."

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer one hundred dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address

BLOOD POISON

"I cure Blood Poison by my Original Perfected System of Anti-Toxine Treatment, thus avoiding the horrible effects of Poisonous Drugs."

The longest established, most successful and reliable specialist in diseases of men, as medical diplomas, licenses and newspaper records will show.

THESE ARE YOUR SYMPTOMS:

On account of its frightful hideousness, Syphilitic Blood Poison is commonly called the king of venereal diseases. It may be hereditary or contracted. Once the system is tainted with it, the disease may manifest itself in the form of scrofula, eczema, rheumatic pains, stiff or swollen joints, eruptions or copper-colored spots on face or body, little ulcers in the mouth or on the tongue, sore throat, swollen tonsils, falling out of the hair or eyebrows, and finally a leprous like decay of the flesh and bones.

OUR ELECTRO-MEDICAL TREATMENT

improves the patient from the beginning. Our special treatment for Blood Poison is practically the result of my life work, and is endorsed by the best physicians of America and Europe. It contains no dangerous drugs or injurious medicines of any kind. It goes to the very bottom of the disease and forces out every particle of impurity. Soon every sign and symptom disappears completely and forever. The blood, the tissue, the flesh, the bones, and the whole system are cleansed, purified and restored to perfect health, and the patient prepared anew for the duties and pleasures of life.

We do not treat all diseases, but we cure all we treat; we treat men only and cure them to stay cured. We cure to stay cured Varicocele, Stricture, Lost Manhood, Atrophied or Shrunken Organs, Syphilitic Blood Poison, Nerve Sexual Debility, Rupture, Kidney, Urinary Diseases, and all associate diseases and weakne sses of men. We charge nothing for private counsel and give to each patient a LEGAL CONTRACT to hold for our promises. Is it not worth your while to investigate a cure that has made life anew to multitudes of men, and to which countless tongues gladly testify? If you cannot call at our office, write your symptoms fully.

Diseases Cured!

PAY NO MONEY IN ADVANCE.

Many sick people have suffered so much from unskilled and unscrupulous specialists that they have lost all faith in doctors. Many have paid large fees and have taken medicine for years to no benefit. They want to get well and are willing to pay a good price to be cured, but they very justly object to paying a large fee in advance. They want a full trial treatment. To all such I make this—

REMARKABLE OFFER:

Simply write me, giving your name and address and stating as clearly as possible your trouble. When I have made a careful examination and diagnosis of your case and entered it in my case book, I will send you one package of medicine on trial, which you can take at my risk. If it gives any relief the cost will be $5. If it fails to help you it costs you nothing, and you shall be the judge.

ALL THE RISK IS MINE.

Can anything be fairer than this? I am making an offer which no other physician will make. They can't afford to. I refer to any bank in Duluth as to my financial standing and responsibility. This offer proves that I have great faith in my remedies. I KNOW they will cure, otherwise I wouldn't dare make this offer. It would ruin me, as I ship a hundred packages every day. I have tested this system for twenty years and I know that nine people out of ten are willing to pay where they get any benefit.

NO CURE, NO PAY.

is my motto. I do this to convince you who hesitate—who doubt all men's claims. I carry a line of specific medicines which cannot be had anywhere else in the state. Their power to cure disease is simply marvelous.

Syphilis, Gonorrhea, Gleet, Stricture, Skin Affections, Disease of the Kidneys, Stomach, Liver and Bowels, Nervous Troubles, Sexual Weakness, Varicocele and Throat and Lung Troubles cured as if by magic.

Call or write. Office private; no exposure. Consultation free. Hours, 9 a. m. to 8 p. m. Address,

BIG BULGE IN WHEAT

Weather News Frightens Traders and Heavy Advance Made.

Flax Market Wild, Bulging Six Cents In a Few Minutes.

Duluth Board of Trade, June 25.—This was a day for bulls. In all markets the advance in wheat was heavy and big gains were scored. The advances in the nearby options were heaviest in St. Louis and Chicago but as to the September option the Northwestern markets were in line with the advances elsewhere. Chicago was up 3½c for July and 2¼c for September and St. Louis was up 3½c for July and 3-4c for September. Duluth was up 2½c on both options and Minneapolis the same on the July and 2¼-4c on the September. New York July advanced 3c and September 2½c.

The weather is primarily the cause of the advance. In the Southwest there is too much rain and in the Northwest not enough and traders are growing nervous over the situation. There is another side to the bull situation, too. In Chicago the belief is strong that Armour is on the short side and with a big line, and everything possible is being done to harrass him. Traders there feel that they owe him a few and would press any advantage they might gain to the limit. More complaints as to spring wheat deterioration are coming and are beginning to alarm some of those who have been skeptical as to damage. The cash demand is not at all brisk and the foreigners are indifferent to the American advance. Exporters are buying back grain which they sold abroad.

The Liverpool market closed with an advance of 3d, Paris ¼ to ⅜c lower, Antwerp ⅝c higher, Berlin ⅜c higher and Budapest ⅝c lower.

Primary receipts of wheat were 260,000 bus., last year 446,000 bus. Shipments 116,000 bus., last year 363,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregate 381,000 bus.

Receipts of wheat at Duluth and Minneapolis 198 cars, and at Chicago 11, a total of 209 cars, against 264 cars last week and 393 last year.

There was a lively time in the oats market. The July option in Chicago jumped 3 cents in as many minutes and for the day showed an advance of 1⅝c. Corn was also stronger making an advance of 1⅜-⅝c. In the Liverpool market corn was unchanged to ⅛c higher. Primary receipts of corn were 581,000 bus., last year 391,000 bus. Shipments 526,000 bus., last year 254,000 bus. Clearances were 216,000 bus.

Trading in the Duluth wheat market was active. September opened 1¼c up at 78¾c, sold up to 78⅞c at 9:37, fell back to 78¾c at 9:57, and sold at 78⅞c again at 10:05. After that it fell off a half cent and then sold to 79⅝c shortly after 1 o'clock. It closed at 79¼c, an advance of 2¼c. July closed with the same advance at 87c.

Cash wheat is not pressing on the market in spite of the advance and sales today were only 25,000 bus. July price was paid for No. 1 northern and 1½c under for No. 2.

Flax was wild and wheat with all of its bullishness was tame in comparison with it, while the bulge was on. It opened with a show of firmness and July sold soon after at $1.02½ an advance of ½c from yesterday. In the next forty minutes it jumped to $1.08. From there it reacted to $1.06½ and held steady for a time, then selling up again and closing at $1.06¾. This was 4¾c up for the day. September and October advanced 4½c and November 4½c.

There was an advance of 1c in oats and the same in rye.

Following are the closing prices:

Wheat: To arrive, No. 1 hard, 86¾c; No. 1 northern, 86c; No. 2 northern, 85¼c; July, 87c; September, 79¼c; December, 77⅝c. Flax—In store, $1.06½; on track, $1.06½; to arrive, $1.06¾; July, $1.06¾; September, $1.08; October, $1.08; November, $1.08½. Oats—To arrive, 39-40¼c; on track, 39-40½c. Rye—On track, 52c; to arrive, 52c. Barley—35@41c. Cars inspected: Wheat, 33; last year, 25; oats, 1; barley, 2; flax, 16; last year, 4. Receipts: Wheat, 74,359; oats, 39,426; rye, 844; flax, 40,157. Shipments: Wheat, 70,400; oats, 2287; flax, 103,175.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Strong on Crop Situation; Demand Good.

Chicago, June 25.—Wheat opened very strong on the crop situation with July 84c to 1¼c up at 80¼c to 81c and September ½@⅝c to ¾@⅞c higher at 78c to 78¼c. There was good demand from commission houses and shorts, and, with very little on the market, prices showed a further advance, July touching 81⅝c with September up to 79c. The early trading was active and large in volume, what selling there was being by local longs, who did not seem disposed to let go their holdings. Minneapolis and Duluth reported receipts of 198 cars, which with local receipts of 11 cars, none of contract grade, made a total for the three points of 209 cars, against 264 last week and 393 a year ago.

Strength in outside markets and continued unfavorable crop reports added to the early strength. The demand held good to the close, resulting in a steady rise in the July option to 82⅝c, which was the final figure, again off 3⅜c. September followed with a temporary dip from 79c to 78¾c, due to realizing and some selling from the Southwest, but afterwards selling up to 79¾c, the close being steady at 79¾c a gain of 2¼c. Trading was on a large scale and the pit was exceedingly lively throughout the day.

The action of wheat was responsible for considerable strength in corn, the opening on July being ⅝c to ¾c up at 51½@51⅝c, with September up ½@⅝c at 50⅝@51⅜c. Shorts started early to cover and soon bid the price up to 52c for July and 51¾c for September, with some help from commission houses and local bulls. The market was active, with fairly large trade. Cables were barely steady. Local receipts 407 cars, with 56 of contract grade.

Corn held steady at the advance and the close on July was near top at 51⅞@52c, an advance of ⅝@⅞c. September showed a gain of ⅝@¾c, at 51½@52c, closing firm at the high point of the day.

There was a little flurry in July oats early when short holders, in view of the strength in the other pits, started to cover. Opening 3c higher at 41¾c, there was no let up until 44½c was reached, where the price broke to 42½c. Other months were strong in sympathy. September selling up to 34⅜c, after opening ⅝@¾c higher at 34⅛@¼c. Offerings were light and there was a good cash demand. Local receipts were 220 cars.

Provisions opened steady on the strength in grain, notwithstanding the hog situation. Brokers and small packers were good buyers and prices were higher. September pork showed an advance of 17½@22½c at $16.60@16.85. Lard was up 2½@5c at $8.60@8.62½, while ribs were 2½@5c to 5@7½c higher at $9.00@9.60.

Close: Wheat—July, 83¾c; old, 83¾c; September, 79¾@¾c; old, 80c; December, 79⅜@¼c; old, 79½c; May, 80¾c. Corn—June, 51¾c; July, 51⅞@52c; September, 51½@⅝c; December, 50⅝c; May, 48½c. Oats—June, 42½c; July, 42⅝@42¾c, while ribs were 2½@5c to 5@7½c higher at $9.00@9.60½

NEWSIES' PICNIC

The Annual Good Time Will Be at Fond du Lac.

Will be the Usual Program of Races and Eating.

The sixth annual picnic for The Herald's newsboys will be held this year at Fond du Lac, Monday, July 6.

Manager H. D. Clow, of the steamer Newsboy, has very kindly given the use of his boat for this occasion, and will change the schedule for this day so as to leave at 8 a. m. sharp and return at 3:45 p. m., while the regular time of leaving is 9 a. m., returning at 6 p. m.

These picnics are among the brightest spots of a boy's life. There can never been a boy who attended one that will ever forget it. It is one continual round of pleasure to them from the time the date is announced until the boat lands them safely home from the picnic grounds.

A "grown-ups'" picnic is not to be compared for a minute with one of these events. Among the most pleasing and memorable "doin's" of the day is the game of ball between the Duluth and West Duluth boys. Then comes the fast-dressing contest, which is probably the most laughable thing that ever took place at a picnic anywhere and which was originated in Duluth by The Herald's boys.

In this race there are usually from twenty to thirty boys who take off their shoes stockings, hats, coats, vests and shirts. These are all placed in one pile, mixed up thoroughly, the boys standing back twenty feet. At the word "go" they start in a bunch. The one who gets dressed first in his own clothes is the winner.

Among other races they have are the three-legged, 100-yard dash, leap frog, hand walking and jumping.

Last year they ate over eighty watermelons, drank four barrels of lemonade, and wound up with a scramble for 100 pounds of peanuts.

This year it is expected that it will take more, on account of the increasing number of boys.

The boys will all meet, including the West Duluth and West End branches, in The Herald's circulating rooms on First street and Fifth avenue west at 7:30 a. m., where they will receive instructions and tickets from A. C. Pearson, form in line and march to the boat.

PASS EXAMINATIONS.

Two Duluth Boys Will Get Into Annapolis.

Two Duluth boys will enter the United States naval academy at Annapolis, Md. Word was received from Washington, D. C., today that Herbert Lee Spencer, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Spencer, and George Joerns, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Joerns, have both passed the entrance examination to the academy. Both young men have been in the East preparing for the examination.

Proposals.

Sealed proposals will be received by the board of trustees of school district No. 2 of Lake County, Minn., until 6 o'clock p. m., Wednesday, July 1, 1903, for raising the Third avenue school house, in the village of Two Harbors, Minn., according to plans and specifications which may be obtained at the office of Palmer, Hall & Hunt, architects, Duluth, or from the school board at Two Harbors.

The board reserves the right to reject any or all bids.

W. B. WOODWARD, Clerk.
Two Harbors, Minn.

A Superior Wedding.

Two young people of Superior, well known in Duluth musical circles, were married yesterday at Superior. The bride was Miss Ianthe Williamson, whose home is in Chicago, and the groom, Harry H. Howell. Both of the young people are connected with the Superior School of Music. The wedding took place at high noon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Howell, 1920 Tower avenue. Rev. A. B. Nicholls, of the Hammond Avenue Presbyterian church, performed the ceremony. The bride was attended by Miss Elfa Gabrielson, of Duluth, and the groom by Charles Helmer, of Duluth. Miss Williamson was prettily attired in a gown of pale blue voile with old point lace over white taffeta. She carried bridal roses. Mr. and Mrs. Howell left afterward for a wedding trip.

TOOK A FIRST PRIZE.

M. S. Burrows' Horse Gets Blue Ribbon In One Class.

M. S. Burrows has captured one first prize in the St. Paul horse show thus far. Last evening in the class "Park horses," his Little Wonder took the first ribbon. The Pioneer Press says:

"Out of twenty-eight entries, thirteen appeared and a prettier sight could scarcely be imagined. Every horse was on his mettle, every turnout was stylish and swell, and to the general onlooker any one of the thirteen might have been cast for the winner with the second and third favors distributed with the judges' eyes shut. Hard as the problem of a decision was for the judges, there was no fault to be found after the ribbons were bestowed. Little Wonder, exhibited by M. S. Burrows, of Duluth, captured first prize.

SHOT THE DEPUTY

But Ruffian Was Promptly Killed By Marshal.

Louisville, June 25.—A special to the Times from Olive Hill, Ky., says: Deputy Marshal Gus Hall, while approaching Everett Baity with a warrant for his arrest, was this morning shot and instantly killed by Baity with a shotgun. Marshal Lewis White was called to the scene and shot and killed Baity instantly. It is said Baity was loading his gun preparatory to shooting White.

TO LUNCH WITH PRESIDENT.

Sir Thomas Lipton Makes Trip to Washington.

Washington, June 25.—Sir Thomas Lipton, who reached New York from England yesterday, will arrive in Washington late this afternoon. He comes at the special invitation of President Roosevelt and will take luncheon with him tomorrow. During his sojourn in Washington Sir Thomas will be the guest of Gen. and Mrs. Corbin. They will give a dinner tonight in his honor.

PAYNE IS SICK.

Postmaster General Remains Away From Department.

Washington, June 25.—Owing to ill-health, Postmaster General Payne did not go to the postoffice department this morning, although he sent word that he expected to be at the department a little while this afternoon. Mr. Payne's health has been unsatisfactory for several days and he was unable to be at his desk yesterday except for a couple of hours.

Hardy Flagg, Waupaca, Wis., says: My wife would as soon think of making bread without flour as keeping house without Rocky Mountain Tea. 35 cents. S. F. BOYCE.

RATE WAR WAXES

Claimed That Roads Have Cut the Chicago Rate.

Action on Coal and Lumber Rates Expected Daily.

The rate war between the St. Paul-Chicago lines is growing bitter.

One accusation has been lodged, and it is claimed substantially backed, which asserts the rate has been cut $1 by some roads since the $8 rate went into effect.

A traveling man from the Twin Cities said this morning that he was personally aware of such a sale being made.

The matter will be taken before the association, and on facts connected with it rests the stability of the agreement of the roads which have been holding up the prices on that trip.

The Wisconsin Central road, this man continued, issued an order that all excursion rates would be based on the regular $8 fare.

This will make the Chicago rate $3.50 one way from the Twin Cities, and for these excursions the roads out of Duluth will have to make a rate of about $2.50 each way between here and St. Paul to meet this rate the Wisconsin Central and Omaha will make on their connection with the Chicago run out of St. Paul. This will make the Chicago round trip not more than $12, which is $1.50 less than the single fare was up to June 20.

Railroad men in Duluth are expecting daily the order to put the rate down to the lowest notch and then a fight for time will be started.

The Northwestern road has reduced time to ten hours between St. Paul and Chicago, and it is probable that it will make a hard fight up here against the Central, which it is trying to humiliate now at St. Paul, and give a fast service to Chicago.

This will be the most beneficial thing Duluth can get out of all the railroad fighting, and unless there is a settlement very soon, Duluth can look for an hour or two's closer connections with the metropolis of the West.

ACTION IS EXPECTED.

Decision on Coal and Lumber Rates Coming.

Representatives of the big lines in this state have been in consultation with the state warehouse and railroad commission for the past week or two, at various times. The subject under discussion has been the threat to reduce the freight rate on coal and lumber which, in some cases, is one-third higher than in any of the adjoining states.

Attorney Joseph Cotton, who represents the range roads, and who has been before the commission in this connection for the roads, has not been in any of the recent conferences.

Mr. Cotton is in Ishpeming and could not be secured this morning to make a statement on the situation at this time. Railroad men are expecting an utterance from the railroad and warehouse commission any day, as the coal traffic is at its heaviest now.

TRAVEL IS CHEAP.

All Sorts of Excursion Rates Are on.

The excursion season is on with a vengeance, and it is hardly necessary to pay a full fare to any section of the country.

At present there are low rate tickets on sale as far east as Boston, and as far west as San Francisco. There is a rate to El Paso and to Atlanta, Ga., and to all kinds of convention cities intermediate.

The excursion business this year is expected to be heavier than it has been for many years, and the number of Duluth people who are taking advantage of the rates is large.

One of the ticket agents said this morning that he believed that 500 people would go out of Duluth on these excursions, persons who travel regularly, but who have been postponing business trips to wait for the rates to go into effect.

There are many traveling men who save their long trips for excursion time, and while it is not as comfortable riding as on regular trains in summer, it is far cheaper.

For instance, one can get a return trip to Boston for what it would cost to go to Chicago as a regular trip. And for the price of two round trips to Chicago, and a little extra, one can go to San Francisco and return.

Looks Over Ranges.

E. R. Baird, son of General Freight Agent J. B. Baird, of the Northern Pacific railway, returned today from a trip to the ranges, where he went to look over the mines and mining country.

Mr. Baird went over both range roads and spent two days in the country. He went into some underground mines at Sparta and looked over the open pit mines at other places. He is still a lad, but his father intends, as President Mellen has done with his son, to put him in the railroad work, and is sending him around to look over things.

Slade In Town.

General Superintendent G. T. Slade, of the Great Northern railroad, was in Duluth for a short time this morning, calling on the representatives of the company here. He left early for Superior to look over things there and confer with D. M. Philbin, the assistant general superintendent in charge of the ore country division.

COST MONEY TO ACCOMODATE

Two Men Fined For Selling Tar of Hay to Be Obliging.

Two well-known business men were fined $25 in the municipal court this afternoon under unusual circumstances.

J. D. Allen and H. C. Burns, who, until a few days ago were in the wholesale flour and feed business under the firm name of Allen & Burns, were arrested on a warrant charging them with engaging in the commission business without a license.

Just to accommodate a man they sold a consignment of hay and charged $5 for their trouble. In some way the transaction was called to the attention of the attorney general's office and the prosecution followed.

Last winter the firm of Allen & Burns ordered a consignment of hay from George B. Paddock, of Oak Park, Minn. When it reached here it was found to be not what was ordered. When informed of this Mr. Paddock did not insist on the Duluth firm's taking the hay, but asked as a favor that the firm sell it for him here. It was sold to a local livery stable for $75 and a commission of $5 charged.

The state laws of 1899 provide a fee of $1 to be paid for a license from the state warehouse and railway commission and also a bond of $2,000 before any person has the right to engage in the commission business.

Just to accommodate a friend the local firm did not consider the commission worth the while and went ahead with the deal.

LAND CASE RULING.

Decision Involving Valuable Lands In 67-21.

Register Culkin and Receiver Smith of the local land office have handed down a decision in the land office case of John D. McDonald against Jacob Mohr, concerning certain valable lands in sections 12 and 14 of township 67-21.

The plat of the township was filed in the local office August 19, 1902, and on the same day Mohr entered certain lands under the homestead act claiming settlement on the land since September, 1899. Later in the day McDonald made entry for the same lands alleging settlement from March 13, 1902.

Finding that the land had been already entered McDonald brought contest against Mohr's entry claimilig that the latter had not settled on the land previous to his entry and that therefore he was entitled to the land.

A hearing was held before the local officials and Mohr established the fact of his settlement to their satisfaction. He was granted his patent and the contest was dismissed.

McDonald is given thirty days in which to appeal the case to the officials of the office at Washington.

RETALIATION.

Many Building Trades Men Are Called Out.

New York, June 25.—Forty walking delegates headed by Sam Parks of the Housesmiths and Bridgemen's union, opened a campaign of retaliation upon the Building Trades Employes' association today. Their purpose is to close up work on every job contracted for by members of that organization. Men were called out at the St. Regis hotel, at the New York theater, at the New Astor estate hotel in Long Acres square, and at the Metropolitan Life building in Twenty-third street.

CLOUDBURST

Forces People of South Topeka to Flee.

Topeka, Kans., June 25.—A rain storm that amounted practically to a cloudburst, broke over Topeka after midnight. A number of residents in South Topeka were compelled to flee to higher ground, while a few smaller houses were washed from their foundations. The Kaw is also rising.

MILLER INDICTED

For Aiding Driggs to Violate the Law.

New York, June 25.—The federal grand jury in Brooklyn today presented two indictments against George F. Miller, general agent of the Brandt Automatic cashier. The indictments charge Miller with aiding and abetting former Congressman Driggs to violate section 1781 of the United State Revised statutes, in paying money to Driggs. Miller was arraigned and withheld his plea pending examination of the indictment by his counsel. He gave bail in the sum of $2500.

PETTO INDICTED.

New York, June 25.—Tomaso Petto was indicted today on a charge of murder in the first degree, in causing the death of Benedetto Madonia, the Buffalo Italian, whose body was found stuffed in a barrel on East One Hundred and Tenth street on April 14 last.

STREET CARS ARE RUNNING.

Richmond, Va., June 25.—The street car company commenced running cars on three of the lines early today. There is talk of a conference of the mayor, chief of police and city attorney to consider the advisability of having martial law declared.

FOR FIRST TIME

Yale Won All Three Events In Annual Regatta.

Showed Its Superiority Over Harvard In Superb Style.

New London, June 25.—The oarsmen of Yale university today demonstrated their superiority over those of Harvard by winning in superb style all three events in the annual regatta. The Yale four took the first race by three comfortable lengths, in 10.59 2-5. The New Haven freshmen, in a close race, finished a length and three-quarters ahead of the Harvard youngsters in 9.43 1-5.

In the big race of the day Harvard, after leading for a mile, rowed pluckily to defeat at the hands of Yale's men, who, in the last half of the contest, controlled the situation in unmistakable style. It was the first time that Yale has won all three events since the regatta reached its present program. There were no accidents and nothing to mar the days' sport. Yale's time in the big race was 20.19 4-5, within 9 and 4-5 seconds of the record of the course. The freshmen's record was broken by Yale's time of 9:43 1-5. The detailed story of the varsity race follows:

The moment the pistol shot was fired Harvard dipped oars into the water and got the jump on Yale with a stroke of 8 to the minute, which soon dropped to 32. Their lead was not great and Harvard failed to increase in the first half mile. Yale was rowing 33 strokes but it was not high enough to hold the crimson oarsmen and at the three-quarter mile Harvard was three quarters of a length in the lead. Both crews rowed prettily. Yale then slowly increased and at the mile and a half had taken the lead away from Harvard. Harvard spurted to hold her position but without avail, for at the two mile flag Yale was nearly a length in the lead and a quarter of a mile further on clear water showed between them. Harvard held her own for a quarter of a mile, Yale rowing 32 and Harvard 33.

The increased stroke sent the boat along so well that Yale was but half a length to the good. The desperate effort of the crimson men to overtake Yale had sapped their strength, however, for from the 3-mile flag on Yale gradually pulled away.

The last mile was a beautiful struggle, Harvard's stroke at the finish, but there was no spurt in the boys rowing which had been named Hay brook, a name which survives to this day, along in August, and it was the dryest August that man or beast had ever seen on the Penobscot headwaters. Everything was like tinder, and so, when Jim Chase touched a match to the first haystack he came to, and a puff of wind came out of the west, the flames spread with lightning-like rapidity.

In five minutes every stack of grain and hay in the 40-acre field was ablaze, while the firebrands were sailing off into the timber and starting fires there. Jim had begun to eat his lunch when the fire started among the stacks, and he grinned to himself as he thought how, with one scratch of a match, he had made it impossible for the pirates to steal any logs that winter.

Just as he made up his mind that there wouldn't be a wisp of hay left, not enough oats to make a lunch for a sparrow, the wind suddenly shifted and blew the fire toward where he was sitting. Then it was time for Jim Chase to show what he could do in the moving line. But he couldn't go fast enough to get away from the fire on that side, and he had to fight his way back through it to the burned-over field, where his boots scorched and shriveled in the blazing stubble.

Jim's red face became the color of the ashes under his feet as he looked around. On every side the woods were aflame, and great sheets of smoke, reddened with streaks of fire, were billowing high above the treetops.

The forest resounded with the cries of animals driven out by the smoke and heat. Moose crashed through the thick growth, wildcats went snarling past, hordes of rabbits and small creatures of every species known to these parts swarmed toward the brook, to seek safety in its waters—now a mere trickle over the rocky bed. Everything that walked or crawled was moving out on foot, and every feathered creature was on the wing fleeing from the tremendous blaze that Jim had kindled in the name of the state of Maine.

For Jim himself there was but one chance, and that was to reach a rocky hill ten miles away to the south, in which quarter the fire had made less headway than elsewhere. He took the chance, and after hours struggling through the smoking, blazing woods, emerged at last, scorched, blistered and bleeding, at the base of the great pile of slate rock which ever since that day has borne the name of Mt. Chase.

Upon the bleak summit of the rocky hill Jim stayed two weeks, descending now and then to get something to eat, by hunting or fishing. All the time he could see the woods burning in an ever-widening circle around him, and he thought that he had set fire to the whole state of Maine.

On the fifteenth night a heavy rain set in, and then, in a few hours, it was possible for Jim to travel through the burnt lands without toasting the soles of his feet. In four days he reached Bangor and reported what he had done.

Did you burn the hay?" asked the state land agent.

"Hay?" asked Jim. "Yes, siree, sir, I burned the hay and the ground it grew on, the wods and all the critters in it, and I'm thinking as how Moosehead lake has 'vaporated by this time. There won't be no more timber stealing up there for a while yet—no, nor anything else!"

It was found afterward that Jim's official fire had burned over five townships and parts of six others, a total of nearly 200 square miles, and destroyed more timber than the pirates could have stolen had they lived and kept at it with all their horses and oxen to the year of our Lord 1903.

That was the last official bonfire kindled in Maine, and nowadays they are so careful of the timber in dry times that the author of an unofficial bonfire is in danger of going to jail if caught.

PETER NAMES HIS MINISTERS

Confirms the Appointments of Those Now In Office.

Belgrade, June 25.—King Peter this afternoon confirmed the appointments of the existing ministry.

During the day the king had several conferences with the ministers and a royal proclamation was issued and was well received.

It is believed that the question of the punishment of the assassins of King Alexander and Queen Draga will be allowed to lapse.

It was remarked today that Col. Maschin, minister of public works, who took a leading part in the assassinations, kept in the background during the ceremony at the parliament building.

A considerable number of the poorer classes of the people have placed candles on the tombs of King Alexander and Queen Draga.

MRS. M'KNIGHT ON TRIAL.

She Had Confessed to Poisoning Her Brother.

Kalkaska, Mich., June 25.—The examination of Mrs. Mary McKnight, who according to Prosecuting Attorney Smith, confessed to him that she poisoned her brother, Joseph Murphy and his wife and baby, was begun today before Justice Murphy, Joseph Battenfield, the first witness, testified that he was present at Murphy's death and the death agony as he described it, was typical of strychnine poisoning. The witness also testified that three or four days before Murphy's death he secured some strychnine for Mrs. McKnight at Fife Lake drug store.

The next witness was Dr. P. W. Pearsall. He testified to removing the organs from Murphy's stomach in the cemetery and swore that there were evidences of strychnine poisoning.

BIGGEST FIRE IN MAINE

Was Started By Order of the State.

An old lumberman sat quietly by while some men from up river were telling of the great forest fires last week, and then he spoke up to say that there might have been bigger fires, but the fastest and foolishest fire in the history of the world was that set by order of the state of Maine, way back in 1826, Jim Chase acting as torch-bearer to the commonwealth, writes the Bangor (Me.) correspondent of the New York Sun.

In those days said the old lumberman, the state owned all the timber, and by many people stealing timber was considered no sin at all, much less a crime. The big pumpkin pine belonged to the whole people, and why should not part of the people have their part? That was the argument of the timber pirates, and to them it seemed to be conclusive.

In order to conduct operations in the woods there must be laid in stocks of hay and grain for the horses or oxen, and the pirates used to go up to a brook at the headwaters of Sebois stream, where there is a great meadow, and there have a fine time all summer raising and harvesting crops of grain and hay. The crops were stacked and covered to await the winter and the coming of the oxen and horses, when all hands pitched in and helped themselves to what they wanted, or could haul out, of the best timber that ever stood in Maine.

Finally, the state authorities heard of this picnic of the pirates among the pumpkin pine, and Jim Chase, a man who knew every foot of the timber country, went up to put a stop to it by burning the crops that had been stacked up in the summer of 1826. Jim said it was an easy job, and started.

He got to the brook, which had been named Hay brook, a name which survives to this day, along in August, and it was the dryest August that man or beast had ever seen on the Penobscot headwaters. Everything was like tinder, and so, when Jim Chase touched a match to the first haystack he came to, and a puff of wind came out of the west, the flames spread with lightning-like rapidity.
